About Heinz Dill Pickles

No grocery stock is complete without Heinz Dill Pickles, made from Heinz original recipe. They are, without doubt, the most appetizing and delicious of all pickles, and this is the time of year when people are looking for them.

We have them put up in whiskey barrels, fine large pickles, that can be retailed at 20c. doz. and show you a handsome profit at this price. You only have to put half a doz. in a dish on your counter with a price card attached, reading 6 for 10c., and they sell themselves. If you are not handling them then order now and get your share out of this profit-making line.

Canned Goods

are selling well just now. We are receiving some good substantial orders for all kinds of vegetables. It may be that our prices are too tempting to pass. We can still let you have some

Canned Pineapple

The Phonograph Brand, packed in the Bahamas where the fruit is grown, and when it is just in the proper condition for canning. This is the most delicious pineapple put up in tins.

Phonograph Brand, sliced, 2s, cases 2 doz. - - $1.70 doz.

Fish

The fish season is now at its height. We went trolling and got the hooks into a lot of boneless fish put up in 1 and 2-lb. bricks, 20 lbs. and 40 lbs. to a box, which we quote, 4¾c.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN.

Cheese continues very strong. On this side holders are asking the highest price they stand any show of obtaining and while some are willing to accept ruling figures, there are others who wish to wait for a 14c. market, which will surely come if present conditions continue much longer. Slowly, week by week, prices have been climbing until at the time of writing they are at a figure which was not thought of a month ago.

That there will be a market for cheese at 14c. seems to be beyond doubt. Stocks held here, as has already been stated, are extremely low, most of the cheese being the property of English houses. Taken with this fact, and helping on the market towards higher figures, there has been constant trading in small lots at the advancing prices, thus gradually reducing stocks. It is estimated that all over the country stocks held would not amount to more than 40,000 boxes. If it were possible to state in figures the actual amount for sale, the market would certainly assume a much stronger tone than at present prevails.

Nearly all the dealers in Montreal are sold out. During the week a couple of firms cleared out the last of remaining holdings. Some there are, however, who have a few small lots which were bought in November at prices which are now considered very cheap, and on these lots good profit will be realized. More than one house, having bought at a reasonable figure in November at prices which are now considered very cheap, and on these lots good profits will be realized. More than one house, having bought at a reasonable figure in November, and sold for ½c. profit shortly afterwards is now wishing that the cheese had been held. But there is no ability of seeing into the future granted cheese men more than any others, and regrets do not go any length towards bringing back the opportunity.

Reports from England show that the market there is still strong with prices upward in tendency. London stocks are low and the demand on the part of the public keeps up. It is the belief of many that a 70s. market will rule before the season closes. This is not so unlikely when the bare state of the English market is taken into consideration.

Fifty boxes of cheese were received during the week, bringing up the total receipts since May 1, 1906, to 2,349,320 boxes. 913 packages of butter arrived, or 606,247 packages since May 1, 1906.

A better feeling prevailed in butter last week than for some time past. Prices obtained were quite satisfactory to the trade and sales made at these figures were numerous enough to further warrant this satisfaction.

Creamery returned from England is still on the market. Fresh made butter is not in large enough supply to fill the demand, and as a consequence storage stock is being cleared out. After March 1, however, fresh butter will begin to arrive more freely.

PROVISION SITUATION.

There is practically no change worth noting in the provision situation this week. The price of live hogs is practically unchanged, $6.50 to $6.60 f.o.b. country points, and deliveries are fair. Last week deliveries in Ontario totalled 25,000 to 30,000 hogs.

The domestic market for products is about at low ebb.

The Old Country market is if anything a little worse than a week ago. This is principally accounted for by large deliveries of Danish bacon. In addition, the carry-over of Danish from last week was larger than for some time. Altogether the market is far from satisfactory. It was thought at one time that the changes in the German tariff would permit the importation of hogs from Denmark and thus provide a new outlet for the Danish product. The new tariff works out at 4c. a pound, however, and that is prohibitive, and in addition, pork in Germany declined somewhat.

In Chicago pork products are lower because of heavy receipts of hogs. There were 52,000 head in the stock yards on Monday.

The London Daily Telegraph, recently discussing the meat trade of the metropolis, said :

There can be no question that the "Big Six" of the American Beef Trust has obtained an important hold on the British meat trade. For years the great combination of the United States has lost no opportunity to bid for stalls in the Central Meat Market, and they have now so secure a footing at Smithfield that upwards of forty tenants are the nominees of the trust. From these stalls nothing but trust products are procurable. Some of the carcases which the American firms sell are those of beasts landed and slaughtered at the city corporation's foreign cattle market at Deptford. The larger proportion of the sides and quarters displayed at Smithfield are dressed in Chicago, sent down to New York or Boston in refrigerator cars, and enveloped in cotton cloths and shipped on vessels equipped with "chilling" plants of the most up-to-date description. The trade in United States and Canadian meat has developed at an extraordinarily rapid rate, and it is gradually ousting British-bred meat from the market. Last year, of over 400,000 tons of produce entering Smithfield market, only 20.5 was British, a substantial decrease as compared with 1905. Australasia easily beat us, and when more rapid boats with cool chambers are ready for the meat carrying trade, there is no doubt that the supply from the Antipodes will grow enormously. From New Zealand, in particular, experts expect great things. Beef pastured in that colony has already earned a big reputation, and as the farmers there are raising great herds of cattle, it is considered that the United States will be confronted with a big competitor at no distant date. The Argentine, of course, is furnishing the British market with huge supplies, but owing to the prevalence of foot and mouth disease in a small area west of Buenos Ayres, the landing of live cattle bred on South American ranches is prohibited, and all River Platte meat is shipped frozen or chilled.

The following table of the produce passing through Smithfield will show how dependent we are upon foreign countries for our meat supply :

We thought the limit had been reached some time ago, with boneless fish and seedless fruit, but we learn of late that a Wisconsin man has discovered an odorless limburger cheese. Just what limburger cheese without the smell would be like is a matter of great interest. The consensus of opinion, as far as we have been able to collect it, is that it would not be limburger cheese at all.—Ex.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Wheat Receipts Larger and Prices Lower—Railways Handling the Traffic Better—Flour Steady and in Good Demand—Easter Confectionery Season.

Increasing receipts of wheat in the west, both in Canada and the States and the passing of the Russian scarce have brought about a decline in prices. Manitoba wheat in bond in Buffalo for export is being brought back to Canada to supply Ontario millers. The increasing receipts in the west indicate that the railways are getting into better shape. There is even some expectation now of getting all rail shipments through to eastern points in the near future. Oats continue very firm and the same condition prevails over the continent. Flour is firm and in fair demand. An Ontario miller reported this week a sale of 5,000 bags for South Africa.

Confectionery.

Manufacturers of confectionery are now at their top speed with the Easter trade. The usual "novelties" predominate. Easter coming early this year has hurried things. Ontario manufacturers are just completing their shipments to the east and west and they report excellent business.

The retailer who is not in line with the confectionery end of the business should correct his error at once. It is one of the grocer's most profitable lines. The prime requisites for success are to handle good goods, and display them well. Confectionery is worth a department to itself. Properly handled it will never fail to yield its share of profit.

MONTREAL.

ENCOURAGING EMPLOYES.

A system of distributing bonuses has been for some time in force in the establishment of Messrs. Ganong Bros., Limited, manufacturing confectioners of St. Stephen, N.B., with the object of securing continuous service from their employes. During the Christmas season each year amounts varying from $2 to $10 are distributed to the employes, without regard to the wages received, but based solely on the number of years each employe has been in the service of the company. Employes of one year's standing are regarded as transient labor only, the minimum bonus ($2) being paid to those who have been for two years continuously with the company. One dollar is added to the amount of the bonus for each additional year's service up to $10.

The total amount distributed in this way by the firm has been about $1,000 each year during the past five years. On September 1 last year, a printed slip was placed in each pay envelope stating that if the employe was present every working day during the balance of the year, an additional bonus of $10 would be granted, but that for every day's absence $1 would be deducted from this extra amount. The result was stated by the company to have been most satisfactory, this being the season among confectionery manufacturers when, in view of the heavy Christmas trade, every effort must be made to maintain the supply of labor.

CHANGE IN MINCEMEAT FIRM.

Nicholson & Brock, Toronto, manufacturers of mincemeat, bird seeds, etc., have dissolved partnership after a business career of eleven years. T. W. Brock disposed of his interests to James Nicholson, who has managed the business from its inception and the latter will continue under the old name of Nicholson & Brock. Both Mr. Nicholson and Mr. Brock are favorably known to the jobbing and retail grocery trade of Canada.

FROM GROCER CORRESPONDENTS

CHATHAM.

Edward Eddington, for fifteen years past in the employ of C. D. Williamson's grocery, passed away very suddenly on the evening of Feb. 13th. Mr. Eddington was 55 years of age, and leaves a wife and four children, Edward, of Toronto, and James, Inez and Maria, at home. Prior to coming here, he was in business in Thamesville. The funeral took place on Friday from the residence. William street, to Maple Leaf cemetery.

E. Duffy, the Lorne avenue grocer, last week sold his business to Wesley E. Parrott. The latter intends to conduct a branch store on Lorne avenue. The store re-opened under the new management on Monday, Miss Broughton being placed in charge.

John McCart, who has been conducting a meat business on Park street for some time, has given up business.

LONDON.

Some grocers have, through the daily press, directed attention to the fact that there are on the London market hucksters who cheat their customers by means of short-weight bags, short-weight rolls of butter, and other fraudulent practices. Every market day great quantities of potatoes and other vegetables are sold by the bag, in bags which will not hold more than 65 or 70 pounds of potatoes. The hucksters get hold of 100-pound sugar bags and yield to temptation. Now that one of the big sugar companies is using 120-pound bags there is a possibility that others many follow suit, and then the hucksters will not be so frequently tempted to do wrong. But that is looking into the future. For the present there is a crying need of immediate and effective means of preventing these simple, honest farmers from taking advantage of the smart city folk in the way they are doing. Some of the grocers, individually, have stirred up the civic officials and unearthed a dead-letter law on the matter. The publicity that has resulted has no doubt served as a warning to buy by weight when buying on the market. But no definite steps to remedy the evil have been taken by the Retail Grocers' Association. The writer asked a member if the association had done anything in this matter and the grocer replied, "Not yet, but soon."

If the retail grocers of London would get together oltener they would realize more fully the power and benefit of organization. They meet every once in a while, or, maybe not so often, and between times, don't know they're living—as an organization. They are too busy individually to stop and think of the time and trouble they might save themselves by acting collectively in a reasonable manner. A live grocers' association works for mutual profit. Its advantages have been often demonstrated. The London grocers will find it well worth while to meet regularly and grapple with some of the problems that have been so successfully solved by organizations in other cities. These problems become trifles when every member of the association helps towards their solution. Mutual investment will result in mutual profit.

PETERBORO.

It was with general regret in Peterboro that the announcement of the retirement of F. R. J. Mitchell from the retail grocery business was received. For nearly half a century this business has been in existence here. It was started by Mr. Mitchell's father in the early sixties, when Peterboro was a small village, in which cows and horses ran at large upon the main streets. It was one of the first grocery stores here, and is about the only one of the original firms doing business to-day. It was conducted continuously by Mr. Mitchell, sr., up to the time of his death in 1894. Some years before that, however, he took his two sons, F. R. J. Mitchell amd Geo. L. Mitchell, into partnership with him. Geo. L. retired from the firm in 1880 and went on the road and now has his headquarters in Winnipeg. After his father's death Fred. carried on the business alone and continued to receive the same liberal patronage as did his father before him. He is to-day enjoying a good share of the trade and has many customers who have dealt with him for many years.

Ever since the grocery store was started by Mr. Mitchell, a wholesale liquor business has been carried on in connection with it, and it has always been a profitable department. Fred. Mitchell is now passed middle life. He has considerable means, and as he finds the combined stores require more time and attention than he feels disposed to give, he decided to drop the grocery end. He is now selling off his stock and will soon remodel his store and carry on a retail liquor business only.

The grocery trade in the city this year so far has been good. The month of January was in most cases better than the corresponding month last year. This is partly accounted for by an increase in population. The city is growing rapidly and the next year or two will see a development unprecedented. The establishment of the Coates Co., Ltd., will bring in at least 500 people the first year, while the Canadian General Electric Works are doubling their capacity and will bring in anywhere from 1,000 to 2,000 more people. Several other large factories are about to increase their plants. All these people have to be fed, and it means a very substantial increase in the grocery business.

The heavy snow storms in the Northwest have made a material difference to the Quaker Oats Co. here. Since the railways have been blocked the company has suffered from the shortage of wheat and other grains. At least two hundred hands were laid off, while the orders for Quaker Oats and the various other cereals manufactured by the Quaker Oats Company, have increased very materially. Thousands of dollars worth of business has been turned away because the railways were not able to bring down the grain.

It will be interesting to the trade to know that the Quaker Oats Co. have decided to more than double the capacity of their mills in the near future. Plans are now nearly completed for this work and as soon as the Trent Valley canal is opened at the north end there will be a great expansion in the manufacture of cereals in Peterboro.

KINGSTON.

Kingston was dressed in its best last week to receive Premier Whitney and his followers and also opposition Graham and his party all united and as happy as a lot of school boys.

They first took in the Dairy School and were surprised and delighted. The butter and cheese was the best they had ever tasted and even the buttermilk had its admirers. Then they started for Queen's and took in everything, especially the banquet where toasts, modern and of the Zweiback type were given.

The principle interest, as they took their draughts, was centred in the treasurer, Hon. Mr. Mathieson, who made a very favorable impression and received hearty cheers.

A large petition containing thousands of names of the principle citizens of Kingston is being handed in to the Board of Trade to consider the advisabality of asking parliament to change the name of Kingston Penitentiary to Portsmouth Penitentiary. Portsmouth is a suburb of Kingston, and two of its attractions for tourists are Lake Ontario Park, the terminus of the street railway, a naturel beauty spot and in summer time full of amusements, bathing, merry-go-round and concert companies. Many a weary grocer takes a run out for a few hours' rest. The other attractions are: Penitentiary Asylum, and Bajus Brewery. There are two grocers, Samuel Lowe and James Campbell, both rich and happy.

Large signs, 10x25 advertising Lipton's Tea have been placed all over the city. There seems to be a tea war on here. The Melagama contingent were here all week putting up signs, distributing samples and demonstrating the drawing qualities of their blend. The retailers hope that no more new brands of tea, baking powder, and ready to eat foods will show themselves for a long time. It is a growing evil and as Jim, the grocer said on the square, "if any more foods come into my store, I will be obliged to start a hennery to eat them up."

Edgerton Card, manager of the National Biscuit Co., at Newark, N.J., died after a short illness. He has been connected with the company for about eight years and filled important positions for them at Odgensburg and Syracuse. He leaves a wife and one child. He was born at Ernstown and came to Kingston when a boy. He applied at Gilbert's grocery for a job and was put on a delivery His kind manner and perseverance soon got him behind the counter where he was beloved by both employer and customers for many years. His many friends here regret his early demise.

A DOUBLE PROFIT

Royal Baking Powder Pays a Greater Profit to the Grocer Than any Other Baking Powder He Sells.

Profit means real money in the bank. It does not mean "percentage," which may represent very little actual money. A grocer often has the chance to sell either:

1. A baking powder for 45c. a pound and make a profit of 5c or 6c., or,
2. A baking powder for 10c. a pound and make "20 per cent profit," which means only 2c. actual money. Which choice should you take?

Royal Baking Powder makes the customer satisfied and pleased, not only with the baking powder, but also with the flour, butter, eggs, etc., which the grocer sells.

This satisfaction of the customer is the foundation of the best and surest profit in business—it is permanent. Do not take the risk of selling a cheap alum baking powder; some day the customer may find out about the alum, and then your best profit in the customer's confidence is gone.

Royal Baking Powder pays greater profits to the grocer than any other baking powder he sells.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Heavy Demand for All Kinds of Green Fruits and Vegetables—Fish Scarce, Partly Because of Freight Congestion in the West.

The fruit and vegetable trade is booming. Practically everything but apples and potatoes is imported but inside a wholesale fruiter's to-day one could easily imagine oneself in the good old summer time. Strawberries from Florida, sweet potatoes from New Jersey, or anges, nectarines and celery from California, new beets and carrots from Louisiana, lettuce from Boston, pines from the West Indies. For the first time strawberries are this season being brought direct by refrigerator express to the Canadian market from the point of production instead of via New York. This is an indication of the increasing importance of this market. There is a good consumptive demand. Bitter oranges are now at their last and some very large shipments of prime quality have arrived in Canada. A very large shipment of fine quality lemons has also come in from Messena. Spy apples are in good demand and are scarce, bringing $4 to $4.50. Oranges are firming up.

Fish are in good demand and supplies are light. An increasing proportion of Canada's fish suplies is coming from the Pacific coast and the difficulty of getting shipments through from the west has interfered.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Very little activity is reported in green fruits. There is a fairly good demand for general lines at ruling prices, but actual sales are small. Bananas are in good supply and selling freely at prices about the same as those quoted last week.

FISH—Fish trade is excellent, Lenten demand being very strong. Prices on the whole are very well maintained, few changes being noticeable. In many lines dealers are just about cleaned up. POTATOES SCARCE IN WINNIPEG.

Cheaper to Bring Them From States Than From Eastern Canada—The Duty.

Winnipeg produce houses report potatoes very scarce and difficult to obtain because of the tie up on the railways during the last month. One or two dealers have been inquiring prices of potatoes in Ontario but so far as can be learned very few are being brought west from the Eastern Provinces. The great bulk of the supply is brought up from the south where potatoes are plentiful.

Up to the present the duty has been more than counterbalanced by the excess in freight rates from Eastern Canada as compared with the rates from Minneapolis. Last week, however, the duty was raised from 15 cents to 20 cents per bushel. One large produce house had three carloads on the way to Winnipeg and the announcement of the increased duty was particularly unwelcome to them.

Potatoes have been selling to the retail trade at about 80 cents per bushel, and the result of the increase in the duty will be to raise the price to the trade to 85 cents. It is not thought that the increase in the duty will be sufficient to divert the trade to Eastern Canada. Freight from Minneapolis averages about 15c per bushel, and as mentioned above, the duty is 20 cents. Freight and duty combined thus amount to more than 40 per cent. of the price.

NOTES.

Mr. Healy and Mr. Vickers, of Vancouver, have formed a partnership and will go into the grocery business.

E. W. Drew, Oshawa, has disposed of his grocery business to Mr. Germond. Mr. Drew is taking a position with the McLaughlin Carriage Co., as buyer.

J. A. McCrea & Son, grocers, of Guelph, have sold their stock to Mr. McLaren, of Fielding & McLaren. Mr. McLaren will take charge of the business himself.

R. Scott & Co., Mount Forest, have concluded their annual mid-winter sale and it has proved a great success. They conduct their own sales and that is one reason they make out so well.

The retail grocers of Ottawa have presented a new petition for early closing to the city council. The grocers ask for closing at six o'clock on every day except Saturday, when the hour would be nine.

A. Mills has bought the general store business of R. Ray, Wood Lawn, a hamlet a mile and a quarter from Kirktown, where T. Eaton began business in Canada, and where he is still well remembered by the old folks as a very pushing and aggressive young man. Mr. Mills is going into real estate in the west.

A grocery traveler who hustles hard enough to keep warm and look pleasant, between Toronto and Georgian Bay, said to The Grocer this week, "Most of the merchants who take stock have done so by this time, and consensus of opinion is that 1906 was a record-breaker for business. From the breadth of the smile most of them wear, I guess the balance was substantially on the right side in most cases."

MAKER OF FOODSTUFFS AND AN IMPERIALIST

Makers of Food Stuffs and Imoependent

A. W. Maconochie, of Maconochie Bros., England, is now in Canada, and last week spent some time in Toronto. Maconochie Bros. are among the largest producers of prepared foods in the world. They produce half Scotland's output of canned fish and from their great plant in London occupying many acres on the Thames bank, were issued the rations for the memory of which thousands of South African veterans, Canadians included, still bless the name of Maconochie. To the grocery trade in America the firm is best known as makers of pickles, jams, sauces, etc., of very high quality and packers of superior fish products. On this side the Atlantic the firm's agents are the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto, who have achieved a splendid success with the Maconochie goods.

Member of Parliament.

A. W. Maconochie was member of the British Parliament for East Aberdeenshire for years until the last general election, when he was beaten as a Liberal Unionist, but principally as a fiscal reformer. If Mr. Maconochie believes anything (and he's Scotch) it is that a scientific application of the principle of protection will save industrial England from decline. The principles of his faith are simple enough. "Pay English workmen as Americans are paid; let them live as well and they'll work as well. To do that, protect the English manufacturer and secure the markets of the Empire for the products of industry under the flag. Mr. Maconochie believes scientific protection would accomplish that. As a proof that a reasonable duty does not enhance the price to the consumer Mr. Maconochie tells that when in the House he suggested a higher duty on sugar for revenue purposes. It was put on; the consumer paid no more and dealers who had opposed the measure confessed after a year that they had never made so much money. Mr. Maconochie asserts that British trade is declining and explains the apparent increases by stating that the increase is only in values due to high prices.

He Did Things.

During his five years in the Commons Mr. Maconochie made a record for himself by securing for his constituency from the Imperial Exchequer more than all his predecessors had in the 65 years before him.

Mr. Maconochie has large steel and iron interests in America and Germany. Canadian railway securities, he says, are much more popular than American railway securities in Great Britain. Trusts, he averred, could be and should be legislated out of existence, but he stated the very interesting fact that in certain kinds of steel production American, German and English manufacturers had agreed upon a division of the world's markets.

Mr. Maconochie is in his habits one of the most democratic of men. He has a fine zest in life, is frank and unconventional and the toiler and millionaire are equally at home with him. Still under fifty, sturdily built, with a fine, closely-cropped head, firmly set, Mr. Maconochie is of the dominant Scotch type, and is a man whom a newspaper man feels it worth while to have met. He left for Montreal Sunday, accompanied by Mr. Marshall, of the MacLaren Co.

BOAR'S HEAD ADVANCED.

A further advance in Boar's Head compound lard has taken place. Prices now read: Tierces, 9⅞; half barrels, 10⅛; 60 lb. tubs, 10⅛; 20 lb. wood pails $2.08; 20 lb. tin pails, $1.98; Cases, 3's, 10⅞; cases, 5's, 10¾; cases, 10's, 10⅝.

The clothing, drygoods and grocery business of Wm. Campbell, Elora, has been removed from down town to the John Gibb store, a more central stand, uptown, where Mr. Campbell has added Walker bins and fixtures, clothing cabinets, silent salesman cases and a fine, N. C. register, giving him a most attractive and up-to-date store. This business was founded by Mr. Campbell six years ago, is now carried on by his son who "knows how" in conducting a modern retail store. Mr. Campbell believes in a free use of printer's ink and in keeping faith with the public. "Campbell's Cash Counters" are well and favorably known to the people of Elora and the surrounding country.

Mr. Grocer,

You must sell Cigars—not because most grocers in Canada do, but because your prosperity demands that you shall sell Cigars. Nor can you afford to stock an inferior brand. You can only oblige your customers by carrying a stock of first-quality, easy-priced Cigars. Take no chances. Stock up

Pharaoh and Pebble

Cigars—proclaimed by particular smokers to be the best Cigars manufactured on this planet at the price.

Pharaoh is a ten cent Cigar and fifteen cents fails to buy any other nearly as good.

Pebble is sold at five cents and there are mighty few grocers in Canada who have not many good words to say for the Pebble.

N.B.—The Payne Plan of doing business says more for genuine Cigar goodness than all the words we could print. See last issue of this paper—if you do not know that plan.

Success Insurance

Mr. Grocer! if you could take out a policy assuring success you would certainly do so. Such a policy would cut out the memory of over-due bills and their attendant evils. Yes Sir, you would actually pay out good cash every now and then for such a policy. Why not stock up

T. & B.

You only pay for the tobacco. The success policy goes with it—an unwritten policy which hundreds of grocers have proven more valuable than most written policies. T. & B. is only another name for success insurance.

RESIST OPPRESSION AND ENFORCE REFORM

Power That Lies in a Well Organized National Retail Grocers' Association.

E. A. Stevens, formerly national organizer for the National Retail Grocers' Association, in an address before the recent annual convention at Dallas, Texas, said :

In matters of organization the average retail dealer has, in the past, been too prone to be lavish at someone else's expense, but extremely parsimonious when it came out of his own pocket. On himself, he will go out and have a good time—no matter what the cost. On this organization, which is only capable of doing for him, in proportion of what he is willing to do for it, he has been simply niggardly. That has been the greatest danger which has threatened this greatest of grocery organizations.

Just consider what this national association can accomplish, if properly officered and financed. It can defeat the parcel post project. It can prevent the fraudulent sales by soap clubs, which are cutting a deep gash into the grocery trade in almost every state, by undertaking the agitation of laws against misrepresentation, and securing such laws in states where they do not now exist.

Aid in Enforcing Pure Food Law.

It can aid in the proper enforcement of the National Pure Food Law, so that there will be the least possible friction with the trade. It can secure the abolition of that first-aid to the "dead beat"—the national bankruptcy law, why can't we have a just and equitable national collection law ? It can abolish premiums and trading stamps. It can and should rid the south of the semi-jobber. You owe that to our honored friend and helper in time of need, Hon. J. A. Van Hoose, president of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Associations which paid half of the cost of organizing all the southern states, except Texas and Arkansas. It can protect every grocer in the land against short weight goods. It ought to devise practical means to stop the further demoralization of the grocery business from being swamped by ignorant, unclean and, to say the least, undesirable classes.

This National's very existence could be made worth at least $100 per year to everyone in the trade. Suppose the States had a law requiring a certificate, or diploma, of fitness from every applicant to enter the grocery business—like most trades, callings and professions ? If such could be obtained, that would settle for all time the financial problem. I believe the operation of the National Pure Food Law will eventually compel some such regulation of the retail grocery business.

Power of Combination.

From combination, and combination alone, can come the strength and power to resist aggression or enforce reform. The great overshadowing pall that still obstructs retail grocery organization is the grocers themselves. Most of the evils from without would quickly disappear if it were not for the evils from within. These are manifested by petty jealousy, by attempts to undermine competitors, by cutting prices, by false statements, by substitution, by attempts to push cheap trash, which discredit themselves and their calling. By grovelling—looking down instead of up—by debasing instead of elevating methods. Then there are the horde of what I term "nothingarians" whose indifference blocks action, who stand like a vast row of ciphers—of no power, force or influence—until someone fitted with vitalizing and electrifying vigor places a figure in front of these ciphers, and, behold, they are immediately endowed with tremendous importance and power. That figure typifies organization !

Enthusiasm Needed, Too.

We need something more than organization ; we need the esprit de corps which inspires action. Look at our social and economic conditions to-day. The vast department stores and mail order concerns swallowing up the lesser merchants, the trusts and combines dictating terms to retailer and consumer ; capital and labor, landlord and landless, employer and employe confront each other. Society is being unevenly divided into rich and poor, and it seems as though those who frame our laws and carry on our government consider these conditions natural and unavoidable. Instead of removing as far as possible trade inequalities their policy has been directed solely to the advantage of predominant interests. Excessive greed and inordinate selfishness are brutalizing and degrading men. The retail business day grows more hazardous and commercial strife reigns everywhere. Why ? There are many reasons no doubt, but not a few can be attributed to the inadequacy of our business laws. Instead of statesmen we have had sharp

TAXES ON TRAVELERS.

The British Board of Trade has issued a useful bluebook, which gives the following list of British colonies where there are regulations or taxes upon travelers, with the annual amount payable:

New Zealand (£5).
Cape Colony (£25).
Natal (£10).
Transvaal (£10).
Orangia (£20).
Prince Edward Island ($20).
Quebec ($50 up).
British Columbia ($100).
British Honduras ($10).
Bechuanaland ($10).

In New Zealand the fee is held as a guarantee that the income tax due on the business done in the colony will be repaid. In Prince Edward Island and British Columbia the licenses are much higher for travelers selling intoxicating liquors or cigars.

In all other parts of the British Empire commercial travelers can carry on their work without hindrance.

Appended is a list of foreign countries which impose taxes on the ambassadors of trade, together with the annual amount charged:

Argentine Republic (varies in different provinces).
Bolivia ($300).
Brazil (varies according to province).
Bulgaria (£6).
Congo Free State (£6).
Denmark (£9).
Germany (1s).
Mexico (varies according to province).
Norway (£5 11s. per month).
Paraguay (£10 to £15).
Russia (£26 7s. 5d.).
Sweden (£5 11s. per month).
Uruguay (£21).

The commercial traveler in Russia has no fewer than four separate payments to make every year.

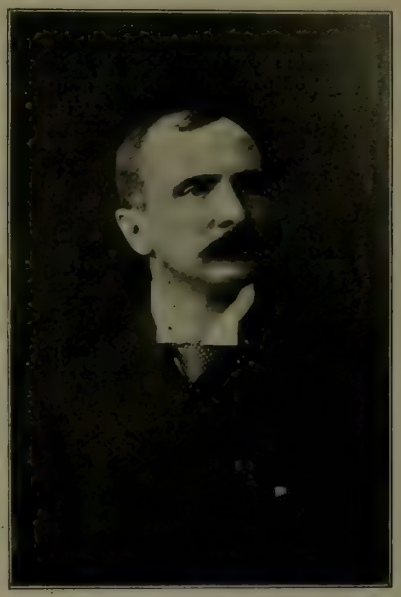
EXHIBITION OF GROCERIES.

Progress Being Made By Committee—A Great Hospital Day.

Preparations for the great exhibition of groceries to be held in Montreal in April are rapidly being completed. Every day brings to a head some new arrangement so that the opening of the Exhibition on time is assured.

Booths are being sold to manufacturers, importers and agents all over the Dominion, and the number remaining untaken is very small. The energetic members of the committee appointed to look after matters are doing all in their power to forward the interests of the project, and with everybody working results are showing as they naturally must.



ALBERT HEBERT
Committee Exhibition of Groceries, Montreal, who suggested holding of Hospital Benefit Day.

One of the first to suggest the latest step was Albert Hebert, a committee member, President of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild and head of the firm of Hudon, Hebert & Co. Mr. Hebert thought it would be a good idea to divide the gate receipts taken on the first Saturday of the Exhibition, April 20, between the two principal hospitals of Montreal, the Notre Dame and the General. The matter was taken up at once and it was finally decided that this should be done. The public will be made aware of the committee's intention and a tremendous crowd will no doubt turn out on that day particularly. Mr. Hebert is a hustler from the start and an excellent man to have on the committee.

ANOTHER FOOD SHOW.

The Grocery Clerks' Association of Montreal contemplates holding a food show in the Montreal Stadium from July 1 to July 6, coming. It will be known as the Greater Montreal Pure Food Show and will be run entirely under the management of the Clerks' Association. Their annual excursion will be cancelled in order to allow members to devote the time and energy they usually give to the excursion to the Fair. Those on the committee are: A. Lacroix, O. Dionne, J. B. E. Poirier (treasurer), J. O. Levesque and A. Quesnel.

POTATO SITUATION IN MONTREAL

New Brunswick potatoes rule the market in Montreal at the present time. There are three varieties which are in demand. Green Mountains are the best sellers now offered to the trade, while Purelifiques are also sold extensively. This is a splendid potato and seems to give satisfaction. The Favorite potato is sold freely in some quarters, but does not meet with general favor because it is a rather damp potato. The market is about steady, prices asked being obtainable when buyers are open for business. Quite a few shipments are being made to the west, but Ontario is really not touched as it was last year. Shippers from New Brunswick have been sending their cars right through to Toronto when they have been desirous of dealing with the trade in Ontario centres. One Montreal dealer had a buyer who bought a couple of cars at Boston with the intention of shipping them into Canada, but when he found that he had to pay duty he realized his error and an effort is now being made to sell the potatoes on the American market.

J. W. Windsor, Montreal packer of the Ice Castle Brand of Lobsters, Haddies, Herrings, etc., was a caller upon the Toronto jobbing trade this week in company with A. E. Richards, Hamilton, Ontario representative.

Your Business at Your Finger Tips

The merchant, if he is wise, no longer keeps his accounts upon tickets, in memorandum books, or in a loose way, but has a system by which, at a glance, he can tell what he is doing.

The Crain Monthly Account System has been in use by successful business men for years. It does the work in one-half the time, and in a way that is much more satistactory to his customers and more pleasant to himself, than plodding along in the old way. In this system, too, you require a binder, such as the Crain, with an unlimited capacity, which binds on one sheet as easily as it does on 1,000, not one that you must have a certain number of sheets in before it will bind, and then only allows you to extend to a limited number of accounts.

Too Expensive For My Business!

SYSTEM THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Any retailer who says that about Business Systems, is laboring under a delusion.

The size of a business is the factor that determines the cost of installing Business Systems.

Business Systems are, proportionately, just as much an economy for the smallest retail store as for the largest factory.

■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■

In different businesses, Business Systems are designed to fit different ends.

In your business, Mr. Retailer, Business Systems, instead of being "too expensive," are time savers and an actual economy.

You can understand why a system that posts your books and writes out your bills at the same time, is economical, can't you?

That's only one of the things Business Systems will do for you.

■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■

Let us tell you more.

Drop us a post card and we will send you all the details.

It will only cost you a cent to know more.

"DO THE PEOPLE LIKE TO BE FOOLED?"

The Manufacturers of Soap in a good many cases are to-day acting on this principle. They are cutting down the size of the cake, using adulterations and poorer quality of materials, and still claiming their soap and price is unchanged.

The reason: The price of raw materials for making soap is so high the manufacturer has been compelled to make some change in price, quality, or size of cake. Most Canadian makers have chosen the poorer quality, cut cake method.

The Grocer Who Knows His Business Will Certainly See That His Customers Are Protected And Will Receive Proper Honest Values.

You can feel perfectly satisfied you are giving the best value in soap when selling the "SURPRISE" Soap to your trade.

Quality is the secret of "SURPRISE" Soap success.

"SURPRISE" Soap is to-day the same quality, the same size, as it has been for over twenty years. The price is advanced somewhat to meet conditions of high cost raw materials.

THE

ST. CROIX SOAP MFG. CO.,

St. Stephen N.B.

"SURPRISE" is owned by an independent Company. It does not belong to the English or Canadian Soap Trust.

QUOTATIONS FOR PROPRIETARY ARTICLES

Quotations on staple articles, prepared by our own staff, will be found in the market reports in the centre of the paper. SAVING

Every particle of strength and aroma developed and saved in Coffee adds just so much to its value, for it means Dollars saved to the consumer, because it goes further;
Dollars made by the Grocer, because they sell more.
The "saving quality" is one of the greatest attributes of

LOOK HERE

It's getting on toward spring, and if your cans are to be delivered when you want them you must place your order on time.

Hustle

is the only sure way of getting the cans out, and this is just what we are doing. We are hustling for all we are worth at our factory. Never were so busy. That's why we want your order right away. We are sure we can fill it now, but we cannot make any promises for the future.

CLASSIFIED LIST OF ADVERTISEMENTS ON PAGE 72

The Raw Materials

used in the making of all C & B preparations are only of the best quality obtainable. You cannot make the best goods from inferior materials and because C & B use only the most perfect materials obtainable their goods are a little better than others.

Take for instance their lines of pickles.

The vegetables grown in England contain a smaller percentage of moisture than those grown elsewhere, and because only the choicest vegetables, selected by experts with the utmost care, are used in the making of C & B pickles, they are noted the world over for that crispness and delicate flavor which is the epicure's delight.

The same care which characterizes the selection of C & B pickling vegetables is to be found in connection with every branch of their business. Fruits for preserves, meats for canning, flavorings for jellies, etc., all are chosen with equal care by experts of many years experience, and this is one reason why C & B goods are THE STANDARD the world over.

Four Reasons why INVICTUS FIBRE is the BEST FIBRE PAPER on the Market

1. Invictus Fibre is made from personally selected pulp wood cut on our own limits.
2. This special pulp wood is again rigidly culled on arrival at our mills
3. The pulp from which Invictus Fibre is made is manufactured inlour own pulp mill and transferred at once to the paper mill, avoiding all drawbacks of transportation.
4. Invictus Fibre will increase in strength and not grow hard and brittle as does fibre made from sulphite pulp. This is a quality of the peculiar and selected pulp from which Invictus Fibre is made.

A trial order will convince you that we are correct. See that each package bears the words "Invictus Fibre." Every ream contains 480 sheets wouldn't be considered very profitable by the farmers, yet thousands of merchants are cultivating the weeds of business by continuing the Old Style Pass book—errors every day Forgotten charges. Hundreds of little, things make a big aggregate amount. Adopt the modern ALLISON COUPON SYSTEM and throw away your time wasting device. Look here—for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? Let us send you a free sample.

Cultivating Weeds

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

I have often been asked whether my selection of the name "RED ROSE" had much to do with the remarkable growth of my business. I have always said "Yes, I think the name has been a help, because it is one that conveys an impression of something delicate, something nice—the red rose—a flower we all like, therefore a name which should induce the tea drinker to try the first cup."

And, after all, it's that first cup, that first package; for if they turn out wrong, in the words of a late American Senator, "Where are we?"

So, you see that having got down to the final analysis, we have to conclude that while there is something in a name, the principal thing to ensure success in tea selling is the quality of the article itself.

"RED ROSE" proved a good name because it is a good tea. Had it been a poorer tea, the value of the name would have been no greater than many others.

I shall always feel, in having chosen the name "RED ROSE" as a brand for my tea, that I am in honor bound to maintain the quality at the highest possible standard in order that it may be a credit to the most beautiful, the most fragrant, the queen of all flowers, the "Red Rose."

Some Results of a Great Convention

What the Gathering at Buffalo Will Do for the Canning Industry—Quality Becomes the Motto of the Canner and Packer—Facts Developed by the Convention—The Overloaded Corn Situation — Increase of Per Capita Canned Goods Consumption from Three Tins to Five.

It will be hard to overestimate the possible benefits to the canned goods industry of America of the recent convention at Buffalo with its organization of a national association and the hearty endorsation of the national pure food law of the United States. The outstanding features of the convention were given in last week's issue of The Canadian Grocer, but there are some further considerations worth while.

The New York Journal of Commerce says of it editorially :

"The National Canners' Association, which is to be the result of the convention of several separate organizations held at Buffalo this week, will be an example of the kind of business association that is eminently desirable if the professions so freely made by the various speakers and embodied in resolutions adopted by the delegates are lived up to. It will be understood that those forming this association are engaged only in manufacturing and dealing in vegetable and fruit food products put up in sealed cans. It is radically different from a combination to control production or price and extract a higher profit from the consuming public by suppressing competition or establishing any degree of monopoly.

"Its avowed purpose is to remedy or prevent abuses in the canned goods trade and regulate it by co-operation for the mutual benefit of producers and consumers, reckoning among producers those who distribute and market their products. The professed desire and determination is to eliminate so far as possible fraud and deception in this traffic. The convention declared itself in favor of every effort to prevent adulteration and misbranding and to secure purity of contents in receptacles for food products and truthful labels upon them—in short, in favor of plain honesty and fair dealing in the business represented. It determined to support the national pure food law and its faithful execution and to promote state legislation upon the same lines. The example of this convention and of the association which it decided to organize is to be commended for imitation, with the proviso, as before, that it lives up to its professions, which there is no present reason for doubting.

"These canners of vegetables and fruit for food have reason for setting a high value upon public confidence and regarding honesty as the best policy, but no more so than other purveyors of food products or of drugs and medicines. The meat canning industry has suffered a good deal of loss from failing to observe the principles of common honesty and aboveboard dealing, and confidence has been shaken in the stock in trade of drug stores by exposures of adulteration and cheapening of quality under deceptive labels. The wholesale grocers and the wholesale druggists associations have shown a disposition to take the same ground as the canners regarding adulteration and misrepresentations in their trade, but hardly with the same earnestness and unanimity. There is a disposition in some quarters to plead indirectly, if not openly, that a certain amount of deceit and concealment is harmless, if not necessary. It facilitates trade and consumers rather like it. This is a pestilent theory and honorable men will discard it. Business associations to promote legitimate objects of trade, reform abuses and above all to encourage and sustain square dealing between members of each trade and with its customers are capable of great usefulness to the community."

GEO. G. BAILEY, ROME, N.Y.
President National Canners' Association and President Atlantic State Packers' Association

THE PRESIDENT'S APPROVAL.

Rome, N.Y., Feb. 25th, 1907.

The Canadian Grocer,
10 Front St., East,
Toronto, Canada.

Gentlemen :—

We wish to congratulare you on the complete, concise and very exact report of the meeting of the canners of the United States and allied associations, at Buffalo, February 11th-16th, 1907. We are surprised to note that there was such a large number of packers and others interested in the canning industry in attendance. The members of the associations on this side of the Niagara feontier are more than pleased to greet their Canadian brothers, and we hope that they will give their moral support as well as grace their meetings with their presence at the next year's meeting of the National Canners' Association of the United States.

Yours truly,
NATIONAL CANNERS' ASSOCIATION,
(Signed) GEO. G. BAILEY,
President.

The salient facts developed by the convention may be thus stated :

First—That the food law itself is regarded as a measure that will ultimately work to increase trade in all canned vegetable products.

Second—That the canners will follow closely the rules laid down, covering the definitions of branding, labelling, the use of terms applying to added substances and to the general raising of standards of the several products.

Third—That the canners and preservers, as well, are ready to co-operate with the food law officials in the discovery and development after discovery of ways of improving quality, of the elimination of all harmless and harmful preservatives, and of a general safeguarding of the consumer.

Fourth—That the canner is willing to concede something to the jobber on the question of guaranty of his product, under buyers' labels, and the jobber, in a spirit of reciprocity, is ready to meet the canner on even terms.

Fifth—That the broker is to receive more consideration in the future, and that he now forms a part of the great system by and through which over 350,000 retailers are reached.

Sixth—That a plan of arbitration of all disputes arising out of business and sectional differences will be evolved in the not distant future and in which elements of the allied interests will have part and parcel.

Seventh—That the consumer, backed by all the forces of law, working in conjunction with business interests, will get a "square deal"—what he pays for is the best product that science and modern labor-saving machinery can produce.

Corn Quality and Futures.

The present corn situation in the States moved E. W. Branch, president of the Marengo Canneries Co., of Iowa, to advocate very cogently and with the hearty endorsation of the convention, that future corn business be eliminated for the coming season. The reason for this is that there have been two seasons of overproduction and the market is overloaded. He said in part :

"We are not of the school that advocates survival of the fittest, as regards price, when it entails not only the crucifixion of the packer and the jobber, but blights every hope of a firm, expanding market ; every hope of an increased consumptive demand by the packing of poor quality, which goes hand in hand with an attempt to produce the most for the least money.

"There is room, and not only that, but actual need of every corn packer in the business to-day, if he will pack a quality which will increase consumption.

If the 14,000,000 cases of 1905 had been of a uniformly high grade of quality they would have vanished like a snowball in June.

"There is no use mincing words; it is not so much the overproduction of the past two seasons as it is the fact that, generally speaking, the quality was not such as would command the consumers' approval and continued patronage. Look at the opportunity we corn packers have had in the past two years, with tomatoes, peas and every other line of canned goods so high that the ordinary consumer would grasp at corn like a drowning man at a straw. If we only had the quality to deliver.

Big Acreage Causes Poor Pack.

"The comsumer of to-day has greater purchasing power on account of higher wages, larger salaries and incomes than ever before, and he is looking for good corn right now at 10 and 15 cents per can, fearing to risk a lower price article. Why? Because the quality is not assured.

"We review the history of the past that we may gain for the future. Will you not agree with us when we say that the poor quality of the 1905 pack of corn was attributable to the excess of acreage, the excess of raw material, which could not be placed in cans during the short packing season at the proper stage of maturity, rather than any carelessness in efficiency, or negligence in the processing? And what caused the excess of acreage? Was it not future sales compelling over contracting of acreage, which sales in 1905, from all reports, was more than double the amount made in 1906? Now let each packer judge for himself whether or not in his own case the 1906 pack, totalling 4,000,000 cases less, was not far superior in quality to the production of 1905.

"We do not attempt to advocate, nor do we solicit your consideration of any plan to enter upon an agreement to curtail the amount to be produced in 1907, or any agreement concerning prices, but what we want is quality, quality from the Atlantic Coast as far west as corn can be packed, and we know from experience and every other packer who has ever sold future corn knows it too, that desirable quality is not so readily obtained if the packer is loaded up with future contracts and forced to over contract his acreage in the spring to insure himself against possible crop failure."

Better Quality and Consumption.

Investigation made by competent authorities have developed the fact that less than three tins of canned vegetables and fruits per individual are consumed annually in the United States. It was established as a fact that in some sections a prejudice exists against canned products.

Indorsed Pure Food Law.

It is now the purpose of the canners, as asserted in convention, to remove that prejudice, and the first move to this end was taken in joint session by an unequivocal indorsement of the national pure food law. It must be understood—in fact the canners themselves made it so understood—that the food law stand was taken without pressure from any quarter. Open discussion "left no room for doubt that the fruit and vegetable packer feared nothing from the operation of the law."

Dr. Harvey W. Wilcy pointed out that the Government is the best friend the honest canner of any product has, and he predicted that when the consumer sees on the labels of canned products the stamp of government [illegible] the value of the article as a desirable edible will be enhanced, and consumption amazingly increased. There were those at this convention who firmly believe that with conscientious effort the distribution of canned vegetables and fruits can be increased in the next year to five cans per individual—an increase, if effected, that would tax the capacity of every plant in the country to meet it.

Dr. Wiley has made the statement before the convention that canned vegetables and fruits prepared in the modern canning plants in this country are more cleanly and desirable as food than the fresh fruits and vegetables reaching the tables of the consumer through the medium of the city markets. He said the sanitary conditions as developed through the introduction and use of modern machinery in most of the canning plants could not be questioned. The ordinary kitchen would not compare in point of cleanliness and sanitation with the modern canning factory.

The striving for quality, rather than for quantity, it is conceded, will be the force behind the development of increased consumption.

HERE AND THERE WITH THE REPORTER.

The rotunda of The Iroquois looked like the rush for the betting booths at Sheepshead Bay and a constant crowd was surging back and forth. The large parlor of the Iroquois was half too small to permit of the delegates listening to Dr. Wiley's and Dr. Frear's addresses.

The Simpson-Doeller Co., Baltimore, booth was a popular resort and the unique badge, red ribbon with oyster shell and miniature crap, was much sought after. It certainly was a strong advertising medium, and one that will do them good as a reminder of their label and design work.

The invention of a Canadian exhibited by the Invincible Grain Cleanser Co., of Silver Springs, N.Y., was an interesting automatic weighing machine. The patentee is Mr. A. H. Canning, formerly a grocery jobber on Front St., Toronto. The Grocer renewed old acquaintanceship with Mr. Canning.

Two members of the Canadian House of Commons, Mr. E. D. Smith, Winona, and D. Marshall, Aylmer, were in attendance at the convention. Both being well known and prominently connected with the Canadian Canning and Preserving, interests were much interested in the latest machines for the betterment and simplification of their individual businesses.

Officers Elected.

The Machinery and Supplies Association, in attendance at the Canners' Convention, elected these officers: E. M. Lang, of Portland, Me., president; John T. Staff, Terre Haute, Ind., secretary; Charles Amms, of New York City, eastern vice-president; Theodore Cobb, of Detroit, western vice-president; executive committee, George Cobb, Fairport, N.Y., chairman; Arthur E. Scott, Cadiz, Ohio; John Colbert, Philadelphia.

The Western Packers' Canned Goods Association re-elected the following officers: President, L. A. Sears, Chillicothe, O.; vice-president, L. J. Risser, Onarga, Ill.; secretary and treasurer, Friend F. Wiley, Edinburg, Ind.; executive committee, W. C. Ellis, Vinton, Iowa; S. F. Martin, Blair, Neb., and Edward Reynolds, Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

The National Canned Goods and Dried Fruit Brokers' Association elected these officers:—President, Walter A. Frost, Chicago; first vice-president, E. Clay Shriner, Baltimore; second vice-president, Walter M. Field, San Francisco; third vice-president, Frank A. Alpin, New York; secretary, J. L. Flannery, Chicago; treasurer, H. C. Gilbert, St. Louis; directors, Thomas J. Meehan, Baltimore; A. L. North, New York; F. L. Deming, Chicago; H. W. Dunlap, Pittsburg; J. J. Hallowell, Philadelphia; Harvey Holt, Boston; Henry Flarsheim, Kansas City; Alex. Wiley, New York; W. J. Kemmler, jr., Pittsburg, and George W. Chase, Buffalo.

The Atlantic States Packers' Association elected the following officers: President, George G. Bailey, Rome, N.Y.; vice-president, C. S. Crary, Illinois; secretary and treasurer, F. E. Gorrell, Maryland; executive, W. R. Roach, Michigan; J. S. Hughes, Minnesota; R. I. Bently, California.

Model Canning Factory.

On Tuesday evening the model canning factory was put into operation for the benefit of members only. The goods processed were beans and these were put through from the snipper to the labelled can. The operation and working of the improved machinery was highly commended by the hundreds of packers present at the demonstration.

Will it be Boston or Denver for the 1908 convention? Hearty invitations were received from both these points. After discussion the question was left to the executive committee.

Max Ams, the Mt. Vernon, N.Y., machinery man, had a large exhibit of sanitary can systems machinery. A hard worker and known to almost everyone in the trade, Mr. Ams did not have a spare moment. With all he was pleasant and never put out. A large business was done by himself and staff.

Slaysman & Co., Baltimore, Md., reported splendid business with their automatic side steam locking machine. Mr. Slaysman was personally present and attentive to visitors and buyers.

The Trade Baltimore Canned Goods Packers' Organ of the United States, had a booth in the forward part of the centre aisle in the armouries. Mr. Judge, proprietor, with an assistant, was kept busy—everybody seemed to want to talk to Judge about something. This was so also at the Iroquois, headquarters of the convention. It was "Judge, Mr. Judge," by the call boys.

The entertainment tendered by the American Can Co., at the Lyric Theatre, would have been more satisfactory to a lot of delegates had "the gods" been cut off altogether. It was no place to send delegates with their wives. A number of recipients of gallery tickets just—didn't go.

Wellington Boulter, Picton, that pioneer of Canadian canners, was present for a few days. Some of the improvements in canning machinery since he first began putting up goods for the Canadian trade must have impressed him strikingly. Miss Nellie Boulter accompanied Mr. Boulter.

One of the most striking and novel booths and exhibits was that of the United States Printing Co. in the main aisle of the armouries. The company had erected a large Dutch wind mill, on the four blades of which appropriate mottos were printed. The interior of the mill proper was arranged as a sample room, showing designs of different labels prepared by them. The mill was surrounded by a five-foot wall and altogether the effect was novel and striking. Mr. W. A. Daniels, the general manager, with a number of representatives were attentive to visitors and customers alike, many of whom carried away handsome paper-weight souvenirs.

The booth of the Worcester Salt Co. was a haven of rest for their patrons. The Grocer learned that a large number of canners and packers in Canada were regular and large buyers of this salt.

The rendering by the band of "The Maple Leaf" was a feature appreciated by the Canadians present at the reception and banquet on Wednesday. They all sang it with vim and enthusiasm.

E. W. Branch, of the Marengo Canning Co., Marengo, Iowa, is a forcible speaker and his views on the elimination of the future corn quotations were convincingly expressed. The western packers almost to a unit were behind Mr. Branch in his contentions, "Quality, not quantity, means better paying business and profits for packers and dealers alike."

That potato peeling machine is a wonder, two bushels of potatoes peeled in less than three minutes, and no waste. Hotels, restaurants and boarding houses should rejoice.

There wasn't a Union Jack in evidence at the fair. In a similar exhibition in Canada the Star Spangled Banner would have been entwined with the old "thousand years" banner.

The exhibit of the Dodge Metallic Cap Co., Montclair, N.J., received the constant and close attention of packers. Their display of the hermetic seal cap in connection with fruits, preserves, etc., in glass, was large, and the demonstration of the simplicity of application of this sanitary and simple cap interesting. The Grocer was particularly interested as it was a feature that appealed to him from every point, simplicity, neatness, quickness of securing, and closeness of sealing, etc.

The Canadian trade press was represented by R. J. Slater, of "Le Prix Courant," Montreal, and W. H. Seyler, Canadian Grocer.

The Ayars Machine Co., Salem, N.J., has several machines in operation, displaying rotary pea fillers, continuous cappers, etc. A number of sales were made to Canadian canners, and their business on this side of the line is good, steady and growing. Brown, Boggs Co., Ltd., Hamilton, Ont., are Canadian agents for this company.

One of the busiest and most looked for men at the convention and the Armories was J. Russell Shearman of the Shearman Mercantile Co., Indianapolis, Ind. Mr. Shearman's firm are extensive brokers and commission merchants and their interests and dealing with the canners and packers are very heavy.

ADVANCE OF THE WEST REFLECTED IN A GROCERY

It cannot be long now before the people of Eastern Canada will have to make unconditional surrender of the idea that the west is in a pioneer state of development. Look at the accompanying photograph of a grocery interior. It shows J. T. McCammon's store in Moose Jaw. In any city in Canada this store would not only do credit to its proprietor, but would rank considerably above the average of grocery stores in its vicinity. We are sorry we cannot show a picture of the windows, for it is almost certain that so handsome an interior presents a good exterior. The little office at the back of the store is suggestive. It suggests that Mr. McCammon has adopted a system of account keeping which if it is in line with the rest of the business and is as good as the rest of the store looks, is a chart by which the careful navigator of the troubled sea of trade may direct his course aright. It will show him the business he did yesterday and that he did a week, a month, or a year ago. It will show the cost of doing business and that knowledge alone goes a long way towards informing a grocer whether or not his business is profitable.

J. T. McCAMMON, MOOSE JAW.

DELEGATION TO QUEBEC.

A delegation, composed of Albert Hebert, L. E. Geoffrion, L. A. Wilson, and L. A. Lapointe, with J. A. Beaudry, representing the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association, formed a delegation that waited on Premier Gouin in Quebec last week regarding the changes desired by the Montreal wholesale trade in the liquor law. The principal matter discussed was a proposal to amend the present law in such a way that a wholesale dealer might be allowed to sell assorted liquors in small lots of two gallons.

LUCERNA SWISS MILK CHOCOLATE

The MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co. have been appointed sole agents for Ontario for the Lucerna Swiss Milk Chocolate.

FROM GROCER CORRESPONDENTS

KINGSTON.

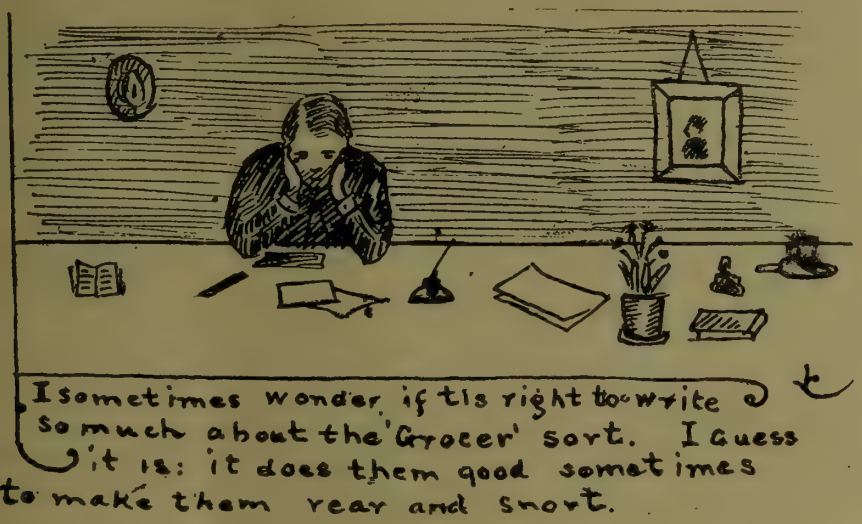
Of the glory and honor of business men in public life no city of its size in Canada is more deserving of mention than the good old city of Kingston, and the kindness of The Canadian Grocer in lending its pages for biography in brief and cuts of business men in public life is appreciated and Kingston will send its quota and do its pages honor.

A gentleman once said to Mark Twain "What a fine coterie you have." Mark with his usual quick wit added, " and also my vestry and pantry."

Well, St. Valentine's day is past and gone, but memories of ugly valentines linger in the minds o. bosses, clerks, bookkeepers and drivers. Some of them were cruel hits and many innocent people were accused wrongfully of sending them. All's well that ends well and the vicious looks will soon pass away and harmony will be restored.

It was too cold for many of the knights of the tin scoop to assemble on the market square, but still there was a quorum and after buying up all the fowls and chickens before ten o'clock Jim the grocer said, "Boys, don't you think it is fair for a canning factory to sell in small lots to a commission man here after placing several carloads with the regular army of men of commerce?"

A car condemned by those who bought as not being fit for human consumption was sold again at a big reduction and the jobbers got a snap, tomatoes 75. Resold to a few retailers at 90c. and advertised and run off at 3 for 25c. This injures legitimate trade. The board of health should have looked after these goods as they were certainly put up too ripe and even the cans seemed to be made of a cheap, lead lacquered tin. The doctors will likely be kept busy in March and a druggist who stood looking at a group on the square said, "Boys, I've had a big run on stomach pumps and ipecac lately. I don't blame you for declaring a 'casus belli' against adulterations of all kinds, for, gentlemen, you grocers are responsible for the health of the community, financial and physical. We as citizens are at your mercy. If we buy a bag of potatoes we depend on your giving us 90 lbs. and so on, and we expect you to see that we get good and pure, wholesome goods to eat. Gentlemen," continued the druggist, "I admire the pluck and courage of the grocers who, finding the car of canned goods shipped to them were not as represented order the factory to send and take them off their premises, but I regret that they were left in our city to be disposed of. If our board of health had a man of the Kitchener type, the goods would be analyzed before being offered for sale. The best prices of the tomatoes was 115 less 10 f trade & 2 per cent. and they were sold for 75c. Do you think any factory would do this if they were all right? The Government should put a stop to new labels being put on old canned goods which, I am told, is getting to be a common occurrence. Verily a false label is a barefaced libel."



I sometimes wonder if tis right to write so much about the 'Grocer' sort. I Guess it is: it does them good sometimes to make them rear and snort.

G. H. Williams is trying to sell out his stock and grocery on cor. Princess and University Avenues. He does a good grocery and meat trade, but has the western fever. He has been out west several times and owns a large farm.

Grant Pyke of Wolfe Island, one of the greatest growers of mammoth strawberries in Canada, is taking a trip out west. He draws some very discouraging pictures of western life. He is now at Vancouver and things are more congenial and to his liking, but he said it must be hard for farmers to clear land around it when stumps were from four to six feet across.

Several grocers have put in the rotary cutters for slicing bacon. They cost about $100 and are made in Chicago. Will some of those who have tried them give their ideas regarding them. A traveler told me several large firms in Toronto threw them to one side. I would like to see some of these discarded machines, scales, cash registers, cheese cutters etc. advertised in The Grocer. What one firm doesn't like would be a benefit to another and would be picked up quickly at a reduced price. There is a lot of money wrapped up in unused fixtures that could be disposed of in the manner I speak of.

Tommy Wilson, who has severed his connection with Eby Blain & Co., was in town representing Doyle & Jackson, tea merchants of Montreal. Tommy is happy and has no use for anything but tea. He is an artist at drawing and makes beautiful pictures of the fine cup qualities of his Ceylons and Indians and his victims the grocers, hypnotized by his paintings, gracefully bow and say, put me down for 5 Hfc., anyway, Tommy, 3 per cent. off 60 days. Good-bye. Hope you will succeed and follow in your father's steps," etc. In future he will be known as T. Wilson, not Tees Wilson & Co., but he may get there yet, like his dad. His popularity will win. His sales will carry him through, and when he enters his boat at the great divide he will have his fond samples at his side, and as he draws his long, last breath and sails for the promised land, he will say "Good-bye, my dear old grip ; goob-bye my samples of golden tip ; I go where all the good travelers are going, to enjoy the harvest of honest sowing, I go, I go, I go-O."

PETERBOROUGH.

With the rapid growth and extension of the city little groceries are developing into large business places. Geo. A. Goheen who has for the past eight years conducted a small store in the south end, has recently moved into handsome new premises. He has since he first started, endeavored to meet the wants of the people and the people recognized his efforts to such an extent that his old stand was far too small. Last summer he purchased a corner lot and erected a substantial brick block two stories high. The front portion is used as the grocery. It is 40 feet square, well lighted and conveniently arranged. Three large plate windows furnish the light and ample space for attractive window display. Adjoining the grocery is a well equipped butcher shop, while the upstairs is used by the proprietor as a dwelling.

Andrew Graham, for several years with Jas. R. Bell, recently started in business for himself and has a fine store in the residential section. He carries a splendid line of groceries and reports business very good. The stores in the outlying districts are securing a large share of the grocery business. This is due wholly to the development of the city and not to any fault of the down town stores, which have all the trade they can comfortably handle.

It will be of interest to the grocery trade generally to know that the Peterborough Cereal Company will shortly put on the market a new cereal food. The makers of Canada Flakes have met with such success that they have no hesitancy in branching out. The new cereal will be known as Corn Flakes, which takes the place of Corn Crisp which the company formerly made. Corn Flakes is very similar to Sanitas, which is made in Battle Creek, Mich., and it will be on the market about the middle of March. It is made from white corn and is put through a different process from any other cereal. The corn is first made into hominy and then cooked and flavored, after which it is put through very large, heavy rollers which turn out the flakes as thin as paper and flat. In color they are a delicate brown and are very appetizing. Corn Flakes will not replace Canada Flakes as it will serve a different class of consumers. It should sell well with the heavier cereals. The large rollers which roll the flakes for the Peterborough Cereal Co. are the first of their kind made in Canada and have only been secured after the greatest difficulty.

James Connal, of P. Connal & Son, one of the pioneer grocery firms in the city, was skip for the winning rink in the four day bonspiel last week. Mr. Connal has for several years been an enthusiastic curler and is one of the best skips in the club. The prize was a pair of valuable stones.

T. Kinnear & Co., wholesale grocers, have applied to the council for the privilege of running a siding from the C.P.R. into their new warehouse. The route they wish to take is not satisfactory to the city, and Mayor McWilliams has a scheme in hand which will overcome the difficulty and will also open up a stretch of property large enough to accommodate half a dozen or more wholesale houses. This property is right in the centre of the city and only a block or two from the large retail stores. The wholesalers should encourage the mayor in his scheme as it will only be a couple of years when several more houses will be looking for sites in the city and they could not find a more convenient property.

A. Rountree, retail grocer and liquor merchant, has decided to dispose of his grocery stock, and conduct a wholly liquor business. Mr. Rountree bought the business two years ago from Ed. Brown, but owing to the change in the liquor license law the two lines of trade cannot be carried on as one business. Stocktaking was completed this week and the probability is that one of the larger grocers will take the stock and sell it off. Mr. Rountree will, about the middle of April, move to his own building on Water Street. This is the last of the combined grocery and liquor businesses in the city, and in future the two lines will be separated.

HAMILTON.

Jos. Kirkpatrick, an old Hamilton grocer, and a leading member of the Grocers' Association, is now an alderman, and is placed on all of the best civic committees. Mr. Kirkpatrick is an able man, fearless and honest, and no doubt will reflect credit not only on himself, but the people whom he represents.

A new club, composed of business men here, is asking for incorporation. Among the names of the provisional directors I see that of one grocer and two undertakers. Kind of looks like feeding the living and taking care of the dead. However, I hope it won't prove a "dead 'un."

Grocers complain very much about the poor quality and the high price of labor. Good clerks are very scarce, one grocer going so far as to say there were not ten good counter hands in the city, although good salaries are given both to senior and junior hands.

WAS GENERAL MERCHANT AND LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

(By Canadian Grocer Special Correspondent.)

The people throughout the entire province of New Brunswick were deeply stirred to hear of the sudden death of Lieutenant-Governor Snowball, which occurred on Sunday evening last as he was on his way to attend divine service at the cathedral in Fredericton. He had left his room at the Queen Hotel a few minutes before and had only gone a few blocks when he complained of feeling unwell and turned about to return to the hotel. He had only gone a few steps when he collapsed in the arms of his attendant, Frederick McKenzie, and expired about five minutes later. Death is attributed to heart disease, brought on by an attack of la grippe.

His honor was popular with all classes, and the news of his sudden taking-off, following so closely upon that of Hon. A. G. Blair, under similar circumstances, naturally called forth many expressions of surprise and regret.

Lieut.-Governor Snowball on Feb. 5 completed his regular five year term as lieutenant-governor of New Brunswick. His commission of office was dated Jan. 30, 1902, and he was sworn in in the assembly chambers, Fredericton, at 3.10 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 5, 1902.

He commenced his long and successful career by entering into partnership with John McDougall, of Chatham, in a general store. This branch of business he never abandoned, and all other enterprises grew around it, that of lumbering assuming the most importance.

Although only a mere boy when he left Newfoundland, he fully grasped the importance of the fishing industries of the ancient colony. He afterwards applied his knowledge to the development of the fisheries of Miramichi, dealing in salmon, herring, lobsters, etc. To-day the company, of which Gov. Snowball was president, has lobster factories along the whole gulf coats of New Brunswick.

He was at the head of a very extensive lumber business and had also engaged in railway enterprises. During his active years he was a great worker and his success was commanded by aggressive application, courage and good judgment.

EXAMPLE OF MAIL ORDER METHODS IN THE WEST.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—I beg to call attention to a condition of things at present existing in the western provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia. A certain supply house in the city of Winnipeg posing as a mail order house, is at present flooding the country with a price list, and from it I beg herewith to quote a few staple lines as per list dated Winnipeg, Feb. 1st, viz., King Oscar sardines ⅛s, 13c.; silver prunes, 7½c.; D. S. F. Mustard ¼s, 9c.; ½s, 17c. per tin; Royal Crown soap, per 1 lb bar, 7c.; cartoons, 22c.; Sunlight soap, 4¾ per bar; Canada Laundry starch, 5c. per lb.; St. Lawrence starch, 4 lb. pkg., 26c.; best granulated sugar, $4.95; tobacco brier per lb., 70c.

These prices are taken indiscriminately and I further beg to say that the above prices are quoted delivered to any point in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, together with a discount of 2½ per cent. with a $15 order. I may further say that this house used a price list copied from a western wholesale house almost exclusively.

This is the most disgusting proposition ever placed in competition with the retail trade because, as wil, be readily seen, the above quotations are the regular wholesale price of those articles in the west at Winnipeg, and yet this supply house pays freight and 2½ per cent. discount as well, on all orders of $15 or over. The writer, together with a well known representative of an eastern wholesale grocery, had a personal interview with this house and we found that the total stock which this house pretends to carry, in our estimation, does not exceed six to eight hundred dollars. In the estimation of the writer, some note of warning should be given to the public, as it is at once apparent that no business can last on such a basis. Further, this house claims to be doing now $300 per day business cash in advance, not a large amount, we admit. The following is a sample of an order going out: 2 sacks gran. sugar, $4.95; sack yellow, $4.75; 3 tins syrup, 10s, at 50c. per tin; total $16.15, delivered, freight paid, Hanley, Saskatchewan. Under separate cover I beg to enclose copy of price list as published by this house for the benefit of any reader of The Grocer who may doubt the authenticity of the prices quoted.

Yours truly,
H. E. MAYCOCK,
Melita, Man.

WINNIPEG PURE FOOD SHOW

Under the auspices of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada a big pure food and grocers' exhibition is to be held in the auditorium rink, Winnipeg, July 1st to 13th. The committee in charge are, E. B. Nixon, Winnipeg; W. G. McLaren, Souris, Man.; and W. A. Coulson, Winnipeg. This is the first exhibition of its kind ever held in Western Canada, and not only the trade, but the general public as well are manifesting a keen interest in the early announcements. A number of the leading manufacturers have already reserved space for their exhibits and everything points to a big success next July.

QUALITY AND A NAME.

T. H. Estabrooks in his advertisement in this week's issue discusses his selection of the name "Red Rose" for his tea. What he says is interesting. He says in brief, "The name has proved a good one, but to get the goodness out of it I must keep the quality of the tea where it will not be a misnomer."

BOAR'S HEAD HIGHER.

Owing to the continued high price of oils, compound lard has again been advanced. Boar's head prices now read: Tierces, 10c.; half barrels, 10¼c.; tubs, 10¼c.; pails, 20-lb., wood, $2.10; pails, 20-lb. tin, $2; cases, 3's, 11c.; cases, 5's, 10¼c.; cases, 10's, 10¾c.

GROCERY TRADE NEWS IN NEW BRUNSWICK

(By Canadian Grocer's Special Correspondent.)

St. John, N.B., Feb. 25, 1907.

Very few changes have taken place in the local markets during the past week. Eggs are reported scarce and high, and butter, though coming in quite plentifully, is holding its own. Fresh fish of all kinds are very scarce. In staples there is practically no change since last reports.

Flour, meal and sugar have shown no change since last reports. Pork products are firmer. New Barbadoes molasses is coming in small shipments, while stocks of old goods are still quite heavy.

St. John has been called upon this winter to mourn the loss of several of its most prominent business men. On Monday, February 18th, tht death occurred of James Shaw, of the firm of J. & W. Shaw, bakers. Death resulted from a complication of heart and liver troubles. He was 74 years of age.

Mr. Shaw was the senior partner of his firm of which his only surviving brother, William, ex-M.P.P., is the other member. He was born on a farm about seven miles from the city. His father, William Shaw, was a north of Ireland man. James was the eldest son and left home when fourteen years of age to serve his time as a baker. In 1859 he went to California but was gone only a year when he came back and again entered the baking business. In 1569 he entered into partnership with his brother and they established a business of their own, first in the country, and removing later to St. John.

Mr. Shaw was one of the oldest members of St. David's church and before the first organ was installed acted as choir leader. He was also one of the oldest members of the Thistle Curling Club and took great delight in the game. Just a few weeks before his death when he heard that members of the Thistle Club had won the cup in the Montreal centenary bonspiel he sent word that he wished to see the prize and it was taken to his bedroom, where he manifested keen pleasure at the sight of it.

The funeral was held from his late residence, on Wednesday afternoon, 20th inst., and was very largely attended.

An important change in the management of the Maritime Dairy Company of Sussex, took place on the 18th inst., when J. F. Tilley of Woodstock, was made the general manager and secretary-treasurer of the company, in place of J. D. Frier, who has held the position since the incorporation of the company.

It is the intention of the company, under the new management, to greatly extend the business which they now have, which means the introduction of several new features which will make the Maritime Dairy Company a leader in the dairy industry. They now have branch stores in Sydney, Halifax, and St. John, the latter branch also being a manufacturing one.

Mr. Tilley has brought with him the entire business of the Sharples Separator Company in the Maritime Provinces, he having just returned from Toronto, where he was successful in completing final arrangements for the transfer of this business. It is the intention of the company to vigorously push the sale of Sharples Separators, believing that with the organization held by the Sharples Company, coupled with their own, a very large business can be done.

Mr. Tilley has engaged H. A. McArthur of J. A. McArthur & Co., of Sussex, to act as traveling salesman for this branch of the business. Mr. Tilley is one of the members of the firm of C. L. Tilley & Son, of Woodstock, was one of the pioneer dairymen of New Brunswick. He was afterward, for ten years, one of the dairy superintendents of the province, leaving that position, about two years ago, to assume the management for the maritime provinces of the Sharples Cream Separator Company. While engaged in this latter business, Mr. Tilley took hold of the Carleton Creamery Co., at Woodstock, which had become defunct under previous management and has in that time built up a large and profitable creamery. This company now comes in with the Maritime Dairy Co. Mr. Tilley will take up his residence in Sussex.

A report from Chatham says the smelt fishing season closed on the 15th inst., and altogether was a very profitable one for the fishermen. One man cleared over $700 in about three weeks. Lately the catches have been heavier than earlier in the season, averaging about a ton to a net. Large quantities have been stored away in icehouses for future consumption.

The local market has been practically bare of haddock and finnan haddies. Very few lobsters are offered and no gaspercaux have as yet been taken from the harbor. What few there are have been caught in the Kennebeccasis.

The will of Henry R. Fairweather, of Hall & Fairweather, has been admitted to probate and letters testamentary granted to Frank R. Fairweather and Walter L. Doherty, the executors. The estate is valued at $16,300 personal property.

In the estate of the late Thomas A. Rankine, of T. Rankine & Sons, biscuit manufacturers, letters of administration were granted in the probate court to his widow, Mrs. Mary E. Rankine. The estate is valued at $134,000, of which $17,000 is real estate and $117,000 personalty.

The community was greatly shocked on Saturday night, the 23rd inst., to hear of the tragic death of Mrs. John H. Cose, wife of the favorably known Waterloo Street grocer. Mrs. Cose was terribly burned in her home on Waterloo Street, while alone in the house, and when discovered life was extinct. While it will probably never be known just what caused the fatality, it is presumed that Mrs. Cose, who was a sufferer from heart trouble, overturned a lamp while taken with a weak attack, and was burned before anyone knew of the occurrence.

The funeral was held on Monday and was very largely attended. Mr. Cose has the sincere sympathy of a very large circle of friends in his sad bereavement. He is the only survivor.

Charles Damery, for many years proprietor of the Park Hotel, King Square, has sold the hotel business to his clerk, Ernest Howes, who will take control on March 1. Mr. and Mrs. Damery will leave shortly for Boston, where they will reside.

The St. Croix Courier (St. Stephen, N.B.) in its issue of Feb. 21, says:

"Rumors are current that a new candy factory is to be erected on King Street on land adjoining the Milltown branch of the C.P.R., the business to be under the management of W. St. J. Murray, until recently in charge of Ganong Bros.' office staff.

The delegation which went to Ottawa last week to arrange with the Government for harbor development has returned home and they report having had a very satisfactory trip. The Government has promised to do the necessary dredging for increased wharfage facilities and also at the harbor entrance. They also arranged for a public meeting on Friday last at which Hon. Mr. Emmerson, Minister of Railways, was present, and as a result of that meeting a committee of five citizens is to be appointed to act with the Deputy Minister of Railways, Mr. Butler, in preparing a statement of the future needs of the port, which will be presented to the Government by Mr. Emmerson. It is expected that an arrangement will be considered at once, instead of waiting for the larger question of the nationalization of all Canadian ports. The probability is that the management and control of the harbor will be vested in the proposed committee of five.

The winter port trade is still on the increase. Freight is now coming more freely from the west as the transportation companies are gradually recovering from the recent tie-up on account of the heavy storms. Up to Saturday the 23rd inst., the value of exports through this port amounted to $10,975,835, of which $7,426,485 was Canadian goods and $3,549,350 was from the United States. Seventy-one steamers have arrived this season with a net tonnage of 280,520, against sixty-one steamers with a tonnage of 203,449 last year.

Following are some of the products which have gone forward:

Wheat (bushels)	1,351,517

LESS CODFISH HELD.

T. C. Macnabb & Co., manufacturers' agents and commission agents, St. John's, Nfld., in a letter to The Canadian Grocer, under date of Feb. 18, say: "At the moment the codfish market is quiet but the quantity held here is only half as much as was held this time last year. A large number of new vessels are being added to the fleet of fishing schooners which will prosecute the cod fishery this year."

DOMINION GUILD'S ANNUAL.

The Dominion Wholesalers' Guild will hold their annual meeting in Toronto next week, Tuesday, March 5. There will be business sessions morning, afternoon and evening, and delegates will be present from all over Canada.

PETERBOROUGH RETAILER COMPLAINS OF WHOLESALERS

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.)

The retail grocers in Peterboro claim to be feeling the pinch of the wholesale grocers and Grocers' Guild. As a result some feeling is being worked up against that organization. The wholesalers, the retailers allege, are not content with charging the retailers the very highest price and demanding prompt, almost immediate, payment, but they are seriously cutting in on the retail trade.

Speaking on this subject to the representative of The Canadian Grocer, E. F. Mason, of E. F. Mason & Co., the largest retail grocers in the city, stated that the wholesale grocers and the Grocers' Guild had secured such control of the grocery trade that they were like a lot of autocrats.

In the first place the Guild had persuaded the manufacturers to sell only through them. All manufactured goods which were sold in a grocery store had to go through the jobbers' hands first, or the jobbers would refuse to handle the goods at all. Wholesale men had also fixed the prices, not only among themselves, but for the manufacturers. The manufacturers dared not sell to a retailer under any consideration unless the wholesalers' price was charged and the wholesalers got their commission.

Take for instance, said Mr. Mason, the sugar business. The wholesaler made from $40 a car upward, and he never touched the car, and seldon, if ever, saw it. The retailer in Peterboro, through keen competition, was compelled to sell at cost or even less. In order to get any show at all he must buy by the carload. Even then the wholesaler only allowed him 5c. per hundred off, no matter whether he bought one, two or a dozen carloads.

In cereals the same thing existed. The wholesale houses demanded that they sell the whole output. They made a profit of 20c. a case, at least it would average that, and did not touch the goods. It was handed over to the retailer and the best he could do was to make about the same as the wholesaler, and he had to give credit and take chances on not getting paid at all, and do all the work of distribution.

Some lines of tobaccos were handled in the same way. Competition was so keen that the retail merchant had to sell at cost and even less. The wholesalers also had the entire canned goods business under their thumbs until a number of new factories were started. An arrangement of prices was soon made with these factories and now the wholesalers were eating up all the profit. In fact, nearly every line of groceries that could be at all was being handled by the wholesalers in the same way.

That, however, Mr. Mason declared, was not the chief reason for complaint the retail men of Peterboro had. The wholesalers were not satisfied with taking practically all the profit and do practically none of the work, but they were reaching out and grasping the retail trade. The travelers came around and after doing the stores and getting all they could there, went to the hotels and sold to them in quantities at the same price as they did to the retail merchants. The wholesalers were not satisfied with taking the hotel trade, but they were taking the restaurant and boarding house business. In fact, any person or any house which bought a quantity the wholesale house was after and sold to them at the same prices the retail grocer had to pay.

Another serious and unfair practice was that the wholesale men had carralled the grocery business of the lumber camps. They took the order for the season's supply at the lowest possible price and deprived the retail men of the business. Not only did they take the lumbermen's large order, but the wholesalers actually supplied the shareholders of the lumber companies with their groceries in small quantities, too.

It would be plainly seen the proposition the retail grocers of Peterboro were up against. Held down by the wholesalers to the very smallest profit; compelled to pay promptly, usually in ten days, and then the wholesalers depriving them of their largest cash trade. Any person who would pay cash the wholesaler was after. The retailer might have all the credit customers.

One of the largest wholesale houses in Montreal actually advertised in a local paper a number of small articles, teas and coffees, in one and two-pound lots, with a total cash value of $2.80, sent free upon receipt of cash. That was pretty nearly the last straw. The retail grocers here were afraid that if the unfair practices of the wholesale men were not stopped, the retail grocery business would be a thing of the past. As it is, the business is reduced to a second-class trade.

BRITISH COLUMBIA TRADE.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 21, 1907.

There is a ripple of excitement among business men and fishermen of New Westminster over the report that a delegation of cannerymen was on the way to Ottawa to support the recommendation in the Fisheries Commission's report that the Fraser river be closed for the year 1908 and that fishing on the river above New Westminster bridge be closed for all time. Joint meetings of city council, Board of Trade and a citizens' committee have been held and a strong deputation will be sent to Ottawa, armed with a big petition setting forth the views of the residents of New Westminster and the settlers along the banks of the Fraser river.

Not only is there a large class of fishermen permanently located at New Westminster, who fish in the river, but a great many of the farmers and ranchers for miles up the river, add to their income by fishing during the season. This source of revenue has aided many of them in the past, in making a living from means right at their doors. The business men of the Royal City have their own interests to look after in looking to the welfare of these two large classes of their patrons.

The canners have all along contended that the fishing in the river for such a distance above the mouth has to a great extent defeated all measures for the preservation of the fish, and especially so in the weekly close hours, which are intended to allow a proportion of the fish to continue to the spawning grounds at the headwaters of the river. It has also been urged that the quality of the fish after being so long in the fresh water is very much deteriorated as compared with those caught in the salt waters of the gulf.

Wholesale grocers are still finding it hard to replenish stocks in some lines, though freight traffic on the railways has returned to some semblance of regularity. Not only have stocks been held up indefinitely on the way from sources, but shipments to up-country points have not been going forward. Shortages in many lines have left many outside points without a supply of staples, such as coal oil, tobacco, and even flour in some of the mining districts. Nothing in the nature of serious privation has occurred, however, and the trade is rapidly getting into shape. The experience of having goods not yet in customers' hands when a traveler repeats his visit, is one of the chief annoyances, and it has frequently occurred.

One of the lines most needed has been condensed milk. Of some twelve or fourteen brands ordinarily on the market there is practically nothing left at the moment in Vancouver wholesalers' hands but a stock of American milk, Eagle brand. As this sells at $6.40 a case, which is $1.20 to $1.30 over the average of other brands, it is an expensive article. But every mining town in the interior, every saw-mill town and logging camp in the province is practically dependent on the "miner's tin cow," so it is a staple that is much missed.

One dealer speaks of a consignment of dried fruits from Spain, which was to have reached here in time for the Christmas trade but which has not yet been traced. The bills of lading showing the ship on which the goods were sent, came in, but that is the last report. The house now expects the consignment for next Christmas' trade.

In the markets there is little to report in the way of change. California dried fruits have not risen from last quotations, but cots. are practically off the market. No stocks remain in first hands, and the only goods which can be secured, and that in limited way, will be from jobbers in San Francisco.

Canned goods are moving very slowly as yet. Prices are maintained at recent quotations, and no cutting under association figures is reported. Shipments north will not commence before April 1st, when movements in both canned goods and dried fruits will be more active.

In produce lines, stocks of butter are becoming better, local supplies coming in more freely, with milder weather, while Australian and New Zealand shipments have continued. The SS. Moowera arriving last week brought in over 1,000 boxes of 56 lbs. The next Australian steamer brings some 1,500 boxes. That will likely close the season of importation from the Antipodes. Local butter off grass will be in the market by the end of March and in the meantime California butter is likely to come within the range of this market. None from California has yet been received, the price there being still too high, though production is now nearly its maximum.

TRADING STAMP LAW.

At the last meeting of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association there was a good deal of discussion of the law regrading trading stamps. Many of the members thought they knew how the law stood but were not absolutely certain. For the benefit of the trade generally The Canadian Grocer gives here the law as it stands to-day in this matter. It will be seen that trading stamps are dealt with under four sections : Issuing of trading stamps, giving of trading stamps by a merchant to a purchaser, executive officers offending, and purchasers receiving trading stamps.

Chapter 146 of the new revised statutes, criminal code, sections 505 to 508, inclusive, deal with trading stamps :

Section 505—Everyone is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to one year's imprisonment, and to a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, who, by himself, or his employe or agent, directly or indirectly, issues, gives, sells or otherwise disposes of, or offers to issue, give, sell or otherwise dispose of, trading stamps to a merchant or dealer in goods for use in his business.

Section 506—Everyone is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to six months' imprisonment, and to a fine not exceeding two hundred dollars, who, being a merchant or dealer in goods, by himself, or his employe or agent, directly or indirectly, gives, or in any way disposes of trading stamps to a purchaser from him of any such goods.

Section 507—Any executive officer of a corporation or company guilty of an offence under the two last preceding sections, who in any way aids or abets in, or counsels, or procures the commission of such offence, is guilty of an indictable offence, and liable to the punishment stated in the said sections, respectively.

Section 508—Everyone is guilty of an offence, and liable on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding twenty dollars, who, being a purchaser of goods from a merchant or dealer in goods, directly or indirectly, receives or takes trading stamps from the vendor of such goods, or his employe or agent.

COBALT SPECULATION.

The Canadian Grocer is informed that quite a number of grocers throughout Ontario have invested in Cobalt mining stocks, and in consequence are experiencing difficulty in meeting their accounts. It is a fact that about ninety per cent. of the mining companies, so-called, are nothing but stock-selling propositions, frauds, if ever there was a fraud. Mining is a highly specialized form of industry. The grocer of training and experience who knows the pitfalls and difficulties of the business, thinks the man a fool who dashes into it as a cat might under pressure of a dog-hunt take to the water. But it is much easier for the uninformed to make money in groceries than in mining ; for the man who knows it is infinitely easier.

If the grocers who have put money into Cobalt had kept it in their business and had taken as much interest in it as they have in the mining market their aggregate profits would have been immensely larger. Not only would their profits have been larger, but their businesses would have been worth more.

There are grocers with money to invest that they do not need in their business. If they are in doubt what to do with it let them ask their banker or a reputable broker. But they should avoid the mining market as they would contagion. Even in the few cases where the mining proposition is a legitimate undertaking, as soon as the public have put in enough and there appears to be a possibility of dividends, a few sharp speculators who know the game are likely to form a combination, "buy" the market and dispossess the rest of the shareholders of all interest in the property, save an unpleasant recollection. A man's business is the place for his money. If he has more than his business requires, there are fields of legitimate investment where his money can browse in safety and not keep him awake at nights or take his attention from his business. Next week we will publish from The Financial Post a statement showing the comparative money earning capacity of various lines of investment.

AN EDITOR WITH BACKBONE.

It isn't always that a daily paper has the courage to stand up against a big advertiser and insist that he must not attempt to interfere with the news and editorial departments of the paper. In fact it is charged, and the charge seems to have substantial foundation, that a considerable part of the daily press in the big Canadian cities dare not publish news items or make editorial comments which are distasteful to the management of the big departmental stores. However that may be there is at least one editor of a big paper who refuses to submit to dictation from an advertiser.

It was some months ago when one day shortly before the evening edition of a certain city daily went to press the telephone rang and a reporter answered it.

"This is Mr. Dash, of Blank's, speaking. We have had an accident in our building and a couple of men are badly hurt. Now we don't want one line of this to appear in the paper."

The reporter was a new man and he didn't want to take any responsibility, especially as he knew that Dash was the manager of the big department store. So he brought the "main guy" to the telephone.

Mr. Dash repeated his demand to the editor-in-chief.

"What's this ?" replied the editor. "You know we are running a newspaper don't you ?"

"I don't care about that," was the reply. "This is Mr. Dash, of Blank's, speaking, and I insist that I don't want a line in your paper about this accident."

"We are running a newspaper and this accident is news," was the reply. "We are going to publish it of course. If you have any suggestions to make as to the way you want the story told, we'll be glad to hear them, but we're going to publish the story."

"Look here, young man," was the irate reply. "I don't know who you are, but I want you to know that I am Mr. Dash, of Blank's, and if one line of this accident goes in the paper your people will hear about it when they come around for a renewal of their advertising contract."

"I don't care whether it is Mr. Dash, of Blank's, that's speaking, or the Emperor William of Germany," was the reply. "We are publishing a newspaper and we are going to print the story. What's more, when the time comes to renew the advertising you will find that Blank's will need their advertisement in this paper more than this paper will need Blank's advertising."

That was all. The story was published and the advertising was not cancelled.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

Evaporated Apples—Very firm.

Beans—Strong.

Teas—Strong feeling.

Montreal, Thursday, Feb. 28, 1907.

Money is tight in some districts, but otherwise the situation in groceries is satisfactory to everybody at present. In the country, some jobbers find it difficult to collect their accounts, the city being a better field in this respect. It is not expected that this rather strained situation will last long, as improvement is already in sight.

Business is never very brisk at this time of year, but orders being filled are of fairly large volume. Trade is of a hand-to-mouth character, with all this implies. No radical changes have taken place in prices since last report. Evaporated apples are very strong at 11c. to 12c., and are likely to command more than this in the near future. All tendency in prices. Sugar is steady at teas are firm and there is an upward figures quoted. No change is expected from present indications. Dried fruits are moving out slowly. Wholesalers report quite a demand for various lines of canned goods. Syrups are still selling very freely. Reports on molasses from the primary market show that quotations are going higher. Beans are strong at $1.50.

SUGAR.—Prices were advanced unexpectedly 10c. on Wednesday. Only a fair business has been doing but a considerable movement is expected early in March.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.—Reports from the Barbadoes show that prices have been advanced since last week, 18c. now being the nominal quotation for choice. Nothing is being done on Canada account, but Newfoundland is doing some trading, causing a slight feeling of excitement. Syrups continue to sell.

TEA.—Continued firm feeling characterizes the tea market. Prices on nearly all grades continue strong with an upward tendency in many lines. On Ceylon and India greens and blacks prices are up 1c. to 1½c. Sales of these teas are not numerous, the market being rather bare. Such conditions in the Ceylon and Indian markets are resulting in a firming up tendency in Japans.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Pointers :
Sugar up 10c.
Teas still advancing.
Firm butter market.
Evaporated apples higher.

Toronto, February 28, 1907.

The sugar refiners advanced sugar 10 cents Wednesday and caught a lot of wholesalers short. A good many carloads of sugar had been sold for March 1 delivery. The refiners were "on," however, and decided to make a little to offset the wicked tariff.

Trade is quiet, though nothing to complain of and collections are seasonable, which is no compliment. Jobbers generally cannot see that any line of goods are moving specially but some think canned goods still have the lead. Generally speaking, quotations throughout the grocery list show little variation. London is excited about tea and the Barbadoes about molasses, but the market is still talking about the weather and expecting lively doings when Spring sends out her advance forces.

TEA.—The situation is nothing short of remarkable. Already common sorts have advanced on the London market 20 per cent. and now a hundred per cent. is talked o.. Some of the statistics are very interesting. For instance, the total exports of Cylon for 1906 were 169,909,335 lbs. and in the year 1905 were 172,629,960 lbs., a decrease last year of 2.720,625 lbs. The only important purchasers that increased their importations of Ceylon tea last year were Canada and Russia. The total importations of India and Ceylon tea into London from the opening of the present season, Aug. 1 to Jan. 31, were 191,384,000 lbs., against 198,283,000 lbs. the year previous. But during the same periods the home consumption and the exports increased from 141,689,000 lbs. in 1905-06 to 150,670,000 in 1906-07.

COFFEE.—The market is steady and demand normal.

SUGAR.—Prices advanced 10c. Wednesday, much to the surprise of the local jobbers, most of whom had booked considerable orders for March 1 at the old rates. The reason for the advance is only guessed at. One says the refiners, in view of the changing tariff, don't know where they are at and propose to secure themselves. Another says there was a rattling sugar trade last March and the refiners have good memories.

Certainly the Canadian refiners are not following the New York market. Willett & Gray, New York, said at the close of last week :

Interest centres in the Cuba market and the point at which the continued decline will end and the improving side of prices begin.

"Europe offers no obstacle to an advance in Cuba, the parity of beet values continuing abnormally above the Cuban parity and with indications that Europe has entirely cut loose from Cuba and is advancing on its own merits. Europe after touching 8s. 7½d., at the end of January on its decline has during February gained in strength, moving up slowly but steadily to 8s. 11½d., while on the other hand Cuba Centrifugals were selling at 2⅞c., c. & f. (3.48c. per lb.) at the close of January, are now value at 2 132c., c. & f., equal to 3.38c. landed for 96 degree test, based on sales of nearby Porto Ricos, thus widening the parity between Centrifugals and beet sugar to 49c. per 100 lbs., or 15c. per 100 lbs. more than the 34c. per 100 lbs. granted Cuba by reciprocity. Of course, such a condition could only result from the continued pressure of twice the amount of sugar on the market that our refiners can use or take care of.

"That the Cuban planter is beginning to realize somewhat of the abnormal condition under which he is forcing his sugars to a sale is a little in evidence, at the close of the markets here this week, when it appears evident that the 2c. per lb., c. & f., point at which buyers are aiming is to be contested by the planter, the first sign of a little bit of independence on his part.

"We feel compelled to say, therefore, that the tide of decline has already turned, or is about to turn, in favor of the seller from the present low level, and that the improvement, once begun, will go on more or less steadily until the parity of beet sugar is reached in our market."

The first of this week saw raw sugar steady in New York and transactions were reported at 2 1-32 for Cuban centrifugals 96 degrees.

MOLASSES.—Geo. Musson & Son's cable advices from Barbadoes show an excellent condition of affairs there and higher prices being demanded for lower than higher grade. The market for choice opened a fortnight ago 2c. higher than expected and when Newfoundland buyers got their breath and met the demand the price proceeded to move up and has advanced another 2c. Locally, prices are unchanged, but a firm market is anticipated.

"Mr. Grocer,—Do you know that SAVOY BRAND is the only high-grade Baked Bean packed in Canada?"

"Do you realize how important it is in these days of Pure Food agitation that you should offer your customers only the best?"

Savoy Brand Pork and Beans

are prepared according to the original Boston recipe—of carefully selected, hand picked, Canadian Beans and tender Canadian pork. They are as different from other beans as day is from night.

HERE'S WHERE YOU COME IN

We ask you to stock Savoy Pork and Beans for two reasons—

First. The excellence of this product will strengthen your reputation for handling the "highest quality" food products.

Second. YOU CAN MAKE MORE MONEY ON THEM THAN ON ANY OTHER BRAND. There is strong conviction in this argument. Think it over.

TWO DOZEN TINS FREE

EXTRA PROFIT IN ADVANCE

We will give you one case of 2 dozen No. 2 tins of Savoy Pork and Beans free with every five cases of No. 1, No. 2, or No. 3 purchased. This offer also applies to assorted orders for five case lots of these sizes.

Savoy Beans are packed in four sizes, No. ½, No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3, both plain and in Tomato Sauce.

Send your order to your jobber or direct to us In the latter case, don't fail to mention the wholesaler through whom you prefer the goods to be shipped.

Send in a trial order for five cases. The Beans sell themselves.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN.

The season for cheese is virtually over. For all that will be done until the new make arrives it might be said that the market will until April be a dead one. Stocks held in Montreal are exceedingly small, perhaps not more than one thousand boxes, or, to be safe, one might say between one and two thousand boxes. Last week a large sale was made, a greater quantity changing hands than for some time past and this transaction brought stocks down to practically nothing. Holdings now are not sufficient to make a market on this side. For this reason the few lots held here will sell at prices which will be fixed in England.

Despite all prophecies and expectations, 14c. was not made in an export way up to the time of writing. That figure was asked a good many times, but when it came to making an offer under this amount the cheese were generally sold. Sales have been made at 13⅞c. and possibly some have made ⅞, but 14c. was not received. Locally, in lots of 25 boxes, as much as 14c. was paid, but this trade is entirely separate from the export business.

Advices from England are somewhat contradictory. One reliable firm writes saying that they look for a falling-off in the demand. At the time of writing they were asking 66s. for a fair sized lot of good quality Canadian cheese, but had not yet obtained it. They were going to hold out for this price a little longer but if it was impossible to obtain it within a short time they were going to accept 65s. because they did not like the look of the market. On the other hand the London Grocery for February, speaking of the situation in cheese, says :

"It is many years since the cheese position was so strong statistically as it is at present, and has been for some months, yet the retailer of cheese will not consider the desirability of bringing his counter prices into line with the wholesale figures, so as to show him a profit. There is hardly a shop in London whirh is not doing a sevenpenny line. The high prices which have ruled all through the season have been justified by the position, and the public are quite willing to pay 8d. for their cheese. The cheese position is strong enough to maintain the present prices on its own account, but when, in addition to the great shortage, you consider that people here will not look at American canned goods, it is no use blinking at the facts a great injury has been done to the American tinned meat department, and those who consumed these goods are devoting their attention to cheese."

From this it would seem that the market was firm.

Butter is better all round. Last week there was mentioned an improvement in the situation and this week the market is even better.

Quite a lot of business is being done at very good prices. At the moment quotations are steady enough, but higher figures would not greatly surprise the trade. Receipts of fresh made creamery have not been large. What there is on the market is in good demand. Returned creamery is still acting as a damper on the market here. A great deal of what is being brought in is being sold speculatively. The trend of the market has not been closely lollowed by all those bringing in creamery, and in some cases these parties have sold a good bit under what they might obtain without any difficulty. There is not much dairy tub butter arriving, but receipts of latge rolls are quite heavy.

It is not expected that there will be much new made butter on the market before April 1 at the earliest. The consumption of milk and cream in large centres seems to have increased, and for this reason fresh made goods are in light supply. Board of Trade returns show that 805 packages of butter arrived week ending February 23. Total receipts of butter since May 1, 1906, to that date : 607,052 packages.

PROVISION SITUATION

The situation in the Old Country is but very firm, with a slightly increased domestic demand from the west. Live hogs are the same as last week, $6.65, and deliveries promise to be a little larger this week. The killings last week totalled 21,000 to 22,000. This week they may be two or three thousand more.

The situation is the Old Country is practically unchanged. Tuesday's cables stated that the accumulations of Danish and low prices had captured the trade of Canadian bacon buyers, and there were no indications of an immediate change. Canadian is selling at 55s. and costing anywhere from 58s. to 60s., and this rotten market condition has continued two months almost, an unprecedented length of time for things to be all going one way. There appears to be a lack of demand, with heavy shipments of Danish. With Danish at 56s. to 57s. and Canadian at 54s. to 56s., the Danish gets the preference. The packers here don't pretend to understand why the English market conducts itself thus and so. They say the market is a sentimental ; that February is traditionally bad, and the British are strong on preserving traditions.

Despite the untoward conditions a larger share of the Canadian killings are designed for export because packers are pretty well stocked with domestic cuts.

Continuing the story of the American meat trust's operations in Smithfield market, London, the Daily Telegraph says :

The growth of the trust's operations in England is not looked upon with unconcern by British salesmen, and some express the hope that the facilities for business enjoyed by the American concerns will not be easily extended. The Yankee firms obtained a footing in the market more than ten years ago. The market committee of the corporation do not look with too friendly an eye upon the acquisition by large concerns of a number of shops. It is not in their power to impose a prohibitive rent, for the statute has fixed a maximum. The method adopted by the trust has generally been to acquire the good vill of a salesman about to retire from business, and, although the tenancy is a weekly one, they have given as much as £15,000 for the goodwill attaching to the business of a single shop. The corporation are jealous of their rights, and enquiries are always made before an old tenant's agreement is transferred to his nominee, and the committee insist on seeing the books of a salesman to ascertain whether there is really a goodwill to be sold. There is, thus, little danger of a traffic in the tenancies. The trust firms have, however, obtained an important footing. They are, of course, in agreement as to the conduct of their businesses. It is said that the price at which they will dispose of their produce is fixed each morning, and as they hold every pound of the United States meat and control a certain proportion of the Argentine supply, their quotations rule the market so far as American meat is concerned. A butcher requiring a couple of sides of United States beef is given the price at one stall, and he knows he must either accept it or go away without his order being fulfilled, because no other salesmen can supply him at a lower figure. The trust regulates the supply to such a nicety that they never have a glut. It must be admitted that the American meat is of good quality. The fact that it commands practically the same price as English (not Scotch) beef is sufficient to show that the animals despatched to this country are well bred and fat. The Argentine stock hitherto has fetched a low price, but it is within the knowledge of all that South American breeders are laying out fabulous sums to secure the best stock obtainable in Great Britain to improve their herds, and little doubt is entertained at Smithfield that within a short period River Platte meat of high quality will obtain top prices.

The home producer is at a disadvantage in one respect with his foreign opponent, in that he cannot get concessions from railway companies. The trust has secured such rebates on rates for carriage of their beef that no man consigning Scotch meat to London can compete in Smithfield with beef brought from the United States. It costs more to send ten tons of beef from Aberdeen to London than from Boston to Smithfield, including the railway charges from Liverpool. The trust will not use the admirably-equipped new abattoirs at Southampton because the South-Western Railway refuse to give them an advantage of 8s. a ton over the British farmer. ,To secure ourselves against a big rise in the price of meat in war time it is necessary that we should have many souces of supply, and a gratifying feature of the oversea meat trade is the increase in the amounts shipped from the Argentine and Australia.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

PROVISIONS.—A featureless market rules this week. Prices are fluctuating more or less, up one day and down another, but no material change is noticeable, except in compound lard which is this week higher. Some firms are selling at lower figures than are here quoted for this article, but these are the ruling prices. Some few job orders in meats are being booked, but otherwise the market is rather quiet.

BUTTER.—Prices are very steady and business being transacted amounts to a fair volume. If anything, dealers are asking slightly more for their goods this week. Receipts are not very heavy especially in large rolls, for which demand is strong. Creamery is in good supply, and grocers are buying in fairly large quantities.

CHEESE.—Prices hold very firm, although there has been no actual advance since last report. Export prices are very near 14c. but stocks held in the city do not amount to anything. For the retail trade there is a supply which will last until the new make arrives, although there is every chance of there being higher prices than now rule.

BUTTER—The market is considerably stronger, partly because of increased demand and to some extent reduces supplies. Held stocks of dairy are working down, and this also is toning things up. One large commission house claims to be getting as high as 28c. for choice dairy prints, but most houses declare that 25c. is the limit. This same house quoted 24c. for choice rolls, but else-

EGGS—The market is firm owing to the cold weather, and 35c. has been obtained for very fine stock this week; but 31c. to 33c. better represents the market. The price is practically controlled for the instant by available supply of American eggs. The price there fell rapidly early in the week and were quoted at 24c. Tuesday, which would mean about 30c. laid down in Toronto. The southern eggs are not so good nor as large as the Canadian, but they keep the market here in check.

N. S. MARKETS

Halifax, N.S., Feb. 26, 1907.

Trade is considered pretty good for the season of the year, and when the roads improve there is every prospect of an increase in business. Prices all around are pretty steady. There is not very much doing in fruit just at present. The stocks of Jamaica oranges are very poor. They are quoted at $5 per barrel. Navels, 96 count, are worth $2.75 and $1.26, $3. Valencias range from $3.50 to $4 per case.

EGGS—There is a marked improvement in the egg market, and good, fresh Nova Scotia stock can be purchased for 27c. per dozen by the case. The fresh stock marketed is nearly all from points in the province. The receipts are increasing as the weather improves, and there is a possibility of a still further decrease in the price. Very few eggs are now coming from Prince Edward Island. The island stock now on hand is mostly all storage. There is a very good demand for eggs at present.

POULTRY—There is very little poultry on the market at present and the price is high. Turkeys are worth 20c. per pound; chickens, 15c. per pound, and geese from 12 to 14 cents per pound. Dealers experience difficulty in securing a sufficient quantity to supply their customers.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, Feb. 28, 1907.)

With a return to normal weather conditions business has received a big impetus. The C.P.R. claim to have delivered all delayed freight and they are busy removing wheat thus setting free a considerable amount of money with which the western farmer can discharge his obligations to the storekeepers. Under these conditions there has been a considerable improvement in business and the wholesale houses are busy once again shipping goods.

Except for a decline in Rios and an advance in all local brands of pickles, there have been no important price changes during the week.

SCOTCHMAN'S OPPOSITION TO CANADIAN CHEESE AND WHY

5 Comiston Gardens,
Edinburgh, Scotland.

To the Editor "The Canadian Grocer."

Sir,—Some time ago, "The Canadian Grocer" commented on a "United States Consular Report" issued from Washington, D.C., in which reference was made to some "Canadian Methods" of cheese manufacture which had received prominence among our folks in the United Kingdom.

The matter had its origin in certain remarks uttered by Professor Harcourt of the Guelph (Ontario) Agricultural College during the proceedings of the British Medical Congress at Toronto in August last.

These remarks were embodied in an article which appeared in the "Agricultural column" of our leading daily, "The Scotsman" in its issue for September 7th, 1906.

In the issue of "The Scotsman" for December 14th, 1906, further allusion is made to the same subject, mention being made of the fact of the "Scotsman's" article receiving notice in the United States Consular Report referred to. And, apparently, "The Canadian Grocer" in its search for information had to appeal to the United States authorities, and also to Professor Harcourt, according to the report in the "Scotsman" for December 14th, 1906.

What Professor Harcourt said, as stated in the "Scotsman" of September 7th and utilized by the United States Consular Department in their "Report" was certainly very detrimental to the reputation of Canadian cheese and of the conditions and methods of its production.

Indeed, the report quoted Professor Harcourt as stating that the conditions of the production of cheese in Ontario were worse than those believed to exist in Chicago meat canning factories.

The writer visited Canada and the States for about six months in 1905 and so far as "Canadian methods" are concerned in many matters (I have no knowledge of your reputed "Cheese Methods") I was really profoundly disappointed. Your folks generally have a lot to learn and to unlearn in many things, and perhaps there is no place more needing reform than Ontario, and its particularly conceited, bigoted and ill-governed "Queen City." At least the writer was permitted to carry away many impressions which left a very nasty taste.

I venture to enclose for the benefit of "The Canadian Grocer" an extract from our press here dealing with the report for 1906 of the Dominion Government's "Dairy Commissioner" (Mr. J. A. Ruddick) in which a marked and well deserved compliment is paid to our Scottish methods of cheesemaking, so that in the opinion of your own Government's "Commissioner" your folks have something to learn from us over here.

It is as follows from the Edinburgh Evening Despatch:

"The report of the Dairy Commissioner for the Dominion of Canada (Mr. J. A. Ruddick) for 1906 has just come to hand from Ottawa, and is a very interesting publication.

"A large portion of the report is taken up with notes on a visit which Mr. Ruddick paid to this country, and during which he investigated several features of our dairying system, and amongst other matters cheesemaking in Scotland. On this the writer says that a visit among the sturdy farmers of Wigton, Kirkcudbright, and Ayrshire must always be a pleasure as well as a source of instruction to anyone interested in agriculture, for it is here that some of the finest Cheddar cheese is made. After visiting some fifteen or twenty dairies during the first week in August and making a thorough inspection of the cheese in hand, Mr. Ruddick says, it is easy to understand why some of these cheeses sell for as much as 5s. per cwt. more than the best Canadian. The secret of their success lies not so much in superior skill in the manufacture of cheese as in the care which is exercised in the production of the milk and its delivery to the cheese vat in as nearly perfect condition as possible."

This is quite refreshing and examples similar might be multiplied in general application.

In your issue of Oct. 20, 1905, (P.P. 21 and 27) which I have beside me, I observe your journal deals with Canadian butter and "Careless Canning." Well, I will just say your folks may not get so good a share of the British market in future unless you mend your ways in many matters of "methods, men, morals, and manners."

I consider Canadians a very selfish race and the treatment meted out to some "Old Country" visitors to your domain very discreditable. I know I received more courtesy in the States.

Personally, I never visited a more selfish and inhospitable country.

Your folks forget what they owe to the "Mother Country." Let all that forced emigration from here cease and it would make a big difference to Canadians.

Canada, without "British prestige" and "capital" would be another story.

Only ignorant, bigoted, conceited and selfish Canadians won't admit such a view, and, unfortunately, they are apparently in the majority.

Remember, we have other wide sources of supply for our food than Canada. Personally, I actively discourage "Made in Canada" goods for very good reasons—for "value received."

Now, your folks admire "candour." I trust you can appreciate this virtue also? I think Mr. Mayor Coatsworth, and some others, including Lt.-Colonel Denison and Mr. H. J. P. Good, 11 Ann St. (Toronto Exhibition) know my candid opinions too. I am, sir,

Yours very truly,
J. CHRISTOPHER McRITCHIE.

MONTHLY COMPETITION.

Window dressing, we believe, is one of the most important parts of the grocery business. It needs encouragement in Canada. For that reason The Canadian Grocer is holding a monthly window dressing competition. Three prizes of $5, $3 and $2 will be awarded each month. Those wishing to enter the competition will send photographs of their windows to THE CANADIAN GROCER, 10 Front St. East, Toronto. aecompanied by a written description.

This is a chance for the clerk. No department of the grocery trade offers larger opportunities for advancement than window dressing. If you don't know what you can do, try. If you don't surprise yourself the effort will be a great advantage in any case. No grocer is up to his business if he cannot dress a window. Get into the competition.

PACIFIC COAST BROKERS.

The Standard Brokerage Company, Limited, of Vancouver, B.C., is a new concern, capitalized at $50,000, formed to take over and extend the brokerage business, carried on by Arthur Nelson in Vancouver. Mr. Melson, who remains as managing director, has been closely connected with the brokerage business during the whole of his business career, and is well and favorably known to all the wholesale and retail merchants throughout British Columbia.

The company, whose travelers will cover the entire province, already have some very valuable agencies, and are prepared to represent any reliable manufacturer desiring to place their goods on the B.C. market.

British Columbia, which is the largest province in the Dominion, was never more prosperous than it is at the present time, and with the rapid growth of population, manufacturers will do well to turn their attention in that direction, and they could not place their interests in safer hands than those of the Standard Brokerage Co.

As is intimated in the company's advertisement, which appears on page 15 of this issue, they recognize that to build up a successful business as brokers, they must not only be able to sell goods, but must actually take the place of the manufacturer, and as his representative, look after his interests in every respect, (a fact many brokers overlook). The Standard Brokerage Co. claim to be the only firm of brokers at the coast who call upon both wholesale and retail trades, regularly, throughout the province.

SWEDISH BUTTER IN ENGLAND.

Sweden's export of butter to England is decreasing, owing to increased domestic consumption. The Swedish dairy agent in Great Britain states that during the three first quarters of 1906 the exports amounted to only 26,321,177 pounds, against 30,983,116 pounds during the first nine months of 1905, a decrease of 4,661,939 pounds. At the same time the production of the Swedish creameries is increasing, besides the butter made by the farmers, many of whom now have cream separators and modern churns. The present retail price of butter in Gottenborg ranges from 25 to 29 cents per pound, according to quality.

N. B. Howden, general merchant, Watford, Ont., is dead.

E. J. Wills has joined the traveling staff of G. F. & J. Galt, Winnipeg.

Manager J. K. Black, of the St. Catharines canning factory, attended the canners' convention at Buffalo last week.

Frank Hart, of Hart & Tuckwell, the fruit people, Montreal, is back in the trade again after a two weeks' siege of la grippe.

SHUTTING OFF CREDIT IN CARTWRIGHT

R. F. Moore, Cartwright, Man., president of Merchants', Limited, the new retail consolidation to which extended reference was made in a recent issue of this paper, was in Winnipeg last week and in the course of an interview gave an interesting account of the first week's experiences. It will be remembered that the dealers in Cartwright have formed a joint stock company in order that by united action they may combat the credit evil and the competition of the mail order houses.

"How did you come to think of this scheme?" asked The Canadian Grocer.

"I have had it in mind for two or three years," was the reply. "One Friday night a month or so ago, we merchants in Cartwright met to pass a resolution on the parcels post matter. From that we naturally drifted into a discussion of the credit troubles and the competition of the mail order houses. I put my propositions before the others in rough form and the next Monday night we met and decided definitely to go on with the deal."

"How did the public receive the news?"

"Not very favorably at first. Most of the farmers shouted "combine" and said they would send to other towns and to Eatons; some talked of starting another store. But we have met and are meeting all these arguments and I think most people are disposed now to give us a fair trial. I don't think there will be any trouble when people see that we are not enhancing prices."

"I put it to them this way: You will have no kick if you get your goods as cheap as you are getting them now, will you? To that they must answer "no." Well then, I add, we expect to be able to sell cheaper to you than we are selling to you now for the reason that we can buy in large quantities."

"You are introducing the coupon system of giving credit, are you not?"

"Yes, we are introducing coupons, both for cash and credit sales. In the first place a customer has to settle all amounts owing before we give him credit at all and in this way we are getting in our accounts. Then credit is given only by the sale of coupon books for which the customer gives his note. This note doesn't bear interest until after a date in the fall when the farmers should have plenty of ready cash."

"How is the scheme working?"

"Very well, but of course there is trouble at the start. One of the wealthiest men in our town sent up the first day for a gallon of coal oil. The messenger had no money with him. We refused to let him take the oil without paying for it by cash or coupon. Of course the account was perfectly safe but we had to maintain our system.

"The man came to the store, very much annoyed, but soon saw the justice of our position."

"You mentioned cash coupon books, Mr. Moore."

"Oh yes, we are selling cash coupon books as well as credit coupons. On a $10 book we allow 2 per cent. discount, on a $25 book 3 per cent. discount, and on a $50 book 5 per cent. discount.

"It is early yet to speak of our experiment," concluded Mr. Moore, "as we have been running now only one week, but so far I am more than pleased with the results. Our cash sales the first week were very satisfactory and our credit sales were a smaller proportion than usual of the total amount."

ROMANCE OF THE NAVEL ORANGE

LaSalle A. Maynard tells "The Story of the Seedless Orange" in the World To-day for January. Mrs. Luther C. Tibbits of California obtained in 1872 four orange shoots from the Agricultural Department at Washington, sent there by William F. Judson, American Consul at Bahia, Brazil. They were presented to him by a native, who had several shoots of a seedless orange tree growing in a swamp on the Amazon.

Mrs. Tibbits brought the infant trees carefully home and her husband planted them in the garden. One died, another was chewed up by a predatory cow, but two lived, and five years later produced sixteen oranges. These sixteen golden globes and their immediate successors produced results comparable only in value to the famous discovery of another kind of gold in Sutter's millrace, and brought fame and no small fortune to their lucky owner.

The new orange could be produced only by budding, and the first buds sold at $1 each and later at $5 a dozen. One box of navel oranges was grown in 1880; since then the annual peoduct has risen to ten million boxes, and "the two trees which the cow did not chew have multiplied to over four million." The original parent tree living in 1903 was transferred to the courtyard of the Glenwood Hotel at Riverside, Cal., President Roosevelt aiding in the ceremony of transplantation. Last year the tree bore two bushels of choice fruit, which, of course, were expressed to the White House. In Southern California alone $100,000,000 is invested in citrus fruit culture, chiefly of oranges, and in related industries.

BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

No. 12

D. J. PURDY, M.P.P.

Daniel Jarvis Purdy, M.P.P. for St. John county, N.B., is one of St. John's most prosperous merchants. In addition to conducting a large grocery and provision business on Main street, north end, he is interested in many sailing vessels and river steamers. Mr. Purdy is just now recovering from a very serious attack of pneumonia, which has confined him to his home for some weeks.

Mr. Purdy was born at Jemseg, Queen's county, N.B., on the 24th of May, 1841. He is a son of Frederick J. and Ann Purdy. His early training was received partially at his native place and partially in St. John.

At an early age he entered the employ of James Watson, who did business in a small store on Main street, Where Mr. Purdy's store and residence are now located; and in the following year, 1866, bought out Mr. Watson and started on his own account. He has successfully carried on the business since that time.

For many years—almost since he started business, he has been largely interested in shipping, and at present holds controlling interests in eight schooners, all of which are engaged in the coasting trade. Mr. Purdy is also interested in other industries in the city and elsewhere. He does an extensive business as a lime burner, and is a director in the Portland Rolling Mills, Maritime Nail Works, Thompson Manufacturing Co., Dominion Antimony Mines of Nova Scotia, and in the coal mines in Newcastle, N.B. He is also president of the People's Line Steamship Co., and is interested in the steamer Springfield. Mr. Purdy was for five years councillor for the old town of Portland, previous to its union with St. John, and was for four years alderman-at-large for the city. In 1899 he was elected at the general election to a seat in the Provincial Legislature, and re-elected in 1903. As a representative of St. John in the Legislature he proposed the appropriation of a portion of the old St. John fire fund for the benefit of the sufferers by the Indiantown fire. In this he had the entire house against him, but after a determined effort came out vistorious. He is a Liberal in politics, a strong advocate of temperance and a member of the Baptist church.

John Coltart, general merchant, of Winnipeg, has sold his stock of boots and shoes to F. X. Addleman.

Metcalfe & Co., Berlin, have moved into their new store. It is one of the nicest grocery premises in the town and indeed in Western Ontario.

The Salada Tea Co. report that their business increased last year in all its branches in the United States and Canada over twenty-three per cent. over 1905 and for the first six weeks of this year their business increased over twenty per cent. over the corresponding six weeks of 1906.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Flower and Oat Products are Firm and There is a Pretty Good Domestic Demand—Advances are Expected—Good Time for Grocers to Take Hold of Confectionery.

The grain trade is very quiet, but there is an active demand for wheat and oat products. Prices, however, are practically unchanged. There is a story that a big milling firm has orders to date for 60,000 barrels of flour from China. This would probably be ground in its western mills and shipped via the Pacific route. China does not demand a high grade product and this demand would probably relieve the market of any possible accumulation of low grade stocks.

The feature of the present cereal situation however, is oats. There are stories of an attempted corner at Chicago and Winnipeg. Dealers doubt that the thing can be engineered successfully. Oats, however, are in a very strong position and millers are talking of a further advance on products.

Confectionery.

Easter is approaching and that means a big trade in high class confectionery if it is properly pushed. This is a department largely neglected by the grocery trade, and it is one of the most profitable lines a grocer can handle. So many dealers worry about the sugar trade and if it was ten times as big it would hardly pay for laundrying the clerks' aprons. If more grocers would aim to sell sugar in the form of confectionery they would find an appreciable increase in their profits.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—Business is reported very good. Demand in city and country is sufficient to keep millers fairly busy, while export trade is satisfactory. One milling concern has just shipped a large lot to China.

FLOUR.—Prices are unchanged from a week ago, but the market is firm owing to short supplies of grain. Domestic trade is steady and there is an especially good demand from the eastern provinces, where buyers seem to favor an advance.

QUAKER OATS' PROFITS.

Gratifying Annual Report—John Stuart Succeeds Hon. Geo. A. Cox.

The annual meeting of the Quaker Oats Co., successors to the American Cereal Co., was held in Jersey City recently. After paying $540,000 in dividends on preferred stock, $673,901 remained for common stock dividends, or 15 per cent. on the stock outstanding. On Oct. 15 the first dividend declared on the common was paid.

"Our foreign trade, which is of very large proportions, shows good growth and is in a healthy condition. We are sending out more experienced men into countries where our trade has been moderate, but where the increase justifies the belief that careful and thorough work would be amply rewarded." President Crowell claimed that the company's brand of goods was registered and its products sold in more countries in the world than any other brand of goods of any character.

The total assets of the company are given as $17,044,443.

Hon. Geo. A. Cox, who recently resigned the presidency of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and is giving up other positions of financial responsibility in order to take life a little easier, retired from the directorate and his place was taken by John Stuart, the able administrator of the company's business in Canada.

REFINERS NOT PLEASED.

With New Suger Tariff Amendment, But Will Wait to See.

The Government's new sugar tariff amendment providing that to secure the preference raws must be imported direct by ship to agent in Canada from any British country does not appeal to the refiners. But they are not prepared to discuss the subject at length. Seen by The Canadian Grocer, the Montreal refiners said they preferred to wait for a while to see how the new arrangements would work out.

B. McNally, secretary-treasurer of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co., speaking to The Grocer said:

"The new arrangement is certainly unfavorable to Montreal refiners. To me there appears to have been no special reason for this action on the part of the Government. Why should the refiners be compelled to bring their raw sugar into the country via St. John's or Halifax in the winter instead of by way of New York if they wish to benefit by the preferential tariff? It is all very well to talk of building up trade between Canada and the West Indies, but before reaching out for new victories in commerce we must besure that we are protecting our present industries. We have been getting sugar in via New York for years, and the arrangement is most satisfactory to us. We can obtain supplies on short notice, and we are never short in the case of an emergency. Were we to be dependent upon arrivals by St. John's or Halifax very often in the winter serious trouble would be caused by delayed trains and other such causes which we cannot foresee. In time past we have brought raw sugar in by the Maritime ports, but the arrangement was anything but satisfactory."

FIRE IN MONTREAL.

Through a serious fire occurring in the premises of Daoust, Lalonde & Co., Montreal, Wednesday night of last week, several concerns in the neighborhood suffered considerable loss. N. Quintal & Fils, Ltd., one of the largest wholesale grocery and liquor firms in Montreal, were caused some inconvenience owing to damage by water and smoke. With commendable promptitude, however, they had repairs made and are now, through their energetic measures, once more in a position to carry on business as usual with a fresh stock.

W. P. Wilkins, manager of the Haileybury Supply Co., is in Montreal.

THERE IS A DIFFERENCE—A BIG DIFFERENCE

and all other biscuits. It is generally granted by all practical men that we have reduced baking to an exact science. It is true that we lead as bakers. But the difference does not lie so much in baking because we are convinced that most reputable bakers conduct their business along cleanly and progressive lines. The difference lies in this fact:—

hold all their original goodness—their Quality is lasting because they are packed in air-tight tins after being wrapped in water-proof and dust-proof packing.

Do you wonder that shrewd grocers feature

all the time.

That's another difference.

They mean a good margin of profit and more trade.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Cold Weather Lessens Consumption of Green Fruits—Another Season of High Prices for Lemons is Anticipated — Fish in Good Demand.

The cold weather has put a damper on the fruit business by materially limiting demand. It makes transportation difficult and risky. This is felt especially in unseasonable goods such as strawberries and green vegetables. Oranges and lemons are in fair demand and oranges are a bit firmer. Fruit men are anticipating another season of high prices for lemons. They advanced a shilling in Sicily this week.

The cold weather has, however, stimulated the fish trade and if it holds available stocks, it is said, will be quite cleaned up.

Potatoes have advanced and are scarce everywhere. More Ontario potatoes are coming to market, however. They are better quality than last year and the eastern potatoes, being not so good, the difference is not so marked.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS.—Fruits are selling in very limited quantities. Prices do not show any changes this week for the reason that there has not been market enough to make any new figures. Lemons and oranges are in fair demand, while bananas are selling perhaps as well as any fruit. Prices are higher in New York for these, but locally remain without change.

VEGETABLES.—Without doubt the most interesting line in the vegetable market to-day is potatoes. Prices are 'way up and stocks held in Montreal are very low. As high as $1.10 is asked for Green Mountains, while other grades are going at $1. The high prices will no doubt result in large lots being forwarded to the market. Many holders have not been able to sell at the ruling prices without losing money, but with present figures they will be able to cover themselves and will loosen up. Mostly Quebec potatoes are changing hands, few New Brunswick arriving. Cabbage is in fair demand, while considerable trade is being done in imported tomatoes. California celery is also selling freely.

FISH.—It is a long time since fish merchants have experienced such activity as now prevails. The trouble lies not in the securing of orders, but in filling them. Lenten demand has been larger than for years, anh record sales are being made. As a result many lines are practically off the market, or are at least extremely scarce. Frozen haddock and finnan haddies are out of the market. New tomcods are lower this week, as are also grass pike and flounders. Boiled lobsters are higher, 20c. now being asked. Malpeque shell oysters in the barrel are off the market.

FRUIT FROM AFRICA.

A Montreal firm, Hart & Tuckwell, recently imported from Cape Colony, South Africa, a direct shipment of plums and peaches, which arrived in first-class order. The fruit was good looking and had suffered no ill effects in transport. Prices are very high for this sort of fruit, averaging $3 a box of 28 in the case of plums.

CIGAR GOODNESS

Some grocers overlook that point—although there isn't a grocer in Canada who can afford to do so. The quality of your goods originates more trade than almost anything else, while it is absolutely certain that quality goods can alone retain trade. You must cater to the tastes of your customers, and—judging by the orders arriving from grocers in all parts of Canada—the

PHARAOH and PEBBLE

Cigars must be mighty popular. There are reasons for their popularity.

Pharaoh is a carefully made Cigar—I personally select and supervise the maturing of every leaf of tobacco used in my factory—and easily worth fifteen cents but retails for ten.

Pebble is the five cent head liner. Smokers marvel at its goodness and some grocers sell it for ten.

N.B.—The Payne Plan of doing business says more for the sterling quality of my Cigars than all the words we could print. Do you know that plan?

J. BRUCE PAYNE, Limited, GRANBY, QUEBEC

Good Business

The kind of business that pays depends largely on the brands of tobacco you carry. There was a time when tobacco had little to do with the grocery business; but that's so long ago that we do not remember it. There's a multitude of men sitting in smoking jackets and here's about the way Mr. Smoker talks: "You might make it a point to order your groceries at Smith's. Smith carries a good stock of the best tobacco placed on the market to-day. The Grocer who is wise enough to appreciate tobacco quality and its influence is wise enough to appreciate quality in every article he sells. Go to Smith's, and, by-the-way, you might bring a couple of packages marked T. & B. with you." Enough said for the shrewd grocer to think over.

T. & B. Tobacco sells more than Tobacco.

ATTRACTIVE FOOD STUFF SHOW AT CARSLEY'S IN MONTREAL

Exhibitors were numerous at the International Food Fair held at Carsley's departmental store, Montreal, during the past month.

Booths were attractively dressed and every day young ladies were kept busy demonstrating the merits of the foodstuffs contained therein.

Alex. Forman, manager of the grocery department of the store went around with a broad smile on his face most of the time and was here, there and everywhere with a good word to help things along.

Edwardsburg Starch Co.

At all food fairs one may be certain that if the Edwardsburg Starch Company is one of the exhibiting firms it has a neat and showy booth. They had at Carsley's. It was opposite one of the elevators, and was dressed most tastily, being a double one. The company's different syrups were there for the public to taste and econiums on Crown Brand table syrup were numerous. Benson's Prepared Corn Starch, Silver Gloss Starch and Edwardsburg No. 1 White were the starches displayed.

Something Good in Cream.

St. Charles Evaporated Cream was there, too. So were Ewing's Club and Price of Wales coffees. And those who tasted the dainty little sample cups of coffee, in which St. Charles cream was used, went away thinking that these articles were certainly the real thing.

Small's Specialties

Cremo, maple dust, Small's maple creams, and Small's pure maple syrup were the lines shown in the booth of the Canada Maple Exchange. The decorative scheme was nicely carried out, and the goods shown were in keeping with the decorations as most everyone knows they would be.

Lowney's Goods.

The Walter M. Lowney Company, of Canada, had work cut out for themselves in keeping up with the demand for their excellent cocoa and chocolates. All day there was a crowd before their booth.

Seal Brand Coffee.

It is hardly necessary to say anything about Chase & Sanborn's Seal Brand Coffee. The grocers all know it and appreciate it. Evidently the public did too, from remarks heard around the booth.

The Chocolate Girl.

Walter Baker & Co. is a firm that was very much in evidence throughout the fair. Their chocolate girl, a young lady attired in costume after the style of their trade mark, a lady serving chocolate, attracted much attention.

Canada Flakes.

A dainty dish of breakfast food was that served to all those desirous of tasting Canada Flakes. This food touches the right spot.

Cowan's Goods.

Everybody seemed to like Cowan's Perfection Cocoa, and Cowan's chocolates. Milk and plain chocolate, as well as cream bars, croquettes, wafers, icing and a variety of other specialties were shown by the Cowan Co.

A New Food.

Dr. Price's Food is a new cereal on the Canadian market. Composed of wheat and celery, it is something out of the usual style.

Drysalters Exhibit.

Soap in the making was shown in the booth of the Drysalters people. An amusing incident occurred one day when a lady mistaking a central pile of soap chips for breakfast food, which it much resembled, tasted the article before she was seen by the demonstrator. Mother's favorite, liberty, lilac, heliotrope, violo odorata, jockey club, sandal wood, were the different brands of soap shown.

Ozo There, As Usual.

One of the most attractive booths at the fair was that of the Ozo people. Those wanting to hear something about an excellent pickle went to this booth, where they were given samples of the company's products. Jams were also shown here. Favorable remarks upon the quality of all their goods could be heard any day in that part of the store. T. R. Butt, a city traveler, was in charge.

White Moss Cocoanut.

The Canadian Cocoanut Company had on display their White Moss Brand Cocoanut, which was eagerly sampled by shoppers. Mr. McLean was always ready and willing to explain the process by which the article was manufactured.

Shredded Wheat.

A small hand-shredding machine attracted the attention of visitors to the booth occupied by the Shredded Wheat Company. Shredded wheat and triscuit were demonstrated duirng the month, and more fame was attained by both lines.

Vita and Lipton's Teas.

Laporte Martin & Co. were represented by two lines known by the majority. These are Lipton's teas and vita. The latter is a fluid beef which is rapidly gaining favor.

Popular Soap.

Comfort Soap had a nice stand where were shown as well as Comfort Brand Soap, Handy Ammonia, Diamond Dye and Dingman's Ideal Blue.

Ogilvie's Flour.

Royal Household Flour was to be seen in the booth of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., occupying a prominent place.

Sunlight Soap.

Mr. Probert was in charge of the Sunlight Soap booth. Several brands of soap were to be seen as well as vim, a cleanser which is gaining popularity.

Bovril's Showing.

"And Still They Want More Bovril." So did the people who visited and sampled that fluid beef. Bovril was in demand during the cold weather of the fair.

Displays were made also by Universal Breadmaker people, Thos. Davidson Manufacturing Co., Noyes Ontario Grape Juice, Perrier Water, Shirreff Manufacturing Co.

CONDITIONS IN CUBA.

H. Simon, of H. Simon & Sons, cigar manufacturers, Montreal, has just returned from a combined business and pleasure trip to Cuba. Speaking to The Canadian Grocer about conditions on the island, he said that the planters expected to have this year a fair average crop. For a long time they were afraid there was going to be trouble owing to the lack of rain, none having fallen between October, 1906, and January last. The week before Mr. Simon arrived rain came and there have been two or three showers since, so that growers are again optimistic. The trouble with rebellious natives made the planting season come a little later this year, but this will have no worse effect than the making late of the season for picking the tobacco.

Gain More Oil Customers

Bowser Self-Measuring Oil Tanks bring you more trade because customers appreciate the fact that the oil is drawn instantly, that the measure is always accurate, that the oil is pure, and that the store itself is so clean.

Besides bringing new customers, the Bowser increases the profits on all sales made, by preventing evaporation, leakage, waste, overflow and over-measurement.

The Bowser costs you nothing because it is paid for by the money you are now losing.

Write now for free booklet B explaining the many Bowser styles.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

& SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

The Retailer's Journal of Chicago reports a fatal burning accident in that city of January 27th in which Mrs. Patrick Rice lost her life and her sick husband barely escaped a similar fate, from the use of dangerous inflammable liquid stove polish on the kitchen stove. How much liability rests on the retailers who sell the explosive stuff? Push RISING SUN STOVE POLISH in Cakes and SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH in Tins. They always have been and are now absolutely safe. Besides—its pays you to do it.

WOOD'S BOSTON COFFEES
THOMAS WOOD & CO.
IMPORTERS AND ROASTERS
BOSTON, MASS.
PURITY, UNIFORMITY AND EXCELLENCE GUARANTEED

Every particle of strength and aroma developed and saved in Coffee adds just so much to its value, for it means Dollars saved to the cónsumer, because it goes further;
Dollars made by the Grocer, because they sell more.
The "saving quality" is one of the greatest attributes of

Four Reasons why INVICTUS FIBRE is the BEST FIBRE PAPER on the Market

1. Invictus Fibre is made from personally selected pulp wood cut on our own limits.
2. This special pulp wood is again rigidly culled on arrival at our mills
3. The pulp from which Invictus Fibre is made is manufactured inlour own pulp mill and transferred at once to the paper mill, avoiding all drawbacks of transportation.
4. Invictus Fibre will increase in strength and not grow hard and brittle as does fibre made from sulphite pulp. This is a quality of the peculiar and selected pulp from which Invictus Fibre is made.

A trial order will convince you that we are correct. See that each package bears the words "Invictus Fibre." Every ream contains 480 sheets

Capital and Surplus, $1,500,000. Offices Throughout the Civilized World

Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claims as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

Credit and Money

Nine-tenths of the grocers who sell Windsor Salt (pure, white, crystaline, won't cake) have money in the bank. They discount their bills. Their credit is "A, Number One." Happy grocers they!

Windsor Salt plays its own little part in bringing about this contented state of things. It never disappoints the grocers' customer who buys it. It serves to hold confidence in the quality of a grocer's general stock. It establishes permanent family trade. It helps a grocer's credit—it brings him money.

STANDARDS FOR CANNED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

From an address before the recent Canners' Convention at Buffalo by Dr. Wm. Frear. Chairman of the Committee on Food Standards, Washington.

It is related of an old Pennsylvania clergyman that one Sabbath after announcing his text he looked up from his desk and said : "Brethren and sisters, I wish to talk to you a little while before I begin to preach." Following in the footsteps of one so worthy I shall venture, before discussing the details of the two standards assigned as my topic, to call attention to some of the general features of the whole system of standards, of which those for canned fruits and vegetables form small but closely related parts. For the experience of the years during which this system has been building has shown numerous instances in which a plain setting forth of the fundamental principles of its construction has made clear points of detail which, having been considered by themselves and out of relation to the system in its entirety, had previously been accepted with doubt or even attacked with severe criticism.

In 1897, after some years of experience as an official analyst, had convinced me of the great need for an authoritative set of food standards for our own country, I brought the subject to the attention of the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists, an organization of which all state and national official chemists are ex-officio members. Under the authority of that association the work was begun. In 1902, by act of Congress, the Secretary of Agriculture was authorized in collaboration with that association and such othet experts as he might deem necessary to fix standards of purity for foods and determine what are regarded as adulterations therein. Under these auspices the work has steadily progressed until at the present time standards have been proclaimed for most of the classes of food staples.

Definitions.

With respect to the form of expression best suited to the purposes of these standards, it was decided that they should be put into the shape of definitions of the several articles standardized ; that these definitions should include, where possible, a specification of those qualities that make the articles described wholesome and desirable for food purposes ; and that, where conditions indicated the necessity for and the practicability of the specification of limits for particular constituents these should be included. Furthermore, to guard against possible future abuses, as well as those of the present, it was decided that the standards should be comprehensive. They have, therefore, been so framed as to exclude constituents not specifically included by the terms of the definition.

Inasmuch, also, as this country is a large importer of foreign food products, it was deemed wise that the standards should expressly represent American rather than foreign trade names ; and that, as far as practicable, American materials should have the preference in determining the details of the standards. It was needful to adopt some basis of judgment with respect to what should determine the standard quality of the various products considered, that is, to establish, as far as practicable, some uniform plane or level of standardization. It was decided that, for this purpose, the usual basis of judgment on the part of the consumer, namely, the article of domestic production, should, wherever practicable, serve as a guide. Since, however, failure to conform to the standard would render the producer or dealer liable to legal penalties in many states, and probably ere long in all commerce between the States, it was manifest that the product of unusual excellence should not be adopted as the basis of standardization, but an article of such quality that anything less desirable the housewife would not expect to buy without sufficient warning of its inferiority.

The adoption of this basis does not necessarily imply a failure to recognize the excellence that may result from the development of special skill in particular departments of manufacture under a factory system. On the other hand, it does not tolerate any less degree of cleanliness and care in the details of the selection and preparation of raw material and of the handling of the food materials in the course of manufacture and after its completion, than the average housewife would maintain in the management of her domestic culinary operations.

To allow the largest liberty of procedure in the preparation of an article compatible with the maintenance of its characteristic qualities, references to processes of preparation or manufacture were avoided in the standards as far as practicable.

Preservatives and Colors.

With respect to preservatives and colors, the attitude of the commission has been conservative. Until the experiments authorized by Congress had reached such stage of completion that the results could be fully known, no other course would have been logical. On the other hand, whether the results were favorable or unfavorable to the so-called "chemical preservatives," the artificial colors and the synthetic sweetening agents, it was evident that these materials were not normal components of standard food products. It was therefore deemed proper that, at least as long as the safety of their use was mooted, the standards should be limited in such manner as to require, in cases where these materials were used, a declaration of their presence. Beyond this the commission made no recommendation upon this subject prior to the publication of the latest edition of the standards in circular No. 19, office of the secretary, United States Department of Agriculture.

I have ventured upon this long discussion of the general features of the system of standards with the two-fold purpose of acquainting you with the point of view taken by the commission in its work and of explaining many of the features of the standards for canned fruits and vegetables through an exposition of the general principles governing the formation of all the standards.

Canned Fruits and Vegetables.

Referring now to the standards for canned fruits and vegetables, it is to be noted in the first place that they are based upon primary standards for the terms "fruits" and "vegetables," respectively. It was deemed important that such standards should beimade both for the sake of the buyer and of the seller of these raw foods and to serve as a suitable basis of reference for standards for their respective products. These primary standards were the more needed because the general dictionary definitions in no case represent the exact meaning of the term "fruit" and "vegetable" as they are used in the market, the dining room and the kitchen. The botanical definitions of the terms also fail to conform precisely to market usage. The commission, with the aid of Professor Coville, botanist of the United States Department of Agriculture, wrought out new definitions for these terms which, it is believed, will prove useful, although that for fruit is necessarily made to appear clumsy by the use of the term "fructifications" as a substitute for ' fruits" in the broad, botanical sense of the term, a use made necessary from the fact that "fruits" in the culinary sense form only one part of the much broader group of plant products to which the botanical term "fruits" applies.

The terms "fruits" and "vegetables" as used in these generic standards refer, of course, to the fresh—that is, the undried—products, reasonably free, even, from the effects of wilting.

The terms "clean" and "sound" should be interpreted in accordance with domestic usage. For example, the requirements on these points with respect to table fruit might properly be regarded as different from those to be maintained for fruit that is to be used for apple sauce, involving the removal of the paring and the core and permitting the removal of minor imperfections due to slight bruises and trifling attacks of bitter rot.

The repetition of these terms in the standard for canned fruits and vegetables was made to indicate that in these products not only are the raw materials of standard quality when purchased, but that they have been maintained in such condition until prepared, and also that the finished standard products are, when delivered to the consumer, free from spoilage of all kinds.

What "Fresh" Means.

In the standards for the canned products, the adjective "fresh" was used in each case, not only to indicate the essential high degree of succulence of the raw materials, but also to indicate that canned products made from dried raw materials after a preparation by "soaking" are not considered as standard unless sold under some label satisfactorily distinguishing them from the normal product.

The term "properly matured" was chosen to cover the great variety of conditions proper for the preparation of the different fruits and vegetables, since it was clear that the adjective "ripe" was inapplicable to many of the raw materials fit for canning, though exactly descriptive of the fit state of development for other raw materials intended for such use. The adjective "mature" was rejected as suggesting too narrow a range of plant development.

In each of the two standards under consideration, it was intended that the adverb "properly" should qualify both the adjectives "matured" and "prepared." It was deemed impracticable at this time to establish a separate standard for each of the many canned fruits and vegetables. It was recognized that the preparation proper for one product was in all respects proper for others. For this reason, only this very general indication of proper preparation was included, leaving each product to be judged, for the present, by reference to the generally recognized characters belonging to its particular variety.

With respect to the permissible additions, it may be remarked that the failure to include the so-called chemical preservatives, coal-tar coloring matters and synthetic sweetening agents has already been explained in my earlier statements respecting the disposition made of these materials in their relation to all the standards. Their omission, as well as that of dyes of vegetable and animal origin that are admitted to be non-injurious to health, is further explained by reference to what I said at the outstart regarding the fundamental basis of judgment as to the standard qualities for food articles. It may be noted, however, that the claim has frequently been made to the commission that the use of a dye resembling the natural tint of the fruit was not for the purpose of deception but to prevent deterioration of the food in the tin can or in the glass exposed to light upon the shelf of the retailer. After careful consideration of this claim, it is my judgment that the effect of this use of such dyes is to conceal from the purchaser the deterioration that has really taken place and that the deterioration is not in point of color solely, but in other qualities affecting the desirability of the product. I see no objection, however, to the sale of fruits and vegetables dyed with harmless colors, if the fact of the dyeing be sufficiently declared to the buyer, unless it conceal inferiority.

Sterilization and Keeping.

It was regarded essential in defining these canned products to include both the sterilization by heat and the keeping a hermetically sealed vessel. The word "keeping" was intended to convey the notion of holding for some weeks or months. In order that the food materials, clean up to the time of their introduction, might remain in that condition, it was considered desirable to indicate that the can, or at least its interior surface, should be clean. This adjective was intended to be interpreted in the broadest sense so as to indicate the freedom of the inside of the can not from dust and other filth, but also from traces of solder liquor which, in careless manufacturing, might remain in the can, and would, in such case, surely add their poisonous constituents to the food.

FROM GROCER CORRESPONDENTS

GALT.

The grocery business in Galt during the month of February has been quiet, but steady. Prices of farmers' produce, more particularly butter and eggs, have been higher during the month than in any previous year. Eggs at present retail at 30 cents per dozen, and at one time during the month were as high as 35 cents. The strictly fresh article, even now, demands the latter figure.

The Retail Merchants Association in Galt is one of the most progressive branches of that association in Ontario. During the first two months of the year, by securing the enactment of the Transient Hawkers' and Pedlers' By-Law, they have completely eliminated all hawkers and pedlers. The appearance of one or two of these gentry in the police court made it known to the fraternity that Galt was an unhealthy place for house to house visitation.

The Retail Merchants' Association are at present preparing a petition to the Legislature protesting against the proposed tax on the labels of patent medicines, on the ground that the increase will not affect the wholesalers, but will be an additional burden on the retailers, as the standard prices of patent medicines will not permit of any increase in that direction.

INGERSOLL.

The retail merchants at their last meeting had under discussion the proposed legislation to place a stamp on all patent medicines. The question was one that received strong disapproval, and the members of the association, in compliance with a request, will in all probability protest against the measure. The question of delinquent debtors was another subject of discussion. Several of the members related their experiences with purchasers whose names should be enrolled on the "dead beat" list, and the concensus of opinion was that immediate action should be taken for mutual protection. The outcome of the discussion was that the members agreed to furnish at their next meeting a list of those who, after the lapse of a reasonable amount of time, failed to liquidate their indebtedness.

Although there has been an absence of sleighing, a factor which was heretofore believed to be absolutely essential to a successful winter's trade, the merchants here report a splendid volume of business since the holiday season. The weather has been cold enough to create a demand for all winter articles, and with the roads in good condition, the country people have visited the town about as regularly as is their custom in the summer season. The merchants are now giving much attention to their spring stocks, and new goods are arriving daily. Produce in general has been somewhat scarce, and good prices have been obtained for butter, eggs and potatoes.

Several business changes have taken place in the past fe wweeks. W. C. Talbot, who came here from Aylmer, buying out Fred Dutton's bakery and confectionery business, has returned to "his first love," disposing of his business to W. H. Will & Co. Mr. Wills is a baker of many years' experience and has resided here for a considerable length of time.

D. Tagney also disposed of his bakery and confectionery business to T. A. King, the genial proprietor of the Palace Cafe. Mr. King retained possession for a few days and then turned the business over to Jas. Brooks, who engaged in business on his own account a few months ago, occupying quarters in Jacques & McPherson's grocery store. Mr. Brooks has built up a very flourishing trade and his new quarters will allow for continued development.

KINGSTON.

Kingston contractors decided not to do any tendering for some time owing to the demands of the carpenters' union asking for shorter hours and more pay. Oh that the grocers would do something in that line. As Pat said "Lord hasten the day for shorter hours and longer pay." If grocers would only look for better profits, handle purer goods and close their stores at 6 o'clock it would be better for all concerned, but there seems always to be an element in the trade who close their eyes, put their heads down like bulls, and run into someone else, injuring both, and finally cheating the wholesaler and the public in general.

B. W. Robertson and his better half are taking a trip to Old Mexico, where they will escape the horrid cold and enjoy the torrid heat. May they have a pleasant trip and if they climb Papocatepetl (17,884 feet) we will hear some stories of smoke, ashes and clouds when they come back. In the meantime they will be greatly missed, for they are both popular and noted for their liberality to deserving objects.

Mr. Reid of the Geo. Weston Biscuit Co., made his usual call on Kingston merchants. Jim, the grocer, said his kind manner and winning ways were making friends for him. He didn't know whether he was married or not, but he was always talking about lady fingers, ha! ha! ha! After this joke Jim was told he had bis-git out as he was interrupting the meeting, and he had to do the cake walk and run straight down the crooked street and all around the square.

Weston's individual jelly rolls are the latest kneaded novelty in the baking art. I think Mr. Reid called them baby rolls, anyway they are greatly in favor.

James Crawford got the coneract for supplying the battery here with good things to eat. From the tendency of higher prices, contracts are not going to pay. Just think of an institution here getting No. 1 creamery for 23c. That means $18 or $20 a week loss to the man who supplies it at this season of the year.

Banks are getting on their high horses here since the Ontario muddle and overdrawn cheques are the rule. Some of the boys are not pleased with the sudden pull back and the shut-down on overdrafts. The manager said he got orders from headquarters to put a check on such, so merchants must reduce stock and get out of the bucket-shop way of doing business. I know some merchants who have stock enough to run 20 stores. They have a mania for buying and can't help it. They simply can't say no and the bank is really a friend in disguise. Grocer, if you have a stock of $10,000, run it down to $8,000 and have a balance in the bank, and you will be happier and sleep better. And say! Do less credit business, and don't cut prices on staples. If you have a line you want to run off, do it.

Fred Lewis, for the last four months in the employ of J. Gilbert, has severed his connection and may go West. His father has been in the grocery business in London, England, for the past 35 years, and is secretary of the Retail Grocers' Association there. Fred is a good store trimmer and window dresser, obliging, courteous and attentive.

Cecil Gibson has joined the staff at Gilbert's grocery. He worked two years in J. S. Wilson's general store at Stella and one year in a grocery in Cleveland, Ohio, and latterly with the Kingston Fruit Co.

Mr. Horner, not of Hornerite fame, but the popular representative of the well known Salada Tea Co., was on his regular visit to our city. He claims that a respectable sample put up in nice shape and mailed to the consumer, a good regular advertisement in the local paper and a permanent one in a trade paper, (I presume he meant The Grocer) go hand in hand to poularize and swell the sales of a good tea, providing the quality of the tea is there to back it up, and Salada is good enough for a senator. The leaf is uniform and when the anxious girl of 18 pours out the last spoonful into her saucer to find out her future prospects, there is no Lark-in saying a fortune dwells in every cup.

CHATHAM.

News was received here of the death last week in Peterboro of Lukin Kent, who some 23 years ago was well known here, conducting a grocery on King St., opposite the market. Mr. Kent had reached an advanced age.

Edgar Putnam, the Queen street butcher, is having a new ice box of his own design installed in his shop.

R. J. Weaver, the St. Clair street butcher, is to have a fine new butcher shop shortly to replace the present structure.

Ald. Westman, chairman of the industrial committee of the city council, reports prospects for the establishment of a beet sugar factory here as very bright. Guarantees of acreage are coming in rapidly. A meeting will be held shortly, which will be addressed by Capt. Davidson and other sugar beet men.

Wallaceburg is shortly to have a new grist mill. A. J. Watkin, of Sarnia, formerly of the King Milling Co., is behind the undertaking. The company will be known as the Watkin Milling Co., and will be capitalized at $40,000. Citizens are to subscribe $5,000 and, in addition, the town will provide a free site in South Wallaceburg, convenient for shipping facilities, and a fixed assessment. The industry will supply a long felt want, Wallaceburg having been without a grist mill since the Commercial Mills were destroyed by fire some time ago.

HAMILTON.

Rumors are circulating that a new wholesale grocery house is about to be established here and that R. T. Steele will be the central figure in the new company. This will be pleasant news for his hosts of friends in the retail business here, as well as those connect- to Vancouver. As manager for Lucas, Steele & Bristol, he was one of the ed with the grocery trade from Halifax best liked men in the business and all hope for his success in the future. A big factory about to open here wants to secure Mr. Steele for managing director so his old friends the grocers are likely to meet him in a business way in a very short time, in either one business or the other.

How many grocers weigh their goods in? Now I think this an important matter. Almost all the imported fruits, should the retailer lose this? My advice to every grocer finding short weight nuts, etc., are short weight. Why goods, is to just verify them with the secretary of the Retail Grocers' Association who will make a note of each case and report same at the next meeting of the association. If all were to do this the evil would soon disappear. Asking a grocer the other day about cheese and what it cost him he told me. When I said what about the difference between the box weight and the scale weight, he didn't know, because he had never weighed his cheese in. When I told him that his cheese cost him nearly three-quarters of a cent more than he thought, he was quite surprised. Now if these complaints about weights were sent in from an organized body the effect would be electrical. John Jones to-day won't pay for what he does not get. John Smith is not so particular, says the matter is too small to bother with, and he loses it. If both were working together how much sooner would the manufacturer sit up and do what's square in the weight line.

It is expected that a large biscuit factory will be located here in a short time.

LONDON.

Local retail dealers report business at the close of February and the opening of March as very good, and wholesalers appear well satisfied with the orders received from the surrounding country.

The wholesale prices of cereal foods and the exorbitant telephone rates were matters discussed at a largely attended meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association on Wednesday night of last week. Dealers complain that the margin of profit on these goods is altogether too small. A cereal food which costs them $3.10 per three dozen packages is sold at ten cents per package. That price is printed on the package, so that to put on a cent or two to the consumer is out of the question, as naturally enough, no one can be induced to pay for a commodity more than the marked price. Hence all there is for the retailer in the handling and delivery of thirty-six packages is a profit of fifty cents. But there is a public demand for these goods, and dealers are forced to keep them in stock, no matter how small the profit. One philosophic grocer consoles himself with the thought that the packages serve an excellent decorative purpose in his store. The result of the discussion is that a protest will be circulated for signature amongst local dealers and afterwards presented to the manufacturers. The meeting was unanimous that the present telephone rate of $45 is too high, but as the question of renewing the Bell Company's franchise is now pending before the city council it was agreed to await developments.

"Covent Garden" is the name by which our London market has ever been known, having possibly been adopted as a compliment, or otherwise, to a place of the same name in a greater London. Time was, and not so very long ago when the local housekeeper would think she wasn't keeping house unless she visited the market at least once during the week. But things have changed and it might almost be said that the housewife who now goes to market is the exception. The reason for this change is not difficult to discover. The grocer does the marketing for the housewife. In London that industrious man of business is to be found everywhere; he no longer confines himself to the down-town streets, but operates wherever people are to be found in large number. The "corner grocery," as it once existed, is gone forever, and in its place is found the full-fledged grocery store, in many cases outrivalling those on Dundas and Richmond streets, both as regards extent and freshness of stock and up-to-date business method. In the old days few grocers thought of keeping on sale poultry, fruit, vegetables and other products of the farm; now they are kept by all. The grocer, in short, has taken a burden from the housewife's shoulders, and does her marketing for her. She has long since become convinced that the service rendered her, though no inconsiderable one, costs her little or nothing. For the grocer, as a man of business, knows how to buy as well as how to sell—a fact of which the market gardener and the poultry raiser are fully aware—and the housekeeper gets the benefit of that knowledge.

PETERBOROUGH.

The article which appeared in The Canadian Grocer last week in reference to the treatment of the retail grocers by the wholesalers, was not taken by some in the city as the writer had intended. Mr. Davis, manager for T. Kinnear & Co.'s branch here wishes to state that his firm have never accepted an order from anyone not a retail merchant. Nearly every day either letters are received or parties call at the office, wanting to buy groceries wholesale. But the firm has refused every one. They realize that it would not be fair to the retail merchants. Messrs. T. Kinnear & Co. have worked up their business here on the principle of "honesty is the best policy." Mr. Davis, however, did not contradict the main argument in the article, nor any of the charges laid against the wholesale houses. He said he knew that outside firms which sent travelers here were taking orders from hotels and restaurants and also from private individuals. He gave as one reason for this that the outside firms were being gradually crowded out of this city and district and had adopted such means, more to cut into the local wholesale trade than to injure the retail merchants. No doubt there is a great deal in Mr. Davis' argument. The three wholesale houses here, viz., T. Kinnear & Co., Perkins-Ince & Co., and Chas. Rishor, have pretty well corralled the grocery trade of the district. All three firms are doing a good business and it is constantly growing. Since Messrs. Kinnear & Co. have moved into their new premises they have been increasing their sales every week and in a short time the business will be doubled.

The retail grocers, at least many of them, are seriously considering a large proposition. During the past five years the expense of conducting a business here has been greatly increased. Rents have gone up, wages have gone up. delivery costs more and a larger and more varied stock has to be carried. A few years ago a store renting at $500 a year costs $700 or $800 now. Good clerks could be had then for $10 a week that get from $13 to $15 now. To counterbalance this additional expense the profit on groceries has not increased in proportion. In fact there has been practically little increase in the price. So that the retail man is forced to work out some plan to better his condition. One thing which is being thoroughly investigated is the cash system. Many of the merchants would like very much to have a cash system adopted. It would be a grand boon to the merchant and it would also be of benefit to the buyers. The merchant would have no bad debts, and no losses, and he could afford to sell at a reduced cost. But the great drawback is that half a dozen merchants could not make it pay. There are about 150 retail grocers in the city and half a dozen men would not be able, it is feared, to hold sufficient trade. In the east ward, however, John C. Sullivan does a strictly cash business and he has made it a success, but it is a different proposition to do it in the centre of the city. However, five or six merchants on the main street have stated that they would gladly join with other grocers and adopt a wholly cash system and try it for a year.

WHEAT AND FLOUR TRADE ON THE PACIFIC COAST

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 28, 1907.

Former predictions as to the growth of wheat and flour shipments from this coast to Japan and China, are being fulfilled very early. The Ogilvie Milling Co., which has already had flour orders amounting to 60,000 sacks; for Japanese shipment, announces an additional order of 10,000 sacks. Besides this the company now has under consideration an offer from Japan for all flour that can be spared of certain grades produced at the Winnipeg mill in the months of March, April and May. This expansion of the shipment of Canadian flour to the Orient is the precursor of the oft-predicted movement of Alberta-grown wheat to the Pacific seaboard, in preference of eastward. This is the logical method of supplying the growing Oriental demand. It means also the early erection of grain storage elevators at Vancouver, to be quickly followed by the erection of large export flour mills.

Work on the plans for the new Vancouver produce market has progressed so far that the construction of the building is expected to be sufficiently completed by June that produce may be handled there in that month. It is anticipated that some freighting steamers will be operated from adjacent coast settlements as the most convenient means of bringing produce to market. The B. C. Electric Inter-Urban lines also serve, and the Great Northern is in close proximity to the site on False Creek waterfront. Many districts are so located that farmers may drive in with their produce and return home the same day, or at most leave next morning. A weekly market will be held at first. A market clerk is to be appointed at once to organize the work and to interview the ranchers as to bringing in their produce.

The Columbia Cold Storage Co., with its large and well equipped plant at New Westminster, is in a splendid position to engage in the shipping of fresh halibut to the eastern cities, a new venture on which they are to embark on a large scale. The company has contracted to handle the entire catch of the steamer Celestial Empire, one of the five large steamers engaged in halibut fishing on the northern banks.

A shipment of a thousand tons of barley is to go to New Zealand by the Alley Line steamer Bucentaur, scheduled to sail to-day from Vancouver. The grain which is in demand in the colony had to be imported from Oregon and Montana, a circumstance to be regretted in a grain-growing country. It is required for brewing purposes, and the demand would suggest a profitable line of grain production and export for western farmers. The Bucentaur has in all about 3,000 to 4,000 tons of cargo outward.

Prince Rupert, the G.T.P. terminal city, is to be electrified by the first of May. The B. C. Tie & Timber Co., is erecting a mill there and is installing a plant to generate electricity for lighting the new city. The pole line has been built and the Canadian General Electric Co. is supplying plant for a 1,200-light incandescent installation. Electric power for motive purposes will also be supplied at Prince Rupert from this plant.

Grocery markets are this week somewhat featureless as to changes in prices previously quoted. Stocks are still short in some lines, but the improved weather conditions have given railways further opportunity to get delayed freights moved forward. The most serious matter has been in the delivering of goods shipped out from local wholesale houses to the many country points, delays having been the order of the day, and consumers having simply had to do without.

In produce lines there is some activity. The predicted sag in prices of eggs has occurred. Local fresh eggs went down to 25c. wholesale on the weekly New Westminster market, and since then have not rallied beyond 30c. As California fresh eggs are on the market now quoted from 28 to 30c., the local stock will be kept down, especially as supplies are now liberal and continued mild Spring weather conditions will keep up the production.

Butter supplies from local sources continue to increase, with prices same as quoted last week, 35c. wholesale for local fresh creamery, local dairy being from 25 to 30c. Australian and New Zealand creamery remains at 30c. as last quoted. The supply is liberal for all present demands. No other stocks have been coming on the market.

Flour quotations have not been advanced yet, though one firm has a 20c. per barrel raise in effect, which has not yet affected this market. The tendency is to advance however, and prices are firm.

In fruits enlarged demand for oranges and lemons is noted. The price is lower too. Present quotations are $3 and $3.25 for oranges, $4 to $4.75 for lemons. Apples are scarcer and prices stiffening. Locals are offering in limited way since New Westminster market has been benefitted by the opening of the river. These local goods quote at $1.25 and $1.50 per box. Imported fancy apples are quoted as high as $2.50 per box to the trade.

Ashcroft potatoes, when they can be assured to be that article, bring $34 per ton, and the market is not at all supplied. Local mainland stock brings easily $20 to $25. Onions, local are $1.50 to $2.50 per hundred lbs. California cabbage is 2½c. per lb.; cauliflower $1.60 per doz.; celery 85c. per doz.; local lettuce, $1.50 to $1.75 per crate.

Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild

Annual Meeting at Toronto this Week—Very Large Attendance—Leaders of the Trade from the Atlantic to the Pacific Present—Subjects Discussed and Resolutions Adopted—Expression of Views to the Provincial and Dominion Governments—H. C. Beckett of Hamilton the New President.

The annual meeting of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild was held in the Board Room of the Board of Trade, Toronto, Tuesday, March 5th.

The representation of the various provincial guilds comprising the different sections of Canada in which the work of the guild is in operation was very large and representative. Members were present from Victoria in the West to Halifax in the East and when President Hebert called the meeting to order at 10.30 a.m. it was to face an assembly of business men whose interests are of the largest in trade matters in the Dominion. The capacity of the large Board Room was taxed to the limit and it was apparent that all had come with the intention of giving their valuable time to the discussion of weighty trade matters.

President Hebert's address was brief, concise, and to the point and in this respect bore out his reputation for a business man of quick, terse and decisive action. Briefly reported, Mr. Hebert said :

PRESIDENT HEBERT'S ADDRESS

"I always look forward to this occasion with much pleasure. It is, indeed, a gratifying sight, that at a meeting like this, where so much cordiality is exchanged between business men who are competitors in trade. In my present quality of president of your guild, gentlemen of all parts of the Dominion, I extend you a hearty welcome. I hope that every one of you will derive for your respective firms some benefit from our deliberations.

The eleven months that have elapsed since our last annual meeting have not seen any sensational occurrences in the grocery trade, nor hardly any eventful happenings. It has been a period of calm and smoothness with practically no difficulties or disturbances.

J. F. Eby and Hugh Blain, Toronto.

Tney Travel Together.

"I have much pleasure in announcing that a local guild is in course of organization in Edmonton, Alberta, because of our members in that locality being situated at too great a distance from the nearest guild to them now existing. I believe that is a good move.

"It is the intention of disposing at this annual meeting of all the business in one day, as in the past we have found that many delegates do not attend the second day's sessions and, therefore, I hope that you will all be present to-day the whole time, and trust that we will put in solid hours of practical work."

Model Chairman.

Mr. Hebert's expressed intention of carrying out the business in a one day's session was one that in general met the approval of the delegates and the manner in which every resolution before the meeting was put, discussed and disposed of, was commendable and established a precedence for future guidance. It was felt, however, by certain delegates who had traversed half and more of the continent, that in some respects a more extended session might not be out of order, particularly as on some points the workings of the guild were not so familiar as is in the interests of all sections. However, and Bonusing Travelers.

After Secretary J. Stanly Cooke had read the minutes of the last meeting, the various resolutions proposed for discussion by the various prominent guilds were taken up. Among the subjects under discussion were the following :

The bonusing of travelers by various manufacturers without the knowledge or consent of the wholesale houses.

This question is one that the National Grocers' Association of the United States had taken in hand and acted upon and the discontinuance of the practice had been endorsed by some of the U.S. manufacturers and it was felt that the jobbing and manufacturing trade of Canada should equally follow suit. This indirect tax upon the cost of the goods was an injury to the retail grocery trade who, after all, were the parties who had to pay the bonus.

Uniform Weights and Packages.

Uniformity in weights and sizes of packages of certain goods also came under discussion. In certain provinces the weights had been fixed by the Legislatures at specified amounts and it was thought in the interest not only of the jobbing but also the retail trade, that uniformity throughout the Dominion would facilitate the conduct of business and save time and expense.

Manufacturers Selling to Retailers.

One of the most important subjects on the paper was the selling by manufacturers direct to the retail trade at jobbers' prices and in this respect strong arguments were advanced, showing that in manufacturers discriminating in favor of a few retailers an injustice was being done to 95 per cent. of the retail of the country.

The policy of certain manufacturers listing goods that are now sold retail at 10c. at $1 was one that was not just to the retail grocer and it was felt that the retailer was not getting a fair profit at these figures, and it was a policy that did not meet with the approval of the guild. It was decided to request the manufacturers to list such goods at not more than 90c. in order to secure for the retail grocer a fair margin of profit. This feature is one that The Grocer has referred to before and it is with pleasure that we note this step on the part of the guild, and it is safe to say that there is no retail grocer but what has felt that this step is one that should have been taken long ago. It is a matter that has given the retail grocer a good deal of dissatisfaction in the past and it is a pleasant thing to record that the Wholesale Grocers' Guild has taken the matter up, and it indicates that they have in mind the making of a fair profit by the retailer on goods sold now at these fixed prices.

Several minor matters purely of interest to the financial position of the guild were brought up and discussed.

Retail Merchants' Association.

During the afternoon session a committee of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada was received. The committee consisted of E. M. Trowern, secretary; Geo. E. Gibbard, M. Moyer, T. B. Escott, London.

Holding down the Treasury Lid.

J. Grigor, A. B. Griffin, and J. Hargreaves.

E. M. Trowern explained the position of the proposed amendment to the Criminal Code, the proposed Co-operative Stores Act, and also referred to the question of uniformity in weights of certain goods, the proposed abrogation of the duty on packages or casings of British goods, and the establishment of a bureau of trade and commerce by the Government under the direction of business men, manufacturers, jobbers and retailers. Mr. Hargreaves also addressed the meeting, asking for the guild's support in reference to the action of the Retail Merchants' Association on the Patent Medicine Act now before the Federal House.

These suggestions and requests were heartily approved by the Dominion Guild and co-operation decided upon.

The financial statement read by Secretary Cook showed the heavy expenses incurred during the past year by reason of the suit entered by the Attorney General of the Province of Ontario against the guild, but a satisfactory balance remained on hand.

A Word to Government.

The following resolution was passed:

Resolved: That the position of the Ontario and Federal Governments in connection with the prosecution of the wholesale grocery trade of the Dominion of Canada for alleged conspiracy and illegal combination, is a most unjust and unwarranted proceeding.

Notwithstanding repeated suggestions for the appointment of a Commission to intelligently, and without political bias, make a study of trade conditions—no action has been taken by the Government.

Through the attitude of the Government in permitting crown attorneys to carry on wholesale prosecutions without evidence beyond the possible and doubtful difference of opinion as to the meaning of the word "unduly," the trade have been put to an expense of several thousand dollars in defending their right to existence.

By reason of erroneous, ignorant and deliberately false statements, manufacturers have been threatened with extinction and merchants with fine and imprisonment for fair and reasonable efforts they might make, in common, to protect their investments.

That the Dominion Government be again requested to deal with trade conditions in a manner that will fairly protect capital and encourage the commerce of the country on a sound, honest financial basis.

That the Dominion Government define the meaning of the word "unduly" (if it is their intention to leave same in the Criminal Code) without putting the trade to the expense of unreasonable court proceedings.

That the Ontario and Federal Governments be requested to reimburse the wholesale grocers the costs they have, by reason of the unwarranted action with the consent of the Crown, been called upon to incur.

The New Officers.

The election of officers for 1907-8 resulted as follows:

President, H. C. Beckett, Hamilton.

Vice-presidents and presidents of provincial guilds:

Ontario—T. Kinnear (re-elected), Toronto.

Quebec—L. E. Geoffrion, Montreal.

New Brunswick—G. E. Barbour, St. John, N.B.

Nova Scotia—R. N. Simmons, ———

P. E. Island—W. H. Aitkin, Charlottetown.

H. C. Beckett, Hamilton.

The New President makes a Start.

Manitoba—J. J. Codville, Winnipeg.

Alberta—F. P. Colpman, Lethbridge.

British Columbia—H. G. Wilson, Victoria, B.C.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Albert Hebert, the retiring president, for his interest in the work of the past year. Mr. Hebert in replying deprecated the value of his services and, in thanking the members for their kind vote of appreciation, stated that his work had been lightened by the assistance given him by the various vice-presidents, and particularly by Mr. Beckett and the secretary of the Dom. W. G. Guild, Mr. J. Stanley Cork, Montreal.

President Beckett in the Saddle.

Mr. Beckett, the new president, appreciated in the highest degree the honor that had been conferred upon him by the members of the guild, and assured them that he had always had the interests of the grocery trade at heart,, not only the jobbing, but the retail trade of the country. He felt that on many matters in which the guild had acted the motives of this body were misunderstood. All the acts of the guild since its formation had been but in one direction, the simplification of doing business and the arrangement of grocery matters on a profitable basis for all concerned in it, both wholesale and retail grocers. He promised to do all in his power to still further eliminate such features as were objectionable to, and obstructive of the proper and profitable conduct of, the grocery trade.

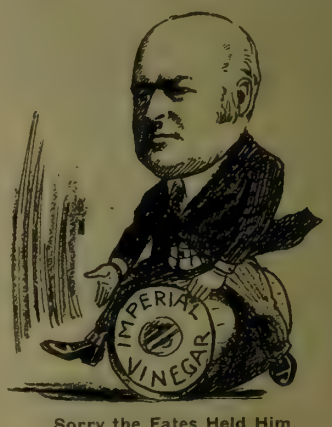
On motion of Arch. Miller, of Mitchell & Turner, Quebec, it was decided to hold the next annual meeting of the guild in the city of Quebec, the date to be decided on by the executive committee.

Mr. Wilson, of Wilson Bros., Victoria, made a plea for the holding of the meeting in Victoria. It was also proposed by Mr. Geoffrion that Winnipeg, now one of Canada's greatest business centres, should be given the sessions, but it was thought that Quebec should receive consideration this year and the western and far western cities the following years.

Note and Comment.

H. G. Wilson, of Wilson Bros., Victoria, B.C., is a fine specimen of the big robust and sturdy Westener. Full of patriotism for his province and city, he urged the claims of Victoria for the next annual meeting. He would guarantee good weather "at all times of the year." No blizzards, frozen ears, overshoes or chest protectors. Trade was good out there and an improvement in the lumbering conditions of Vancouver Island was putting money into freer circulation. The mineral wealth of British Columbia and particularly the Island, was just being appreciated as one of the provinces's greatest assets. A young man, yet Mr. Wilson's energy and push is bound to land him in the forefront of his country's business men.

Geo. E. Bristol, Hamilton.



Sorry the Fates Held Him.

A. M. Bauld, of Bauld Bros. & Co., Halifax, thinks that the national, as well as natural port of Canada is Halifax. He, in a friendly way, conceded that St. John was "no so bad" but—. Trade generally was in a flourshing condition, the fishermen had obtained

WESTERN ASSOCIATION WORK.

With the appointment of Wilfrid Ledoux to act as assistant organizer, the Retail Merchants' Association of western Canada are inaugurating a vigorous campaign in the country districts. During the last year the direction of the general work of the association and the organization of the trade in the city of Winnipeg has occupied so much of Mr. Coulson's time that it has not been possible for him to visit the country sections of the association as often as is necessary to keep everything running smoothly. The work is too great for one man and the appointment of an assistant was absolutely necessary. In selecting Mr. Ledoux the association have made an excellent choice. He has splendid organizing ability, is a good speaker and having been a retailer himself his talks are bound to be practical. He is commencing the work of organizing the dealers throughout the west into local sections, bringing them together in local meetings so that they may know each other better and work more harmoniously together.

Mr. Ledoux goes to the country dealers with a good cause. The association has already done much for them and it can do more if they will fall in line and give it the support it deserves. The coupon systems and debt collection forms forms introduced by the association have been a great benefit to the dealers using them and have provided the best means yet devised for dealing with the credit evil. In connection with these systems there has also been prepared in Winnipeg a "Delinquent list" of slow pay customers and there is no reason why such lists can not be prepared in the country sections as well.

These are a few of the strong points in the association program which Mr. Ledoux will present to the country dealers. The Canadian Grocer bespeaks for him a favorable hearing.

SHAKING HANDS WITH THE ASSIGNEE.

Upon the man who has got his attention fixed on the possibility of sudden and increased profit in mining stocks a single warning has little effect. So again we venture to remark that the likelihood of a man permanently augmenting his bank account by mining stock speculation is much more remote than his chance for making money in the grocery business, providing he gives it as earnest attention as the man gambling in mining stocks gives to the mining situation. A man with limited capital who ventures into the mining market, accompanied only by his shadow, has a fine disregard of danger. It is almost impossible for him to know the actual value of the stock offered him and the man who is trusting to luck to make money for him has the assignee on one side and the bailiff on the other. We promised to reproduce this week from The Financial Post an article showing the comparative earning power of various lines of investments. For lack of space we have had to hold it over a week.

DISCUSS ORGANIZATION.

At the hour of going to press no word had reached this office that the flag of retail grocery organization had been imperilled in any part of this Dominion. Why is it no leader can be found for this work? It is that all the retail grocers are so busy making money or making ends meet that they have no time to take an interest in the trade as a whole and the betterment of it? It cannot be that in this year of civilization anyone doubts the efficacy of organization upon right lines to benefit the trade individually and collectively, to fight evils, correct abuses and pave a way to better things. We invite discussion of this question through the columns of The Canadian Grocer.

LICENSE TRANSIENT TRADERS.

In a great many communities the merchants are troubled more or less by transient traders and pedlars operating without licenses, in some cases carrying away thousands of dollars in a year, without expending a cent by way of fee to the municipalities where they get the business. They enter directly into competition with local retailers who are obliged to pay heavy taxes for the privilege of selling goods to the public.

Where such conditions exist in Ontario the fault lies with the merchants themselves for an Act passed at the last session of the Provincial Legislature provides a means whereby they can have transients put on such footing that their competition need not be feared. All municipalities are empowered to pass by-laws imposing fees up to a certain substantial amount. Other provinces may secure legislation of like nature if the merchants present the matter to their local House.

The imposition of good, stiff licenses on transients is in no sense a restriction of trade, but rather the protection of legitimate traders. Heavy taxes or rent enter into a merchant's cost of doing business, and must be covered by the profit which he makes on his goods. Transients, in the majority of cases, have no expense of this kind to reckon with, and can afford to undersell the resident merchant. They take many thousands of dollars annully from the customers of retail stores. A fee which places them on equal footing with the latter is prohibitive to most of them, as it should be.

CANNED SALMON.

The representative of one of the largest American packing interests said this week of salmon :

"Statistics that have been published from time to time clearly show that the surplus has been entirely eaten up; that we are down to and can clearly see the end of the pile of the 1906 pack, which was, considering all grades, nearly 1,000,000 cases less than the pack of 1905."

After pointing out that owing to increased cost of labor and material the pack of the coming Summer would cost at least 10c. a dozen more than last year, he concluded :

"I doubt if there is a single merchandise item that is as sure to advance as salmon. Everybody believes in it; everybody is friendly to salmon. Why? Because it is to-day the lowest price food product that can be reached by the consumer, and 16-oz. salmon in a can at the retail price gives the family the largest amount of nutriment possible to obtain for the money. Why should it not be possible, and why should not the distribution be greater than in any previous year when every other food product has materially advanced ?"

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

Pointers—

Fish—Revised.

Montreal, March 7, 1907.

Spring demand is already being felt in many grocery lines. More than one house reports enquiries for goods to be delivered beginning of Spring, and some firms have made good sales for delivery in April. In the meantime actual business transacted is not very large, being of a sorting nature. No special price changes are noticeable this week.

Sugar is firm at the advance of last looked for by some. Canned goods are week, and a further jump in prices is moving out slowly but surely. There is no special demand for any line. Corn syrups are selling very freely, jobbers reporting extremely large sales. Little interest is manifested in molasses as yet, but it is likely that the attention of the trade will soon be directed upon it as high opening prices are anticipated. Coffees and spices are selling very well. Currants are a little easier. Nothing new is reported in raisins. Prunes are in good demand. Evaporated apples are quoted around last week's figure, but there is a strong feeling in the market.

Collections are reported better than last week by some houses, while other firms say they are still experiencing much trouble in getting in their accounts.

SUGAR.—Sugar is strong at last week's advance of ten cents. Buying has been very good, evidently many expecting further activity in prices. .

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.— Consumption of syrups continues extremely heavy, and wholesalers are selling large quantities of all kinds of corn syrups. The demand for this line is unprecedented. Molasses is not particularly interesting yet. Everything points to high opening figures in the Barbadoes.

TEAS.—Quite a lot of business is being transacted in teas at prices which must be satisfactory to the seller. The trend of the market is still upward and holders are not anxious to part with their stocks, being of the belief that much higher figures will rule two months hence than are now obtainable.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.—For the season business in dried fruits is very good. So many lines are scarce that dealers are handicapped in filling orders. According to latest reports, currants are slightly weaker. The arrival of the steamer Lodovica in New York with a supply of currents had a depressing effect on the market. The goods on this vessel were not up to the standard of the first arrivals and quotations for this stock are not so high. In raisins there is little that is new. Valencias are in fair supply in New York and are a bit easier. Locally they are very scarce. Seeded are higher and supplies are fairly large. New crop Brazil nuts are now quoted 16c. to 17c. being first price. Lots will begin to arrive end of this month. Tarragona almonds are unchanged. Filberts are stiffer.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL — Some salmon is selling, but the first of the spring demand has not yet been felt. Prices on all lines, or at least on all staple lines, are, according to the jobbing trade, rather high to encourage much buying on the part of retailers. In retail there is a feeling that when tomatoes are up to their present level the demand on the part of the consumer is bound to fall off, since this line is one of the working class staples, and after prices go above 10c. a tin these people leave the line alone. This applies to more than tomatoes.

TORONTO—A fairly active demand for canned goods is reported, but not until navigation opens and the spring demand sets in will the actual situation in regard to tomatoes and corn be developed.

CANNED POTATOES NEXT.

Uncle Sam Wants Them for His Soldiers in Tropics.

"Uncle Sam" is getting nearer home for his soldier boys. He is arranging to include in their daily rations an article commonly known as the "spud," or Irish potato. In years past it has proved very expensive to serve potatoes to soldiers in torrid climes, as the potatoes have sprouted and rotted in transit and in storage. The Government is now arranging to overcome these difficulties. A few days ago the United States war department asked the Peru Canning Company, of Peru, Ind., to furnish 17,000 cases of canned potatoes at once.

The Government has already experimented with canning potatoes, and those who have had charge of the work say their efforts have been successful. The war department, therefore, has recommended the buying of the output of many of the canning factories of the country. It is supposed here that all the other canning companies of the state have been favored with a request from the Government the same as the one sent to Peru. As yet the Peru Canning Company has not accepted the order. Neither has the company received word from any other firm announcing that it has closed a deal with the Government.

Notes.

J. J. Steele has sold his malt property in Greensville to D. A. Hyslop, of Ancaster, who intends opening a large canning factory in the fall.

A company is about to be formed at Welland to erect a fruit and vegetable canning factory in Pelham, with Ridgeville as the site of the new buildings. $10,000, a fourth of the total capitalization, will be sufficient to build, equip, and run the factory, which will give employment to about 75 hands.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Pointers—
Sugar firm, said to be going higher.
Flavory teas advancing.
Good demand for prunes.
Butter firmer, eggs easier.
Cheese higher.

Toronto, March 7, 1907.

Business is improving, though it hasn't got the Spring hump on by any means. The advance in sugar stimulated some buying, but a good many merchants had been holding back expecting a further decline and the country generally was pretty bare. The opinion now prevails that the price is scraping on the bottom and that the retailers who stock pretty heavily when they think sugar is at its lowest should get into the market right away. There is good enquiry for all kinds of canned goods, but the active business in that line is still a little way ahead. Prunes are going well and as prices have not been advanced in keeping with coast prices, quotations are very reasonable. Teas continue very firm and now it is the turn of the flavory teas to advance. Collections are not yet satisfactory, though no one is complaining loudly.

TEA.—The advance in London has now shifted to the flavory sorts, but prices in the lower grades are firm. Exports from Northern India to Great Britain last year increased from 155,463,000 lbs. in 1905 to 169,557,000 lbs. and to other countries from 43, 365,000 lbs. to 53,224,000 lbs. The quantity sent direct to markets outside the United Kingdom increased 22 per cent. and the quantity sent from London to outside markets 84 per cent.

COFFEE.—There is no change locally in quotations and no movements in the market abroad to affect prices. Willett & Gray thus explain the valorization movement :

"The consumption of coffee is very regular and undergoes a steady increase but, on the other hand the production is very irregular, and it is therefore a reasonable provision to try to equalize supplies. The Santos crop 1905-1906 was 7,000,000 bags, in 1906-1907 possibly double (14,000,000 bags), while according to the most reliable information obtainable, the Santos crop in 1907-1908 will be only 5,000,000 bags. In view of this, the San Paulo Government is directing its best efforts towards a more equable marketing of supplies, so that when production in a season is much in excess of sonsumption, prices should not go down so low as to be far below the cost of production, and then to be followed by a year of much smaller crops where production is greatly inferior to consumption, when the opposite extreme swing of prices might take place. The San Paulo Government considers that if market values for coffee remain more stable it will be to the advantage of the planters and general trade conditions as well. The Federal Law, passed by Brazil, legalizing valorization, decrees that the national credit may be invoked to the extent of £15,000,000 to help the agriculture of the country, such as coffee and sugar, and rubber also, by means of guaranteeing State loans. But the law especially stipulates that no advances are to be made at home in Brazil on merchandise or otherwise, whether to planter, dealer or commission merchant.

"The non-existence of warehouses in the interior for the proper control and protection of the merchandise or provision for reimbursement, insurance and so forth naturally preclude the making of loans out there, and the law provides that the advances on the merchandise shall be made only in consuming countries, where proper stores, insurance and handling can be secured in the ordinary way. As a consequence, it is likely that the Government will hold and control a very large proportion of the surplus stocks of coffee in consuming markets, thereby concentrating the supplies in few hands."

SUGAR.—While prices are unchanged the feeling in regard to future prices is ver firm in sympathy with the trend of things in New York. Some jobbers are going so far as to advise their customers that this is the time to buy, on the assumption that the staple will go no lower. Cuban raws advanced ⅛c. the first three days this week. Willett & Gray, reviewing the changed tone at the end of last week, said :

"Last week we said that the tide of decline was turning and that improvement would proceed until the parity of beet sugar is reached for centrifugals. Last week this parity was 49c. per 100 pounds, and is reduced to 46c. on prompt and 40c. March sugars this week.

"The low basis appears to have been turned at 2 1-32c. c. & f. of 96 degrees test, without touching the 2c. per lb. point, at which buyers aimed for a long time, and inasmuch as support has come to the market through large purchases by refiners as well as speculators, it is evident that the upward turn has set in for good.

"Beet sugar continues to act firmly and independent of Cuba, and whenever a change is made it shows an advancing tendency. The present week shows ¾d. advance per cwt. in beet sugar (.01c. per lb.) and centrifugals show .04c. per lb. advance.

"The quantity of sugar placed with buyers during the week amounts to about 100,000 bags for nearby and prompt shipments, 250,000 bags for March and 150,000 bags for April shipments. Prices for early arrivals and for spot centrifugals close at 2 96c. c. & f. for Cubas, equal to 3.42c. per lb. landed for 96 degrees test, against 3.38 cents per lb. last week.

"Cuba receipts continue at the highest points, say 65,000 tons for the week. Receipts in the U. S. also are large, say 63,640 tons.

"News from Brazil and Pernambuco is that an abnormal demand has developed south, principally for white sorts, which has caused a rapid advance in values in those sections.

"It has been asked why, with such a great difference between the price of Cuba sugar and the price of beet sugar, does not the Cuba sugar go to Europe instead of coming here? As a matter of fact some 150,000 bags of Cuba centrifugals have been bought in Cuba by Europeans, but it cannot yet be stated that the sugar will be sent to Europe. There is apparently 46c. to 40c. per 100 lbs. difference in parity value between Cuba and Europe, but this is only apparent and not real as, if the sugar is sent to the U. S. there is 34c. per 100 lbs. reciprocity advantage, which is lost to the planter if seat elsewhere, in addition to expense of 7c. per 100 lbs. extra freight on shipment to Europe.

"Inasmuch as all centrifugals from all other countries than Cuba have to be sold on equivalent of Cuba basis, there is no advantage gained by Europe buying from Cuba that is not already possessed by buying from other countries such sugars as they actually consume, but there may be a decided advantage buying Cuba sugars and not shipping them to Europe, but holding them in Cuba or the U. S. until the parity of beet and cane comes together. MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, March. 7, 1907.)

Except for an advance of 10c. per cwt. in refined sugar for Manitoba points there are no changes of importance to note this week. The advance in sugar applies to Manitoba only, the price in the other western provinces remaining unchanged. Business continues very active, and with normal weather conditions there is less delay than formerly in the delivery of freight.

JAPAN TEA IN DEMAND.

Big James John Pickup took The Grocer office in Toronto by storm last week. This 200 lbs. of English bone, sinew and muscle represents the active agency in Western Ontario and New York State for Shaw T. Nishimura Japan Central Tea Traders' Association, Montreal. James says this particular Anglo-Jap. alliance works freely and profitable well. He has been thoroughly over the ground in Western Ontario and finds that the trade who imported direct from Japan last year very pleased with their profitable experience and anxious to place orders for the ensuing season. Those who imported had an advantage of at least two cents per pound over spot buyers. One customer increased his order 100 per cent. and this is typical of many others. With Ceylon greens high and comparatively scarce, a good season for Japan seems assured. As to spot trade there is a strong inquiry for a good tea at 16c. (for 25c. retail) but such teas are exceedingly scarce. James John says with nearly six months to go before new teas of this class arrive it would seem to be good policy for the trade to "pick up" the good values now offering around 18c., and he reports good sales in "picking up" orders at these prices. Mr. Pickup is of the opinion that a determined effort should be made by the retail trade to advance the popular 25c. quality to 30c. at once as the market thoroughly justifies such a course, besides times are prosperous and it is easier to do so now than in dull times.

Mr. Pickup is calling upon the trade in the western peninsula this week, after which he will visit the trade in Buffalo and other New York State centres.

GETTING LABORERS.

The Kentville, N.S., Board of Trade undertook to relieve the agricultural labor problem in the Annapolis Valley. They called a meeting of the farmer folk to meet Adit. Jennings of the Salvation Army, who is related to the immigration work. There were a hundred applications for help and a good class of settler was promised them.

GROCERS' MONTHLY MEETING.

Little was done at the monthly meeting of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association Thursday night of last week except to discuss the selling price of gin and beer.

Attendance was large, there being more members present than at any meeting since the elections. It is a good thing to see the grocers displaying such interest in their association, and it is to be hoped that they will tusn out in such numbers at future meetings. All manifested great interest in the proceedings and took part, many of them, in the discussions of the evening. It is a good thing for all the retail grocers to be present on these occasions, but stil a better idea for all, or as many as possible, to express their own views on subjects under discussion, as in this way each secured the benefit of the other's experience.

It was brought to the attention of the grocers that many in the trade were selling beer and gin at lower prices than the majority of grocers, and it was decided that a uniform price should be adopted, doing away with all price cutting.

The license question again came in for some talk. President Laniel reported having gone down to Quebec with a delegation to interview the Government regarding the liquor license. The gas question was brought up and some of the members spoke on the matter.

FOR SALE

That valuable business stand and property situate at New Mills in the County of Restigouche and Province of New Brunswick, known as the J. T. Windsor property.

This property consists of a lot of land containing about 400 acres, having thereon a large two-story store containing a full and well assorted stock of general merchandise, a comfortable and commodious dwelling, warehouse, lobster factory, and a number of smaller buildings. The New Mills Intercolonial Railway Station stands on this lot within 150 yards from the store.

This property also possesses a good deep water harbor, is pleasantly situated on the southern side of the Bay Chaleur and is one of most convenient and desirable stands along the Bay Chaleur, having been one of the principal business stands in Northern New Brunswick during the last fifty years.

For further particulars apply to E. Bertram Windsor, New Mills, N. B., or John McAlister, Barrister, Campbellton, N. B.

DAIRYING ON THE INCREASE IN THE GARDEN OF THE GULF

Halifax, N.S. March 2, 07.

The Dairymen's Association of Prince Edward Island held their annual convention at Charlottetown last week. President Simpson occupied the chair and there was a large attendance of members. The association held three sessions. The address by the secretary, John Anderson, was most encouraging and strongly emphasized the value and importance of this vital industry of the province.

The folowing interesting statement, which he submitted, assists in supporting his contention:

Last year there were manufactured from 22,299,012 lbs. of milk 2,110,456 lbs. cheese; in 1905, 17,035,417 lbs. of milk yielded 1,641,780 lbs. cheese, an increase in milk supply for cheese of 5,263,595 lbs.; an increase of cheese itself of 468,976 lbs.

The gross value of the cheese for 1906 was $257,370,013, and for 1905, $177,291.09; an increase of $80,070.04. The net value to patrons wfas $205,-662.78 in 1906, and $137.396.92 in 1905; an increase of $68.295.85.

In butter the showing was not quite so good.

In 1906, 9,675.718 lbs. milk gave 418,350 lbs. butter; in 1905, 11,116,303 lbs. milk gave 481,609 lbs. butter. The gross value of butter for 1906 was $98,-412.21, and for 1905 $104,633 240, a decrease of $6,621.03. The net value to patrons for 1906 was $73,905.36, and for 1905 was $78,464.87, a decrease of $4,559.01.

Taking butter and cheese together, there has been a net increase in the total milk supply of 3,822,683 lbs.; in the gross value of the output a net increase of $73,458.01; and in the net value to patrons a net increase of $63,-633.62.

Mr. Anderson said that the system of instruction and inspection had been as complete a success as could be expected, considering that the inspection of factories scattered over three counties was in the hands of one man.

Mr. Anderson also referred to the visit last August of Prof. J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner, who reported: "That at present the outlook was not very hopeful of farmers keeping up the winter production of milk." Mr. Ruddick had pronounced the quality of the cheese, from an examination of lots in Charlottetown, as first class, and had advised that every effort be directed towards improving the quality of milk. He had promised assistance to that end. This promise was being fulfilled by the series of meetings now being held.

Forty-seven factories, two skimming stations and one branch cheese factory were in operation the past year, the same as in 1905. Last year five students attended the Dairy School at Sussex, N.B., their travelling fares having been paid to and from the school by Professor Ruddick, who makes the same offer for next year. The school opened this week.

Mr. Anderson said that the difficulties of winter dairying could be overcome were the hand operators to give general satisfaction and the cream gathering plan adopted.

Lack of funds prevented offering prizes for production of milk, but applications were sent out to patrons asking for the number of cows milked, the quantity of milk per acre for the five months of the season. The returns received prove that dairy production can be largely increased from year to year, and that a man may make a fortune in dairying in Prince Edward Island.

President Arthur Simpson in his address said that the tide had been turned, and the prospects were encouraging. "As we have got on the march of improvement," he said, "let us continue to improve. To this end the supply of milk must be kept up throughout the year, and our dairy herds should be improved." He trusted that dairy testing associations would be established next year.

He commended the excellent results of engaging Mr. Morrow as Dairy Inspector. There had been a decided improvement in the quality of cheese as a consequence. Inspection had to be kept up, so that the high quality of cheese might be maintained.

F. T. Morrow, the inspector, reported that the high quality of the cheese shipped to the Old Country, in view of the very hot summer, was due to the extra effort and the great care of the makers. The result showed what could be done under normal conditions. Renewed interest in the industry by the milk producers could be confidently looked for. There was still room for improvement in a number of details, but the burning question was how to produce the greatest quantity of milk at the least possible cost, getting away from the old system of increasing the supply by increasing the number of cows.

During the sessions some splendid addresses were given, notably by Walter Simpson on the "Pressing needs of the Dairying Industry:" by Walter Lea, of Victoria, the Holstein breeder, whose remarks were highly spoken of, and by J. P. Edwards, of North Wiltshire, who told how he had brought up his herd to 17 head, each of which netted him an average yearly profit of $58. The most creditable part of this achievement is that all his cattle were procured on the island. A number of the members of the Legislature were present, and speeches were made by Hon. F. L. Haszard, Hon. Wm. McNutt, and Messrs. Agnew and McInnis.

T. Wilson, formerly with H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, has joined the staff of P. S. Doyle, in Montreal.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN.

Cheese men are now experiencing a quiet period, a period which comes every year, sometimes late, and again, early. During last week there was very little done in cheese circles. Exporters received advices from England and replied to letters, but outside of this there was practically no business done in the way or buying or selling. As stated last week, stocks held are too slight to make a market, and as soon as the small holdings are disposed of interest in cheese will be centred entirely upon the new make.

On some small lots, taken from remaining stocks, 14c. was made. This figure was a long time in coming, but arrived at last. It was excellent stock that sold at this price, and was certainly worth it, when one considers the high buying price and the carrying charges. Houses dealing locally have been doing a nice little trade at very satisfactory prices. There is quite a good demand for cheese, although the article is not in more demand than usual. Sales of small lots have been made at 14½c. and even more than this, while the market is strong and likely to be higher before new cheese is offered. Some shipments have been made to outside points, in different parts of Canada, and good figures were realized upon these lots.

In England last week there was a decline, but latest advices report a fairly firm market. High prices, according to some writers in England, are resulting in a falling off in demand. It is thought, however, that 70s. will be made before the season closes. Stocks held in the Old Country are not heavy and public demand is sure to become strong again, considering the strong part cheese plays in the diet of Old Country people, especially since the canned meat exposure.

Butter is quite interesting, considerably more so than cheese. A strong market rules and prices are climbing day by day. Since last week figures have reached a much higher level than has been witnessed for a long time.

Receipts are by no means large. Really choice creamery is in great demand and all that is held is easily saleable at profitable prices. Few dealers have sufficient to meet all their wants and anybody having anything in this line could make money with the market in its present state. Some firms are receiving a few lots of large rolls, but the majority of houses are not obtaining much in this line. Those who usually have plenty of rolls write that owing to continued strong demand for this variety they are either very short or completely cleaned out. Rolls are firm and higher.

Much interest is displayed in the imported creamery; that is the creamery butter which was early in the season sold to English firms and which is now being returned to Canada for sale. The market in England is in such a state that holders of this creamery are shipping to Canada large quantities. Fresh grass Australian butter obtains the preference over Canadian held stock, and holders of the latter are compelled to do something. Prices here are much better than those ruling in the Old Country, but even at the good figures in Canada, English houses are losing as much as 2c., 3c., and 4c. a pound. However, if they were to keep the goods in England they would lose more than this, and consequently they are foeced to make the best of a bad job. Local dealers to whom the butter is either sold or consigned are making good money on the goods.

PROVISION SITUATION

From the standpoint of the packer the situation is very unsatisfactory, export market lower and price of hogs holding steady. From the standpoint of the farmer things are easy; $6.65 f.o.b., while not as much as he would like, is a good deal more than a handsome profit. This price is the same s last week and the week before, but the packers are bent on getting it down; in fact they assert they must pay less for hogs or go out of business. The trouble is with the Old Country market. It is in bad shape. "Our London agent tells us," said the manager of one of the big factories to The Canadian Grocer, "that if there wasn't a box of Canadian bacon on the market there would be enough Irish and Danish to go round."

"They don't seem to have a consumptive demand over there," continued the manager. "Canadian shipments are small, 10,000 to 20,000 hogs a week, and yet they don't seem to be able to make headway with it."

The average price of Canadian on the English market last week was about 55s., and the cost on the present basis of live hogs was 60s. Danish was selling at less than the cost of Canadian This does not mean that the Danish packers were losing money. The price of hogs in Denmark is lower than in Canada and yet it costs more to feed a hog for market in Denmark than in Canada. The Danish farmer has to import a large part of his feed from America in the shape of corn. Corn alone, or any single grain, will make soft pork, but for mixing with other grains it is a capital food. The Canadian packers assert confidently that at the present prices of grain the farmer is making a good profit on his hogs at 5c. At 6½c. the Ontario farmer who has hogs is simply getting rich.

The packers say the price of hogs must come down and that if it doesn't there isn't any possibility of their continuing in business. As the matter stands now it's just a question with each exporting packer how long he can keep on losing money.

In Chicago the market is speculative, but the New York Journal of Commerce says of last week's movements: "The falling off in receipts has been attributed to a shortage in cars, rather than to a belief that there will be any permanent interruption in the late increased movement, with ordinary transportation facilities, as increased weight of hogs for some time past indicates that they have been held back until matured and are no longer capable of being much improved in weight by further feeding." The scarcity of hogs in the west, and the consequent high prices, has been an argument for keeping up prices here. The increased movement is significant. Prices on the domestic market are unchanged but a pronounced forward movement is anticipated in the near future.

The "Just-As-Good" Habit

The Grócer is compelled to say "it's just as good" if he succeeds in inducing a customer to take other than

Clark's Pork and Beans in Chili Sauce

That phrase "just as good" is a dangerous one for a Grocer to get into the habit of using. To acquire the reputation of being a "just-as-good" Grocer is the best thing in the world—for your competitor.

At the time of last writing eggs were selling at 30c. to 32c., but since then prices have dropped to 27c. and 28c. The reason is the importation of American eggs, which can be brought into Canada, duty, railways charges, etc., considered, and offered at a lower figure than Canadian new laid. Receipts have been large since the American goods have been arriving and still lower prices are anticipated.

EGGS—The market is on the downward trend. Curiously, some may think, Chicago rules this market for the moment. On Tuesday prices in Chicago were quoted at 17½c., which means 23c. laid down here. Commission men here were selling Canadian stock at 26c. to 28c. The Candian eggs are fine stock and worth the difference. Another factor working towards a lower market is that some commission houses are short of stored eggs to fill their contracts with the bakers, and they naturally want to get the price down. As a matter of fact bakers are the principal buyers at present.

PERSONALS

W. C. Latimer, general merchant, Beaverton, was a buyer in Toronto last week.

C. E. Colson, Montreal, has just returned from a business trip to the Northwest.

George Goheen of Peterborough, is taking a forced holiday from business on account of a sprained ankle. Mr. Goheen is progressing rapidly and hopes soon to be about again.

F. H. Coombes has been appointed city traveler for Armour's Ltd., Toronto. Mr. Coombes is a graduate in arts of Trinity and has been for some years engaged with the McDonald Mfg. Co.

Mr. Chamoudon, representing Violet Frere, Thuir, France, who spent eight months in Canada in the interests of his firm, the proprietors of Byrrh Wine, has left for his native land. During his stay in Canada Mr. Chamoudon made his headquarters at the offices of the Canadian agents, Hudon, Hebert & Co.

C. H. Colson, of C. E. Colson & Son, Montreal, is in Toronto looking after Spring orders for Crosse & Blackwell's. Mr. Coulson is on his way east from the Northwest, having visited all the large business centres as far as Edmonton and Calgary. Despite the hard Winter experienced Mr. Colson did not find that it affected his business as orders were plentiful and large, in fact, increasing every way. This western trip is becoming the more satisfactory and larger in volume with every year.

POTATO SITUATION IN NEW BRUNSWICK.

(By The Canadian Grower's special correspondent.)

New Brunswick is rapidly becoming an important factor in the potato trade of Canada. The farmers in "the province by the sea" are awakening to a realization that there is money in this line of work and as a result the output of the tubers is growing larger each year. Large storehouses have been built in various sections of the province, principally in Carleton, York, Westmorland, Victoria and Madawaska counties and thousands of bushels are stored away in the Fall for shipment during the Winter months to Upper Canada and the West Indies.

The trade with the West Indies is comparatively recent and has been promoted largely on account of the dissatisfaction which has been experienced by nearly all the shippers in sending their product to the Canadian West.

Complain of Unfair Treatment.

The New Brunswick shippers complain of the manner of treatment they have been receiving at the hands of the commission merchants in the West, who almost invariably report shortages in the shipments sent them. The shippers contend that while it might be possible for them to make mistakes occasionally they could not do so on every shipment. They state that every barrel of potatoes is weighed before being placed in a car and every team load leaving a potato warehouse is checked when it leaves that place and also on the barrels being placed in the car. They claim therefore that it is almost impossible for them to make mistakes as to the quantity put in a car, yet there is invariably a claim for shortage by the merchant receiving the shipment. The N.B. shippers are therefore inclined to give up trying to promote this trade with the markets of the West until some satisfactory arrangement is made.

Have Their Own Agents.

It is now under advisement by some of the larger shippers to place local men in the West to look after the business and to cut out the present method of consigning the shipments to brokers and commission men on whom they cannot rely for fair play.

It is on this account, no doubt, that the shippers have been looking toward the West Indies for a market and the business in that direction is greatly increasing. The direct fortnightly steamship service furnished by Marsh & Marsh from St. John to the West Indies and the steamers from Halifax, have been taking thousands of bushels each trip. One firm alone, O. M. Melanson & Co., of Shediac, have shipped over 15,000 barrels to the West Indies during the present season. Dr. James White of this firm, visited the West Indies last Fall and made arrangements to place large quantities of potatoes there. R. C. Tait and C. A. Dickie, of Shediac, are also heavy exporters from that section of the province to the West Indies.

Present Situation.

At the present time the quantity of potatoes on hand in New Brunswick is very limited, owing to large shipments to the West Indies and Western Canada, while the very severe winter has destroyed a great many in the cellars and warehouses. All along the line of the I.C.R. from St. John county to Westmorland county the market is bare and stocks in Carleton, Victoria and Madawaska counties have been so depleted that the shippers are asking as high as $1.40 per barrel placed in the car at point of shipment.

As soon as the ice breaks up and trade with Prince Edward Island is resumed it is expected that prices will be easier as large quantities of potatoes are held there and may be expected to be shipped as soon as the transportation facilities will allow.

MONTHLY COMPETITION.

Window dressing, we believe, is one of the most important parts of the grocery business. It needs encouragement in Canada. For that reason The Canadian Grocer is holding a monthly window dressing competition. Three prizes of $5, $3 and $2 will be awarded each month. Those wishing to enter the competition will send photographs of their windows to THE CANADIAN GROCER, 10 Front St. East, Toronto. accompanied by a written description.

This is a chance for the clerk. No department of the grocery trade offers larger opportunities for advancement than window dressing. If you don't know what you can do, try. If you don't surprise yourself the effort will be a great advantage in any case. No grocer is up to his business if he cannot dress a window. Get into the competition.

WESTERN MILLING MERGER

At a meeting held in Winnipeg last week the consolidation into one big company of some 17 different flour mills in the west was practically decided upon. The new company is to be known as the Consolidated Flour Mills Co., and as it will probably include several other mills it will be a very strong concern. Letters patent are being applied or under the laws of Manitoba and the capitalization will be $2,000,000. The capacity of the new company will be about 3,000 barrels per day.

The milling companies affected are:

James Innes Milling Co., Hartney, and Carberry, Man.

Basler & Neelands, Hamiola, Man.

Pocock & Sons, Emerson, Man.

Lamont & McCalum, Melita, Man.

Smith & Hunter, Carnduff, Sask.

Arrow Milling Co., Birtle, Man.

Echo Milling Co., Gladstone, Man.

Schwalm & Fair, Glenboro, Man.

James Saunders, Whitewood, Man.

Manitoba Milling Co., Whitewood, Man.

A. H. Snelgrove, Carman, Man.

W. H. Clendenning, Carman, Man.

McCracken Milling Co., Saltcoats, Sask.

G. M. Brightwell, Griswold, Man.

T. Bullock & Son, Crystal City, Man.

Dauphin Milling Co., Dauphin, Man.

Watson & Co., Arden, Man.

A provincial board of directors was elected as follows: Chairman, Jas. Innes, Hartney; secretary, G. R. Wilson, Arden; directors: V. Schwalm, Glenboro; Peter Broadfoot, Gladstone; S. Code, Dauphin; J. E. Parrot, Saltcoats; J. H. Davidson, Neepawa; T. Bullock, Crystal City, and C. C. Smith, Carnduff.

RHUBARB PRICES TO BE DOUBLED

A meeting of the Toronto branch of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association was held at the Albion Hotel last Saturday, in consequence of which some big rises in prices on garden vegetables may be looked for in the near future.

Rhubarb will be sent up to double its present value, and the thrifty housewife who unsuspectingly proffers the modest dime with the expectation of receiving her usual dozen will receive instead a severe shock and some valuable information on the change in the market. In table carrots, celery and other garden truck, there will probably be some advance very shortly. The reasons given for the raise are scarcity of help advance in the price of labor, and the increased cost of living.

NEW CANNING FACTORY.

The Pelham Fruit & Canning Factory Co. has been organized to erect a $10,000 plant at Ridgeville. The factory, which will be in operation in the summer, will meet a demand often made by fruit and vegetable growers.

GROCERY TRADE NEWS OF NEW BRUNSWICK

St. John, N.B., March 4, 1907.

The only change that has taken place during the past week in the local wholesale markets is in the price of sugar, which has advanced ten cents a hundred all round. Molasses is somewhat easier. Several shipments of West India molasses have arrived during the past two weeks. The importations are nearly all "fancy" quality, very little "choice" being ordered. All kinds of fresh fish are very scarce and high, and finnan haddies are not to be had at any price. Butter and eggs continue firm, with scarcely any change in the quotations.

Potatoes are advancing and stocks are reported very limited all over the province.

George E. Barbour, of the Geo. E. Barbour Co., and W. C. Cross, of Hall and Fairweather, left for Toronto on Friday evening last. They were accompanied by A. H. F. Randolph, of Fredericton, and A. I. Teed, of St. Stephen. All are deligates from the New Brunswick Grocers' Guild to the annual meeting of the Dominion Wholesale Grolers' Guild, at Toronto.

The Provincial Dairy School at Sussex, opened last week. The instructors are Messrs. Mitchell and Doigle. The butter class is not a large one this season. but more pupils are expected later from P. E. Island. Under arrangement with the New Brunswick Government, candidates from P. E. I. are instructed at the Sussex school.

As a result of the meeting held here recently at which Hon. Mr. Emmerson, Minister of Railways, was present, a commission of five citizens has been appointed to confer with Mr. Butler, Deputy Minister of Railways, as to the needs of St. John for future harbor development. The commission is as follows: Hon. William Pugsley, Premier of the province; Alderman J. B. M. Baxter, Theodore H. Estabrooke, W. H. Thorne and John E. Moore. All are very able men and are confidently expected to arrange a satisfactory solution of the present difficulties.

N. R. Burrows, who left the position of manager of the Union Bank of Halifax here to accept the position of assistant manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, at Montreal, was presented with a handsome gold watch and chain by some of his St. John friends and admirers. He left for Montreal on Saturday.

Fred S. Hutchinson, traveling salesman for Ganong Bros., confectioners, of St. Stephen, has purchased the attractive cottage on Prince William St., St. Stephen, which was built last summer by G. W. Daniel, then manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia. Mr. Daniel has had to retire from business on account of his health and has removed to Toronto.

WHOLESALE GROCERS' GUILD.

a good price for their catch though the catch was not so large as in previous years. He was pleased to note that the Western Canadian trade was beginning to realize the value of Atlantic fisheries. He had noticed that package fish put up in Nova Scotia was on sale in every up-to-date grocery and provision store in the West, and a still further interest is bound to develop in the Maritime fish trade on the establishment of the through direct fast freight, cold storage system on the part of the Government. Fresh fish as caught will be the rule then.

A. Miller, of Whitehead & Turner, Quebec, is looking forward to the next meeting of the Guild in the Ancient City in 1908, with pleasurable anticipation. Like all Quebeckers, he thinks that there is only one really interesting city in Canada, one historical showplace. Without disparaging the advantages of Montreal as a seaport, he stoutly avers that Quebec is the one city at the head of navigation—the only city capable of docking the largest ocean going steamers afloat. Modestly enough, he was willing to concede that there would be sufficient business for Montreal and that the latter port would no doubt get its share. Strange oversight on his part.

Mr. Miller, who is one of the best and best known curlers of the Province of Quebec, left his "besom and stanes" behind.

J. F. Smyth, of J. F. Smyth & Co., Windsor, intimated to The Grocer that trade conditions were satisfactory. Business had been good. The tobacco-growers were doing well and although prices had been higher in some previous years, yet a satisfactory figure was being received by the growers.

J. J. Codville, Winnipeg, like all Westerners, though himself a Quebecker, is enthusiastic as to the future of his city. Trade during the past year was very satisfactory. In some sections the severe winter has had a quieting effect on trade, but on the whole the jobbing trade is well content with the situation. When the Guild meets in Winnipeg he promises to show the members a live and bustling town; beg pardon, city.

Between the sessions the delegates adjourned to the Queen's Hotel for a luncheon tendered by the local guild. Forty-five sat down to the repast, with T. Kinnear, president local guild as chairman, with President Hebert, president Dominion Guild, presiding. After the good things had been done justice to, two toasts were honored, "The King" and "Our Guests." Brief replies to the latter were made by Messrs. Hebert, Cross, Wilson, and Miller, the prevailing sentiment in each being loyalty to the guild, pride in their individual cities and provinces and appreciation of the local guild's courtesies and reception. W. C. Cross, of Hall & Fairweather, Ltd., St. John, N.B., is just as strongly convinced that it would be a crime for the Government not to make his city the national port of Canada. Mr. Cross is a good fluent and well-posted speaker and a credit to the grocery interests of the Maritime Provinces. Posted as he is on all matters of public interest, he is a strong advocate of the further development of Canada's great fisheries. He wants every Canadian to eat Canadian caught fish, and as his provinces are large buyers of western products would like to see the balance of trade more evenly adjusted—"'Tis a consummation devoutedly to be wished."

Delegates from eastern and western Canada were brought together at an informal luncheon at the King Edward Hotel on Wednesday. Among those present were President H. C. Beckett, Hamilton; A. C. Pike, Halifax, secretary Nova Scotia Guild; Chas. H. Harvey, Halifax; Arch. Miller, Quebec; J. J. Codville, Winnipeg; D. A. Morrison, Amherst; A. M. Bauld, Halifax; W. H. Seyler, Canadian Grocer; Geo. E. Barbour, St. John; W. C. Cross, St. John.

Quebec for 1908. The city founded by Champlain in 1608 is going to do itself and the country honor in celebrating the tri-centenary of the intrepid French explorer, and no better place could have been selected for the meeting. By all means "En avant Quebec."

J. E. Richards, the hustling merchant of Dundalk, was in Toronto this week. J. E. said to the Grocer business was running along well and no kicks coming against trade.

D. A. Morrison, Amherst, is proud of his town and district. As a manufacturing centre Amherst was noted down by the sea and was doing a work that other maritime cities and towns should emulate. Mr. Morrison says it's the industrial hub of Nova Scotia.

NEW GROCERY FIRM IN PORT ARTHUR.

Geo. F. Fookes, for a long time in the employ of Lucas, Steele and Bristol, is to take over the grocery business of H. Chausse, of Port Arthur, who has built up one of the best trades in the town. With Mr. Fooke will be associated Mr. Colleran, who is well-known in Port Arthur as an excellent business man. The new firm will take possession about April 1st, and a big success is prophesied for them from the start.

PERSONALS.

W. S. Loggie, Chatham, N.B., was in Montreal last week.

L. E. Geoffrion, L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, Montreal, was in Ottawa on a business trip last week.

Charles Chaput, L. Chaput, Fils & Co., Montreal, is visiting Georgia and other districts in the States, accompanied by his wife.

G. A. Small, of the Canada Maple Exchange, Montreal, is in the country at present looking after his spring supply of maple syrup.

J. H. E. Davis, Canadian representative of the Force Food Co., was a visitor to the Montreal trade last week and dropped in to see The Grocer.

Jas. J. Pickup, representing Shaw T. Nishimina, Central Japan Tea Traders' Association, Montreal, was in Toronto last week calling upon the jobbing trade. Mr. Pickup paid the offices of The Grocer a friendly call. Mr. Pickup, whose territory includes part of the state of New York and Western Ontario, reports a good demand for 25c. retail Japan tea, and the trade generally are prepared to place their import orders for the season more readily. Prospects for a good season's business are bright.

Jos. Ethier, manager for Laporte, Martin & Cie, Montreal, is on a trip to Toronto, Chicago, Milwaukee, and Minneapolis. He will visit the houses of different firms represented by Laporte, Martin & Cie, in Montreal, and will as well visit the American wholesale trade with a view to picking up ideas for the new building which is to be erected by his firm for occupancy January, 1908.

Canadian Branch,
25 Front St. E., Toronto

Manager, Mr. H. Gilbert Nobbs

What Are You Thinking About?

We certainly would like to know.

There's a Grocer, not a thousand miles away, who places his orders with a Montreal House, just because his father did so away back in the early eighties.

That Montreal House is as good as gold—their reputation for Quality Goods is as firmly founded and impregnable as our own. But—we are right here in Sherbrooke and carry a full line of Staple and Fancy Groceries, Dried Fruits, Fish, etc., etc., and

Our Prices Are Montreal Prices.

We import direct from the leaders amongst English, European and American makers. We sell at List Prices and pay the freight as far as Sherbrooke.

Now, Mr. Grocer, if you are doing business in the Eastern Townships, we want to know what you are thinking about—if your trial order hasn't arrived?

We deliver the goods subject to approval and save you dollars every time on freight charges.

Can you suggest a fairer way of doing business?

WHOLESALE GUILD AND THE ILLS OF THE RETAILER.

Reply to E. F. Mason, Peterboro.

To the Editor of the Canadian Grocer:

Your special Peterborough correspondent's report of the conditions of trade in Peterborough has a ring about it that is not true. All the ills in the retail grocery business he attributes to the Grocers' Guild. No man with a correct knowledge of the subject would make such a ridiculous statement; he should get properly posted. The Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild has done more to protect the interests, and improve the conditions of the retail grocery trade than the retail trade have ever done for themselves. If the so-called wholesale grocers sell hotels, boarding-houses, etc., and take the trade that legitimately belongs to the retailer, why don't the retailers get together and positively refuse to buy from such firms? They have the matter in their own hands. The views expressed in your correspondent's letter would indicate that the retail merchants of Peterborough are laboring under the delusion that the wholesale grocers are making money. Let no man get away with any such nonsense.

Margin of the Manufacturers.

The wholesalers and retailers are about on a par so far as making a profit is concerned. The trouble seems to be that a few retailers want special favors from manufacturers in the matter of prices which manufacturrs cannot afford to give. The manufacturers prefer to sell goods through the wholesaler because it costs less than employing his own travelers. The margin allowed by manufacturers to wholesalers for the service they render is not sufficient, in many cases, to cover the cost of traveling expenses, let alone salaries.

The wholesalers have frequently protested to manufacturers that should not put an article on the market at $1 per dozen to be sold retail at 10c a package, claiming that the retailer should have at least 30 per cent. margin on proprietory goods. But what is the result? The manufacturers' agent frequently induces the retail merchant to buy goods that, according to the retail prices at which such goods are to be sold, could not show more than a margin of 20 per cent. The sooner the retail trade realize that the wholesaler is ready and willing at all times to fight the battle of the retailer, the sooner will the position of both the wholesale and retail trade be improved.

Get Together.

The proper way would be to meet and discuss in a friendly way the best means of improving trade. No use being guided by a few hotheads who make ignorant and erroneous statements.

The wholesale grocers have been persecuted by the Ontario and Federal Governments pust to satisfy a popular cry against combines. The wholesale grocers never had a combine to restrict trade or advance prices. The Guild, about which so much has been said, and about which such really appalling ignorance exists, is simply an association absolutely necessary to avoid disaster and confusion, and for the proper conduct of any business or line of trade. Railway companies, insurance companies, lawyers, doctors, banking institutions, postal service, telegraph and telephone, and many other businesses and professions are all protected by law. Then why, in the name of common sense, should the merchants and manufacturers of the country tear at each others throats with a view to putting each other out of business.

Education Necessary.

Such things are not necessary. Education is what we all need. A few cranks should not be permitted to destroy the business of others. There is not the honesty in business there should be, and dishonesty is frequently encouraged by retail merchants in accepting bribes and rebates from travelers, to pay which, must be taken from the honest profit of the traveler's employer, or, if he pays same out of his own pocket, the family of the traveler must suffer in consequence.

The insurance commission recommended that agents who rebate insurance premiums should be fined. They regard such practise as dishonest and unrighteous, and recomemnded a heavy penalty. Perhaps if the conditions of trade were as carefully investigated it would appal right thinking people to discover that honest men shun the road as a pitfall for dishonest methods. As a rule a traveler's natural inclination, and a merchant's natural inclination is to be straight and honest, but competition is so keen and our efforts so frustrated by misrepresentation and lack of knowledge of trade conditions that not much has been accomplished. The only cure is to keep at it and gradually become alive to the necessity of co-operation after which the era of prosperity will dawn upon retailer and wholesaler alike.

Yours truly,
H. C. BECKETT.

SOLD ONLY A BRANCH.

In last week's issue of the Grocer it was stated that J. A. McCrea & Son, of Guelph, had sold their stock. This was an error. They sold only the stock of a branch business which they had decided not to continue.

GROCER SANDBAGGED.

Allan G. Duncan, grocer, when on his way home from his store at John and Adelaide Sts., Toronto, early Sund morning, with Saturday's receipts in his pocket, was sandbagged from behind and relieved of his wad, amounting to $435. Mr. Duncan was knocked unconscious but was all right on Monday save for a headache. He has no idea who his assailants were or how many there were of them.

BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

No. 13

W. G. CRAIG, KINGSTON

Alderman W. G. Craig, wholesale grocer, Kingston, began his career in the grocery business at the early age of 15 by pushing a handcart for a retail store. A year later he was office boy in the wholesale grocery office of the late firm of J. Carruthers & Co. In 1873 he was a junior partner in the late firm of A. Gunn & Co., successors to J. Carruthers & Co. In 1893 he succeeded to the business of A. Gunn & Co., as W. G. Craig & Co., which firm still continues. His whole mercantile life has been spent in the present building and premises which are soon to be taken over and absorbed by the Canadian Locomotive Works, of which the Hon. Wm. Harty is president.

W. G. CRAIG.

Mr. Craig has been an enthusiastic Sabbath School supporter during all these busy years as scholar, teacher, and superintendent, and in 1874 was elected to the eldership of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. He became a member of the board of management the same year and has been on the board continuously ever since. He was a member of the choir forty-five years and during four of those years its conductor, in the days before the "gist of whustles" was introduced. He has represented Sydenham Ward in the city council since 1898 and his long business career makes him a valuable member when important questions arise which affect the city's interests.

He is past president of St. Andrew's Society. A Forester, an Elk, and in politics a staunch Liberal.

He is a heavily built man, but when he hears the strains of the bagpipes he can lift his feet and legs with the best of them.

He is one of Kingston's popular men.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Reaction in Wheat Prices—Flour Steady and Good Business Passing — Oat Products Higher for Export but Domestic Prices Firm at Former Quotations — The Time for Confectionery.

Wheat prices have been receding naturally from their somewhat forceful upward tendency. One Northern sold Tuesday 89 to 89½c., delivered all rail anywhere in Ontario. No. 2 white and red were 71-72c. There is little activity. Ontario oats are 39-40c. f.o.b.

Stocks of grain at Fort Wiliam and Port Arthur are increasing but are a million and a half bushels less than year ago. The C.P.R. has at the head of the lakes four million bushels under contract for delivery for export. Consequently though there is some relief in the freight situation only an occasional car is getting through for delivery in Ontario and Quebec.

Flour trade is steady at even prices. The feature of the industry is the enlarged movement of flour to China via Pacific coast ports. This trade has been prophesied by dwellers west of the Rockies for some time. Whether or not this present movement is to develop into a permanent trade remains to be seen.

Confectionery.

Some grocers, a goodly number if they could be counted, have proved the benefits of devoting considerable attention to confectionery. Every grocer sells candies of the common sort, but the profit and reputation is at the other end of the line. High grade confectionery properly displayed in a handsome silent salesman improves the appearance of the finest store, and the grocer has exceptional opportunities for pushing the sale of them. Most purchasers would add the cost of a box of chocolates to their pass book when they wouldn't substract it from their pocketbook. This is a good time of the year, just before the Easter trade, for a grocer to take up confectionery, give it a department, and make it a paying branch of his business.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR — Millers report excellent business for the season. Demand from the country keeps up very well, while city sales are satisfactory. Prices remain on the same footing as they have been for the past month or two, and are not likely to advance from indications presently observed. Since the relief in the car famine wheat has been coming from the west more freely and this has helped the situation considerablf. Export trade is exceedinlgly bad. Large mills are making sales to the Orient, a market which has never meant much to Canada, but which is now looming up prominently as a flour buying section of the world.

DRINKING MORE COCOA.

F. J. Ward of J. P. Mott & Co., Halifax, called at the Toronto office of The Grocer last week on his return from a trip through Western Ontario. Mr. Ward spoke of the continued increase in the sale of chocolate and cocoa in Canada and this in face of the fact that chocolate has advanced from 6 to 8c. per lb. This is due to the very great shortage in the crop of cocoa beans, particularly in the Trinidad cocoa. Mr. Ward left for Montreal last Wednesday.

THE DODGE CAP

A PERFECT CLOSURE.

For many years efforts have been made to invent that most needed article—a perfect closure for glass receptacles. The patent office shows no end of these attempts, but it was reserved for Wm. H. Dodge to actually accomplish the task.

While commercially engaged in fruit preserving Mr. Dodge had to avail himself of the prevailing styles of closures. From practical use, finding them all more or less objectionable, he determined to invent one for himself. Discarding the circle which the other cap inventors used as a starting point, he took the oval, cut out a crescent, swung back the overlapping arm, and — the best cap ever known was the result. As a piece of mechanical simplicity it is remarkable.

One great advantage which appeals particularly to the consumer is its easy detachment without instruments or printed directions.

By simply opening out the lug fold it slides off the receptacle and can be replaced to keep out dust, etc., until contents are used.

Another advantage is its clean, neat and handsome appearance, which always remains. This does away with leaky, dirty, rusty, label smeared, sticky and unsaleable goods so often seen on grocers' shelves.

As this cap comes asembled and ready to place, the time and labor saved to the packer will count, especially in the busy season. As a process cap it is an innovation. This form with lever attachment set at half cock allows air vent while sterilizing and when sealed it stays put. It does not "blow out" in the bath. Air holes, broken or wobbly glass tops, etc., causing after-loss by spoiled goods never happen with the Dodge cap.

For sauces, catsups and beverages in bottles the Dodge process cap is of the greatest importance.

In addition to use described, the Dodge cap is adapted for nearly everything put up in either tin or glass, such as baking powder, paints, tobacco, condensed milk, etc. It is especially adapted for articles in drug and medicine lines.

The new Dodge Capping Machine in mechanical simplicity and labor saving points is a fitting mate to the Dodge cap. A girl operating it can not only seal 1,500 packages hourly, but change to various sizes in less than two minutes.

Samples of this cap will be sent on application to The Dodge Metallic Cap Co., 15 Label street, Montclair, N.J.

The Canadian patent rights are now being negotiated for and the cap will shortly be manufactured in Canada.

STOCKS OF LARD.

According to the bulletin issued by the A. K. Fairbank Co. the stocks of lard held in Europe and afloat on March 1 totalled 154,900 tierces, showing a gain of 17,100 over last month, and a depreciation of 106,000 from the European stock in hand and afloat on March 1 of last year. In March 1905, the stock was 181,000, an increase of 26,600 over 1907.

Tierces held in America are 84,813 of which Chicago claims well over half, Kansas City being the next largest holder with 15,061. The American total this month shows the substantial increase of 18,102 over last month's holdings, and a decrease of 4,977 from the stock on hand March 1, 1906.

Total tierces, European and American, are 239,713. On the first of last month they were 204,511, on March 1 1906, 255,290, on the same date of 1905 332,450, and in 1904, 239,953. Every European city, with the exception of Berlin and the French ports, shows a marked gain over last month, ranging from 500 to 3,000. American centres, with the exception of East St. Louis, New York and Milwaukee, show increases of from 37 to 10,591 over February's holdings.

WALL PAPER.

Last month wall paper manufacturers completed their orders, and are now busy on next year's new set of samples. Warehouses are filled and shipping will be general during the next few months. What will be shown next year is the question holding the attention of the trade. A still further improvement is promised in all lines. In these days of hard competition goods must possess the necessary qualities to sell on their merits; they must possess artistic value and quality to stand against, and compare favorably with, the best. The best goods sell, and the retailer will go far to find the best values. Therefore, it is incumbent upon each manufacturer to produce the best line of samples that he has ever done, for to reduce his range, or to repeat too frequently the stereotyped patterns, would mean ruin. On novelty and freshness of patterns depends the result of the season.

This sampling season will bring out some handsome effects in English designs. This means rich floral pattern of artistic qualities, open and highly colored. Ingrain has to a large extent been displaced by heavy figure and floral effects and also the landscape borders and woodland side-walls. These have taken well with the trade, and some entirely new patterns are being prepared for next season.

"John Smith's grocery carries poor flour, and I'm afraid of it for other lines. A store that carries poor flour is apt to stock poor coffee."

That's the way the ladies argue, Mr. Grocer, and there's just one way to meet the argument—carry good flour. Our brands are made in a modern mill from best Manitoba wheat.

BRANTFORD GROCERS' ASSOCIATION AT THEIR ANNUAL BANQUET

The New American Hotel at Brantford was the scene of a loud and lively gathering on Feb. 22, when the grocers and butchers of that city, together with a representative contingent from the Mountain vilalge, celebrated their sixth annual banquet with all the usual honors and something over. From the tenor of the speeches and the heartiness, if not the tunefulness, of the songs, one gathered that care and worry had been left at home with unanimous consent, although in justice to the excellent dinner provided by mine host, Fraser Scott, it must be added that no one seemed to have forgotten his appetite. May we hope that every digestion was worthy of the confidence reposed in it.

When everyone had surprised themselves by their capacity for internal storage, president James Burns called upon Darwen's orchestra to open the programme. Songs by Sam Stedman and James Whittaker followed in quick succession, and though neither of these gentlemen seem to be oppressed with modesty as a general rule, they were undoubtedly embarrassed by the round of applause their efforts evoked. Bert Harvey proved as popular as ever in his songs and imitations and was encored vigorously.

The International Slaters, who know a good thing when they see it, arrived en masse in time for the speeches, having just concluded a sumptuous banquet at the Belmont.

Billy Dore was the first speaker after the opening address by president Burns. Mr. Dore said he hadn't been asked to speak and didn't want to, but he had a couple of stories and meant to tell them, with or without the acquiscence of the audience. He was let go on suspended sentence. Mr. Syme is president of the Hamilton grocers and butchers, and always says the right thing. In a neatly-worded speech he thanked the chairman for the cordial invitation extended to his fellow-citizens and himself and expressed the hope that he would some day have the honor of reciprocating their hospitality.

The rhetorical piece de resistance, however, was undoubtedly the forensic effort of secretary B. Hill, who, with a brilliancy that staggered even his most intimate enemies, drove home point after point at the end of some pungent local allusion that never failed to provoke a frenzy of appreciation. His thorough mastery of a comprehensive and expressive vocabularly, his unique powers of sarcastic invective, and the apparent ease with which he continually referred to "culinary degenerates" filled the minds of his audience with a mixture of pride and envy, while the flowery heights of rhetoric to which he soared in his peroration baffles an untrained imagination, and left his less gifted fellows on the verge of hysterical tears.

When alderman Luddaby rose everyone was ready to laugh at anything, a state of things for which the previous speaker must be held responsible. In consequence of this his remarks on the "bond of friendship" and his regret at the absence of the ladies, were looked upon as a joke, and hilariously applauded as such. He sat down feeling misunderstood. Mr. Peebles, of Hamilton, replied briefly albeit in a somewhat mournful tone of voice, and James Whittaker responded appropriately with "The Death of Nelson," which had the effect of sobering his listeners from untamed mirth to an occasional furtive chuckle. Ald. Wood, in his reply, said that one of two things were expected of an after-dinner speaker. To say something remarkable or to be brief. To say that he did not excel in either would be unkind as well as untrue. He described a somewhat lengthy feud with his local butcher, in which the latter was eventually worsted and concluded by paying a tribute to the Grocers' and Butchers' Association. His speech was one of the longest of the evening, but none the less worth listening to on that account. This was evidenced by the hearty applause he received on resuming his seat.

It fell to the lot of Tom McPhail to furnish the last speech of the evening, and he acquitted himself wittily and well. His local puns were vociferously received, and his whole speech a happy combination of humour and good sense.

We understand that just before the singing of 'God Save the King" Mr. McEvoy undertook to render a Scotch solo in the vernacular, on the condition that the other fellows would help him out. They did so, but we are glad to be able to report that Mr. McEvoy is now convalescent, and hopes soon to be about again.

TRADE NOTES.

James Rowe, general merchant, Avon, has sold out.

The assets of A. Robert & Co., St. Jerome, have been sold.

H. Jones, grocer, Swift Current, has sold out to H. Gregory.

Vincent E. Muloin, groceries and liquors, Joliette, are succeeded by C. Lajarde.

Chas. Gauthier, general merchant, Montcerf, has been succeeded by Martineau E. Poirier.

Choice skinless dressed cod in 100 lb. cases and their regular brands of boneless and prepared codfish are selling freely, say Leonard Bros.

Red Feather extracts and spices have secured a good hold with our trade, report Steele & Bristol, Hamilton. Quality of goods and style of package are winners.

Leonard Bros. report receipt of a shipment of choice Labrador sea herrings in barrels and half barrels, the quality of which are first-class, the fish being large and bright. They are offering a supply of green cod and salt haddock in barrels at low prices.

At the Buffalo Convention

The Dodge One-Piece Metallic Cap for the Hermetic Sealing of glass packages

WON IT'S GREATEST VICTORY

It received the enthusiastic endorsement of every packer present. Those who had used it were outspoken in it's praise. All who saw it's practical demonstration on the Dodge new Self-Adjusting Capping Machine were surprised at it's perfect seal and adaptability in meeting the requirements of the Pure Food Law.

As a closure to be used in processing it has no competitor. Its mechanical simplicity and being assembled and ready to place give it extraordinary economical advantages in both time and money to the packer.

Its handy and easy detachment without instruments or printed directions forces the public to prefer the package sealed by it, as damaged forks, twisted knife blades, broken glass, hard struggles and torn or cut fingers are entirely obviated by its use.

Its clean, neat and handsome appearance always remain, making dirty, rusty, sticky, leaky and consequently unsalable goods on grocers' shelves a thing of the past.

Besides the regular Dodge closure used extensively by the pickling and jam trade, other forms of value to the packer are, namely:

The Dodge Cork-lined Ketchup and Bottle Cap for crown finish bottles; will not blow off before, during or after the processing.

The Dodge Jelly Tumbler Cap with narrow rim, sealing neatly on a rounded rim of a tumbler.

The Dodge Replacable Mustard Cap with spoon accommodation.

The Dodge Process Cap for light syrup, fruits, requiring the bath; allows of venting the package while processing. A replacable seal on the lever principle that can be used over and over again.

The Dodge principle of closing receptacles of all kinds is undoubtedly the most perfect system ever invented, and of immense value to the Canning and Preserving industry.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Car Shortage Continues in California—Markets Quiet—Fish Getting Scarcer, But Demand Unchecked—Orange Market Improving.

The fruit market is quiet on the whole, though some interesting developments may be looked for with the advent of more favorable conditions in the weather. The orange market is worth watching, as there is certain to be a great improvement before long. Just now prices are 15c. lower than they were last year. There was a rumor that Spain could not deliver the supply which had been anticipated, but later advices have dispelled this, and there now seems no doubt that the stock shipped will be up to the average, both in quantity and quality. The car shortage in California remains unremedied, and the situation is rapidly assuming a very serious tone. The reduction of the fruit rate in southern California will probably affect western cities. New pulp boxes wrapped with iron are being introduced among California and Mexican shippers.

There is little news in the vegetable market, the few changes which have occurred being insignificant. $1 is being asked for potatoes in New Brunswick, and this is expected to send prices up to some extent in Toronto and Montreal. Shippers in New Brunswick prefer Montreal as an objective point rather than Toronto, but the advent of warmer weather will have the effect of loosening things up all round.

The extraordinary demand for fish continues unabated, and will probably not let up till the end of Lent. Finnan haddie are scarcer than ever, and one or two other lines are beginnig to show signs of exhaustion. The selling capacity of fish fluctuate considerably with the weather, and the cold spell experienced lately has sent the demand up with a bang.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Few price changes are noticeable, the amount of business being transacted not being sufficient to make an active market. Bananas are reported in good demand at present quotations. Supplies coming into New York are not large, and prices have been advanced. There is a probability of higher prices being asked in Montreal in the near future for this reason.

VEGETABLES — Continued cold weather has had the effect of keeping prices up pretty well, but should the mild spell now being experienced continue it is likely that figures asked for many lines will be lower. Potatoes are still stiff at figures quoted. Some demand is reported for cabbage, while tomatoes are selling freely enough.

FISH—With Lent well under way fish are selling in great quantities and supplies are running short. This week several lines quoted up to this time are noticeable as being missing. Fresh express haddock, codfish and boiled lobsters might be mentioned in this respect. In some instances prices are slightly lower, tomcods being $1.90 against $2 a week ago, but the general trend is upward, and before the Lenten season comes to a close fish will be selling at better prices than now rule.

FISH — The unprecedented demand still contines. Finnan haddie are away up, and scarcely to be procured at any price, principally on account of the bad weather preventing any green stock from being obtained. Some firms are offering mild cured bloaters in their place, reporting a ready sale at $1.25 per box. Halibut is 8c. lower than last week, with a fair demand. Small pails of oysters are at $4.20.

POTATO SITUATION IN THE PACIFIC PROVINCE.

(By The Canadian Grocer's Special Correspondent.)

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 21, 1907.

Because of the comparative severity of the winter during the first three weeks of this year, much damage was done to the stock of potatoes in store and in farmers' hands. Unused to zero weather most warehousemen have no warm buildings, and many of the places in which potato stocks were stored admitted the frost. Of course many of the warehouses have their stocks of potatoes in cellar or basement storage. These were all right, but many were not so fortunate. So, too, with the farmers. None but the veritable old-timers had seen such cold weather and continued frost on the coast. The necessity of pits or cellars to protect the potatoes from even the three below zero which was the coldest recorded, had never arisen. The consequence was that many who had held their potatoes now have none or few to sell.

Shipments to Australia.

The early shipments of potatoes last fall to Australia had some effect upon the total stock, but so plentiful was the crop last year that no one anticipated a shortage. However, that is apparently the situation of the coast at the present moment. Prices have gone up fully fifty per cent. in the past week or ten days. It is stated that a dealer was out over a month ago offering the farmers and ranchers of the lower Fraser valley, $20 a ton "on the bank," that is, delivered at the river where they could be loaded on freighting steamers. The dry season in 1906 gave a much mealier and better keeping potato on the delta lands, than is usually the case, but the frost has, by reducing the quantity, done even more than the past dry season to enhance the price of the crop. It is now difficult to get lower mainland potatoes at any price less than $24, while Ashcrofts are very scarce and command from $30 per ton up. The supply is all in the hands of dealers, so that there is no question of the amount of the Ashcroft potatoes to be secured.

In the Okanagan there is a fair stock yet in farmers' hands, but the continued snow and winter weather has delayed them in opening their pits. It will be another fortnight before this can be done with safety. The snow is fast leaving the valley now, but there was such a heavy fall that it will take some time for it all to go. Down the lake ports the thaw has advanced further than along the line of the railway at Vernon, Armstrong and Enderby, and it is at these latter points where the chief stocks of potatoes are held.

On the Island.

On Vancouver Island the stock of potatoes is also yet in the producers' hands to a certain extent. The entire visible supply, however, is not very much over local requirements of Victoria, Nanaimo and other comsuming centres. The logging camps everywhere on the coast and in the interior, depend upon the coast for their supplies of potatoes and the mining camps in the interior, saw mills camps and similar communities are also heavy consumers. Added to these factors, the Yukon district gets its entire supply, practically, from British Columbia, and the disposition of even a heavy potato crop is accounted for. The chances at any time for a large surplus for export, are not bright, while this year there is indication of shortage, much as there was last spring. Nevertheless, potato-growing is attracting much attention in the province. A sure crop, easily raised, comparatively free from pests, it is becoming a staple industry.

WASTE 6,000,000 BARRELS OF APPLES.

Alexander McNeil, chief of the fruit division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, speaking at Ottawa before the Agriculture and Colonization Committee of Parliament on Feb. 27, said that Canadian growers were apt to govern their shipments too largely by the fruit crop reports from the other side of the Atlantic in consequence of which there had been considerable falling off in 1906 of he amounts of early apples sold to Britain by Canadians. He de- in 1906 of the amount of early apples unfit for shipment, six million barrels being thrown away annually, which would have brought large returns in the form of cider, evaporated fruit, jams or jellies. He emphasized the value of co-operation as applied to fruit-selling, and said that there were thirty-five associations in Canada now operating sucessfully on this plan.

TAKING CHANCES

There are still a few grocers in Canada who stock cigars in a haphazard fashion. Cigar-quality they do not consider, because they do not appear to realize the immense power for good or ill cigars are in the grocery business. The almost unanimous decision of the grocers in the Dominion is that cigars make or mar a business. I know this positively because most grocers feature my

PHARAOH and PEBBLE

Cigars—cigars admitted to be quite superior to many sold at double the price. The reason for this marked superiority lies in the fact that I personally select and supervise the maturing of every leaf of tobacco used in my factory.

PHARAOH is mighty near my ideal cigar. It retails for ten cents, although most are convinced that it's easily worth fifteen.

PEBBLE is still far superior to the next best five-cent cigar.

N.B.—The Payne Plan of doing business says more for the sterling quality of my Cigars than all the words we could print. Do you know that plan?

TRANSPORTATION IN THE WEST: NEED FOR RECIPROCAL DEMURRAGE

The Winnipeg Jobbers and Shippers Association which has recently been organized under the presidency of Mayor J. H. Ashdown, is actively interesting itself in the transportation requirements of the west. G. E. Carpenter, the manager of tht freight department of the association, writes this paper as follows :

Much is being said regarding the severe conditions under which the railway companies are laboring in their endeavors to meet the transportation requirement of the public, and justly too, because one and all agree that the weather conditions west of the Great Lakes have been the worst in years. At the same time the present situation would have been much better if the railway companies had had a clean sheet to work on when the Winter commenced. On the contrary they were very far behind.

Therefore the present congested condition is due to more than the exceptional weather conditions.

If a law had been in effect last Summer providing for reciprocal demurrage it is safe to say that the railway companies would have kept abreast of the requirements of the times by obtaining the necessary locomotives and cars to move freight promptly. Then we would have had no such accumulation when Winter broke upon us.

In several of the States to the south of us reciprocal demurrage is in effect. In the State of Virginia a very fair law is in force, which, if applied here, would do much to overcome the serious delay of freight, and present car shortage.

Under the ruling of the Corporation Commission of the Virginian State Legislature, when a shipper makes verbal or written application to a railroad company for car or cars to be loaded with any kind of freight embraced in the tariff of said company, stating in said application the character of the freight, and its final destination, the railroad company shall furnish same within four days of seven o'clock a.m. the day following such application.

Or, when shipper making such application specifies a future day on which he wishes to make a shipment, giving not less than four days notice thereof, computing from seven o'clock a.m. the day following such application, the company shall furnish such car or cars on the day specified in the application.

For failure to comply with this rule, the company so offending shall forfeit and pay to the shipper applying the sum of $1 per car per day, or fraction of a day's delay after expiration of free time, upon demand in writing, made within thirty days thereafter by the shipper.

When freight in carloads or less is tendered to a railroad company, and correct shipping instructions given, the railroad agent must immediately receive the same for shipment, and issue bills of lading therefor, and whenever such shipments have been so received by any railroad company, they must be carried forward at the rate of not less than fifty miles per day of twenty-four hours, computing from seven o'clock a.m. the day following receipt of shipment, and for failure to receive and transport such shipments within the time prescribed, the railroad company so offending shall forfeit and pay to the shipper the sum of $1 per car per day, or fraction thereof, on all carload freight, and one cent per hundred pounds per day on freight in less than carloads, with minimum charge of five cents for any one package, upon demand in writing by the shipper, or other party whose interest is affected by such delay ; provided that in computing the time of freight in transit, there shall be allowed twenty-four hours at each point where transferring from one railroad to another, or rehandling of freight is involved.

The period during which the movement of freight is suspended on account of accident, or any cause not within the power of the railroad company to prevent, shall be added to the free time allowed in this rule, and counted as additional free time.

RULE III.

Railroad companies shall within twenty-four hours after arrival of shipments, give notice, by mail or otherwise, to consignee of the arrival of shipments, together with weight and amount of freight charges thereon, and where goods or freight in carload quantities arrive, such notice shall contain also identifying numbers, letters and initials of the car or cars, and if transferred in transit, the number and initials of the car in which originally shipped. Any railroad company failing to give such notice shall forfeit and pay to the shipper or other party whose interest is affected, the sum of $1 per car per day, or fraction of a day's delay, on all carload shipments, and one cent per hundred pounds per day or fraction thereof, on freight in less than car loads, with minimum charge of five cents for any one package, after the expiration of the said twenty-four hours;

COULD WHOLESALERS' HELP RETAILERS TO ORGANIZE?

A Suggestion.

To the Editor of The Canadian Grocer :

As some slight agitation has been put in motion in regard to organizing the retail grocers of the province, and so far so little seems to have been accomplished, it has occurred to me that the wholesalers, with their splendid organization and equipment, might take this matter up and lend the retail men a helping hand, that is, assuming, as I believe it will, that it will accrue very largely to the benefit of the wholesalers themselves. I think if they were to put the matter squarely before their customers, stating the objects aimed at, membership fees, etc., that the response would be almost unanimous for union. The retail men would require their assistance in framing up and making suggestions to the importers and manufacturers in any event, and if the action herein suggested were taken it would certainly bring them more in unison and would no doubt bring earlier and better results. I notice in the reports published in The Grocer, of the various meetings of the state and national associations in the United States, that the wholesalers and retailers are very much in touch, and that suggestions from either party are accepted in good grace. In comparison with things here, it looks a great deal more like business. How would it do, for the retailers, who are now organized in all the principal cities and towns, to each send say two delegates to some central point like Hamilton or Toronto to meet the executive of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild. where a line of action could be discussed and arranged. As your paper no doubt reaches all the members of the Wholesale Guild, would it be asking too much to have you draw their attention to this article and ask them for an opinion on the question ? Time was when a wealthy body like the Canadian Wholesale Grocers were a power with either local or Dominion Governments, but times are changed. The political parties are looking more after the aggregate number of votes that they see behind a movement, more than they ever did before, and that is a paramont reason why the united action of both wholesalers and retailers is needed to prevent legislation pernicious to the interests of either.

BELIEVER IN ORGANIZATION.

WEST INDIES CROPS SHORT.

Advices received from Trinidad would indicate a short crop of sugar this season. At the time of writing, Feb. 20, no work toward cutting the cane had commenced, although this time was three weeks later than the usual date for starting the harvesting of the crop. The cocoa crop is also likely to be small according to the same writer. There is no probability of a June crop. Owing to blight cocoa pods dried up on the trees. News from the Barbadoes is to the effect that molasses is sure to be high in price since a short crop of sugar is almost sure to be harvested.

FORMER GROCER DIES SUDDENLY

Wm. Adamson, who 25 years ago conducted a large grocery on Yonge St., Toronto, died on the street of heart disease on Monday of last week. He was city agent for the British American Assurance Co., and was widely known and highly respected. He was one of the oldest members of the Caledonian Society, prominent in St. Andrews, an active Presbyterian and a life-long Liberal. In apparently his usual robust health, he was taken ill on a street car, fell in attempting to get off and didn't recover consciousness, dying in a minutes.

J. W. Windsor, whose advertisement appears in this issue, has secured the services of one of the best marmalade men in Great Britain and is now offering to the trade marmalades of rare quality.

A fire of unknown origin occurred in the bonded warehouse of the Horrocks cigar factory, Toronto, on Monday night. The fire was controlled by a liberal use of water and while little was burned the damage to the stock of raw leaf was serious.

It Is Rather Encouraging

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

& SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

always to be quite sure that the package you pass over the counter will please your customer. But that is the way you feel when you pass out RISING SUN Stove Polish in cakes, and SUN PASTE Stove Polish in tins. They are just right every time you sell them. Isn't that satisfaction well worth while, to say nothing of the good margin of profit these goods afford you? On every count, it pays to push them.

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

Of course, "the rose by any other name would smell as sweet."

A Coffee by another name might smell as sweet as

but they would not unless perfected like them.

Richest aroma means unchallenged superiority, and both are found in "WOOD'S."

Absolute Cleanliness

characterizes the different departments in all the C and B factories and the processes by which our goods are made. The greatest care is taken to ensure that all utensils are sterlized before using and there is practically no possibility of dirty utensils or packing jars, bottles, or tins being used, so thorough is the supervision exercised. This cleanliness in manufacture is largely responsible for the high-class keeping qualities of our goods whilst it is everthing in securing the best results obtainable from each process. Let your customers know that C and B goods are made under the most sanitary conditions—in factories that are admitted to be the most up-to-date in the world—and that they can absolutely rely upon the purity of anything which bears our name. You will find the benefit of handling only reliable goods in the increased trade the C and B lines will bring you.

California Asparagus

With the present scarcity of Canadian canned Asparagus and the present active demand, our quotations on

CRYSTAL LAKE ASPARAGUS

2½ tall tins are especially attractive.

"ZEST" IS BEST The Wheat Food

A well-known brand of Breakfast Food. We can offer on a limited quantity, an extra inducement in price. Cases, 36 packages—$2.52 case. Sells at 10c.

Showing you a profit of 43 per cent. on your investment.

PAPER

A special price inducement on Brown Wrapping Paper, in Rolls —15, 18, 20, 24 and 30-in. Our quotations are below to-day's market cost.

Fish Specials

While our stock lasts we can offer special quotations on Gennine Fall Caught Trout. f.o.b. Midland.

We have some very choice

WHOLE SKINLESS CODFISH

Our prices will bring your orders Cases— 50 and 100 lbs.

Four Reasons why INVICTUS FIBRE is the BEST FIBRE PAPER on the Market

1. Invictus Fibre is made from personally selected pulp wood cut on our own limits.
2. This special pulp wood is again rigidly culled on arrival at our mills
3. The pulp from which Invictus Fibre is made is manufactured inlour own pulp mill and transferred at once to the paper mill, avoiding all drawbacks of transportation.
4. Invictus Fibre will increase in strength and not grow hard and brittle as does fibre made from sulphite pulp. This is a quality of the peculiar and selected pulp from which Invictus Fibre is made.

A trial order will convince you that we are correct. See that each package bears the words "Invictus Fibre." Every ream contains 480 sheets

MONTREAL

We reported to the readers of "The Grocer" last week, that for the first nine weeks this year our increase amounted to 31 per cent. over the corresponding nine weeks of last year.

One record that we are sure will prove of interest to all dealing in tea is the fact that we actually sold 110,347 lbs. of "SALADA" in the six days, ending Feb. 23rd. This is equal to one pound of tea out of every four pounds consumed in the Dominion during six days. We have told you that our increase alone last year was 33,000 lbs. more than the total amount of tea we sold in our first five years of business. Surely you must admit that

"Mr. Grocer,—Do you know that SAVOY BRAND is the only high-grade Baked Bean packed in Canada?"

"Do you realize how important it is in these days of Pure Food agitation that you should offer your customers only the best?"

Savoy Brand Pork and Beans

are prepared according to the original Boston recipe—of carefully selected, hand picked, Canadian Beans and tender Canadian pork. They are as different from other beans as day is from night.

HERE'S WHERE YOU COME IN

We ask you to stock Savoy Pork and Beans for two reasons—

First. The excellence of this product will strengthen your reputation for handling the "highest quality" food products.

Second. YOU CAN MAKE MORE MONEY ON THEM THAN ON ANY OTHER BRAND. There is strong conviction in this argument. Think it over.

TWO DOZEN TINS FREE

EXTRA PROFIT IN ADVANCE

We will give you one case of 2 dozen No. 2 tins of Savoy Pork and Beans free with every five cases of No. 1, No. 2, or No. 3 purchased. This offer also applies to assorted orders for five case lots of these sizes.

Savoy Beans are packed in four sizes, No. ½, No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3, both plain and in Tomato Sauce.

Send your order to your jobber or direct to us. In the latter case, don't fail to mention the wholesaler through whom you prefer the goods to be shipped.

Send in a trial order for five cases. The Beans sell themselves.

"ESSEX"
PORK AND BEANS

The growing demand for properly prepared Pork and Beans has encouraged The Essex Canning & Preserving Company to add this product to their already large variety of fruits and vegetables. The Essex factory, being located in the most favored agricultural section of Ontario and being new, is equipped with every modern facility for doing things right.

The "Essex" Pork and Beans are prepared by a special process that entirely eliminates that strong taste found in other brands. Every bean used is hand-picked from selected stock and is thoroughly washed and cleansed before being cooked.

On opening a can of Essex brand of Pork and Beans (the very perfection of the Essex process is shown in this) it will be found that every bean is entirely whole, thoroughly cooked, mellow, amber-colored and porous, pleasing to the eye and appetising, a distinct advance over anything attempted in Canada heretofore.

Moreover, when we added to the Pork and Beans our Special Brand of Tomato Sauce, made from fresh ripe tomatoes and purest of spices under a special process, we are confident that when you have once tried them you will, like Oliver Twist, "still ask for more."

Put up in neat packages with attractive labels, 1½s, 2s and 3s.

"THE FAIRBANK PLAN"

LOOK INTO IT

and see just what "The Fairbank Plan" is. While we spend hundreds of thousands of dollars every year advertising the six great Fairbank specialties:

Gold Dust Washing Powder
Fairy Soap, Copco Soap
Fairbank's Glycerine-Tar Soap
Fairbank's Scouring Soap
Fairbank's Sanitary Soap

and educating the public regarding them; and while we intend to continue doing this, we realize fully that advertising alone has not accomplished the splendid results we have enjoyed in the sale of these goods, but that "the man behind the counter" has been an important factor in extending and increasing our trade. It was the realization of this fact that gave birth to "The Fairbank Plan," as a method of rewarding the retail clerks for their earnest co-operation in selling these goods and, consequently, a portion of our immense advertising appropriation is now set aside for the recognition of the dealer and his clerks.

"The Fairbank Plan" is an absolutely fair method of rewarding the clerk in direct proportion to the interest displayed in pushing the six specialties, as each package of these goods is couponed in such a manner that the coupon can be easily removed before the goods pass into the hands of the consumer. For these coupons we offer many valuable articles.

If you will send for an illustrated premium list of "The Fairbank Plan" it will convince you that this is no cheap trading-stamp scheme.

GUILD PRESIDENT URGES RETAIL ORGANIZATION

H. C. Beckett Approves Suggestion by "Believer in Organization" — For the Improvement of the Trade, Retailer and Wholesaler Must Co-operate.

To the Editor of the Canadian Grocer:

In your issue of March 8th, a "Believer in Organization" makes a suggestion that should favorably appeal to every wholesale and retail grocer in the Dominion. Only those engaged in this generally unprofitable business can appreciate the great difficulties with which the grocery trade have to contend.

There are reasons for the present evils that exist, and there are remedies that can be applied if all could be persuaded to give a little of their time and money for the benefit of the trade with which they are identified. The united forces of the wholesale and retail trade would receive prompt recognition from the press and political parties. The press, by reason of the fact that their advertising patronage is largely from the merchants, and parliament by reason of the fact that politicians usually consider votes of prime importance.

The evils that exist in trade to-day, and there are many, can only be remedied by education up to a true knowledge of trade conditions. Laws that recognize and protect honest principles in business; that recognize time honored customs and usages, are more necessary than much of the legislation taking months of debate to enact. We will not get such laws until such time as those in power realize and understand the necessities of trade.

The objects and principles of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild are not selfish, as many imagine; they are for the general uplifting and improvement of the grocery trade, both wholesale and retail.

The Guild believes that trade should be conducted on sound, honest principles—that the laborer is worthy of his hire, and that it is wrong to encourage dishonest methods.

The Guild believes that the cleavages in trade should be recognized; that a wholesaler should not sell direct to a consumer; that the trade of the consumer belongs entirely to the retailer.

The Guild has passed resolutions condemning the practice of manufacturers putting proprietory goods upon the market to be sold retail at a price that will not cover the retailers' cost of distribution, and has set its face against manufacturers subsidizing salesmen in the employ of wholesalers, believing the practice to be bad for the retailer and degrading to the traveler.

The Guild believes that it is unfair for a manufacturer to sell five per cent. of the retail trade at wholesalers' cost and expect the other 95 per cent. to pay five per cent., or ten per cent., advance by buying through the wholesaler.

The Guild says to the manufacturer: "If you sell five per cent of the retail trade at wholesalers' cost, sell the other 95 per cent. on the same basis." It is unfair to put a few retailers in a position to undersell their competitors. Such a condition is frequently the cause of financial failure.

Then again, the manufacturer will put a proprietary article on the market with so little margin for both wholesaler and retailer that it is not sufficient to pay the cost of distribution. The manufacturer sometimes relies on advertising to create the demand. I have seen letters from advertising agencies suggesting to manufacturers that they need not concern themselves about the profit of the wholesaler or retailer —they say: "Advertise and the trade will be compelled to handle the line whether it pays or not."

On the other hand, a manufacturer may pursue a different course, and arrange his prices to the consumer on a basis that will justify the wholesale and retail trade pushing the line. In the course of time a retailer, who has, perhaps, bought at wholesale prices, cuts the selling price to the consumer, and, according to a recent judgment, the manufacturer has no right to prevent that; he must helplessly see the trade in that line sacrificed.

At the last two annual meetings of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, the Guild has invited representatives of the retail trade, and have heard masterly addresses from these gentlemen that were entirely in accord with the views of the wholesaler. The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada has in the secretary, E. M. Trowern, a gentleman with a thorough knowledge of the conditions of trade, and a worker to be proud of. With the support and encouragement his ability justifies, great results would attain to the trade. The Guild has passed resolutions and endorsed the views of the retailers as represented by Mr. Trowern, Mr. Moyer, and others, and has empowered the appointment of a committee tomee t a committee of retailers at any time with a view to benefitting the trade with intelligent organization and co-operation. The wholesalers are anxious to meet in a friendly way the representatives of the retail trade, and it is hoped the time is close at hand when benefits will be derived from such meetings. Through your widely circulated journal it is to be hoped that this expression as to the position of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild will be the means of opening the way to relations that, while friendly in the past, have not, by reason of ignorant misrepresentations, been as cordial as circumstances would warrant.

H. C. BECKETT,
President Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild.

Hamilton, March 11th, 1907.

WHOLESALE GROCERS AS INSURANCE AGENTS.

That the interests of the retail and wholesale branches of the grocery trade are mutual is to-day a recognized fact. Little surprise therefore is expressed at an innovation recently adopted by many of the most progressive jobbers, which a few years ago would have been considered startling but is now welcomed all over the Dominion as a modern convenience.

There are many petty but vexatious losses made daily in a retail grocery store, which although small in themselves, are difficult to keep track of and in the aggregate burn up more of the proprietor's profits than he has any idea of. Take for instance eggs, one of the most difficult and delicate things in the store to handle and yet one of the most essential, losses through breakage often far exceed the profits and in the past the grocer has been unable to avert such losses. A simple invention has however created a revolution in the egg business and to-day by paying a small premium, one-third of one cent per dozen, the grocer can be insured absolutely against any breakage in handling eggs. He pays the premium to the wholesale grocer, who will supply him with a dozen or more of Starr Egg Carriers and Trays the use of which device not only makes breakage an impossibility, but saves money in time and labor alone than the insurance costs on several dozens of eggs.

Correspondents from almost every section of the country report that the Star Egg Carrier is now in general use in all the more modern stores and the wholesale trade are therefore to be congratulated upon their enterprise in introducing it.

Retail grocers who have not had the principles of eggs insurance explained to them are strongly advised to write to their jobber asking for information, and in the event of not being able to get it apply to the general agents in Canada for the Star Egg Carrier and Tray Manufacturing Co., the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Cof, Toronto, who will furnish full particulars, price lists, etc. Every egg broken is money simply thrown away, when "egg insurance" is knocking at the door.

SPELLED THE NAME WRONG.

We wish to draw attention to an error in our last issue. Geo. F. Foote, until now of the selling staff of Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton, who has bought out H. Chausse, of Port Arthur, was referred to as Mr. Fookes. We apologize to Mr. Foote, and assure him that our congratulations which accompanied the mistake, still stands.

E. Leseur has joined the travelling staff of Leon Fontanel, Montreal, and will cover the Province of Quebec.

FROM GROCER CORRESPONDENTS

KINGSTON.

A hot discussion occurred on the Market Square among the grocers. Jim said the country trade was practically lost to the merchants. A few years ago farmers' rigs went home heaped up with goods, now the country merchant gets their produce and trade.

Then a tax is imposed on farmers selling on our market.

A by-law of ancient type exists, which prevents merchants buying and farmers selling before ten o'clock, and farmers are simply disgusted with it, especially those coming a long distance with large loads, and the very ones who would make large purchases of dry goods, hardware and groceries if they could sell early and get around.

"And now the last straw on the camel's back," said Jim, "is the fact of the banks having branches in all the little villages around the city." Another hindrance to trade, surely.

"Boys,' said Jim, "we must look to our guns. We must kill that alderman who favors the market tolls and the ten o'clock by-law. We must cut out so much careless credit. Why not phone each other and find out about these pirates who rob us of our living? Look at that stylish woman with the Eat-on coat—not paid for—buying expensive flowers from the gardener, and on tick. She's a beat. When she was a little girl her mother called her a peach; now she is a plum and full of sharp tricks."

The Senator made his usual call and sold a lot of biscuits around the city. He recommended his biscuits highly. Only "rich traveler." He couldn't understand where they got that name, as there was no such thing as a rich traveler.

T. Wilson was on the square and looking around to locate Jim, and he did at last and with well directed aim threw a lead package of tea across the market and hit Jim square on the head. Jim nearly tipped with the blow, but recovered, and quietly picked up the package and put it in his pocket. Jim has been threatened several times but was never openly assaulted before.

Jim Stewart, our new postmaster, is now safely in position, and a more popular man the country doesn't possess. He is the right stamp for such a position, and we hope he will stick to it for many years to come.

Mr. Fish, Lumsden's traveler, made his usual call, and he is a live fish out of water. He thinks his lines of brooms and Old Church canned goods ahead of all others, and this is where retailers are puzzled, for all travelers have the same story about their goods being better than the best.

Wholesalers selling directly and indirectly to consumers is a great injustice to retailers, and I am surprised at some travelers who sell to hotels, boarding houses, butchers and bakers, some of whom supply their friends at wholesale rates—and that is where the harm comes in. I enclose you a list, if you like to publish it, just to show you the results of selling to one little bake shop. I tell you it would pay responsible wholesalers to act as wholesalers and support the retail trade, and retail-you can put a stop to it with your pen. Stab them through the press.

[There isn't room this week for our correspondent's little list. It includes the names of 28 wholesalers, creditors of a Kingston baker and confectioner, who failed with liabilities of $710, and paid the unprotected creditors 6½ cents on the dollar, just $46.15.—Editor.]

MONTREAL.

C. E. Box has one of the most neatly arranged stores in Montreal. It might be larger because the business is growing, and if the pace keeps up more room will certainly be required. For the time being Mr. Box is hustling in present quarters, busy every day, and making each year a better one than the last. The store now occupied is on Sherbrooke street, near Victoria avenue, in Westmount. Here Mr. Box worked for three years with A. A. Perry & Co. Then he started himself. That was in 1901, and for six years he has been working hard to build up his present trade.

A fine stock is carried, all good quality. The store is up-to-date in every respect, has its departments, which are each complete. Confectionery is sold in good quantities, the corner in which this department is located being one of the most attractive in the store. All fruits are handled in season, and holiday goods of every kind find their way onto the shelves.

The door seen in the back leds to a fine store room, where cooked meats, butter, and such lines are kept. To the right is a packing room, while at the there is a good-sized yard, as yards go in the city, and a storehouse where is kept coal oil — Mr. Box firmly believing that this commodity should be kept a good distance away from the stock of groceries. That's a good belief.

Mr. Box keeps three assistants in the store and a bookkeeper, and his deliveries keep two vans going every day.

A Montreal Interior.

PETERBOROUGH.

A great deal of interest in organization has been created here through the unsatisfactory relations between the retail trade and the Wholesale Grocers' Guild. Nearly every grocer in the city, and especially the larger ones, has felt the inroads cut in his trade by the wholesale men. Many of the grocers are at their wits' end to know just how to cope with such unfair competition. Some are very strong in favor of the cash system; others advocate a number of retailers banding together and buying in large quantities and at the same price the wholesale men do. This, however, will be a most difficult porposition, as the manufacturers, one after another, state that they will not sell except through the wholesalers.

The time is coming, however, when the retail men will organize throughout the province and then will be in a position to make equable terms. It is a great wonder they did not organize long ago. The grocers here have no separate society, although they belong to the Retail Merchants' Association, which is at present quiescent here. But now many of the grocers are advocating a society of their own, and until such has been accomplished there is little hope of their position being any better. A very strong association should exist here. There are something over 150 grocers in the city and what would be a good thing for one man would certainly be of benefit to all.

Within the next couple of months a new and fancy cheese will be put on the Canadian market. It will be known as celery cheese. McFarland Wilson, of the China Hall, is the proprietor of the new delicacy. He conceived the idea some two years ago that the two companions, viz., cheese and celery, would be very nice if they could be combined. He started to work, and after many trials and experiments he succeeded in producing an article which exactly suited his idea. It is a delicious cream cheese with a distinct celery flavor.

As soon as Mr. Wilson accomplished the art of blending the celery with the cheese he applied for a patent and last October it was granted. The article will be manufactured by the Celery Cheese Co., of Peterboro, and will be put up in pots or jars of quarter-pound, half-pound, one-pound and two-pound sizes. The factory will be located in this city and the cheese put before the public through the wholesale houses.

When asked how he produced the celery flavor, Mr. Wilson said it was obtained from the celery seed, but he would not give the formula at this time. Celery cheese will, however, prove to be a strong feature on the market. The quality of the cream used in the cheese will be the very best and all other material used will be of the best.

The price of the new article will be about the same as other fancy cheeses now on the market. Mr. Wilson says he will have his goods into the wholesale houses just as soon as he receives a shipment of pots, which have been on order for some time.

RETAILER REPLIES TO GUILD PRESIDENT.

To the Editor of The Canadian Grocer:—I must apologize to Mr. H. C. Beckett for making statements to The Canadian Grocer's correspondent which "has a ring about it that is not true," I willingly admit that it was not true in so much as that I did not go far enough because I was tryibg to let the wholesalers down light, as I have confidence in some of them yet. Had the whole truth been stated it would have looked much worse than represented in my "ridiculous statement." I am willing to admit for my part that the retail grocers have "no correct knowledge of the subject," nor are we "correctly posted," for which Mr. Beckett and his organization should be thankful because if we were not so ignorant there would be no so-called retail grocers or wholesale grocers' scullions. We would all be wholesale grocers. Mr. H. C. Beckett says, "the trouble seems to be that a few retailers want special favors from the manufacturers in matter of prices, which manufacturers cannot afford to give." This is not true. The retail grocers want no favors, they merely want full value for their money without any rake-off to the wholesalers for services they do not render.

Again, Mr. Beckett says, "the margin allowed by the manufacturers to the wholesalers for the services they render is not sufficient." The retail grocers do not object to a good margin for "services rendered," but do most strenuously object to a margin allowed by manufacturers to the wholesaler for services they do not render.

Demanding Pay for Services Not Rendered.

This is the one and only point of difference between the retailer and wholesaler to-day. Why should the wholesalers demand a margin for services not rendered? When this is settled between those two factions there is no doubt everything will run along smoothly again. But the retail grocers have been and are now easy marks. It is only a few years ago that they acted as the sandwich man with the wholesale grocers on one side demanding pay or a margin of profit for goods that never passed through their hands, or handled in any shape or form, and the trading stamps on the other, demanding a profit for services they did not render. In other words, the wholesaler stepped between the manufacturer and the retailer, while the trading stamp man stepped between the retailer and the consumer. In any case it is the retailer who has to pay the shot.

CHATHAM.

The price of eggs here took a phenomenal drop Saturday. During the winter the price has held steady at about 28c., but Saturday it fell to 22c., and even lower.

Ald. Westman, chairman of the industrial committee, is booming the establishment of a cold storage plant here and has been in communication with the Ottawa Government regarding the project.

On the average 100 cases of eggs are shipped from this point every day via C.P.R. for Montreal, while the G.T.R. probably duplicates these figures.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Putnam, Queen street, celebrated the 20th anniversary of their wedding last week. The many friends of the energetic Queen street butcher wish him many happy returns of the day.

ST. CATHARINES.

The McLaren Co., departmental store entered into a new phase on Monday, March 11th, by voluntarily reducing the time of labor of their employes by one hour, Saturdays excepted. The former hours of labor were from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening. The present rule is from 8.30 o'clock and closing at 5.30 o'clock in the evening.

Mr. James B. Dolan purposes to establish a knitting factory in the immediate future, providing he secured the needed co-operation of the St. Catharines council to whom he has applied, and indications point favorably in that direction.

The Kenleith Paper Manufacturing Co. find their present large manufacturing plant is of insufficient capacity to meet their requirements and purpose as early as practicable this spring to erect another large building, which, when completed will give room for one hundred or more extra employes.

Messrs. Grey & Reardon have moved to St. Catharines from Niagara Falls and have opened a pop and soda water manufactory on the premises formerly occupied by the Star Printing Company on Ontario Street. As they have, so far, manufactured good goods they are being well patronized.

The Board of Trade held their annual meeting on Wednesday last when the following officers for the year were elected: President, John C. Notman; vice-president, George Burch; secretary Samuel W. Secord; treasurer, George W. Hodgetts; council, Alexander McLaren, Samuel P. Gourlay, Charles G. McGhie, W. F. Burgoyne, John S. Campbell, R. G. W. Connolly, N. R. McGregor, John Marshall, M. Y. Keating. The board is anxious to have permanent quarters to hold their meetings and to this end a proposition was made to write to Andrew Carnegie, the donor, for permission to hold their meetings in the library building. A resolution was passed re railway service and adopted unanimously, favoring continued eastward extension of the Canadian Northern Railroad, and hopes of its passing through St. Catharines and into the cities and towns of Ontario, also favoring aid by the Dominion of Canada and Province of Ontario in the construction of the company's line from Port Arthur through those districts which are not thickly settled.

The McKinnon Dash and Metal Works Company purpose in the early spring to erect additional workshops to their already large plant to make room for increased business and the addition of a large staff of skilled workmen.

The Jenckes Manufacturing Company, who located here several years ago, erected two mammoth buildings—ample accommodation, as they thought, for their business—find themselves cramped for room, will, in the early spring erect other buildings to meet their requirements. Additional workmen will be able to obtain employment.

The farmers and gardeners keep the market clerk busy these days as their products are rushed in in large quantities and prices rule favorably. Hay sold as high as $14 per ton. Butter is quoted at 30 cents per lb., eggs at 30 cents per dozen. Meats of all kinds remain about stationary. Vegetables and fruits, for first-class good prices are paid. Wood, of which little is offering, sells readily at six dollars per cord.

LONDON.

London, Ont., March 12, 1907.

The package cereal food producers have replied to the protest of the local Retail Grocers' Association against what the latter claim are exorbitant prices charged for these goods. The reply, in effect, is that no relief can be afforded and, as a result, the dealers are determined to push bulk goods, as they are determined not to pay so large a share of the producers' advertising bill as they have in the past. Charcoal is another article the wholesale price of which is considered extortionate, and here, too, the manufacturers contend they can do no better. In this matter the grocers will have to grin and bear the ills they complain of, for they have no substitute to offer.

The Retail Grocers' Association have secured upwards of 500 signatures to a petition asking the city council to take definite action in regard to the telephone question and refuse to grant exclusive privilege or any privilege to any company, or any individual who will not undertake to provide unlimited business phones with the newest and

RETAIL ORGANIZATION.

H. C. Beckett, president of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, in his letter in this issue of The Canadian Grocer, states very forcibly and plainly that the retail trade should be organized; that the interests of the retail and wholesale trade are inseparable; that retailers and wholesalers should act in concert and that the wholesale trade, already organized, should assist in securing the organization of the retail trade. No man can foretell the benefits that would result to the grocery trade by organization on right lines and with legitimate aims. Few men who have not studied the subject and watched the course of organized effort in other countries could state the possibilities of such an association in the first five years, yes, in the first two years.

We gladly admit to a strong faith in organization for the betterment of conditions in the foodstuff trade and we hail this pronouncement of the executive head of the Guild as the most encouraging sign that has appeared in the grocery sky in a long time. The Canadian Grocer has been urging upon the retail trade the absolute necessity of organization; time and again we have called for a volunteer to make a start. A retailer of high standing over the pen name "Believer in Organization," in our issue of a week ago put forward the suggestion that the Guild utilize its efficient organization to promote the organization of the retail trade. Mr. Beckett has responded promptly to that suggestion, and we have such faith in his ability, energy and tact that we believe very great and far-reaching results will shortly be achieved. We bespeak for his effort the hearty co-operation of every retailer. No matter what a retailer's views in regard to the Guild may be, the way to straighten out differences and correct abuses is to get together and by free and fair and friendly discussion arrive at a better understanding of both your own and the opposite point of view and perhaps dispel some prejudices. The thing to bear in mind is that here is a rallying point for organization and every grocer from Halifax to Victoria should rise to the occasion and declare himself unequivocally for trade betterment.

THE LATE THOMAS MARTIN.

In the death of Thomas Martin of Mount Forest, the Parliament of Canada loses a man of a class that is all too few in the public life of the Dominion. He was a business man of the highest integrity, with a keen sense of public duty, and an exceptionally well informed interest in public affairs. This interest led him to take a prominent part in the municipal affairs of his home town, and in Parliament it made him one of the most valued and useful members on the Government side. His knowledge of business, of foodstuffs, of manufacturing and of the conditions of trade were invaluable. It is such men as he who should have a leading, a controlling part in making legislation. With his capacities as business man, publicist, churchman and bowler, he combined a rare kindliness of spirit that brought him the love as well as the respect of an unusually wide circle of friends.

RETAILER AND WHOLESALER.

The letter of E. F. Mason, of Peterboro, on page 30 of this issue is published because we believe it is an honest expression of Mr. Mason's views. These views are held by too many grocers and not without cause. The real cause, however, is the lack of organization of the retail trade, a lack which prevents united action and organized effort. But in the nature of things it is utterly impossible to believe that the retail and wholesale interests are antagonistic any more than the interests of the retailer and consumer are antagonistic. The retailer's obligations to the consumer may be thus stated: pure food, good service, fair treatment. For these the honest consumer is prepared to pay. The relations between wholesaler and retailer are even more intimate. The suggestion that the wholesaler is an unnecessary middleman and an impediment to trade is utterly untenable because not one-tenth of one per cent. of the retail trade could buy in quantities large enough for importation or for direct shipment from factory. If every manufacturer had to keep travellers on the road to cover the retail trade the cost of most articles to the consumer would be greatly increased. It would be just about as possible for the consumer to buy direct from the wholesaler. Mr. Mason's letter teaches very pointedly the need for retail organization.

LOBSTER PACKERS AND DATING.

The lobster packers are making a strenuous kick against the dating clause in the bill, now before the Senate, respecting the inspection of meats and canned goods. Their objection is not based in any way upon the general tenor of the bill, in so far as it relates to thorough inspection of the factories. They are, on the contrary, strongly in favor of this portion of it, realizing that it will tend to raise the standard of manufacture, and thus work to their own advantage.. They claim that the proposed dating and labelling would, in a great measure, ruin their business, of which Canada has so far enjoyed a practical monopoly. It would add a great expense to the industry, arising not only from the labelling, but from the necessity of changing their dies every year. The continental lobster buyers, moreover, prefer to get the cans unlabelled, in order that they may label them themselves, and thus an additional, and entirely unnecessary expense would be thrown upon our lobster packers, which would not only hamper them, but have the effect of checking foreign trade. The fresh expense involved would be unproductive of any benefit, as the labels would be scraped off, and new ones substituted. Especially would this be the case with the continental firms. Cans left over from one season to another would be rendered useless by the old date embossed upon them, and much valuable material would be thereby wasted.

Senator Robertson is championing the cause of the packers in the Senate, and is to be commended for bringing the matter to the attention of Parliament.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

Pointers

Fish—Revised.
Beans—Higher.

Montreal, March 14, 1907.

Business now being transacted between jobber and retailer is more or less limited, being of a hand-to-mouth character. The season is just between the tail end of the winter months and the first days of spring. There is always some buying done, but at this period it is only for actual wants which must be filled immediately.

Trade not being very active, the markets do not present any features of unusual interest. Prices during the week have been pretty well maintained on all lines. Beans are higher since last report, as much as $1.60 having been obtained by one firm. Outside of this line it cannot be said that there are any price alterations of note. Sugar is firm and not likely to decline for the time being. Canned goods are moving out steadily in small lots, which are gradually bringing stocks down to a low level. Molasses is interesting as far as the primary market is concerned, but locally it is not selling very freely. Syrups are still selling in large quantities. Teas are strong. Coffees and spices are unchanged. Evaporated apples are quoted at figures about the same as ruled last week. Lots of new maple syrup and maple sugar are expected to arrive next week. Dried fruits are featureless. Tapioca is firm.

SUGAR.—Sugar is firm, but no actual advance in prices has taken place. Orders received by the jobbing trade are of fair size, demand being of a good character as far as consumptive trade goes.

"CANADIAN" OF MEXICO.

"The Canadian" is the name of a small, four-page paper published in the city of Mexico. The second issue, Feb. 15, has just reached this office. It contains a lot of interesting information about Canada and a little advertising.

Leon Fontanel, Montreal, has been elected a member of the Chambre de Commerce Francaise.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—Stocks of canned goods are rapidly being cleaned up. Few lines are now held in anything but limited quantities by jobbers. Tomatoes, corn and peas have been moving out steadily for the past few months, and as stocks were not large in the first place, they are now becoming small.

TORONTO—There is a good consumptive demand for canned goods. Fruits are going to be scarce. Strawberries, plums, peaches and bluebarries are already in short supply, and about the only fruits in fair supply are cherries and raspberries. Strawberries are selling at $2.50. It is three or four weeks too soon to make an estimate of the situation in tomatoes, peas and corn. By that time the active demand will have set in and the jobbers will have a better idea as to how their stocks will stand the strain. At present the feeling is that there will be enough to go round without a squeeze.

The Canadian Canners will erect a new factory at Waterford.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Pointers—

Sugars continue firm.

Collections are poor.

Toronto, March 14, 1907.

After two months' very satisfactory business the trade has subsided and is as quiet as usual at this season. Still the jobbers do not complain at that, what they are finding fault with is the tightness of money. Collections are poor and that view is more general than for a year past. The most frequent explanation vouchsafed is that speculation, particularly in mining stocks, is much too rife. Too many merchants when they get two or three hundred dollars in hand can't withstand the temptation to bet it that a mining stock of which they know nothing will advance in price.

Since the advance in price there has been pretty fair buying of sugar but nothing remarkable. The feeling now is firm.

Tea.—Business is very active and prices continue firm. The forward price movement has shifted again to the better class of tea. A jobber stated yesterday that the commonest kind of Ceylon tea, such as couldn't be sold on this market would cost two cents more than he had been selling his poorest tea at. Exports of Indian teas last year increased 34 per cent. and Ceylons 9 per cent. Russia was by far the largest customer, her consumption amounting to 50,316,000 lbs., compared with 35,135,000 lbs., or 43 per cent. more than in 1905; practically all other countries in varying degree took more British grown tea, especially South America—a market rapidly becoming important—while the larger North American imports were greatly due to the development of Canadian trade. The falling off in the Ceylon shipments to Australia was more than balanced by heavier exports from India.

Last year Canada and the United States took 17,135,700 lbs. of Indian and 18,456,400 lbs. of Ceylon tea, compared with 15,305,900 lbs. and 16,857,800 lbs. in 1905.

COFFEE.—The market is steady and nothing has happened to affect prices locally.

SUGAR.—At the close of last week Willett & Gray say:

"The improvement noted in the cane sugar market for the past two weeks continued during the week under review reducing the difference between Centrifugals and Beet sugar to 38 cts. per 100 lbs. against 46 cts. the week before, notwithstanding that Beet sugar advanced from 8s. 1d¼d. to 9s. ¾d. for March delivery.

"Spot Centrifugals are now 3.51c. per lb., duty paid against 3.42c. the week before. The equivalent of 3.55c. per lb. landed was paid for Cuba Centrifugals for late March shipment.

"The advance has been so rapid for two weeks and such large quantities have been placed that a more quiet condition may intervene before further improvement sets in, particularly as refined sugar shows a less eager demand at the close.

"A fall off of 3,000 tons in Cuba crop receipts for the week is significant as being the first indication of a probable exhaustion of cane in the fields of some estates. The weekly returns will be of special interest from now forward as bearing upon the outturn of the crop. We see no reason yet to change our original estimate of 1,250,000 tons.

"Canadian buyers have just accepted two cargoes of about 10,000 bags each, San Domingo Centrifugals, for March shipment, at 2 1-32c., c.&f., to New York."

The advance in raws continued this week. Beet is up to 9s. 1d. and Cuban Centrifugals 96 degrees test are held at 2¼c. or 3.61 duty paid New York. On Monday sales were reported of 2,700 tons of Trinidad sugars at 2 3-16c. cost and freight, basis 96 degrees, for March-April shipment to Canada via New York, or the equivalent of 3.89c. duty paid, and 3,000 tons ditto for April-May shipment direct to Canada at 2¼c. cost and freight, or 3.05c. duty paid.

Locally the market tone is quite firm.

CANNERS IN MONTREAL.

Messrs. Marshall, F. R. Lalor, R. L. Innes and W. R. Drynan, of the Canad an Canners, Hamilton, were in Montreal Monday of this eweek and called upon the trade. They report having had a satisfactory season and look forward to brisk business this year. The party left for the Lower Provinces after finishing in Montreal.

APPOINTED SELLING AGENTS.

McGaw & Russel, Toronto, have been appointed selling agents for the wines and liquors of L. Chaput Fils & Cie., Montreal. A sample room has been opened.

PERSONAL.

F. W. Hudson, of the Canada Brokerage Co., Toronto, who was severely ill with pneumonia, has so far recovered as to leave for Nassau, Bahamas.

S. M. Houghton, representing Cobbin & Skelly Co., San Fran[illegible] Winnipeg last week consulting with the firm's agents in western Canada, Buchanan & Gordon.

Chas. B. Dunke, a foremost grocer of the good town of Berlin, fell a fortnight ago and broke a bone in his leg just above the ankle. He was lifting a bag of sugar at the rear of his warehouse and slipped. He is getting about on crutches.

FOOD STUFF INTERESTS ON THE PACIFIC COAST

(By Canadian Grocer's Special Correspondent.)

Vancouver, B.C., March 7, 1907.

Protection of the salmon product of B.C. canneries in the British market is being brought forcibly to the attention of canners at the present moment. The Canadian commercial agent at Manchester, England, in a report urges that canners so label their tins that no mistake can be made in purchasing the genuine article. At the present time large quantities of Alaska salmon of low grade are sold in tins labelled "British Columbia salmon." While the label is a fraud, no identification is given, to show the cannery or district in which the fish was put up. If this were done by all B.C. packers, there could be no error on the part of the consumer. At present high prices the injury is all the greater, and more money made by the fraudulent practice.

Due almost entirely to the short pack of last year and continued demand the price of B. C. salmon is strong on the London market. As there will not be a big run of the fish this year, and as stocks are cleaned up very closely it is positive that prices will be higher. Increased cost of production is also having its influence. Last quotations from the British market were 35s. 3d. to 36s. for half-pound flats; 26s. to 27s. for pound flats; 23s. to 24s. 1d. for one-pound talls. Very few of this latter shape are now sold.

The Pacific Whaling Co., which has for the past three years been carrying on the industry on the west coast of Vancouver Island is very likely to add another branch, that of refining the whale oiloil, the crude oil being at present shipped to Glasgow for refining. The company has also selected a new site for its whaling station, on the south side of Kuyoquot Sound, which is closer to the whaling grounds than Sechart, where the station now is.

Shipments of Canadian flour to the Orient, which have been active for the past month, continue to increase. Orders have been placed which will take all the middle grade flour produced by some of the biggest mills for some months to come. The orders come chiefly from Japan, where the middle grade flour easily competes with the soft wheat flours from the Pacific coast states of Oregon, Washington and California. The Ogilvie Milling Co. alone has reported orders aggregating over 5,000 tons. All of this trade goes via Vancouver, being shipped on the C.P.R. Oriental steamers.

The Victoria rice mill is likely to be renovated and put in operation again very shortly. D. W. Ross and R. B. Ross, of the Mount Royal Milling and Mfg. Co., Montreal, have just concluded a visit to Victoria looking over the situation. While reserved as to what decision had been reached, the gentlemen indicated that as soon as they returned home they would be in position to make announcements. It is understood that rice, flour, flace rice and starch will be manufactured, as well as ordinary rice cleaning and similar work. Though Japanese rice does not come under the preferential tariff like rice from the British possessions of Burmah and Patna, the former will be used. Freight conditions for importing are better, and the Japan rice is of more suitable quality. A market for rice flour and other products will be found as far east from Vancouver, as Kenora, Ont.

Trade is good in grocery lines throughout the province. The advent of spring weather has made the past few weeks very lively indeed. Improved condition of stocks is noted through arrivals of delayed freights. Lines which were very short or cleaned out entirely have now been repaired. In staple groceries no changes of any importance are noted. In produce the price of eggs has gone down steadily and butter is also selling easier. Oranges are slightly lower and apples are firmly held, though in good supply. Potatoes are going up again before long, as the stocks are limited and outside demand is good.

There is one more consignment of Australian butter to arrive. It will have to sell at not more than 30c., though present quotation is 30c. and 31c. There may be some California butter come in, before local dairy is free enough to ease the market, but at present none is being received. Eastern and Northwest shipments are at a minimum. The stocks are cleared down to the lowest and the market is in good shape to begin the season. Local creamery continues at 35c. to the trade; local dairy 25c. to 27c..

Local fresh eggs are about the entire thing on the market now. They are so plentiful that the price has dropped down to 25c. to the trade, and at last week's New Westminster market they went as low as that retail. The mild weather accounts for the supply. Oregon shipments are discontinued.

Fresh fruits are limited now. Navel oranges are coming in very freely from California. They are 25c. lower, being now quoted at $2.75 to $3. Fancy apples, mostly imported, though a few are still from the Okanagan, are quoted at $2.25 to $2.50; local apples, $1.25 and $1.50. Lemons are $4 to $4.75 per case.

Potatoes are still at top-notch prices. Ashcrofts are almost an unknown quantity. Nominally they are quoted at $34 a ton, but few can be obtained at any price. Lower mainland and Agassiz potatoes are selling all the way from $20 to $26 per ton. Some shipments may be made from the upper country to Alberta, where Calgary and other cities are now short.

Local hot-house lettuce is $1.75 per crate; California green vegetables: celery, 85c. per doz.; cucumbers, $2.40 per doz.; rhubarb, 12½c. per lb.; cauliflower, $1.60 per doz.; cabbage, 2½c. per lb.

Leading brands of flour are quoted: Ogilvie's Royal Household, $5.40; Strong Bakers', $5.40; Columbia Flouring mills Enderby, Hungarian, $5.15; Three Star, $4.85; Okanagan Flouring Mills, Armstrong, Pastry, $5.50; Strong Bakers, $5; Hungarian, $4.90; Graham, $4.50 per barrel.

TWO GROCERY TRAVELERS IN BUSINESS FOR THEMSELVES

Two members of the travelling staff of H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, have severed their ties with the firm and gone into wholesale business for themselves, not groceries. They are John Shouldice and W. J. Bradley, the former 17 years, the latter 10, with the firm. Both of them are men of great popularity and salesmen of the first order. Something more than ordinary in the way of a send-off was coming to them, and they got it.

The travelling staff, sample room force and representatives of the office and warehouse staffs of H. P. Eckardt & Co., entertained the two gentlemen to dinner at the Queen's hotel on the evening of March 1, and the course of convivality was interrupted for a moment to make them the recipients of very handsome presents. Those present were : S. H. T. MacKenzie, C. F. Richardson, A. J. Chalm, J. W. Charles, A. G. Hill, W. K. Booth, St. Geo. Price, F. H. Prosser, G. J. Gould, G. L. Scott, B. R. Brown, W. E. Sutton, E. J. Wood, H. J. Middleton, J. H. Cooper, and two Eckardt & Co. old boys, Messrs. Kyle and Carmichael.

Having toasted the King in patriotic poesy, the toast list in four parts was taken into consideration, on this basis, "H. P. Eckardt & Co.," "Shipping and Warehouse Staff," "Guests," "Old Boys." The speakers were A. J. Chalm, C. F. Richardson, W. K. Booth, H. J. Middleton, S. H. T. MacKenzie, John W. Shouldice, W. J. Bradley, John W. Charles and Messrs. Kyle and Carmichael.

Then came the presentation of three handsome pieces of cut glass to Mr. Shouldice, and a gold locket and lob to

JOHN W. SHOULDICE.

Mr. Bradley. Mr. MacKenzie passed over the breakables and jewelry and very fittingly expressed the feelings of sorrow and high regard with which the company regarded the removal of the recipients. Having heard from the gifted couple, Mr. Kyle proposed the health of the chairman, which was responded to with great heartiness,

John W. Shouldice was born at Chatsworth, in the county of Grey, in that section of Ontario tributary to Georgian Bay, commonly called the "north country." He got his early business training with Cephas Good, now a grain man of more than provincial repute, then a general merchant and grain buyer, and a very keen business man. His store was located on the Shouldice farm, along with a considerable portion of the village. After five years in training young Shouldice went into business for himself in his native village, in company with a partner, Mr. Hopkins. For five years they conducted a general store under the firm name of Shouldice & Hopkins. In January, 1890, Mr. Shouldice sold his interest to his partner and a month later joined the travelling staff of H. P. Eckardt & Co., to represent the firm east of Toronto. That position he held 17 years, till now. He makes this change to again become a principal. With E. B. Wallace and T. Blake, he is a partner in the firm of Wallace, Blake & Shouldice, Toronto, wholesale dealers in special dry goods. Mr. Wallace was a buyer for Gordon, MacKay & Co, and Mr. Blake was the Canadian representative of Rylands & Co., Manchester. Mr. Shouldice is a man of engaging personality and a salesman of acknowledged ability.

Mr. Bradley is of the younger generation of salesmen, though he has been with H. P. Eckardt & Co. ten years, having began his business career there. He also is about to engage in business for himself, but his arrangements are not yet completed. An all round good fellow and a salesman of quality, he is one of the most popular travellers on the road.

SUGAR TARIFF AMENDED.

Montreal refiners are rejoicing over the recent amendments to the sugar tariff in so far as they refer to bringing in raw sugar via New York under the preferential tariff.

E. W. Parker, secretary Canada Sugar Refining Co., speaking of the matter said that it was only justice to the refiners that they should be allowed to bring their raw sugar into Canada by way of New York. The Halifax and St. John routes were altogether too slow, shipments being delayed for periods which would work great harm to the refiners if they were dependent for supplies upon importations via Canadian ports in the Maritimes.

Mr. Parker thought that the amendment referring to beet root sugar factories was very unjust to the refiners, and could not understand why the Government should have proposed such legislation.

B. McNally, secretary-treasurer St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co., when seen by The Grocer, expressed very much the same views as did Mr. Parker.

DEATH OF THOMAS MARTIN, M.P.

A Legislator Whose Death is a Distinct Loss to the Country.

Thomas Martin, M.P., of Mount Forest, died in the Protestant General Hospital, Ottawa, on Tuesday morning, following an operation for gall stones on the Friday previous. Mr. Martin was a prominent miller and was one of the most capable and best liked members of the House of Commons. He was born at Fergus nearly 57 years ago. Besides building up with his brother, a large business, and establishing a sound reputation in trade, Mr. Martin took a keen and progressive interest in public and church affairs. He was as alderman and mayor several years actively engaged in the municipal life of Mount Forest, and in 1904 redeemed North Wellington for the Liberal interest by a large majority. As a Presbyterian he was prominent at home and a member of the General Assembly of the church. He was also a good bowler and he and his three sons, the Martin rink, was a feature in every big tournament. Mr. Martin was one of the best informed men in Parliament.

The Globe says of him :

"The death of Mr. Thomas Martin, the representative of North Wellington in the House of Commons, removes from the Parliament of Canada and from the service of his country a man of the highest type of personal character, in whom the elements of private integrity and public honor were so mingled that under all conditions he showed himself a man. A successful man of business, he gave much of his time and service to his country, promoting alike the interests of the Church and of Parliament, and standing at all times for those things which make for the development and power of what is best in Canadian citizenship. A Liberal by conviction, he sought to hold his political party, alike in small things as in large, to those fundamental principles of common rights and those ideals of political life which belong to historic Liberalism. The positiveness of his ethical sense and the strength of his religious conviction made him a force for good alike in business and in politics, and his untimely death is a real loss not only to the many personal friends who loved and trusted him, but also to those agencies of religion and good government which never turned to him in vain."

best equipment at a fixed price not to exceed $35 per annum. The association is included in an invitation of the Independent Telephone Company to visit Buffalo as the guests of the company and see what the Bell Company's chief competitor has to show in the way of the latest in telephone services and telephone rates. The executive of the association met this morning to consider the invitation and decided to accept it. It is desired, however, that the visit be arranged early this week, so that the deputation can get back in time for the meeting of the Finance Committee of the city council, on Friday night, when the petition will come up for consideration.

To a London grocer, John Diprose. Dundas Street, has fallen the honor of winning first prize of $50 in the competitive window display of "Bovril." The competition was open to District No. 14, Sault Ste. Marie to Berlin. The second prize went to J. T. Pepper of Woodstock; the third to G. G. Byers of Delhi; the fourth to G. H. Small, of St. Thomas, and the fifth to J. C. Pinch, of Sault Ste. Marie.

A unique window display, and one that attracts considerable notice is that in John Diprose's west end store. It represents a miniature old-time sugar camp, with notched maple tree, sap-sucker and pail. Nearby is rigged a fireplace with a tree branch across two crotches and a pot suspended over a quantity of faggots ready for lighting. Even the farmers stop to look at the display.

Speaking of maple sugar, the luxury is rather late coming in this season, the first of the syrup having yet to make its appearance.

A standing grievance of the housekeeper, but one which the grocer is powerless to remedy, is the disappearance of the popular two-pound loaf. The prevailing pound and a half loaf is considered no adequate substitute, yet it costs just the same. What people long for is a return of the old two-pounder, even if a little more is charged for it. Time was when an inspector made periodical raids on bakers' wagons, and if any loaf was found short of the standard two pounds, it was promptly seized, the result being that the charitable institutions profited to no inconsiderable extent. But for some reason or other they don't make these raids nowadays.

INGERSOLL.

Transfers in business circles have been numerous of late and another one of interest has been announced to take place on the first of April. I. W. Kingswood, the grocer who came to Ingersoll about three years ago, purchasing the business of Wm. Dundass & Son, has sold out to McLeod & McBain, two young and enterprising men, who have already become favorably known in Ingersoll and vicinity through their connection with the grocery trade. Mr. McLeod has been the manager of Beattie & Co.'s store for the past couple of years, while Mr. McBain has been employed in the same store as head salesman for some time. Both have had wide experience in the grocery business and are deservedly popular. Courteous attention and fair treatment has been their motto and their many friends hope that they will be accorded liberal patronage in their new venture.

Mr. McLeod entered the grocery business in Woodstock, of which town he is a native, while Mr. McBain is a son of Wm. McBain, of this town.

Mr. Kingswood has been engaged in the grocery business for many years. He came here from St. Thomas, where he conducted a very successful business. He has taken a very active interest in the development of all matters pertaining to the trade since coming to Ingersoll and has very acceptably filled the position of president of the retail merchants' association. He has not yet announced his intentions for the future, but it is understood that he has "something good" in view.

Ingersoll mourns the loss of one of her oldest and most respected residents, in the person of Harry Hearn, who engaged in the grocery business here over fifty years ago. He passed peacefully away on Saturday night, after an illness that had extended over eight years. He was in his 78th year, and had resided here for fifty-seven years. He was a native of Langtree, Devonshire, England. He came to Ingersoll in 1857 and for some time conducted a very successful grocery business. Later he kept hotel, being proprietor for fourteen years of the Old Royal and the New Royal, and he was known as one of the most genial bonifaces in Western Ontario. He possessed a genial disposition and a sunny countenance and there are many who remember his acts of kindness. From the hotel business he entered the dry goods business, which he successfully conducted until eight years ago, when he was seized with paralysis which necessitated his retirement. Since that time his health had been such as to frequestly cause much anxiety to the family and his wide circle of friends.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon and was largely attended, while the numerous floral tributes indicated the high esteem in which he was held.

At the regular meeting of the Grocers' Association on Thursday evening last there was a lively discussion on how the questions of the wholesalers and manufacturers selling to those not in the trade. The outcome was that a large committee was appointed to confer with the Wholesale Guild and talk the matter over. No doubt a better feeling will be engendered as the result. The question was also taken up re the 10c. goods that are charged to the grocer at $1 net per dozen. The jobbing trade throw all the onus of the price on the manufacturer. Well, let the retail man get after the manufacturer, for under present-day cost of doing business the profit in these deals is not apparent. The latest price list from a prominent manufacturer raises the price of 10c. goods to $1.03 1-3 per dozen net, and 25c. goods to 21½c. net a package, and infers that 10c. and 25c. each shall be the retail price. The trade here think that is the limit, and are prepared to refrain from selling that firm's goods in the future.

The collection system is now under operation and promises to be a great success. In a short time a delinquent list will be issued, which will prove a great safeguard when credit is asked for. The association has secured the services of a first-class collector, with a central office, and it is expected that the dead-beats will be rounded up in great style, and in future will have to confine their efforts to grocers who do not belong to the association.

J. J. Hill, the successful East End grocer, has sold his business to Mr. Martin, of Bain & Adams' firm. It is rumored that Mr. Hill's gaze is turned wards Cobalt.

Congratulations are extended to H. C. Beckett, as the new president of the Dominion Guild, and hopes are now entertained that the interests of the retailers are in good hands.

GROCERY TRADE NEWS FROM NEW BRUNSWICK

(By The Canadian Grocer's Special Correspondent.)

St. John, N.B., March 11, 1907.

The most notable thing about the local markets just now is the continued scarcity of all kinds of fresh fish. One local dealer sent to Boston for 1,000 pounds of haddock last week. It is scarcely likely, however, that others will be eager to follow his example, as the fish cost him between six and seven cents a pound delivered here. No lobsters are to be had and owing to the tie-up on the New Brunswick Southern Railway clams had to be hauled from Lepreau.

Eggs, which have been very scarce, and high since the beginning of Lent, are now a little more plentiful and easier in price. Hennery eggs are quoted at 28 to 30 cents and "case" at 26 to 28 cents, wholesale. On the other hand butter is a little scarce, although quotations are practically the same, wholesale prices ranging from 22 to 26 cents. In flours, meals and sugars quotations are practically unchanged.

Several cargoes of choice Barbadoes molasses have arrived and the stock is meeting with a ready sale.

There is every reason to believe that a large cold storage warehouse will be erected in St. John, N.B., during the coming summer, for export trade. A communication has been received from L. S. Macoun, representing the Canada Lands Produce and Cold Storage Co. asking that the city grant a free site for the project. It is proposed to erect a building 150 x 125 feet, six stories high, at a cost of about $100,000.

Sir Frederick Borden, who is interested in the company, while on a visit here recently looked over several available sites on the west side with Mr. George McAvity who is also interested in the venture. Two sites were selected as suitable for the building, one on the property occupied by the Union Ice Company near the Rodney wharf and the other near the new car sheds under construction on the west side. Both sites are near the wharves of the winter port steamers and are easily accessible by railway. It is thought the ice company property will be secured, as it is considered the more suitable of the two.

The matter has been referred to the board of public works and it is probable that satisfactory arrangements will be made for the company to locate here. The building of a modern cold storage plant such as is proposed, would give a great impetus to the export trade through this port of perishable goods.

It is understood that Premier Pugsley will make several changes in the provincial cabinet after the present session of the Legislature and that D. J. Purdy, M.P.P., the well known grocer and ship owner will be taken into the Cabinet without portfolio. Mr. Purdy has always been a staunch Liberal and his entry into the Cabinet would be regarded as a fitting testimony to his ability and high standing in the party. He has been a member of the Legislature since 1899, previous to which he served as alderman both in St. John and in the old city of Portland, previous to its union with St. John.

Owing to the shortage of freight due to severe storms in the west which tied up the railway systems to a large extent, the exports through Canada's winter port gave fallen off somewhat this year. The total valuation of the cargoes of 74 steamers which have sailed this year amount to $12,427,583, against a valuation of $16,272, 494 for the same number of steamers last year, showing a decrease of $3,844,911.

Up to date 82 steamships have arrived this season with a net tonnage of 315,851 tons, against 71 steamships with a tonnage of 236,937 tons last season to the same date.

Following are some of the products that have gone forward this year :

Wheat	(bushels)	1,504,081
Oats	"	827,926
Barley	"	544,414
Cheese	(boxes)	79,685
Cattle	(number)	17,554
Sheep	(number)	1,371
Horses	(number)	44

The steamship Yola now on her way to South Africa from this port, took away Canadian goods valued at $82,462 and foreign goods valued at $73,084; a total of $155,546.

The steamer Acamo, of the Picksford & Black line, sailed from Bermuda Friday the 8th inst., for this port. She is expected to arrive on the 12th, and has on board 450 puncheons of molasses, which will be landed here.

Geo. E. Barbour of the Geo. E. Barbour Co., and W. C. Cross of Hall & Fairweather, Ltd., have returned home from Toronto where they attended the annual meeting of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild. Both gentlemen speak very highly of the courtesies extended to them while they were away and report that the meeting was a most successful and enjoyable one. Mr. Barbour was appointed vice-president of the Guild for New Brunswick.

John E. Titus, the esteemed Bloomfield merchant, has been suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia. His many friends will learn with pleasure that his condition has improved very considerably and he is now out of danger.

G. W. Hoegg, of Sussex, is in Nova Scotia on a business trip.

The entire stock of the retail grocery store owned by William McCann at 63 Erin Street, was destroyed by fire on the morning of Tuesday, March 5th. Mr. McCann had $500 insurance in the Anglo-American Insurance Company and he was awarded $300, which he claims, however, does not nearly cover his loss.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

What little cheese is still held in Montreal is rapidly being cleaned up, and it will not be long before the market is quite bare of stocks. Interest in the situation is slight, since most of the houses engaged in the cheese business, being without stocks of any kind, are not bothering about conditions existing here and in England further than to keep posted on what is going on. Since last week receipts have been reported of a few March fodder cheese which sold at good figures. Arrivals were not sufficient to make a market, and did not cut much of a figure locally. Nothing in this line was exported.

Probabilities point to a high opening for new make cheese. Most of the factories are expected to open around April 1, although, no doubt, some makers will be opening possibly the beginning of the week. Various conditions have combined to make necessary high opening figures, the most apparent being the fact that many will devote their energies to the making of butter.

Advices from England contain little that is new. The market there remains about the same as at time of last report.

Receipts of cheese reported by the Board of Trade, for the week ending March 9, were 136 boxes, or 2,349,705 boxes since May 1, 1906.

Butter is firmer again this week, higher prices ruling. Locally a brisk trade is being transacted at figures quoted. Demand is strong, and although prices asked by holders are high they find little difficulty in obtaining them. Creamery is the chief line in which business is being done, other varieties, dairy and fresh rolls, the latter particularly, being scarce.

Returned creamery is being sold at even higher prices than ruled last week. A few lots came forward lately, further swelling the amount already received on this side. A considerable quantity has been returned this year, the goods being quite neglected in Great Britain owing to the fact that Australian new grass butter was in good supply all the time, practically excluding the Canadian product from the market.

Many houses in Montreal having received lots of butter returned from the Old Country received a surprise recently when it became generally known that under the new tariff a duty of three cents a pound may be exacted on all butter returned to Canada, unless it were shipped direct to the original exporter. At first it was thought that many would suffer, but later, according to what can be learned in the trade, it seems that most of the butter shipped back to Canada was received by those who had exported it in the first place. In any case, the feeling in the trade is, the Government would not now be likely to force the importers of the Canadian creamery to pay the duty when it is considered that the butter has gone into consumption. Any butter brought in since the new tariff went into effect was taken in good faith, with no intention to escape paying a duty, as evidenced by the selling prices in this country, which were based upon the buying price in England and without any reckoning for duty. As a matter of fact it was not generally known in the trade that such a duty existed.

To March 9, receipts of butter for the season totalled 609,757 packages, 542 packages having arrived last week.

PROVISION SITUATION.

Prices for live hogs continue the same as for some weeks past and the packers' assurances that the price would be lower have not been made good. A prominent packer when asked why, replied: "One's afraid and the rest dassant." This leaves the price $6.65 f.o.b. country points, $6.90 fed and watered, Toronot, and $7.15 off cars at the factory. Perhaps the packers were encouraged by the fact that while the Old Country market was no higher than a week ago, it was steady at the last decline and the market seemed to be in much better condition.

The domestic situation is unchanged. Demand continues normal though there has been some enquiry for jobbers' lots from western Canada. Stocks of lard are said to be limited.

The latest report of the Bureau of Industries of Ontario gives the number of hogs slaughtered or sold in the province, and their value, during ten years ending June 30, as follows:

1905	2,267,583	$22,202,233
1904	2,240,083	22,665,164
1903	2,168,598	22,532,862
1902	1,991,907	20,154,190

1897	1,399,967	10,022,812
1896	1,304,359	10,022,525

The value of bacon, hams, shoulders and sides exported from Canada for five years ending June 30 last, was:

1902	$12,404,990
1903	15,911,294
1904	13,037,519
1905	13,568,075
1906	12,236,897

MESSAGE IN CANADIAN CHEESE.

(From the English Grocer.)

Sir,—I thought perhaps the following would interest some of your numerous readers:

My wife, in cutting through a Canadian cheese this morning, found a small glass bottle containing a piece of white paper, on which is written in a very good hand the following:—

Westport, Ontario, August 14, 1906. —Am enclosing a small note in this cheese, trusting that the receiver will kindly answer and let me know where it was bought, the price, and also how they liked it. This cheese was made to-day, August 14, 1906, by my husband, W. C. Taylor, in Salem factory. Waiting a reply, Mrs. W. C. Taylor, Westport, Ontario.

The cheese is of excellent quality, and I intend to notify the writer of the note to that effect.—I am, etc.,

R. D. SCHOLES,

St. Mary Church-road, Torquay,

DUTY ON PORKSTUFFS.

Gordon, Grant & Co., Trinidad, in a recent mail advice state: "There is a good enquiry for lard and porkstuffs of all kinds, stocks of which continue small. Our customs tariff is now being revised and it is rumored that the Government is likely to impose a duty on pork, beef, and other items previously on the free list. In consequence of this our dealers are importing to some extent on speculation."

The Ontario Government is going to arrange a series of bacon hog sales in Eastern Ontario with a view to encouraging the industry in this section of the province, which has lately been somewhat neglected.

BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

No. 14

ALD. CAWSEY, HALIFAX

Halifax, N. S., March 2.

Halifax has fittingly honored a grocer alderman who is about to take up his residence in Western Canada. The recipient of the honor was William H. Cawsey, and his departure for the West was made the occasion of a banquet, which was tendered him by the Mayor, the Corporation and the officers of the City of Halifax, in the St. Julien dining room, of the Halifax Hotel, on Thursday evening. The dining hall was handsomely decorated, the menu served was excellent, and a first-class programme of vocal and instrumental music was rendered during the evening.

Mayor MacIlreith presided, and on his right sat the guest of the evening, Ald. Cawsey, and Recorder Bell, and on his left ex-Mayor Crosby and ex-Ald. Rogers. There were also present the aldermen, heads of all civic departments and a number of ex-aldermen. It was a tribute of esteem to one whose services for five years as alderman have rightly earned the approbation of his fellow-aldermen and citizens—one who worked quietly and unostentatiously, without much fuss or flurry, but faithfully and well in the different capacities as alderman and school commissioner. The tone of all the remarks was one of regret at his departure, but of well-wishing wherever he might chance to locate in the future.

After loyally honoring the toast "The King," Mayor MacIlreith proposed "Our Guest." He said it was a sorrowful duty cast on him, for Ald. Cawsey had served the city faithfully for five years. He had been Chairman of the Board of Firewards, and had been the means of bringing about great improvements in that service. As a member of the Board of Works during the last two years, as a member of the Hacks and Trucks Commission, his aid and counsel had been invaluable to the Mayor, for he always did his best to further the interests of the city. He wished him success and prosperity in his new home. He was sure Ald. Cawsey would take a prominent position in his western home. He hoped it would not be many years before the Alderman had amassed a fortune and would return to his native province.

ALD. CAWSEY OF HALIFAX

"For he's a jolly good fellow," after which Ald. Cawsey expressed his appreciation of the honor conferred on him. Some years ago it was the usual course for the young men of this country to go to the southern republic, but now this part of the Dominion was sending its sons to the Canadian West. He recognized that he had made mistakes in his capacity as Alderman, but these were not intentional, for he had endeavored to do his best. In that time many changes had taken place in the city. Five years ago not a yard of permanent street work had been done. The city had made great strides in improving its sidewalks, and many miles of good work had been laid. Inducements were now being held out for manufacturing industries to be established here, and he referred to the fact that one large concern, the Silliker Car Works, was coming. Halifax had to keep abreast of other places and while he was opposed in principle to bonuses, he found they had be given. He referred to the contract made by the Dominion Government for the erection of machine works, the bulk of the work in which line had hitherto gone to Moncton.

Ex-Mayor Crosby expressed very kindly hopes for Ald. Cawsey and his brothers in their new home. While leaving Halifax they were going out to another section of the Dominion. He said there were opportunities here which did not present themselves in the West. He said occasions of this kind where the Aldermen got together in a friendly way were beneficial. He would like the young men of Halifax to know more of the city. Some seemed to think their duty was done when they criticized, but when advice was asked as to the course to be pursued, the critics too frequently could give no response.

Other speakers referred in eulogistic terms to the departing alderman, and wished him every success in his new home. The banquet was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem and Auld Lang Syne.

Alderman Cawsey has been in the grocery business in Halifax for the past eighteen years. He is thoroughly familiar with every beanch of the trade, and during those 18 years has built up an extensive retail business in the northwestern section of the city. Three of his brothers were associated with him in the business. The firm's stores and teams were always attractive. Everything was kept bright by elbow grease within and without.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Markets are Steady and Trade Normal—U. S. Markets Now Dormant—Confectionery as a Specialty for Increasing Profits.

"They are buying green lice in Chicago," remarked a Canadian grain merchant, commenting upon the situation this week. He meant that wheat was advancing because of reports of crop damage. The effect in Canada is simply a hardening of tone. Prices remain firm. Flour is in fair demand, but there, too, prices are merely steady. "Cables," says an American authority, "have simply followed our market, opening easier and turning stronger with us, as America, is the controlling factor in the wheat situation for the balance of the crop year. This was demonstrated when Argentine shipments came on Friday at record figures, our market advancing in the face of it, as the great deficiency in Russia cannot be made good without drawing heavily on America for the balance of the crop."

Confectionery.

A good many grocers are arriving at the conclusion that they are wasting their time inducing people to buy sugar and other lines handled at a narrow margin, often not sufficient to cover the cost of doing business, and are lending their energy to building up a trade in specialties. Under this head there is no more profitable line than confectionery. High class confectionery, well displayed, will improve the appearance of any store and will attract custom. The man who is making a success to-day is not the man who doddles along in a rut, but the man who works his grey matter to devise ways and means of augmenting his profits. Confectionery is one of the ways.

T. Palmer, Hensall, has moved into more commodious quarters nicely fitted and furnished, where he has much improved facilities for catering to the wants of his numerous customers in the confectionery and restaurant lines.

Chalmedy Bros., & Co., general merchants, North Bay, who were recently burned out, have commenced reconstruction very energetically. The debris has been cleared and the construction of the new grocery department is well progressed.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture's latest bulletin (No. 153) is entitled "Some Facts Concerning Fertilizers and their Use," by R. Harcourt, professor of chemistry, Ontario Agricultural College. The bulletin may be had free upon application to the Department.

The Orient demand for flour seems to be on the increase rather than in abeyance. The Lake of the Woods Milling Co. received another big order for 20,000 bags to be delivered at Shanghai. Half of this contract was all they were able to accept. The flour demanded is third and fourth grades.

A deputation, representing almost every large commercial association in the Dominion, waited upon the Dominion Government with a petition for the enlarging and modernizing of the Welland canal. They produced a startling array of figures, showing that the rate on the carriage of grain from Fort William to Montreal would be reduced to the extent of three cents on the bushel by the carrying out of this work. Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that the Government would consider the matter carefully, and it was likely that the work would be put in hand as soon as the necessary funds could be procured.

Alderman Cawsey has represented Ward Five in the City Council for the past five years and he has another year of his term to run but he is now about to resign. During that period he has been in all the important civic committees, and at the present time he is Chairman of the Board of Fire Commissioners, one of the largest spending bodies in the city. He also served two years as a School Commissioner. Some months ago he decided to take up his residence in the West, and disposed of the grocery business to Barnes Bros. Mr. Cawsey has already visited the West, but he is as yet undecided where he will locate, or whether he will again take up the grocery business. There are four Cawsey families and relatives, numbering twenty souls in all, going together to the West to settle, probably in Alberta.

WINNIPEG PURE FOOD SHOW.

Wide interest is being manifested by the general public and the grocery trade in the Pure Food Exhibition to be held by the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada in Winnipeg next July. The committee in charge have secured the Auditorium rink for the exhibition and the accompanying plan shows a diagram of the floor space for the exhibits. The agitation for pure food products has aroused great interest among the retail trade and the general public, and manufacturers are quick to realize the educational opportunities offered them by an exhibition of this nature.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR FREIGHT IN TRANSIT?

P. C. Larkin, of Salada Tea, is trying to have the railways answer a question that is of vital importance to every shipper. The question is as to the responsibility of railways for goods committed to their care. This is not a new question; it has been up off and on for years, but the railways have continually dodged it. On Feb. 14th Mr. Larkin wrote to the Grand Trunk Railway System as follows: "Would you please tell us if you accept responsibility for any of our goods, shipped over your line, while they are in your possession?

"What we want to know is if they are destroyed in any manner whatever will you recoup us for them?

"We understand that the Canadian Pacific Railway undertake the responsibility, and we want to have it clearly defined with your good selves."

More than a week later, having had no reply, Mr. Larkin, on Feb. 25, wrote:

"We wrote you upon Feb. 14th, asking if your company accepted responsibility for goods destroyed in any way while in their possession, but we have received no reply as yet to our communication. Will you kindly be good enough to write us definitely regarding the matter."

Two days later R. C. Nelles, Toronto freight agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, wrote:

"Your favor of the 14th inst., was received and duly acknowledged on 15, stating that it had been forwarded to our district freight agent, Mr. C. E. Dewey, with request that the information desired be furnished from our General Freight Traffic Department.

"Through his absence from city, I was unable to see him until this a.m., and he asked me to advise you that this subject has been under close consideration for some time, and is being worked out in every detail. Shippers will be advised very shortly of the decision our company arrive at, which, I am assured, will be satisfactory to our patrons."

As shippers have been waiting about seven years for a definite answer to this question there isn't much satisfaction in railway's reply. Mr. Larkin has urged President Steele, of the Toronto Board of Trade, to bring the matter to a head before the Railway Commission, and that will probably be done in the near future.

BACK TO OLD QUARTERS.

William Galbraith & Son, wholesale grocers, Montreal, intend removing by April 15, to their old quarters, 80-82 St. Peter street. The firm has been more or less handicapped owing to insufficient warehouse accommodation, but when located in their new premises they will be in a position to meet the rapidly increasing demands of their business. The warehouse on St. Peter street is 40 feet wide, 116 feet deep, and five storeys high. It is a significant fact that it has been occupied as a wholesale grocery warehouse for three-quarters of a century; first by Alexander Urquhart, for about 40 years, then by Kinloch Lindsay & Co., for 25 years, and later by Carter, Galbraith & Co., up to the time of the dissolution of this firm in January, when Mr. Galbraith purchased the premises.

ANOTHER PORT ARTHUR CHANGE

Port Arthur has seen several business changes in the past few years. Another occurred the other day, when Ambrose Ferguson, the city agent of the Riley, Ramsey Co., purchased the grocery business of Stewart & Smiley, on Cumberland street. Mr. Ferguson takes over one of the largest concerns of its sort in the town, and has a high standard before him. His friends predict for him great success.

LOOKED SEVEN YEARS AHEAD.

On Feb. 21 Prince Edward Island was connected with the mainland by wireless telegraphy. The Charlottetown Patriot says:

"In this connection it is worthy of note that on January 10th 1900, just seven years ago, Horace Haszard, then president of the Charlottetown Board of Trade, in his annual address before that body, said:

" 'Among the possibilities of the future may we not hope soon to see this island in continuous communication with the mainland by wireless telegraphy.'

"Well done, Mr. Haszard!"

SUGAR PRODUCTION IN THE WEST.

According to a statement submitted, the amount of sugar produced by the Knight Sugar Co., of Raymond, Alta., from the beet crop of 1906, was 4,673,200 pounds. The Government bonus to beet growers aggregated $23,366. Adding this to the amount paid for beets at the factory, averaging $5.64 per ton, and assuming the production to run 10 tons to the acre, it will be found that the return to the farmer was $59.40 per acre.

AUSTRALIA'S BUMPER CROP.

Australia's wheat crop for 1907 is expected to excel all previous years, and similar reports are arriving from New Zealand. Australia is expected to gather in something over 80,000,000 bushels at a conservative estimate, which will be a 5,000,000 bushel gain over last year, and, with the exception of the phenomenal yield in 1903-04, the highest record Australia has yet shown. In the wheat crop of 1903-04 the Australian Commonwealth exported 38,500,000 bushels, but the following year, owing chiefly to the drought, it only exported 36,000,000 bushels. In 1905-06, however, it recovered a little and exported 37,500,000 bushels, while this year it is expected that the exports will again exceed 38,000,000 bushels.

At the Buffalo Convention

The Dodge One-Piece Metallic Cap for the Hermetic Sealing of glass packages

WON IT'S GREATEST VICTORY

It received the enthusiastic endorsement of every packer present. Those who had used it were outspoken in it's praise. All who saw it's practical demonstration on the Dodge new Self-Adjusting Capping Machine were surprised at it's perfect seal and adaptability in meeting the requirements of the Pure Food Law.

As a closure to be used in processing it has no competitor. Its mechanical simplicity and being assembled and ready to place give it extraordinary economical advantages in both time and money to the packer.

Its handy and easy detachment without instruments or printed directions forces the public to prefer the package sealed by it, as damaged forks, twisted knife blades, broken glass, hard struggles and torn or cut fingers are entirely obviated by its use.

Its clean, neat and handsome appearance always remain, making dirty, rusty, sticky, leaky and consequently unsalable goods on grocers' shelves a thing of the past.

Besides the regular Dodge closure used extensively by the pickling and jam trade, other forms of value to the packer are, namely:

The Dodge Cork-lined Ketchup and Bottle Cap for crown finish bottles; will not blow off before, during or after the processing.

The Dodge Jelly Tumbler Cap with narrow rim, sealing neatly on a rounded rim of a tumbler.

The Dodge Replacable Mustard Can with spoon accommodation.

The Dodge Process Cap for light syrup, fruits, requiring the bath; allows of venting the package while processing. A replacable seal on the lever principle that can be used over and over again.

The Dodge principle of closing receptacles of all kinds is undoubtedly the most perfect system ever invented, and of immense value to the Canning and Preserving industry.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Southern Stuff Earlier This Year—Fish Dropping Out—Lemons Higher—Vegetables Quiet—Pineapples Will be Small.

With the approach of Easter the fruit market is beginning to wake up. With Easter will come the formal opening of the southern trade, though all the southern stuff is a week or ten days earlier this year than last. Consignments are trickling in in small lots already, and all southern vegetables are expected to be plentiful. The demand for green stuff is greatly retarded by the bad weather, and all the retailers are praying fervently for sun and warmth, in place of slush and water, with which the market is at present overloaded.

Trade in all lines will be quiet until the farmers begin to come to town. The demand for fish, though still brisk, is dropping, and a few weeks more will see several lines at a standstill. Haddock has gone up 4c. since last week and is now selling at 3c. over the Montreal market. The lemon market is in good shape, with the demand very active. Unusually little trouble has been experienced this year with frozen lemons, owing to the improved transportation facilities, the ocean vessels being now provided with heated docks, into which they can unload the fruit. The cars can also be filled from the same docks, and, when tightly sealed, will withstand severe weather without damage to the fruit.

Strawberries are coming in gradually, some excellent samples having been received from Florida. The southwestern stuff is not so good. Cranberries are cleaning up at $8.50 per barrel. There is a good demand for evaporated fruit, especially apples.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—No change in the price of bananas is noticeable this week, but there is a strong feeling in the market and higher figures will probably be asked in the near future, the more so that Easter is approaching and dealers always ask more for the fruit at this season. Oranges and lemons are in fair demand at figures quoted, while there is a small consumptive demand for other lines.

VEGETABLES—Little trade is being transacted in vegetables these days. Consumers have not much use for cabbage, tomatoes and other such lines during the Lenten season. Another fact tending to keep down demand is the high run of prices. Dealers are forced to ask large figures for the imported goods, but few retailers are in a position to carry anything but a small stock as only select customers can afford to pay the prices which must necessarily be asked for these goods. Mushrooms are 80c. this week. No other price change is noticeable.

FISH—Lent being half over, but two weeks remain, orders are not so large as they have been for the past while. Fish dealers are just as well satisfied that this is the case as they are sold out in many of the lines most in demand. Dealers are no longer quoting frozen haddock and cod, but fresh haddock is selling freely, as is also new frozen lake trout. Frozen herring and halibut are scarce, also salmon. Tomcods are lower. Yarmouth bloaters and kippers are arriving in good quantities. There is a scarcity of new haddies, prices for which are high.

TORONTO.

FRUIT—A small shipment of California pears and plums, one of the first of the season, was received in the early part of the week. Some pears were on the market from Cape Colony, and arrived in good shape. They sold at $2.25 and $2.50 per box of 45. The advent of Easter will have the effect of sending prices up all round, though the raise will be only temporary. Pineapples, on account of the dry weather, will run small in both Cuban and Florida varieties. Bananas are quiet, with prospects of a slight raise in the near future. Apples are advancing, with Spies chiefly in demand, and the supply scarce. Lemons are firmer, and show a rise of 50c. over last week. Grape fruit is rising steadily and, in the opinion of many importers, will reach $6 within a few weeks. Marmalade oranges are scarce, but the demand is good and several shipments have enjoyed an advance sale at from $2.30 to $$2.60 a box.

FISH—Several varieties have dropped out since last week, but the demand still continues fairly brisk, and will take a jump towards the end of Lent. All dealers are figuring, as usual, on a heavy call for Good Friday, and are stocking accordingly. Haddock has gone up 4c. a lb. since last week, and is now selling at 3c. over the Montreal market.

VEGETABLES—Trade remains quiet. Shipments of Dutch sett onions have come to hand in first-class shape, and will be put on the market at the first sign of improved weather conditions. From $3.25 to $3.50 a case is being asked for Valencias, with the Liverpool market about the same. Bay onions are high and scarce. Old cabbage is being cleared up at $30 per ton. California celery is enjoying a ready sale at $6 or thereabouts.

FOOD STUFF TRADE NEWS FROM THE ATLANTIC SEABOARD

(By Canadian Grocer Special Correspondent.)

Halifax, N.S., March 12, 1907.

Trade continues fair considering the weather conditions, which are not incentive to good business. There is a great scarcity of eggs just at present. The market is about bare, and the price has been advanced five cents per dozen. All the dealers are clamoring for eggs, but none are available. Butter is also scarce. Potatoes are jobbing at $2.25 per three bushel bag. The arrival during the week of 300 bags from New Brunswick relieved the market to some extent.

FISH.—The boisterous weather on the coast the past few weeks has prevented the fishermen from going out to the grounds, and as a result the market is almost bare of fresh caught fish. Had it not been for the cold storage warehouses, which were well stocked, there would have been a fish famine in Halifax this Lent. The shortage in the supply and the heavy demand has caused an increase in prices. Lobster shipments from these parts to the American markets have practically ceased, owing to the scarcity. Large lobsters are selling in Boston at $35 per crate and upwards. In New York, lobsters (large) sell at 45 to 50 cents per pound, and small at $35 per crate.

There is a scarcity of fodder in the country districts. The supply of hay is not equal to the demand.

The fruit growers of Prince Edward are asking for assistance from the Government to inaugurate a packing house for fruit at Charlottetown.

The McClelland Bros. Co., has been organized at Annapolis Royal with a capital of $10,000. Geo. E. Corbitt is president. The company has bought a large number of farms near Annapolis and intends going into the sheep-raising industry on a large scale.

Michael Dwyer, head of the large wholesale grocery firm of John Tobin & Co., is visiting England.

Howard Smith, of the fish exporting firm of W. & M. Smith, Halifax, has left on a tour of Europe. He was accompanied by Mrs. Smith.

Rupert M. Symons, of Halifax, has been elected president of the Nova Scotia Grocers' Guild. Mr. Symons is well known to the trade of this province.

Fred J. Ward, of the firm of John P. Mott & Co., manufacturers of cocoa, chocolates, soaps and spices, has been visiting friends in Montreal, and accompanied by his wife he has gone on to Philadelphia to visit relatives.

William A. Emmerson, a former maritime traveler, died at his home at North Sydney last week. Mr. Emmerson was favorably known throughout the province, he having some years ago represented the wholesale grocery firm of R. B. Seeton & Co. He was prominent in military and musical matters, having, as a member of the 63rd Halifax Rifles, served in the Northwest Rebellion. He organized a cadet corps at North Sydney, and has been secretary of the Eastern Club since its inception. He was 45 years of age and leaves a widow and six children. Since taking up his residence in the Cape Breton town he has been engaged in the commission business.

MAKING A TOILET SOAP GO.

An interesting effort is being made to advertise Plantol toilet soap, a high-grade product of the Sunlight Soap people. Robert Barron, one of Toronto's prominent grocers, is sending to his patrons under date of Feb. 21 the following letter typewritten:

"Dear Madam,—We have the pleasure to bring to your notice a SPECIAL DEAL ON SUNLIGHT SOAP.

"Sunlight Soap, as you are aware, is usually sold at 5 cents a tablet, but, owing to our having made special arrangements with the manufacturer to take a large quantity, we can offer you an original case of 100 TABLETS FOR $4.50,

and will give you

6 CAKES OF PLANTOL TOILET SOAP FREE.

"Plantol Soap is a high class toilet soap, worth 20 cents a cake, so that this offer saves $1.70 to those who take advantage of it.

"As we only have a limited supply, please telephone your order early, as we can only make this offer whilst our present stock lasts."

AUSTRALIA PREFERS CANADIAN TRADE.

L. Gerald Freeman, of Melbourne, Australia, who is at present on a tour through Canada with the object of quickening trade relations between the Dominion and the Australian Commonwealth, says that Australians would be only too glad to give preference to Canadian manufacturers, and he was convinced that, with a little effort, Canadians could oust United States trade from the Australian markets.

GROCERY FIRM BURNT OUT.

Woodstock, Ont., suffered a severe loss by fire on March 1st, when the whole block adjacent to the post office was wiped out. Among other buildings destroyed was that occupied by Stevens & Haydens, grocers. William Lilley's meat market was also a total loss.

Twenty-seven cars of California celery to date is the record of White & Co. for this winter. A few years ago California celery was unknown. It fills in the gap well at a time when other vegetables are scarce and high.

The Tobin Tent & Awning Co., Ottawa ?

It's worth considering.

EGG INSURANCE

What is it? A simple and effective method of delivering eggs by wagon without breakage just as quick and cheap as it is sure, costs one-third of one cent per dozen eggs and saves more than the cost in time alone, to say nothing of what it saves in breakage.

TO BE CONVINCED

try a sample order of STAR EGG CARRIERS and TRAYS now. During the next sixty days you will sell many hundreds of dozens of eggs. What will the breakage amount to if you are using the old style carriers, and what will it cost?

A COMPARISON

If you are now using paper boxes for delivering, experience tells you how much breakage occurs. Your clerks can tell you how much time is wasted, and figures tell you that your

First purchase of 5 M. paper boxes at $9.00 per M., cost you	$45.00
Second purchase of 5 M. paper boxes at $9.00 per M., cost you	45.00
Total	$90.00
We Supply you Star Egg Carriers and Trays.

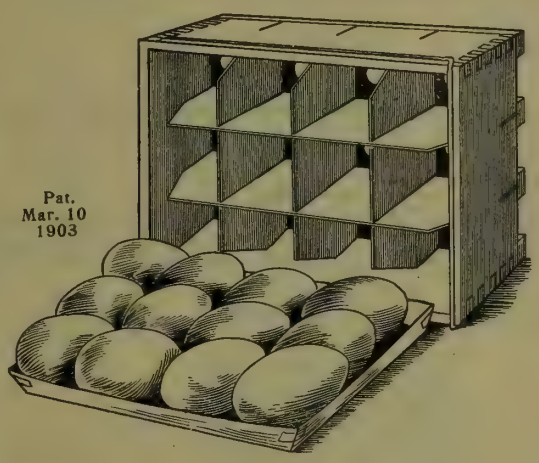
Second purchase 5 M. Star Egg Trays for $3.50 per M.	17.50
(You have the Carriers) Total	$40.50



Your Saving is $49.50, or nearly 60% and no broken Eggs.

These facts must appeal to you as they have appealed to thousands of grocers who are using the STAR EGG CARRIER and would not be without it. Try a few dozen—order from your Wholesale Grocer, or if he cannot supply you, write direct to the General Agents—

ONE OF FIFTY STYLES

The Bowser Self-Measuring Oil Tank makes it a positive pleasure to sell oil. Why? Because it is convenient. Just a few steps to the pump, one simple stroke and the can is filled. It's just as easy as selling a package of breakfast food. Because it is clean. All the oil is kept where it belongs, in the tank or in the customer's can. Because it is safe. No danger of fire or explosion. Because it is economical. It pays for itself in one year by its own saving of time, labor and oil.

If you handle oil with the old style tank, you can realize what the Bowser gives you. Catalog B tells more about the Bowser. Send for it to-day.

If you are a subscriber of CANADIAN GROCER, you can insert a notice free in

CANADIAN MACHINERY

TORONTO MONTREAL

NO MONOPOLY

can be obtained on the raw materials that are used in the manufacture of Pickles, Sauces, Jams, etc., no manufacturer can corner the market. We buy the best raw materials obtainable, we pay the highest prices for it.

MACONOCHIE'S PICKLES

for instance, are prepared from English grown vegetables, and the finest well matured, MALT VINEGAR. Our process retains all the natural flavor and crispness of the vegetable, we court comparison with any pickle produced anywhere. We ask you, Mr. Grocer, to compare Maconochie's Pickles to-day with the highest-priced pickle on your shelf.

If you are disinterested, you will be bound to acknowledge that ours is not only the best quality, but the greatest value, and as the prices we count on your co-operation to place, in the homes of the Canadian public, high grade British goods that are honest value. We have confidence in your judgment, when you ask your jobber for MACONOCHIE'S GOODS turn a deaf ear, if any reason is advanced why you should buy others, said to be just as good. Be firm, if he has not got them, remember there are others willing to let you use your own judgment.

LEAVE YOU A GOOD PROFIT

The Methods of Packing

C. & B. goods are the most scientific and up-to-date known, and that is ONE reason why C. & B. goods are superior to any ordinary brands and why every storekeeper who looks to his interests should stock them. It is admitted that on the packing depends the preservation and quality of the goods. Carelessly packed foods are a menace, not only to the users, but also to the storekeeper who sells them. It is, therefore, imperative that every storekeeper should stock only goods which can be relied upon in every way. With C. & B. goods you can be certain of the taste and quality and need not fear any complaint from the consumer. Our new Vacuum Glass Jars of Galantines of Veal and Ham, Chicken and Tongue, and Brawn are the acme of perfection in the art of food packing. Send an order in for a trial lot to-day.

Capital and Surplus, $1,500,000. Offices Throughout the Civilized World
Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claims as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

A Unanimous Verdict

Old Homestead Brand of Canned Goods have been on trial, now going on four years. Three verdicts have been delivered by the women of Canada, who have been judge and jury, and these verdicts have only been arrived at after submitting our goods to every conceivable test. The first year's verdict was

"None Better"

We started the second year firmly convinced that Old Homestead Brand of Canned Goods were easily the best ever marketed, and the second popular decision of Canadian Housewives only served to confirm our opinion. That decision was

"None Nearly So Good"

In the third year of our race for supremacy in our line we took extra special precautions and increased our facilities because we were convinced that the OLD HOMESTEAD Brand of Canned Goods were practically in a class by themselves. The third annual verdict was absolutely unanimous. The women of Canada, after three years careful analysis, have arrived at the verdict that our far-famed brand is altogether

"INCOMPARABLE"

Can any Grocer in the Dominion afford to ignore the wants of women? You certainly are not giving yourself anything like a square deal unless you sell this thoroughly reliable, always delicious, far-famed brand. Better send along that trial order now if you've never stocked Old Homestead Brand of Canned Goods. Do it Now!

PLACING an order with the OZO CO. means something more to the buyer than assurance of the delivery of a certain quantity of goods at such and such a price. Our product not only gives the impression of neatness and wholesomeness, which is the token of carefully prepared goods, but has a fitness which attracts the customer and inevitably ends in a sale. The firm control the planting, the handling and the making of their product, make their own vinegar, and such a vinegar as experience has taught them will go a long way towards making the best pickles. Our goods cost no more than others; their selling ability is double that of the common article. Turning your dollar over twice makes the profit of double that capital and is business.

Credit and Money

Nine-tenths of the grocers who sell Windsor Salt (pure, white, crystaline, won't cake) have money in the bank. They discount their bills. Their credit is "A, Number One." Happy grocers they!

Windsor Salt plays its own little part in bringing about this contented state of things. It never disappoints the grocers' customer who buys it. It serves to hold confidence in the quality of a grocer's general stock. It establishes permanent family trade. It helps a grocer's credit—it brings him money.

DEAR SIRS,—

On March 1st, we opened in Edmonton, Alberta, Office and Warehouse No. 3; our Western business has increased so rapidly we found it necessary to open a branch in Edmonton, in a four storey solid brick building, 50 x 120, situated on the Transfer Track, and we are prepared to store all kinds of merchandise at reasonable rates, and handle consignments with the same promptness and efficiency as in Winnipeg and Calgary. If you wish to place your account with a live, pushing and energetic Brokerage house at the three great jobbing centres in the Great West, write us. We sell every Grocery Jobbing House from the Lake Front to the Rocky Mountains; we represent many large Manufacturers and Shippers, make lasting connections with them; we can do the same for you. Write us, wire us, send us your samples and prices.

The buying of

JAPAN TEAS

"ESSEX"
PORK AND BEANS

The growing demand for properly prepared Pork and Beans has encouraged The Essex Canning & Preserving Company to add this product to their already large variety of fruits and vegetables. The Essex factory, being located in the most favored agricultural section of Ontario and being new, is equipped with every modern facility for doing things right.

The "Essex" Pork and Beans are prepared by a special process that entirely eliminates that strong taste found in other brands. Every bean used is hand-picked from selected stock and is thoroughly washed and cleansed before being cooked.

On opening a can of Essex brand of Pork and Beans (the very perfection of the Essex process is shown in this) it will be found that every bean is entirely whole, thoroughly cooked, mellow, amber-colored and porous, pleasing to the eye and appetising, a distinct advance over anything attempted in Canada heretofore.

Moreover, when we added to the Pork and Beans our Special Brand of Tomato Sauce, made from fresh ripe tomatoes and purest of spices under a special process, we are confident that when you have once tried them you will, like Oliver Twist, "still ask for more."

Put up in neat packages with attractive labels, 1½s, 2s and 3s.

"Mr. Grocer,—Do you know that SAVOY BRAND is the only high-grade Baked Bean packed in Canada?"

"Do you realize how important it is in these days of Pure Food agitation that you should offer your customers only the best?"

Savoy Brand Pork and Beans

are prepared according to the original Boston recipe—of carefully selected, hand picked, Canadian Beans and tender Canadian pork. They are as different from other beans as day is from night.

HERE'S WHERE YOU COME IN

We ask you to stock Savoy Pork and Beans for two reasons—

First. The excellence of this product will strengthen your reputation for handling the "highest quality" food products.

Second. YOU CAN MAKE MORE MONEY ON THEM THAN ON ANY OTHER BRAND. There is strong conviction in this argument. Think it over.

TWO DOZEN TINS FREE

EXTRA PROFIT IN ADVANCE

We will give you one case of 2 dozen No. 2 tins of Savoy Pork and Beans free with every five cases of No. 1, No. 2, or No. 3 purchased. This offer also applies to assorted orders for five case lots of these sizes.

Savoy Beans are packed in four sizes, No. ½, No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3, both plain and in Tomato Sauce.

Send your order to your jobber or direct to us. In the latter case, don't fail to mention the wholesaler through whom you prefer the goods to be shipped.

Send in a trial order for five cases. The Beans sell themselves.

SOME HOURS BETWEEN TRAINS WITH THE TRADE IN COOKSTOWN

(By a Canadian Grocer Staff Correspondent.)

We are enabled this week, through an unexpected incident, to devote some space to a town whose name has not found its way into The Canadian Grocer columns as often as it deserves. A representative of The Grocer, being sidetracked through an error in the railway time-table, found himself landed at Cookstown, with several hours on his hands and apparently no outlet to his energies. The prospect, at first, looked anything but engaging, and the G.R. started to ransack his vocabulary for words suitable to the occasion. Finding nothing adequate, he suddenly bethought himself that he was greatly an hungered, and with the end of satisfying his appetite with such delicacies as Cookstown offered, turned his steps in the direction of the nearest hotel. Here again, however, Fate pursued him, for he found himself forestalled by countless hosts of farmers, who with the capacity of their kind, were occupying to advantage, every inch of seating material in the dining-room. The reason of this extraordinary influx was speedily discovered in the person of Mr.— the energetic Cookstown agent of the Massey-Harris Co., who explained that the company made only one delivery per year, and that this day was always a great occasion among the neighboring farmers. The Grocer discovered later what the modesty of the agent had forbidden him to mention; namely, that the dinner and liquids were supplied gratis by the Massey-Harris people. There seemed to be no chance of a meal for an indefinite period, however, and The Grocer decided to spend the time which must elapse before he could obtain nourishment in visiting the grocers and general stores in the town, two or three of which he had observed on his way to the hotel.

His first objective point was the corner of King and Queen Sts., for his attention had been immediately attracted by the large painted letters on the north side of the building, proclaiming it to be the store of A. Wilcox. Mr. Wilcox was unfortunately out, but his business being of a size to warrant his employing an assistant, The Grocer was agreeably entertained by the latter gentleman pending the arrival of Mr. Wilcox himself. The assistant, whose name did not transpire, struck The Grocer rather forcibly as being of the sort most valuable to their employers. He was courteous and affable, not only to the writer, but to every customer, and they were many, that entered the store during the conversation, no matter whether a sale was effected or not. He manifested a keen and intelligent interest in window-dressing and general store display, and lamented the lack of opportunity for learning the art in his present position, complaining that his ignorance of the fundamental principles prevented his advancing beyond a certain point. The Grocer had the pleasure of introducing him to two or three novel ideas which he himself had gleaned from the competitors in the window-dressing competition, his pupil showing a grasp and appreciation of arrangement and grouping, most unusual in a beginner. The store itself was large, but all the floor space was being used to advantage, and the shelves exhibited a varied line of canned fruits and vegetables. The whole interior had an air of cleanliness and attraction that was most inviting—and The Grocer was not surprised to learn that Mr. Wilcox does one of the largest businesses in town.

Wrestled With the Credit System.

A little higher up on King St. The Grocer noticed the name of W. J. Broley, baker and groceries, and went inside to make his acquaintance. Mr. Broley, it transpired, has been in Cookstown for the last 6 years, and two years ago started in business for himself. He made a vow at that time that he would do a cash business and nothing but a cash business, and for the first month or so, stuck manfully to his resolution. But in the end, he had to give in. Other grocers, he said, gave credit, and if he had attempted to refuse it he might just as well have gone out of business at once. It was impossible, he asserted, when other men in the same line of trade opposed it, to insist on cash payments. He tried now to confine the privilege of running an account to a few of his best and wealthiest customers, but here again was constantly being confronted with the delicate problem of favoring some and black-listing others. It amounted to too nice a distinction altogether when one was called upon to discriminate between A's high standing in the community and utter inpecuniosity, and B's well-known intemperance and general bad character in combination with his undoubted ability to meet his liabilities. If one gave credit to the former and refused it to the latter, B's anger was immediately aroused, while if one reversed the situation, A was reduced to the last stage of offended pride and wounded self-respect. If credit was refused to both of them impartially, A was practically excluded from doing any purchasing at all, which was perhaps a good thing, but B was insulted and took his custom elsewhere—while if credit was allowed to each of them the quantity of trade gained from B was almost offset by the amount lost through A's failure to meet his payments when they fell due.

Going More to Baking.

Altogether it was a vexed question, and Mr. Broley confessed that all his thought and calculations had brought him no nearer to a solution of the difficulty. He reported a ready sale of canned goods in the district, and was expecting to realize a nice little sum on several dozen cases of salmon which he had bought last year for $1.67 a case, and which were now worth $1.85. He finds confectionery a fine side-line and pushes it hard in the summer time, but he is gradually excluding both candy and groceries from his shelves in order to allow more time and concentration for the development of his baking, for which he sees a splendid opening in Cookstown.

Merchant and Banker.

V. S. Willoughby, whose general store next claimed The Grocer's attention, was out of town. Not content with possessing one of the most comprehensive establishments in Cookstown, he some time ago accepted the position of manager of the Sterling Bank at Lefroy, and thither he journeys daily, dividing his time and attention between his commercial interests in one town and financial responsibilities in another. The Grocer was pleased to learn that he was an old friend of the paper, having taken it and Hardware and Metal for some time past. Half of his store appeared to be devoted to groceries, and half to hardware, and he seemed to be doing a thriving trade in each. The Grocer left with a hearty invitation to call again and greet Mr. Willoughby in person, an invitation of which he intends to take advantage at the first opportunity.

Strong for Organization.

A large sign across the road proclaimed that H. Couse sold groceries and confectionery and dealt in flour and feed. To Mr. Couse's store, therefore, The Grocer adjourned, and was hospitably welcomed by the proprietor himself, with whom he was soon deep in conversation. Mr. Couse, being a member of the town council, had ideas on many things, and, among others, advanced several exceedingly strong arguments in support of a movement of which The Canadian Grocer has long been one of the staunchest advocates—that of retail organization. Both he and Mr. Wilcox, with whom The Grocer was fortunate enough to secure an interview later, appeared to feel very strongly on the question, and it was a pleasure to discuss the subject with men of such sound conviction and loyal sympathy. "Much of the opposition," said Mr. Wilcox, arises solely through ignorance, and ignorance, in these days of trade newspapers and numerous other sources of information, for which there is no excuse. The other day I overheard a small retail merchant, in discussing the matter with a friend, make a statement displaying a lack of knowledge which would be laughable if it were not so deplorable. He accused the wholesalers of being a wholly useless and unnecessary organization, 'interfering middlemen' were the words he used—and claimed that the retailers would be better off without them. If he had stopped to consider," added Mr. Wilcox, "the

WINDOWS AS ADVERTISEMENTS

Surprising Lack of Interest in Window Dressing—Some Reform in Sight — A Few Pointers Which Will Aid in Makin g Displays.

Few grocers realize what a valuable asset they have in their window. They do not stop to consider what an advertising medium it is, nor do they recognize its tremendous drawing power if properly looked after.

It is a pity that such a state of affairs should exist. Every grocer knows that there is not sufficient profit in foodstuffs to warrant the neglect of any means which will tend to increase trade and consequently enlarge profits.

There are certainly a great many retail grocers who do appreciate a window at its true value, and they are up-to-date in other respects, too, it will be noticed. But when their number is considered and compared with the number of grocers in this Dominion it will be seen that the opening statement is justified.

Why Lack of Interest?

Why do not the grocers give more attention to their windows and to window dressing? In the Old Country it is considered very important and necessary that the store front should always be utilized to advertise the interior. Here in Canada dry goods merchants frequently change their windows. Cigar stores, many of them, have a new display each week. Why not the grocers?

Lack of interest and the non-realization of the window as a valuable asset account for the grocers' stand on this matter.

Happily there are signs of reform in this direction. The Canadian Grocer has conducted window-dressing competitions in the past and will continue to do so. This has stimulated interest on the part of grocers throughout the Dominion, and they are every year using more and more their store windows for display purposes.

Window Too Small.

A great many complain they have not large enough windows to make a decent display. Perhaps you are in this class. Do not let that discourage you. Go right ahead and make the best of the window. Where there's a window there's a way to dress it. Some of the prettiest and most effective displays seen by the writer were made in narrow windows with ugly corners and poor light effects. The dresser brought his ingenuity into play and got over these difficulties.

What kind of a display you can make depends upon what you wish to advertise, the kind of a window at your disposal, and the ideas you have for dressing it.

There are certain things which should be observed in connection with all window dressing.

General Facts to Observe.

See that the window is clean. A sheet of glass which is not quite clean detracts considerably from the beauty of the display. If there are any mirrors be careful that they are all shining, and see to it that the floor of the window is spotless. In the Mother Country the progressive grocers have tiled window bottoms, making it possible to keep the window white as snow at all times. Favoring the tiling of windows also is the fact that it is never necessary to use papers to conceal the flooring. In this respect Canadians might emulate the Old Country grocers.

Overcrowding.

Very often what otherwise would be an excellent window is marred in effect by overcrowding. Too much merchandise is placed on display at once. Remember that simplicity is a great charm in window dressing. Better impress strongly upon the observer's mind the name and merit of one article than create but a fleeting impression of several lines. On the other hand, do not leave the window bare. Your own good judgment should guide you in this matter.

One Line at a Time.

If you will let the public know what you have in stock, go about it gradually. Make a display of one or two lines at a time and change your window frequently. In these days it is found most satisfactory to specialize in this matter, as in many others. If you decide to make a tea window, let it be a tea window. See that the window is dressed in such a manner as to make a lasting impression upon those who look at it. The same applies in the case of soap, or breakfast food, or any other line.

Strive to obtain harmonious effect as far as possible. For instance in displaying package goods it is frequently possible by a little extra care to attain an effect very pleasing to the eye.

Light Effects.

See that your light effects are as good as possible. Never so arrange your electric globes that they shine out upon the pavement. Direct their glare upon the goods contained in the window.

And finally, do not plaster the plate glass with signs calling attention to this line or that bargain. It looks very bad, and besides, hides the window display. Cards are all right in the display itself, bearing prices and catchy phrases, but they don't do stuck upon the window itself.

"Bovril" Window of A. Hagmeier. Hespeler, who won First Prize in District No. 2.

A Little of Everything.

In this connection mention might be made of the foolish habit of some in trying to put into a window a little bit of everything they carry. The writer recalls one window which came under his observation in a thriving Ontario town. Therein might be seen three or four finnan haddies on a platter, containing also a couple of pound prints of creamery butter; a cup of beans and a saucer holding rice; oranges, lemons, soda biscuits, raisins and boot laces were shown in front, while package tea formed a background, a few bottles of patent medicines and a couple of brushes and a broom completing this window. Imagine the impression created upon the mind of the passerby, or a prospective customer! Of course, this was an extreme. It may seem ridiculous, but it's a fact. The window was the laughing stock of the town, and eventually the grocer realized this and reformed.

BOVRIL'S WINDOW DRESSING COMPETITION.

Prizes have lately been awarded by the Bovril Company to the fortunate winners in the window dressing competition inaugurated by this company last fall.

The eastern portion of Canada was divided into eight districts: 1. Western Ontario, (Sault Ste. Marie and east to Berlin); 2, Central Ontario, (Berlin and east to Peterborough, exclusive of Toronto); 3, Eastern Ontario, (Peterborough and all east); 4, Toronto; 5, Montreal; 6, Province of Quebec, (exclusive of Montreal); 7, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island; 8, Nova Scotia.

In each district 15 prizes were offered, a first of $50; a second of $25; three of $10 each, and ten of $5 each, making a total of $1,250 given in prizes.

Grocers and druggists displayed great interest in the competition; hundreds entering in the hope of winning a prize for the attractive dressing of their windows with this widely known food preparation, and from the photographs sent in, it is evident that many of the competitors spent a good deal of time and thought on the arrangement of their displays. As an instance, might be mentioned J. Blood, 419 Yonge St., Toronto, whose window was awarded the first prize in that district. This was a very good display, bringing into prominence the Yonge street bridge idea, which is a local question of great interest; and at the same time making a strong showing of "Bovril." A Hagmeier, Hespeler, whose window is reproduced here, won the first prize in district No. 2. The artistic arrangement of this window is its strong point; but the idea of the bottles in the life preservers, portraying "Bovril" as a preserver of life, is very good. The first prize in district No. 1 went to John Diprose, London, for a very strong and effective window, showing "Bovril" as a "Tower of Strength." Strong & Strong came first in Montreal, No. 5 district; and J. Savard, Quebec, in district No. 6.

Owing to the fact that they were late in getting started, districts Nos. 7 and 8, did not compete, frosted windows making it impossible to obtain good photographs. They will, however, enter the competition which Bovril Limited are arranging for the coming fall, for the western portion of the country, from Port Arthur to the coast.

The judges in the competition just closed were: O. S. Perrault, advertising manager, American Tobacco Co.; W. J. Carrique, manager, the Canadian Street Car Advertising Co.; A. B. Ware, the Ware Company, outdoor advertisers.

HAMILTON GROCERY BROKERS.

Among the number of up-to-date and front-rank grocery brokers of Hamilton is the firm of McFarlane & Field. Hamilton is now and always has been recognized as one of Canada's leading grocery distributing centres and it goes without saying that to cater to the jobbers in a city of this sort men of experience and knowledge of goods are required. McFarlane & Field, although only established as a brokerage firm some six or seven years, are to-day right in line with the old-timers. Mr. McFarlane stands out as an authority in tins and this branch has been a study and hobby with him for a quarter of a century or more. Mr. Field's connection with the Hamilton jobbing trade is a long one, although still a young man. Among the agencies controlled by McFarlane & Field are: Harrisons & Crosfield, London; Crosfield, Lampard & Co., Colombo; Lampard, Clark & Co., Calcutta, for Ceylon and India teas; Hellyer & Co., Japan, Japan teas; Rosenberg Bros. & Co., San Francisco, dried fruits; Delyanna Bros., Patras, Greece, currants, etc. They are also extensive brokers in domestic evaporated fruits. In all lines they enjoy the confidence of their principals and support of the jobbing trade.

CANADIAN APPLE TRADE MAKES STRIDES IN ENGLAND

By J. B. Jackson, Canadian Commereial Agent at Leeds and Hull.

During the past season the predominant feature has been the large quantities of Canadian apples which have been received by local buyers, direct from Canadian packers. At least 50,000 barrels have been shipped into this district.

This is but the beginning of a direct trade, which will increase with larger volume during each succeeding year. The apples received direct have also been much better packed and graded than those that have been bought by local men at the auction rooms at the ports.

Good Condition of Apples.

The apples received here this year, with very few exceptions, have been excellent, both in quality, packing and grading; in fact, the apples opened out here in as fine a condition and with as perfect a flavor as when picked in the Canadian orchards. Slacks were entirely eliminated, and consequently no bruised or disfigured fruit.

To inspect Canadian apples in the warehouse, or in the merchants' stalls, alongside of the miserably-packed fruit from the United States, was an inspiration to a Canadian, and proved conclusively that the Canadian packer has at last fully grasped the vast possibilities of this market, when catered for in the proper manner.

Most Desirable Fruit.

Canadian exporters to this district are to be congratulated upon the efficient and business-like manner in which they have placed Canadian apples, not only as the best flavored and most desirable fruit of its kind on the English market, but as the only apples entering England in large quantities, where the packing and grading is of the best.

Good prices have been obtained by the Canadian exporter to the inland cities, better than at the ports; whilst the different dealers are jubilant at the prices realized, the saving of the middleman's commission and traveling expenses, and with the vision of larger trade and profits during the next season are ready at the earliest moment to make full and complete arrangements for next season.

Boxes in Favor in Leeds.

I have often in the past stated as my opinion that the finest of Canadian apples would be very acceptable here if packed in boxes, as especially at this time of the year, many people are rather chary at buying a whole barrel. On account of my suggestions, an Ontario packer has shipped here direct some 300 boxes of "Baldwins"; and as I was rather interested in seeing the outcome of this venture, I inspected the fruit at the fruit market in this city. I found a most presentable looking box, in fact, I think a little better than was necessary, measuring about two feet long by one foot wide, and weighing about 50 lbs., containing on an average about 125 apples. The boxes were filled with the finest "Baldwins" I have seen this season, and arrived here in perfect condition. Each box was nicely stencilled and inside a large card the same size as the box, attractively got up, represented the contents as "Choicest Canadian apples," with the name and address of the shipper. The prices being received are from 6s. to 6s. 6d. per box.

This innovation is intended to meet a long-felt want in supplying shopkeepers who have a better class of customers in the principal suburbs surrounding this city. This shipper deserves to be congratulated for having placed on the market the best Canadian-boxed apples which have ever appeared in this district.

The New Zealand apples always arrive in boxes and are most carefully and tastefully packed. But one of the large wholesale men said to me to-day:—

"In the neatness of the Canadian boxes, quality of apples, and style of packing, Canada has far outdone New Zealand."

CASTILE SOAPS.

It is not generally known that the manufacture of castile soaps has been successfully begun in Canada, nor is it generally known of what castile soaps are made. Olive oil, in its pure state, is the principal ingredient, and as olive oil has become recognized for its healing and curative properties, due to the natural sulphur it contains, as well as its antiseptic value, castile soap is looked upon as the purest and best form in which soap can be produced.

A Canadian company, with an entirely new process, has been engaged for some months in manufacturing both toilet and laundry castile soaps, and wherever their goods have been introduced have met with very encouraging results. By their new process their goods can be put out at a price within the reach of all, being put up to sell at the popular prices, five and ten cents per cake.

The castile laundry soap, known as "Olive Oil" laundry soap, is something entirely new on the Canadian market, being the only soap of its kind, and enables everyone who appreciates a good soap to procure a castile soap at the same price as ordinary soaps, for all their laundry and household purposes. This soap is green in color, the same as the olive oil, due to the natural sulphur the oil contains.

The Canadian Castile Soap Company Limited, Berlin, Ont., are to be congratulated on their efforts in this direction, marking an advance in the soap industry of this country.

CROWN BRAND SYRUP ADVANCED

Crown brand corn syrup has been advanced, new prices going into effect March 14. New quotations are: 2 lb. tins, case, $2; 5 lb. tins, case, $2.45; 10 lb. tins, case, $2.40; 20 lb. tins, case, $2.35; barrels, 2⅞c lb.; half barrels, 3c lb.; quarter barrels, 3⅛c lb; pails, 38½ lbs., each $1.50; pails, each 25 lbs., $1.10. It will be seen that 2 lb., 5 lb., and 10 lb. tins have been advanced 5c. 20 lb. tins and 25 lb. and 38 lb. pails have been advanced 10c.

NEW GOLD STANDARD QUARTERS

Splendid Warehouse Erected in Winni peg by the Codville Georgeson Co. — Palatial Offices—Large Manufacturing Department.

Winnipeg, the capital city of the Prairie province, has recently acquired another fine commercial structure in the mammoth wholesale grocery warehouse just completed for the Codville Georgeson Co. The building is situated at the foot of Portage Avenue East on Victoria street, and is seven stories in height, with the front of dressed native stone.

The plans were prepared by Architect D. Smith, and the construction placed in the capable hands of the Kelly Bros. & Mitchell Co. It is built upon what is known as the solid mill, or slow burning construction, the footings being of solid cement from nine to twelve feet wide and four to six feet thick. while solid blocks of hewn stone set twelve feet apart are embedded in cement, and on these rest the great pillars which support the structure. Each pillar is capable of sustaining a weight of seventy tons. The floors are of six inch fir, set on edge, with a top dressing of grooved maple. The plastering is laid on steel lath, the windows are of wire glass, and the entrances to the elevator shafts are protected by steel curtain fire doors. A sprinkler system, supplied from a 15,000 gallon tank on the roof, completes the fireproof arrangements.

On the north side of the building there is a driveway which gives accommodation for ten dray teams, and under the driveway, in the basement, provision has been made for the preservation by cold storage of immense shipments of produce in perfect condition. The Johnson system of heat regulation has been adopted, and a powerful rider double-cylinder engine forces the water from an artesian well, 200 feet deep, to all parts of the building.

The shipping department is on the first floor, and two huge electric freight elevators, with a capacity of 5,000 pounds each, convey goods from the floors above to this department, where they are in turn conveyed to the freight cars or drays. Three large shipping doors on the north side facilitate loading, while a like number on the south open on to the spur track which skirts this side of the building.

The main offices occupy the front half of the ground floor and are handsomely finished in quartered oak, with massive tinted pillars, solid oak counters and office furniture. The offices of the executive members of the firm, together with the sample room, are also located on this floor, the latter, with its handsome oak fixtures and neatly arrayed display of high class groceries, seeming to tempt the visiting retailer. One is impressed, too, with the care exercised for the individual comfort of the large staff, with the airy dressing rooms for the office employees and the spacious room set apart for the firm's travelers.

Ascending to the floors above, one finds seven flats piled from floor to roof with canned goods, evaporated fruits, cereals, syrups, teas, coffees, dried and canned fish and all other standard grocery lines, while on the third floor is located the tea room, with its mechanical appliances for the blending, weighing ,packing and labeling. So precise is this machinery that the tea does not come in contact with workmen's hands, the different appliances handling this product with automatic precision. The sixth floor is entirely devoted to the firm's Gold Standard products, which are manufactured in their factory adjoining the new grocery premises.

mentioned Gold Standard jelly powders, cake icings, icing sugars, quick puddings, ice cream powders, liquid blue, herbs, cream tartar, etc. The firm, as a fact, manufactures and sells, under an absolute guarantee, one of the most comprehensive lines of grocers' specialties in western Canada, and their output is daily increasing.

The Codville Georgeson Co., Ltd., maintain a branch at Brandon, while the Codville Smith Co., Ltd., of Calgary, Alta., look after the firm's western interests. The gigantic warehouse just completed reflects the enterprising and progressive spirit of the west, to the maintenance and advancement of which the builders may sincerely be said to have contributed their full share.

Mammoth New Warehouse of The Codville-Georgeson Co., Winnipeg, Man.
Total cost (with realty) $260,000; height, seven stories and basement; length 135 feet; breadth, 97 feet; Total capacity, 400 carloads; floor space, 2½ acres.

Here green coffees, direct from the plantation, are graded, cleansed, roasted, ground by machinery, and packed with a precision which, to the unitiated, is amazing. The firm's coffee department has a capacity of 8,500 pounds daily and is kept constantly in operation.

Each day immense quantities of baking powder are manufactured and packed, and the spice department, with its large daily capacity, is kept in continual motion. The flavoring extract department turns out thirty varieties of flavors, and among the other popular lines manufactured and packed may be

DEATH OF LONDON MERCHANT.

Stewart Harris, dealer in dairy produce, and well known in London and the surrounding country, dropped dead on March 19, almost immediately after rising. Mr. Harris had reached an advanced age and had lately been suffering from heart disease. He was an old resident of the city and a member of St. James' Presbyterian church. Two sons and three daughters survive him.

White & Co., Toronto, to date this winter have handled 35 cars of California celery.

FROM GROCER CORRESPONDENTS

HAMILTON.

Jas. Turner & Co. report good demand for canned fruits of all kinds. Evaporated apples also are selling well at advanced prices. Indications point to still higher prices.

Balfour, Smye & Co. have made some heavy shipments of evaporated apples and dried fruits lately to the Northwest.

Wagstaffe & Co. this week sent off three carloads of their English marmalade to the Northwest, and two cars to British Columbia.

UXBRIDGE.

A business change of some interest occurred here last week, when H. E. Maddock & Company sold their interests to Chaney & Alexander. The latter firm will take possession about the end of March. Mr. Alexander has for some time been associated with Gordon, McKay & Co., and has seen many years on the road. He is, in fact, one of the veteran travelers of Canada. Mr. Chaney until recently was with one of the largest dry goods stores in Toronto. Both gentlemen will shortly move their families and effects to their new homes, and great success is prophesied for the partnership by their respective friends.

Both J. F. Brownscombe & Co., and Broddy & Porter are reported to be offering their businesses for sale.

VICTORIA, B.C

"After the 1st of March the undersigned grocers will discontinue giving discounts. The advanced cost of goods and the extra expense of conducting our business makes this step imperative."

The above notice has been placed in the daily papers of Victoria, B.C., and signed by all the leading retail grocers of the city, who, having decided to do away with the custom of giving a 5 per cent. discount on monthly accounts, take this means of notifying the public.

Without doubt this is a step in the right direction, and the grocers of Victoria are to be congratulated upon this movement.

Why should a grocer give a discount? or what is more to the point, why should a customer running a monthly account expect a discount? for without doubt the cost of doing business with this class of customers is greater than that of any other, no matter how promptly the bills may be paid; for it necessitates employing bookkeepers, and purchasing office supplies, postage, etc., not over-looking the fact that in spite of the utmost vigilance, bad debts will accumulate, and all these add greatly to the cost of doing business.

Some grocers may contend that by offering a discount on all accounts paid on or before a certain day in the month, it encourages prompt payment. No grocer should encourage accounts which are not paid promptly. Thirty days is quite long enough to carry any account (unless a longer time has been arranged) at the end of that time there should be a prompt settlement, satisfactory to all parties concerned. It is poor business policy to allow customers to think that because they are allowed to run an account, they may expect 5 per cent. for that privilege.

Now every grocer has customers who drop in from day to day and from week to week, each time spending a few cents or dollars as occasion demands, probably amounting to twenty, thirty or forty dollars a month. Now this customer does not get 5 per cent. discount, yet it has cost the grocer far less to do business in this way, for there has been no expense in bookkeeping, and no bad debts.

Now, supposing your cash customer has a friend who is running a monthly account and getting 5 per cent. They compare notes. In future Mr. Cash Customer wishes to run an account and be paid two or three dollars a month for the privilege of doing so. And Mr. Grocer is out the discount, plus the cost of bookkeeping, etc., etc.

Then there is the farmer to consider; he comes to town and buys a wagon-load of groceries, probably paying cash for what his butter and eggs do not pay for. It has cost still less to handle this business, for there has been no delivery expense, no wear and tear on the grocer's horses and wagons, for the farmer delivers his own goods, and yet he gets no discount.

The careful grocer will consider all these things, and be convinced that it is neither fair to himself nor his customers to give a discount on monthly accounts.

There is still one other point. Does the retail grocer get 5 per cent. from the wholesaler? And are the retailer's accounts promptly paid? These are questions which every grocer will be able to answer for himself.

Hot-house lettuce is coming in very freely at $1.75 a crate; also rhubarb at 12½c. per lb., and cucumbers at 25c. each.

California asparagus is on the market, but is scarce, and holding at 18c. per lb.; cabbage, 3c. per lb.

Potatoes are very high at present, $30 per ton being the price for No. 1 island grown; Fraser river, $25. The frost in January is responsible for the shortage.

There is no supply of Eocene and Elaine coal oil to be had at present. This is unfortunate, as the demand for good oil is heavy at present, this being incubator season. The car shortage is responsible for this.

BROCKVILLE.

A meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association was held on Thursday of last week, with the president in the chair.

The by-law relating to hawkers and peddlers was brought before the members present and thoroughly discussed, and a committee appointed to present it to the town council and have it adopted in the by-laws of the town.

The subject of holding an annual celebration on the 1st of July was also talked of and it was decided to call a citizens' meeting, to be held on the night of March 26. The following committee was appointed to look into the matter and report: H. Y. Farr, F. R. Curry, C. J. Delany, C. H. Burll, W. H. Kyle. It was pointed out that the citizens generally were in favor of holding the celebration, and that it was intended to make this a huge success and to advertise it throughout the surrounding country.

The secretary reported that the petition in reference to the Criminal Code and the Proprietary Medicines Act was signed and forwarded to the provincial secretary.

Now that the winter sports are over, there should be larger attendances at the meetings of the retail merchants to discuss matters and bring things before the association, for debate. Make up your minds, now, that you will attend the meetings and make things interesting. Your officers expect you to be present and it is only right that you should be.

In the absence of Jas. H. Gilmour, president of the Local Board of Trade, the vice-president, H. A. Stewart, called the first regular annual meeting of the body to order, at 8.30 p.m., March 14th. The secretary read the minutes of the previous meetings of its council, which were adopted. After the reading of the minutes a very lively discussion took place on the subject of systematic advertising of the town and also electric power for manufacturing, after which the following motion was made and seconded by W. C. McLaren and A. T. Wilgress: "That the Board of Trade express its willingness to take over the advertising of Brockville, if it should meet with the approval of the town council." The acting president then stated that by authority given to him by the Board of Trade Council, he had sent out 20 circulars to users of power in town, and had received favorable replies from 12 of them. A motion was then made and seconded, that Mr. Stewart be empowered to proceed further in the matter.

The following matters were brought up for consideration, viz.: Annual Dominion Day celebration; morning train from Ottawa to Brockville, Ont.; protection for railway crossings; better union passenger depot; local improvement; planting and care of shade trees, and the remedy of the dog nuisance.

The meeting then adjourned, to be called again within the next five or six weeks.

MONTREAL.

Point grocers find that the early closing scheme works fine. It has been in operation since last November and all the grocers who close four nights a week are satisfied that the idea is a great one. Only two would not consent to close Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at seven o'clock. The Pointers are closing right along, however, and are each of the evenings mentioned able to enjoy a little hard-earned rest.

William Urquhart has joined the sales staff of Fraser, Viger & Co., the St. James St. grocers. He's an Old Country man and a worker. Just now he is in charge of the window dressing among other things, and nobody can say he is not turning out the real article in this line.

J. B. Deslauriers, the East Craig St. grocer, is a hustler, who has made business come his way by keeping on the run. In fact, lately, so much has fallen to his lot that he has found it necessary to enlarge the premises. The work is nearly completed and the store looks bright abd clean—quite up-to-date. J. B. is spending some money to have things right. "Better to spend a little extra. It pays in the long run," he was telling The Grocer. New fixtures, a fine new counter and a store 33 feet by 30 feet will enable him to handle the trade much better than before.

Dan Wilson and Jim McCullough are two additions to the clerking force of Walter Paul, the West St. Catherine St. grocer.

George Lloyd, manager Scroggie's grocery department, is kept hustling these days. He says he's still selling Strathcona goods to beat the band. St. Charles cream and Suchard's cocoa are two lines being demonstrated in the grocery.

Horace Lefebvre is now working in his father's store on Dorchester St. east. Mr. Lefebvre is one of the busiest grocers in the East End.

Thomas Pleau, who has long owned the grocery store on Prefontaine street, has sold out to Savrier & Blain, in order to take up the agency in Montreal of Proteau & Carignan, Quebec brewers. He will open an office May 1.

E. Desroches, for years with Fraser, Viger & Co., is opening on his own account on St. Denis street, above Sherbrooke. He's secured a good location. His friends wish him any amount of luck. So does The Canadian Grocer.

Dionne & Dionne are keeping busy as ever. They are contemplating enlarging the butcher shop, run in connection with the grocery. D. Cloutier, formerly on one of the delivery vans, is going inside to clerk.

At the annual meeting of the Retail Merchants Association, W. U. Boivin was elected president. Other officers were elected as follows: 1st vice-president, J. G. A. Filion; 2nd vice-president, J. B. Lamoreux; treasurer, J. A. Maynard; secretary, J. A. Beaudry; auditors, Messrs. Laniel and Dabreuil.

SPRINGHILL, N.S.

This city is just recovering from the smallpox scare. Business received something of a set-back, but merchants are quite hopeful now that the town is free.

Rogers & Soley have just moved into their new quarters, one of the best laid out stores in the province. They do a large business.

Bauld Bros. & Co., wholesale groceries, etc., have opened a warehouse in this city, in charge of C. Hanna, who has represented them in this section for several years. The increase in business compelled the firm to carry a stock here. Mr. Hanna will continue to represent them on the road and will have an assistant, who will attend to the shipping of orders.

D. L. Chrysler, Brantford, Ont., representing the Wm. Paterson Co., manufacturers of biscuits, etc., was in the city a few days ago, and booked some good orders.

A. M. Creelman, representing Black & Co., Truro, was here on his regular monthly trip. He is a very popular visitor among the grocery trade and always leaves with his full share of orders.

The estate of A. E. Fraser, who is retiring from business, is being wound up. This is one of the oldest businesses in town and was successfully conducted by Mr. Fraser for a long term of years.

Among the recent visitors, after several years absence was T. T. Cartwright, the genial representative of Magic baking powder. His many friends in the trade were glad to welcome him back. Mr. Cartwright is back again with his old love the E. W. Gillett Co., of Toronto. T. T. C., looks none the worse for his long sojourn in the Ancient Colony. May his shadow never grow less, and his order book always be filled to overflowing, is the wish of all his old friends.

Mr. Dunlap, representing Harris & Co., Moncton, was a visitor the past week. He does a nice business whenever he comes this way.

Geo. Dishart, the tea man, was another visitor in town. George is one of the most popular men on the road, and it is safe to say no one sells any more tea than he does.

The Barkers will move into their new store in Amherst this month. This firm's business is representative of the growth in Amherst, which is rapidly becoming the manufacturing centre of Nova Scotia.

Springhill has a weekly half-holiday, all the stores closing at noon Wednesdays.

The Geo. E. Barbour Co., of St. John, N.B., do a good business in this part of Nova Scotia. Their traveler, J. Huntley, is one of the most popular men on the road.

C. Scott, of Hamilton, Ont., is putting in a lot of his goods in this territory.

J. Smith, representing Ralston Co., shoe polishes, etc., is a new man in this territory.

W. Wetmore, representing Vassie & Co., St. John, has been busy taking orders in the Parrsboro territory.

Frank P. Hickey, travelling representative of a large Quebec house, will locate in Amherst.

PETERBOROUGH.

Fred Walker, who was manager of A. Rountree's grocery store, has accepted a position with Jas. R. Bell, and is now serving the public over Jimmy's counter. The change took place when Mr. Rountree disposed of his grocery stock to Mr. McFarland Wilson, of the China Hall, who is selling it off.

Last week one of the leading grocers was called upon to answer a charge of violating one of the town's by-laws. He also had to contribute $5 towards the city's treasury. The funny part of it is that this grocer was in the city council when the by-law prohibiting merchants piling goods on the sidewalk in front of their places of business was passed. He fought against it for two years, but it was finally carried. He was the first one to be fined, although three other firms have since been fined. The effect of the by-law since it was enforced is that the streets are no longer blockaded with big boxes, barrels, sacks, etc.

The grocers as well as all other merchants in the city are up in arms against the council for passing and attempting to enforce an anti-sign by-law. Many years ago a similar by-law was passed but it has been a dead letter and made no difference in the appearance of the street. That by-law prohibited any sign being hung if it projected over the sidewalk. This year the council passed another by-law which allows only illuminated signs to be hung in front of business places. These must be erected under the supervision of the city engineer and the owner must pay a license of $2 per year to pay for regular inspection. At the present time there are almost 20 illuminated signs and as they cost all the way from $10 to $200 in addition to the electric lights the merchants are rebelling. If, however, all the stores, or a larger portion of them, use the illuminated signs, the appearance of the streets will be greatly improved, and that is the object of the council.

Eggs on the local market took a decided drop on Saturday. The farmers' hens have been getting out in the yard where they scratched for themselves, while the mild weather and bright sunshine wakened them from their long winter's rest. There is every indication that the price of eggs will continue on the decline until they sell at 14c. and 15c. per dozen. Last week they brought 23c. and 24c., but on Saturday they dropped to 18c. and 20c. and there was a large supply.

KINGSTON.

Prospects for Kingston's future look bright. Promoters of cheaper power for light and other purposes are in town urging the aldermen on.

New wharves are being built and a large summer hotel is contemplated. Streets are going to have new beds of asphalt, cement, or macadam. The harbor is going to be deepened.

Yes, Kingston is going to be redeemed and it has sterling members in E. J. B. Pense, M.P.P., in the Ontario House, and Wm. Harty, M.P., in the Dominion Cabinet.

The wholesale grocers report good business, but methinks they would do twenty per cent. more if they advertised more in trade papers.

Herb. Dunlop, for many years head clerk in James Redden & Co.'s grocery, has severed his connections and may go into business for himself.

The angel of death has been busy in Kingston lately and many of our leading citizens will be seen no more on our streets. John Mills, our active auctioneer, hustling along on our main street, advertising and getting ready for spring sales, heard the dread summons and fell dead a few doors from his father-in-law's confectionery store. His familiar going-going-gone will be heard no more.

Holbrook's sauce is being demonstrated this week in Redden & Co.'s grocery.

Mr. Rea, of the Blue Ribbon Tea Co., and the Senator met in Jim's grocery store. They are both genial, fat and stout, and whether you buy or not they shake hands when they come in and when they go out. Travelers ought to take a lesson from this. Be pleasant under all circumstances, even in a train wreck.

John McVeen, traveler for White & Co., placed several carloads of California oranges at Smiths Falls, Carleton Place, and Kingston. John is a hustler and is doing good work for his firm.

Complaints are still coming in about wholesalers selling to consumers. A great deal of it is done through employes, who supply their friends and they in turn divide up, and so the chain of destruction is lengthened and the retailer suffers. It has got to be stopped, or there will be a big exposition shortly.

CHATHAM.

There is some talk in the press of the appointment of N. H. Stevens, president of the Canada Flour Mills Co., to the seat in the Dominion senate left vacant by the death of Senator Casgrain, of Windsor. The suggestion meets with widespread favor throughout the western peninsula. The great and flourishing industry of which he is the head, is a monument to Mr. Stevens' energy and ability; and as a clear-headed man of affairs, capable of expressing himself, his many friends here feel that he would make a valuable addition to the Upper House.

George and Richard Zakoor, of Windsor, have bought out the fruit business of J. M. Thompson next the Rankin House.

A well attended meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association was held on the 11th, when quite a few matters of interest were discussed. President Cowan suggested that the merchants unite in advertising one particular day each week as bargain day, and make a combined effort to divide Saturday business between two days, probably Saturday and Wednesday. A committee comprising Messrs. Anderson, Mills, Hodges and Austin was appointed to investigate report. The association passed a resolution vigorously protesting against the action of the G.T.R. in hindering the extension of the C. W. & L. E. electric road to the south. The idea of a Dominion Day celebration this year was heartily approved.

INGERSOLL.

The advisability of establishing a cold storage warehouse here under the conditions mentioned in the recent Dominion legislation is a matter that is receiving the earnest attention of grocers, exporters, and in fact all who are interested in the progress of the town. Thus far the scheme has enlisted enthusiastic support from the grocers, who readily recognize that a warehouse here would offer them many advantages. As is well known, Ingersoll is one of the few towns in Ontario in which there is usually a scarcity of butter and eggs, and quite frequently poultry. The scarcity of the butter is explained by the fact that Oxford county is noted for its numerous cheese factories, which consume the greater portion of the milk to be had, consequently the farmers give very little attention to butter-making. In regard to eggs, many buyers are constantly on the roads during the summer and autumn and the supply is invariably "cornered" by the large exporters. With a cold storage warehouse the local dealers would be able to lay up a large supply at a price that would give them a good return on their investment later on and still it would not be necessary to charge exorbitant prices.

Of course the primary object of establishing a cold-storage warehouse is not for the benefit of local merchants and consumers, but principally for the export trade, in which connection we state with pardonable pride that Ingersoll is the fifth centre in the Dominion. The project has been very energetically taken up by the Board of Trade; open meetings, which were representative in their attendance, have been held; a committee has visited the Lindsay plant, and while their report was not as encouraging as it might have been, the scheme is still being very actively taken up.

Fire in the grocery store of Jacques & McPherson at an early hour Tuesday morning caused damage to their stock to the extent of $2,000. The fire was discovered shortly after one o'clock and although the firemen were prompt in arriving on the scene and worked heroically, two hours elapsed before the flames were subdued. The blaze originated from the furnace and had apparently been smoldering for some time before discovered. The building was filled with volumes of smoke, which almost suffocated the firemen, and retarded their efforts to a great extent, although during their long fight they never lost heart. The bulk of the damage was caused by smoke and water. There was $3,000 insurance on the stock. It is the intention of the firm, from what your correspondent could learn, to reopen in their old premises as soon as possible.

McLeod & McBain, who recently purchased the grocery business of I. W. Kingswood, have taken possession and have "struck out" in a manner that indicates that they are "after" trade. Both these gentlemen have had wide experience in the grocery business and with a wide acquaintance in Ingersoll and vicinity they will doubtless make a success of their new venture.

To your correspondent, I. W. Kingswood stated that he would in all probability remove to London. As to what his occupation would be, Mr. Kingswood declined to make any definite statement.

ST. CATHARINES.

That popular hotel, known as the Russell house, has been in the hands of the painters and paper-hangers for some days, making a good many improvements. Mr. John Quinn, the owner and manager, has spent large sums of money to make this one of the most popular and convenient hotels in the district.

Mr. William Merriman, one of our pushing wholesale grocers, has, from time to time, been enlarging his premises to comply with his ever-increasing business, and has just completed the erection of a set of offices, public and private, which are up-to-date in every respect.

St. Catharines may lose one of its oldest established manufactories, situate on Thorold street—the Whitman and Barnes—better known as the "Knife Works," which employs several hundred skilled workmen, who get good wages. This is a branch of the firm's main factory, which is located in Akron, Ohio. The reason given for this proposed removal is want of railway facilities, as the outlay for carriage of raw material to and finished goods to any railway station is something like two miles. The cost of teaming the goods runs into the thousands of dollars annually. The Mayor and aldermen are anxious to find ways and means to retain this enterprise and possibly may succeed in inducing the electric railway company to construct a line to these works. The company have manufactured many millions of dollars worth of goods since they located their works here.

LONDON.

The petition gotten up by the local grocers re the telephone question was presented at a meeting of the city council finance committee, and C. H. Lee and E. J. Ryan, representatives of the grocers' deputation to Buffalo, N.Y., where they investigated the working of the independent telephone service, were present in support of the petition. The petition declared that the prices charged in the city for 'phones are excessive; that the cost of putting in long-distance and desk phones is not materially greater than the price of installing less serviceable instruments; that it is impossible to procure the best class of telephones now in use at a reduction from present rates, and that the petitioners believe that the best system of telephoning is procurable in other places in Ontario at a rate as low or lower than is asked here, namely, a business phone for $35 a year. In addressing the committee, Mr. Lee declared the Bell Company was not treating its subscribers fairly, but is compelling them to use obsolete instruments unless an increased rate of $5 a year is paid for a long-distance instrument. He also stated that in Buffalo he and the other delegates had seen things which impressed them with the advantages of telephone competition. As to the talk of the absorption of independent companies of New York state by the Bell Company, Mr. Lee had heard nothing of it while in Buffalo. It was augured that if there were two companies in London, a business man could have an independent phone in his office at the rate offered by the company ($32.50 per year) and a limited Bell phone at $15 a year. The Bell instrument could be used for incoming calls and the independent for outgoing calls. Thus a big saving could be effected. Special stress was laid on the fact that when a Blake transmitter is complained of, the Bell people will coolly inform the subscriber that the phone is obsolete, and will endeavor to boost rates by putting in a new phone instead of making the old one work. "I complained time and time again of my Blake transmitter," said Mr. Ryan, "and at last an employe of the company came to me and informed me that my phone was obsolete, and that for $5 a year more he could give me a phone I could hear on. He never offered to have the Blake phone fixed." The effect of the grocers' representations was that instead of recommending to the council the acceptance of the Bell Company's offer, as was contemplated, the committee decided to delay action until a deputation of aldermen has visited Buffalo and seen and heard for themselves what there is in the independent proposition.

Local retailers report business rather quiet. A drop in the price of butter and eggs last week created a brisk demand for those commodities.

For several weeks past retailers have been unable to procure finnan haddies for love or money. The wholesaler refers you to the broker, and the latter informs you that the haddie famine is due to unusually rough weather on the Atlantic, and a consequent light catch. These fish are an exceedingly popular article of diet during Lent, but as that season is drawing to a close, it is quite probable the religious community will be able to live it out without their favorite fish.

TWO VIEWS OF ORGANIZATION.

Two correspondents in this issue discuss retail grocery organization, one from Peterborough and the other from Ottawa. The expression of opinion in Peterborough concludes, "As far as joining with the wholesale men or accepting any assistance from them, other than mere suggestions, the merchants here would strongly oppose it." This independence is highly commendable. The Retail Grocers' Association of Canada, when it is formed, should be a self-sustaining, independent, self respecting organization. At the same time, the Peterborough friends should remember that the interests of the retailer and wholesaler, so far at least as the building up of the foodstuff trade is concerned, are identical. But about the middle of the letter this phrase occurs: "aside from any relationship with the wholesale houses which, of course, would be one of the main features." This shows that the Peterborough trade have the right idea, sure enough. Their position of financial independence so far as the wholesalers are concerned, is good, safe ground. One of the problems which the great National Retail Grocers' Association of the United States is wrestling with to-day is how to secure just this independence. There is nothing like starting right.

The Ottawa correspondent is one of the brightest grocers in the Capital, and one who has proved the value of organization. He advocates the claim of the Retail Merchants' Association to be the organization the grocers desire. We would like every retailer to read his letter carefully and give it serious consideration. There are a goodly number of towns in Ontario and Quebec where there is or has been a grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association. We would like to hear from as many of the grocers in these places as possible, giving their experience and their views. This is a serious question. There are a number of towns that have an independent grocers' organization. We would like to hear from members of these organizations also. Our own opinion now is that the foodstuff trade and its problems are so different from all others that association in a single organization would be a source of weakness rather than strength. For the purpose of securing general legislation affecting all branches of trade, we believe, of course, in the co-operation of all retailers; but when it comes to solving the problems of the foodstuff trade we believe the best results will be obtained through independent, self-contained organization. Such an organization would have better chances of success because the grocers would take more interest in it. If the purposes of grocery organization were to be fulfilled by securing general trade legislation, and by a debt-collecting system and slow-pay schedule appendage we would take quite another view, but we believe that the greatest results of organization will be achieved through personal association and education and in relation to the great questions, questions of national and world-wide import, involved to-day in the foodstuff trade, we feel that the retail grocers, as the men next to the consumers, should be, through a national organization, a progressive and dominant influence.

MAKE A START NOW

To the Editor of The Canadian Grocer:

The straightforward letter in your issue of last week from H. C. Beckett, the president of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild, has the right ring about it and shows that he is ready to get right down to business and I think now is the time for every grocer to show his hand. It has just occurred to me that it might be a good idea for every grocer who reads this week's copy of your paper, (which will contain, no doubt, something new in regard to organization) to at once take a post card and write his opinion and his willingness to join the movement and address it either to H. C. Beckett, Hamilton, or to the editor of The Grocer. A start now is what is needed and should be boosted along by everyone who wants to make a success of the movement.

Believer in Organization.

MISINFORMED.

The Hamilton Herald is worried over the delay in proceeding with the case against the Grocers' Guild, and as usual it is badly misinformed. It says: "The evidence taken at the preliminary hearing in the grocers' case was similar in general character to the evidence taken at the trial of the plumbers." In the case of the plumbers it was shown that by agreement between the plumbers and supply men, any one not a member of the organization was prevented from getting material. The Guild only aimed to draw the line between wholesaler and retailer. Some very important wholesalers are not in the Guild and there was no suggestion that they were hindered in securing supplies. What the Guild proposed was simply that a man be either a retailer or wholesaler exclusively. In the voluminous evidence taken in the Guild case there was not a jot or tittle to show that prices had been unduly increased. In the plumbers' case it was proven that after pooling their tenders and averaging them, they loaded them with I.O.U.'s to the members who did not get the work. The Herald has every right to worry, but before undertaking to enlighten the public it should inform itself.

RAILWAY NERVE.

The Grand Trunk Railway in Port Hope passes between the larger portion of the town and the lake front. The business section lies in a somewhat deep valley, and this valley the railway crosses on a high viaduct. The company, without consulting the town, have taken steps to fill in this viaduct and plan to have but two or three narrow archways as a means of communication with the harbor. Canadians everywhere have had ample opportunity to acquaint themselves with the highhandedness of railway corporations, but this is about the limit. Here is one of the prettiest towns in the Dominion—the prettiest, in the belief of every Port Hoper—and the Grand Trunk sets itself unceremoniously to erect an earth wall with a hole in it between the town and the lake. No wonder the town is in arms. It is up to the Railway Commission to stop the depredation.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Fish—Revised.

Teas—Still climbing.

Currants—Interesting figures.

Evaporated Apples—Slightly easier.

Beans—Lower.

Collections are reported by wholesalers to be improving, accounts being collected with less difficulty than for some time past. Not so many renewals are being asked for by the retail grocery trade. This tends to illustrate the livening up of business generally. Spring selling in staple lines is now under way, although not yet to its fullest extent.

Demand for canned goods is reported very good for the season. Sugar is without change as to price. Estimates of the sugar beet crop in Europe for the coming season are anxiously awaited by those engaged in the sugar trade. Teas are still upward in tendency, business being rather handicapped by constantly climbing prices. Cloves are likely to be higher in the near future, while an advance in peppers in the primary markets would not surprise. In the dried fruits market it will be found that currants received in Canada this season to Feb. 28 fall considerably short in volume of receipts during the same period last year. Peels are strong, while evaporated apples and beans are easier.

SUGAR—Prices have not been changed since last report and the market has remained steady but featureless. No price change is anticipated until after the estimates as to quantities of beets which will be sown in Europe are made public. When these figures are made known they may possibly affect the cane sugar market and thus indirectly cause a movement up or down in prices. It will be a fortnight or two before estimates are given out.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—Reports from the Barbadoes indicate a firm market, but there is little activity noticeable at present. Quotations received are: Choice, 18c.; fancy, 17c. Locally there is practically no movement in this line. Corn syrups are selling very freely in all parts of the country.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—Figures to hand show that shipments of currants from Patras to Canada to Feb. 28 last, amounted to 1,476 tons, against 1,683 tons last year. Total shipments from Patras to this date were 107,859 tons against 94,913 for the same period last year. It will be seen from above figures that Canada received some 2,000 barrels, or 10,000 cases less than for this time last year. The market is very bare, which is natural when these figures are compared. Prunes are now very scarce on the coast, it being reckoned that there are not enough to more than supply the usual demand, conditionally, that great care is exercised between now and the time the new crop is harvested. Serious rains recently have somewhat affected the outlook for 1907 fruits, but it is yet a little early to prophesy in this direction. Raisins are unchanged. Very little business is being done in any lines coming under the heading of dried fruits. Nuts are quiet.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—For the lines which are held by jobbers there is a very good demand, somewhat better than is usual at this time of year. Salmon is being asked for by many grocers in different parts of the country.

TORONTO—While the wholesale grocery business generally is quiet, there is a comparatively good demand for canned goods, especially for fruits. There is just a suggestion of a firmer tone in tomatoes. One of the leading jobbers stated this week he could see the bottom of his pile and was prepared to buy. He had bought pretty liberally last fall, too, he said. The significance of this might be easily over-estimated, but it at least shows that the actual situation will begin to develop shortly. At any rate April, May and June are the heavy consuming months. Opinion in the trade differs as to the affect upon consumption of the high price to consumers. Some hold that people will not buy as readily at 12½c. as at 10c. Others, taking the opposite view, contend that people have become accustomed to pay high prices for everything and that tomatoes are regarded as a necessity. The railway camps will soon be in operation and they are large consumers. There is a pretty active demand for canned salmon.

QUALITY FITS THE PRICE.

Some remarks by Strasbaugh, Silver & Co., Aberdeen, Mo., canned goods brokers, in a recent circular, are worth pondering over:

"A leading trade weekly notes that some packers are bold enough to say we make the quality fit the price. Is it possible it was ever generally considered otherwise? The merchant certainly does not expect his best salesmen to work for a shade less than the other fellow and do as good work as were he liberally paid. The packer is made of the same kind of clay; he is often the father of the city chap who sells so well and the idea of liberal recompense did not originate with the junior member of the family. The pater always knew and acted accordingly; his silence did not indicate ignorance. The laborer is worthy of his hire; the poorly paid seldom do good work; it is little wonder that dealings in canned tomatoes sometimes prove so unsatisfactory and unprofitable. First, know thyself, then the fellow who is to pack the quality you want. Pay him liberally; there is little danger of his ever being a millionaire; and leave it to his honor as to results. He will probably take your order again next year, that is if you select well."

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—
Collections still slow.
Nut crops.
Tapioca higher.
Oranges higher.

Toronto, March 21, 1907.

Business continues only fair and consists mostly of sorting-up orders. Some jobbers, however, see an improvement and there are no complaints for business to date is ahead of last year and that despite a very small sugar business this month so far, as compared with last year. Collections, however, are still far from satisfactory, though an improvement is noted in spots. Speculation is the only explanation vouchsafed by the wholesaler. They console themselves, however, by a comparison with conditions in the west, where rumor asserts things are very unsatisfactory, owing to an apparent scarcity of money. Speculation is said to be at the bottom of the trouble out there also.

Trade at present is not featured by a special movement in any line. Canned goods, however, are moving out freely in comparison with other things, and prunes are still in good demand. Teas continue active. The trade in sugar is just so-so. Filberts, for next October shipment, have advanced 2s., because of damage to the crop through cold weather prevailing in southern Europe. Peels will be high next season. Raw peel has already advanced 100 per cent.

TEA—The market continues very firm on the basis of the high values established by the steady advance since the end of November, the price of the commonest kinds being now over 100 per cent. dearer than at the lowest point. There has also been an advance in the last week in the higher grades of tea, but this is chiefly accounted for by distinctly improved quality in the case of Ceylons, and in the case of Indians in consequence of the exceptional values of fine-looking Assams.

Trade on the local market continues brisk.

COFFEE—Markets are quiet and prices about steady.

SUGAR—Willett & Gray, at the end of last week, reviewing the New York raw sugar market for the week, said :—

"Centrifugals on the spot closed last week at 3.51c., advanced during the week to 3.55c. and closed to-day at 3.50c. per lb., duty paid for 96 degrees test. The advance from the low level had been so rapid that a little reaction was in order. The reaction is not likely to extend very far before recovery sets in.

"Centrifugals are now 41c. per 100 lbs. below the parity of beet sugar.

"The Cuba crop grinding passed its highest point for the season, one central being withdrawn and receipts at shipping ports being reduced for the two weeks past.

"Recent sales to Canada are reported of 8,000 tons Trinidad centrifugals for April shipment at 2 3-16c. c. & f. New York or at 2¼c. c. & f. Montreal direct."

This week opened with a much stronger tone. One refiner bought 5,000 bags at 2 5-32c. cost and freight basis, 96 degrees, or 3.52c. duty paid New York, and shortly after another refiner bought 10,000 bags at 2 3-16 cost and freight basis 96 degrees, or 3.55c. duty paid. The price remained steady at that and there was more buying on the same basis.

Locally the sugar market is not nearly as active as last March. Sentiment, however, is firm.

DRIED FRUITS—Prunes are the active feature of this market. Prices are steady. The Montreal market report contains some interesting figures regarding currants. The market remains firm and unchanged in Greece and new developments are not looked for. Any change in prices before the advent of the new crop will be within very narrow limits, regulated by such minor matters as exchange, etc.

NUTS—Interest is now being taken in the coming season's crops. A mail advice from Bevan & Co., Malaga, to J. L. Watt & Scott states that reports of damage to the almond crop by cold weather had been circulated in the press, but should nothing more intervene there would be a very good crop. Had the cold come a few weeks later they would have had to deplore a great loss, but coming early the fruit had not begun to bud. The crop, however, would not be secured for the next three or four weeks.

The new crop of filberts for shipment next October has advanced in the past week 2s. per sack, owing to the very cold weather prevailing in the south of Europe. It was actually snowing in Sicily at the latter end of last week. Business was done with Canada both before and after the advance.

HIDES AND RAW FURS—Sheepskins are higher. In furs some are offering more for rats, but it is largely a matter of grading.

The Yorkshire Post, published at the centre of the English wool trade, in a recent article said :

"The more one thinks of the wool trade and the prices that are ruling, the greater becomes the surprise that things are moving so smoothly and confidently. Many a woolman said in 1900 and 1901 that we should never see hifh prices again, but it is perhaps in order now to ask, when are we to have low prices? Nobody desires to see good, greasy combings back at 6d. per lb., for that is neither good for producer nor consumer. Users of wool, yarn, and fabrics are buying to-day a thousand times more lustily than they did when prices were in some cases half what they are to-day."

In a table dealing with the Australian and Cape wool clips, the Post shows that in 1901 the clip totalled 1,962,000 bales, averaged £10 10s. per bale, and required £20,001,000 to move it, and that the clip of last year totalled 2,071,000 bales, averaged £17 per bale, and required to move it £35,207,000.

Montreal, Thursday, March 21, 1907.

BUTTER—Still very firm and high.

CHEESE—Featureless market. Prices without change.

EGGS—Steady market at 23½c. to 24c. for new laid Canadian.

PROVISIONS—Situation has not changed. Easter business keeping packers busy.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, March. 21, 1907.)

Price changes this week are few and unimportant. Business is very active and less difficulty is reported now in making deliveries at country points.

CANNED GOODS.—Except for some slight advances in lunch tongue and similar lines there are no changes this week in the canned goods list. We quote :

GROCERY TRADE NEWS FROM NEW BRUNSWICK.

(By The Canadian Grocer's special correspondent.)

St. John, N.B., March 18, 1907.

Quietness still reigns in business circles. In the produce line, butter continues scarce, but eggs are getting more plentiful, and consequently cheaper all the time. Good fresh eggs are now quoted at from 22 to 27 cents, while butter is selling at from 22 to 26 cents a pound. No change of any note has occurred in any of the other markets. Flour, meal, sugar, molasses, etc., have shown practically no change in the past few weeks.

Both wholesalers and retailers are preparing now for the approaching seed trade, and some shipments are already on the way.

In the provision line, pork products continue high and some of the packers are buying heavily for the summer trade. One of the packers told your correspondent he was bringing six or eight cars from Ontario in preparation for the summer trade.

In the fruit line, the principal sales are in Valencia oranges, which are arriving in large quantities by the winter port steamers. Some few bananas are also being landed here from the West India steamers.

Fish of all kinds continue scarce and high. Finnan haddies are higher than for some years. The general variety is good but the supply is limited.

Charles A. Clark, the Charlotte street grocer, is about vacating his present store in the market building to make room for the new branch of the Bank of New Brunswick. Mr. Clark has occupied his present store for the past ten years, and has leased still more commodious premises at 73 and 77 Sydney street, which is being fitted with the latest improvements as a first-class grocery, meat and fish store. Mr. Clark expects to be in his new store this week with larger accommodations for his many customers.

It is reported that T. J. Phillips, the confectioner, has acquired the premises now occupied by the Carling Brewing Company, and will use them as a candy factory. It is understood that some machinery, formerly used in the manufacture of candy, is still in the building and will be utilized. Mr. Phillips declined to make any statement as to his intentions.

James Izzard and James McKellar have purchased J. Roote's bakery stand at 21 Hammond street and will conduct what will be known as the Scotch Dietetic Bakery.

Fire in the jewelry store of A. B. Smalley & Sons, Prince William street, Friday night, did about $10,000 or $12,000 damage. The premises of Bowman & Cole, wholesale grocers, at the rear of the building, and Dearborn & Co.'s spice mill, adjoining, were affected by smoke and water. The former's loss was adjusted for $150 and the latter's for $300. Considerable damage was also done to Bowman & Cole's stock by an overflow of water on Water St. in consequence of the gutters not being cleared of ice. It is probable the city will be called upon to pay damages. The premises of A. S. Bowman, broker, and the Smith Brokerage Company, on Water street, were also flooded by water, and they will also look for damages from the city in all probability.

The estate of the late James Shaw, of the firm of J. & W. Shaw, brokers, has been admitted to probate and letters testamentary granted to Ethel G. Shaw and Harry A. Shaw, the executors named in the will. The estate consists of $12,000 real and $10,000 personal property.

J. D. Frier, late manager of the Maritime Dairy Company, at Sussex, has returned from a trip to Toronto, where he arranged to take over the maritime agency for Empire Separators. He will have his headquarters at St. John and will have district agents throughout the provinces. He enters upon his new duties at once.

J. Willard Smith, wholesale grocer and shipping merchant, and Mrs. Smith, returned home last week from a trip to Florida.

E. A. Titus, of the firm of J. & J. S. Titus, general merchants, St. Martins, has been in the city for a few days on a buying trip. J. & J. S. Titus last summer erected a fine new building for their increasing business. It is pronounced by the traveling men to be one of the most modern and up-to-date of any of the stores outside the larger cities. Mr. Titus reports that business in their section of the province has been exceptionally good this winter.

According to letters received recently from T. S. Simms, head of the well-known firm of T. S. Simms & Co., brush and broom manufacturers of this city, who is making a tour of the old world, he is having a pleasant time. He is visiting Rome and other Italian cities, Egypt, Palestine, etc., and will, no doubt, have an interesting story to tell on his return next summer.

H. A. Cochrane, who for a number of years has been shipper with H. P. Robertson, wholesale fish dealer, will leave soon for Montreal, where he has secured a position with a large wholesale fish house. On Thursday evening last he was presented with a handsome traveling companion, by a number of his friends.

The Canadian Club recently invited Hon. James Bryce, British ambassador at Washington, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier to speak here. Word has been received, however, stating that they cannot make arrangements to do so for some time yet, at least.

WON'T OUR ORGANIZATION DO? ASKS RETAILERS' PRESIDENT.

To the Editor of The Canadian Grocer :

I take the liberty of writing you on the all-absorbing question of the "Organization of the Retailers," which has been discussed by both "Wholesaler and Retailer" in your columns of late.

As I have, with others, been deeply interested in this particular work, not only of organizing, but in assisting to accomplish something, these different articles have impressed me somewhat in a peculiar light. What I mean is this, we have already an organization well known as the "Retail Merchants' Association of Canada," established in this province, which makes provision for all lines of retail trade to come together and discuss questions, pertaining to themselves, and I cannot understand the necessity of launching another trade organization in our midst unless there is reason to believe the present one should not exist. Nothing so far has been said against the work being done by the Retail Merchants' Association, although I realize we are yet in our growing time and have room for improvement, as well as the need of more assistance from the retail trade, yet there is laid the foundation of what should be the greatest organization among merchants of this country, an organization which should carry weight with the Legislature, with the trade and with the public ; with the Legislature because of the influence we control in every constituency ; with the trade because of what our association has already done in dealing with such great questions as trading stamps, peddlers and hawkers, telephone franchises, amendments to laws affecting our interests, etc., etc.; with the public because of our pressing for pure food laws, our desire to stamp out all unfair and unjust means of advertising and our encouragement of all honest methods of dealing with them. Now, Mr. Editor, I think it would do good, if wholesalers and retailers would come out and show through your columns, which are ever open to the grocery trade, reasons, other than what the Retail Merchants' Association is already endeavoring to do, why another organization should be formed ; or state plainly wherein we are at fault or are weak. I for one will be pleased to see ourselves as others see us, hoping that what may be wrong will be righted, and that all will tend to the advancement of the "Organization of the Retailer," which your valuable paper so strongly advocates, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

H. C. ELLIS,

President, Province of Ontario, Retail Merchants' Association of Canada. Ottawa, March 18, 1907.

GRECIAN CURRANT RETENTION LAW AND THE PRESENT SITUATION

The Grecian currant retention law, a measure adopted a couple of years ago with a view to maintaining the price of the staple crop of the country and saving the national industry from the effects of over-production, is not yet very well understood by the world at large. The results of the measure are now becoming apparent, however, and the past season has put it to the test of very exceptional circumstances. C. L. Marshall, manager of the agency department of the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto, who are agents for Meyer & Co., Patras, has been making some enquiry, and contributes to The Canadian Grocer the following very interesting letter :—

The Greek currant retention law is so complicated, that some confusion in the minds of those who are not conversant with its various clauses, in regard to the application of the law, is only natural. It must be remembered that the present season has been an exceptional one—as a fact unprecedented—and that the framers of the law have provided for any emergency that could possibly arise, speaks volumes for their far-sightedness.

WM. H. DODGE

The object, of course, of the retention law is, primarily, to regulate the supply of currants in accordance with the demand, and as Greece is in the happy position of being the only producer, it is not as difficult a matter, as at first sight it would appear. A fairly accurate estimate of the world's consumption can be obtained, and the Government's agents very accurately determine the probable size of the crop. Such being the case, to whatever extent the crop is estimated to exceed the world's consumption—this surplus quantity is retained in Greece and eventually put to other than the ordinary uses—for instance, the manufacture of wine, alcohol, etc. If, for instance, the crop is estimated to exceed the world's consumption by 26 per cent., then under the retention law, 25 per cent. of the crop is retained in the country.

The crop of 1906 was a large one, and under the law 35 per cent, of the crop is being passed over to the chartered company for retention. Roughly stated, the modus operandi of retention is this : If a dealer or exporter buys from the grower one hundred tons of currants, delivery is made to him of 65 tons only, and a certificate, (or bill of retention) is given to him certifying that 35 tons have been delivered to the retention warehouse, the dealer paying for the full quantity (or 100 tons) at the market price.

Now to enhance or maintain the price of currants, the chartered company is under obligation by the terms of their agreement with the Government to accept any fruit offered to them at a fixed minimum price of 115 drachmes per 1,000 ven. lbs., and with the option of getting this price from the company, no dealer would or could sell at a lower figure, for export.

The present season being an exceptional one, with raisins, sultanas and figs away above normal in price, the consumption of currants increased enormously the world over, and with a strong probability that the 65 per cent. of the crop originally available for export will be exhausted long before the new crop is ready for the market, prices have been forced up nine shillings per cwt. higher than the price paid by the chartered company.

However, attention must here be called to a paragraph of the law which has some bearing upon prices and tends to modify conditions by increasing the supply available for export, viz., as soon as 200,000,000 ven. lbs., or in other figures, about 100,000 tons, have been exported, then, instead of accepting bills of retention (certificates) for 35 per cent. of his purchase, the dealer takes delivery of the full quantity and pays in cash to the Government 35 per cent. of his purchase, but, and this is the important point, not at the market valuation, but at the fixed minimum price at which the chartered company would accept the currants, that is, 115 drachmes, (which at the present time is about 7 shillings per cwt. less than the market price).

In other words, previous to the exports from Greece having reached 100,000 tons, the dealer is obliged to hand over to the Government 35 tons out of every hundred in fruit, the market price of which is at present 180 drachmes per 1,000 ven. lbs., whereas after the exports have reached 100,000 tons, he pays in cash at the equivalent of 115 drachmes per 1,000 ven. lbs.

It is supposed that by April 1st the exports will have reached the 100,000-ton mark, and currants will then cost the dealer in Greece just 1s. 6d. per cwt. less than previously. The fact therefore, that cables have been received from Greece quoting lower prices for April shipments, does not indicate any weakness in the market, on the contrary, the statistical position is stronger than ever, and higher prices are almost certain before July 1st.

Regarding the retention, currants themselves, the fruit actually held in Greece under the retention law, according to an article of the convention between the chartered company and the Government, the former will be obliged to sell to the Greek exporters the retained currants at a fixed price whenever the stocks otherwise held in Greece are so small that the demand from abroad cannot be met. This, however, supposing all other supplies are exhausted, cannot possibly affect prices downward, as the prices are already fixed on as high a basis as to-day's quotations. Moreover, the chartered company are not allowed to sell direct to the trade abroad, but only to dealers and exporters in Greece.

Taking everything into consideration we predict higher prices, and as better quality is obtainable now than will be the case when the retention currants are being drawn upon for export, our advice to the trade is to anticipate their requirements.

PORK PACKING SITUATION IN NEW BRUNSWICK

The Province of New Brunswick, despite the fact that it has made rapid strides in agriculture and stock raising in recent years, does not raise a sufficient number of hogs to supply the local demands for pork and pork products. At the present time not one of the five pork packing factories in the province can get hogs here, and they are being brought from Ontario.

E. W. Slipp, of Slipp & Flewelling, St. John, who have a large local trade in pork products, told The Grocer's correspondent a few days ago, that at the present time they could not buy stock anywhere in the province. Everything has been bought up. It is understood that there is some stock in Prince Edward Island, but owing to navigation being closed, it is not available.

The class of hogs being brought from Ontario is heavy stock, which is suitable for the local trade and it is costing the packers, delivered here about $9 a cwt. Fancy stock couldn't be bought here for that figure and it is doubtful if it could be sold to advantage if it was.

The five packing houses in the province at the present time are: Slipp & Flewelling, The F. E. Williams Pork Packing Co., Limited, and John Hopkins, St. John; the Sussex Packing Co., Sussex; and the Imperial Packing Co., Woodstock. These factories are all using Ontario stock at the present time.

The packers state they have had about the usual amount of stock from this province, or perhaps a little more than usual on account of the F. B. Dunn Packing Co.'s factory at Fairville not being operated this year.

The output of these factories is for consumption in the Maritime Provinces alone, not a pound being shipped for export, and yet they cannot supply the demand, as large quantities of hams, bacon, lard, etc., are sent down here from the Ontario packers.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN.

Since report of last week two or three cheese factories have openend and are turning out new goods. The few that have commenced are situated in Western Ontario, in the Brockville and Belleville districts. It will be some time, however, before the turnout of these people will be ready for shipment. It is true, there are offered on the market a few more fodders, but the quantity is certainly limited.

Another week, or a fortnight, will probably witness the opening of activities for the spring season. Should favorable weather continue and March go out more like a lamb than a lion, makers will be enabled to get well under way in good time.

As already stated, it is likely that many will be attracted by high prices ruling to make their output solely cheese. It is not thought that present prices will fall very far before at least May 1.

Concerning business being transacted in cheese held at present, little can be said, since stocks are very light, the greater percentage of what is visible in Montreal being for English account. The few small lots in stock are quoted at steady prices.

Locally dealers report a very good trade with the retail trade at prices which are strong.

Only 86 boxes of cheese were received week ending March 16. This makes total receipts since May 1, 1906, 2,349,-791 boxes.

Butter continues very high, prices being upward in tendency. Receipts of fresh made are not large, and the market is none too well supplied as a consequence. On the other hand there is a brisk demand for all lines, particularly creamery. Prices for this variety are higher than last week and still climbing. Owing to the fact that the English market is very low for the Canadian creamery, lots of this line are still being received on this side. This season, had it not been for the receipts of creamery from England, the market would have been sky high, for the make was not sufficient to take care of the demand. At it is many reckon the price quite high enough—when they are buyers—but it may comfort them to know that the price is reasonable enough considering conditions, and is low compared to what it would be if no English creamery had been received.

Butter factories will soon be opening, a few having already started. The make will be small at first because of the temptation to make cheese and obtain the high prices ruling for that article, and also owing to the fact that milk is selling for good figures in the city and much that would other seasons be sold to the creameries is now being shipped to the city.

A delegation representing the produce trade interviewed the Government in connection with the customs duty on returned butter and were given a very satisfactory hearing. It is thought that nothing further will be done in this matter, but in the future returned butter—or any line of goods for that matter—will be subject to the duty mentioned in the tariff unless shipped direct to the original exporter.

Up to the end of last week, receipts of butter since May 1, 1906, totalled up to 610,637 packages, 880 packages being received during the week.

PROVISION SITUATION

Some improvement in the Old Country market is encouraging the Canadian packer to expect soon to be breaking even on the export trade and to hope that April business may show him a little profit. There would be some chance of it if he could get the price of hogs down, but the farmer still holds the whip. Prices this week are even firmer and while the big packers are still paying $6.65 f.o.b., country, which means $7.25 at the factory, smaller houses are paying $6.75 f.o.b., country. The roads are very bad, however, and deliveries are likely to be light. Last week they were about normal.

The end of Lent is expected to give a fillip to the trade, both in Great Britain and in Canada. Last week the Old Country market improved 2s. February is traditionally a bad month in England and this year the trade has quite lived up to its reputation; but there has been one special cause for the unusually bad markets. The Danes produced 35 per cent. more hogs than a year ago. Instead of killing 25,000 to 28,000 hogs a week they killed 30,000 to 34,000. The Danes put all their stuff into Wiltshire, the same as Canadian and Irish. Irish and Canadian were near enough normal to make the extra Danish an over supply, so that prices went low for all Wiltshire cuts. One result was that American products were averaging as good a price as Canadian. For the last two months Danish has averaged 55 to 58s; Irish about the same; Canadian 54 to 56s. and American about the same. Ordinarily American brings 2s. or 3s. under Canadian. For some months now the course of prices for hogs in Canada has not had much relation to the price of the products in England, and bacon in London has been selling from 4s. to 6s. a cwt. (112 lbs.) less than cost.

The Canadian farmer watches the Chicago market when prices there are higher than here, which they are about one year in ten, and have been recently. This was probably due to the fact that from November to February receipts in the States were a million hogs less than a year ago. That shortage has now been reduced to 700,000. The increase for the past two weeks was 55,-000. The American packers export on an average 25 per cent. of their product; the Canadians are just the other way about and export 75 per cent. The American uses the Old Country trade as a safety valve for the domestic trade. Their hogs are fat and yield more lard; their sausage trade is bigger and their waste products sell better, so that they can afford, if necessary, to sacrifice the small proportion of their products that goes abroad.

Packers a while ago were talking of a sharp rise in products in Canada when navigation opened, but they say now that prices will remain steady. They think that prices are now about as high as the consumption will stand. Enquiries are now being made for the north and northwest for the opening of navigation and considerable supplies have been going forward to the west by rail. The trade, indeed, has been unusual on account of the high price of American products. About all the west will pay more for Canadian than American is 1-4c and it is only very occasionally that the prices, even after paying the duty on American, come so near together.

CANADA BACON WANTED.

J. B. Jackson, Canadian commercial agent at Leeds, Eng., writes in the Government's Weekly Report:

Canadian brands of bacon and hams are much more in evidence in this district than American. Especially is this the case with regard to hams for boiling. You find them in almost every shop, and are now known as "Canadian," and are never refererd to as "American." The wholesale merchants are looking for very large shipments from Canada during the next few months, and although on account of the supplies of Canadian bacon and hams being so plentiful, prices are slightly lower as compared with the American; still I am of the opinion that it is good buisness for our Canadian packers to sell at reasonable prices as they apparently are doing, and by this means they are gradually capturing a very large share of the trade from the American shippers.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

PROVISIONS—Packers are busy shipping Easter orders, which have been very good this year. Some orders, late in arriving, are now being booked for the holiday trade. Pure lard is higher this week. The high prices asked for pure lard have had the effect of curtailing the demand somewhat, many consumers taking compound instead of it. Hams and bacon are moving out freely at firm prices. Higher figures are anticipated in these lines in the near future.

BUTTER—There has not been much change in the butter situation since last week. Ruling prices do not show any change compared with those quoted last week. Little fresh butter is arriving. Much of the milk which would otherwise go to the creameries is being shipped to the city for sale at temptingly high figures, while the fancy prices obtainable for cheese have been the means of enticing many into the cheese-making industry, to the detriment of butter making.

CHEESE—Little business is being transacted. Stocks are rapidly being cleaned up, only a few lots being held. For local trade, prices asked run between 14½c. and 15c.

EGGS—Just now a speculative market rules in eggs. There is a big consumption, but receipts during the week from Ontario points were very heavy. Prices are slightly easier. For really nice Canadian new-laid 22c. is asked by some, while others go as high as 24c. American eggs are selling at figures pretty nearly on the same level, 22c. to 23c.

PROVISIONS.—Renewed enquiry from the west and north and east gives notice that the spring revival is at hand. Packers assert that at present high prices they don't much more than break even. It is admitted, however, that prices are about as high as they can be without limiting consumption, therefore not much further advance, if any, is likely. Another fact is that the poor market for some time in Great Britain has encouraged packers to accumulate for the busy domestic period at hand.

FROM GROCER CORRESPONDENCE

TORONTO.

An early closing movement has been on foot for some time past in the northwest section of the city and culminated a few weeks ago in a small organization of those grocers who were favorable to the change. They are: Stewart Scott, Jno. Shipman, and A. H. Moore, on Bloor St. West; Robt. Lawson, T. W. Brumby, Wm. B. Geddes, on Symington Ave.; J. T. Deacon, W. Wilkinson and J. S. McCann, on Emerson St.; L. Henderson, on Lansdowne Ave.; Jno. Jeffers, on Royce Ave.; and Mrs. Horton, F. Hopper, J. Cake and Mrs. E. Christian on Dufferin St. They have had cards printed which are prominently displayed in their windows and inside the store, with the resolution and names of all concerned inscribed thereon. They agree to close at 7 p.m. every night, excepting Fridays and Saturdays, and evenings preceding holidays. Mr. Lawson, who is largely responsible for the movement, said to The Grocer: "Early closing is the only way to keep 'dead beats' out of the store; no fellow is going to come in and ask for credit in front of a store full of customers, and since the change has come into force I have been scarcely bothered with applications of this sort at all. Formerly as many as half a dozen would come in in the evening after 7 or 8 o'clock, until the thing got to be a positive nuisance."

Most of the grocers in this district are cutting out the coupon system altogether, complaining that the method causes more bother than convenience. Jno. Jeffers has a notice in his window to the effect that after a certain date no coupons will be given out, and that all those at present holding coupons should bring them in at once, when they will either be redeemed in cash or will be allowed as 4 per cent. discount off cash purchases.

Robert Lawson is building another store with a floor space of 36 x 19, opposite his present location on Symington Avenue. Mr. Lawson runs a grocery and butcher business all under one roof, and is being crowded out by a rapidly growing trade. It is his intention to work up a good butcher business in the new store and then offer it for sale. He remarked incidentally that the man who occupied his present store before he took it over did a strictly cash business and only lost ten dollars in five years.

C. Rowntree has closed his store at 6 p.m. regularly for some time past, and does one of the biggest trades in the west end notwithstanding.

J. C. Bedser, at present with A. H. Moore, is shortly going to start up for himself in the store lately vacated by the Minton Barber Co. He will be in partnership with Arthur Seaman.

G. F. Wrigley has almost completed the fitting up of his new store on the corner of Markham and Bloor St. We hope to give a fuller account of this in an early issue, for Mr. Wrigley may safely be congratulated on possessing an interior of a neatness and attraction seldom encountered in so small a space.

TORONTO PURE FOOD SHOW.

Opened on Monday by the Mayor—Large Attendance Daily.

Another annual Pure Food Show was opened in Massey Hall, Toronto, on Monday, under the auspices of the Retail Merchants' Association and gives promise of being the greatest achievement of its kind Toronto has seen. The exhibits are as numerous and as varied as ever and more attractive than ever. The entertainment department is far in advance of other years and the attendance to date has been unparallelled.

The show was opened on Monday afternoon by Mayor Coatsworth. With His Worship on the platform were Geo. Good, chairman; F. T. Higgins, vice-chairman; M. Moyer, treasurer; E. M. Trowern, secretary; Ald. Bengough, Ald. Lytle and Controller Harrison, Ald. J. J. Graham and G. St. Leger.

Mr. Higgins, who is president of the Retail Merchants' Association, was the principal speaker and advocated a law fixing the number of pounds to a bag of potatoes and the repeal of the law which will not permit business men getting together and adjusting fair and reasonable prices.

The opening ceremonies were enlivened by a select programme of music, a feature of which was the remarkable cornetist performance by Paris Chambers. The 48th Highlanders' band will be in attendance each evening during the fair.

One of the most interesting and educative features of the show is a series of demonstrations and lectures in the basement by Miss Pattinson and pupils of the Lillian Massey School of Domestic Science. These from the first have proved great attractions to ladies of all ages and have been very largely attended.

Many of the booths and exhibits are exceedingly attractive, but lack of space prevents a detailed description in this issue. One of the finest is the Red Rose corner, where a tea party is always in progress, but of that more anon. The show is open every afternoon and evening and will continue until the evening of Good Friday.

BRANCHING OUT.

Nicholson & Bain, wholesale commission merchants, Winnipeg, have established a branch in Edmonton.

OFF FOR EUROPE.

H. Laporte, of Laporte, Martin & Co., Montreal, has left for Europe, accompanied by Mrs. Laporte. They will sail by the Empress of Ireland, and intend to spend three months on the continent.

PERSONALS.

J. L. Watt, of Watt & Scott, was in Montreal this week.

R. Greig, D. McDougall & Co., Glasgow, manufacturers of clay pipes, was in Montreal recently.

J. Mitchell Jones, Andrews, Gillespie & Co., Montreal, has returned from a trip to the Old Country.

Mr. Ashworth, representative in Toronto of the N. K. Fairbank Co., has moved to 164 Bleecker St.

J. M. Thom, who has been clerking for Gibbons Bros., Queen St. east, Toronto, has left to take a position with D. W. Clarke on Avenue Road. Mr. Thom has done some first rate window-dresing. His work won first place in the Canadian Grocer 1905 Christmas window and has just been awarded second place in the Bovril competition for Toronto.

TRADE NOTES.

Jacques Farladeau, baker, of Quebec, is dead.

Charles Smith, miller, of Campbellford, is dead.

Alphonse Quesnel, grocer, Montreal, has assigned.

George Baks, grocer, of Edmondville, has sold out.

A. E. Thompson, of Hamilton, grocer, is selling out.

CRY IS FOR ELEVATORS ON THE PACIFIC COAST

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer)

Vancouver, B.C., March 14.

The return of R. M. Palmer, British Columbia Commissioner to England, in connection with the province's fruit exhibits at different large horticultural exhibitions there, revives interest in the success of the fruit sent from the Pacific Province. It is now over two months since word was received that many gold and silver medals and diplomas had been awarded to exhibits of fruit from different parts of the province. In some classes the awards were the highest given, surpassing all other exhibits.

Mr. Palmer, interviewed on his recent return, is strong in the belief that a large market in the Old Country awaits fruit from this province, in addition to the unlimited market of our own Canadian Northwest provinces. The fruit exhibited was in commercial packages, so that after the exhibitions, auctions of the fruit were held at Edinburgh, Birmingham, Liverpool and other places. Keen bidding and satisfactory, even high, prices, resulted in every case. From this Mr. Palmer concludes that the fruit from this province would find ready sale, and his study of the market in the Old Country would also affirm the conclusion as well as assuring good prices. The varieties of apples suitable for the Old Country market, he considers, are pippins, Spitzenberg, and similar sorts. Mr. Palmer brought home with him the splendid collection of medals won by the different fruit-growers who sent exhibits.

Vancouver's first flour mill is nearing completion, the Hall Elevator and Mill Co. being now engaged in installing the plant in their new building, erected alongside their elevator, which, too, was the first in Vancouver. The new mill building has been erected to accommodate machinery for 500 barrels per day capacity, but at present the installation is for just half that amount. As the trade develops the plant will be extended. From all present indications the extension will soon be required.

Were the wheat still in stote in Alberta from last year's crop, there would be no difficulty in shipping at least a million bushels to the Orient this spring. But owing to lack of elevator accommodation the Alberta crop was largely shipped east last fall. The inquiry for wheat from the prairie for shipment to the Orient has only lately begun to be active and will influence next fall's shipments very materially. There is wheat yet in store in Saskatchewan, where shipment was much hampered last fall, but the distance west-bound is too great and freight rates too high at present to ship that wheat via B.C. ports.

The new Hall flour mill in Vancouver is likely to be operated day and night from the moment it is completed, as orders and inquiries for flour for Oriental shipment are so numerous. The only problem now seems to be to get sufficiently large quantities of wheat to keep the mill going.

With the anticipated completion of the Great Northern Railway's V.V. & E. line, from Midway into the southern part of the Similkameen district the fruit-growers of Keremeos have organized an exchange, on similar lines to those established in the various towns and settlements of the Okanagan and Kootenay and on the coast. As this district, though far from market by reason of lack of transportation, has long been developed in fruit and vegetable raising, there are a number of fine orchards already in bearing and many others coming in. The growers anticipate having a large crop to market this season, and the exchange will handle it for all. The surplus or any part of the crop not readily marketable is to be taken care of by a small cannery it is proposed to establish along similar co-operative lines to the exchange, though the function of the latter is principally to market the crop of the district. This will add a new fruit-shipping district to the many now in the field, but the demand market of the Northwest has never been met and that of Manitoba is still supplied from south of the border.

Market conditions are lively at the present moment. Trade is brisk and some changes are noted. Sugar prices have been advanced by the local refinery 10c. all round. Base quotations now are: Powdered, icing and bar, $6.70 per cwt.; granulated, $5.30; extra C., $4.70; fancy yellow, $4.55; yellow, $4.45; dark yellow, $4.35. Syrup, finest golden, 2¼c. per lb. in bbls., 2¾c. in 10-gal. kegs; $5.-25 in cases of twenty half-gallons.

Some slight changes are noted in canned goods. Peas have advanced to $1.15; Bartlett pears are less, having dropped ten cents to $2, while other varieties are $1.87½, instead of $2, as previously. In dried fruits, California white figs are quoted at 6½c.; other lines are unchanged at firm prices.

In flour some higher quotations from the Enderby and Armstrong mills are noted, 50c. per bbl. being asked on Hungarian, making the quotation now, $5.30 and $5, respectively. Bran is $1 higher, being now $24 per ton.

Eggs have slumped badly and the market is demoralized, owing to the arrival of considerable shipments from Oregon and the heavy local marketing. Fresh eggs are now down to 23c. per dozen, and mild, fine weather, such as prevails, will keep the supply up so that the price will stay down. In butter there is no great increase of stocks, as supplies are largely local. This supply is increasing, but price remains at 35c. wholesale for fresh local creamery, and 30c. for good local dairy. The steamer Aorangi, due to-day, from Australia, brings the last consignment of Australian butter for this season. It will likely not be quoted less than 30c. and 31c.

The potato market is unusually speculative, prices for Ashcrofts having gone to $40 per ton, and none offering. Even lower Fraser river potatoes are over $25 on Vancouver market, though at New Westminster the weekly farmers' market last Friday did not quote them as high as that. Cabbages are now quoted 3½c. per lb.; local onions, $1.50 per sack; Victoria hot-house lettuce is still $1.75 per crate. California cucumbers are $3 per doz.; cauliflower, $2 per doz.; asparagus, 25c. per lb.

GUELPH GROCER'S ANNUAL BANQUET TO HIS STAFF

Grocery Traveler Talks on Salesmanship.

Alderman J. A. McCrea, thr proprietor of Guelph's "Noted T Store," gave his annual dinner to the employes of that establishment on the evening of Thursday, March 7, at his own residence. Since Mr. McCrea started in business he has been thoroughly alive to the value of creating sociable and friendly interests between his subordinates and himself, and the good time enjoyed by everyone on this occasion is a tangible proof of the established popularity of what, several years ago, was merely an experiment.

The feature of the evening, aside from the dinner, was the very instructive and entertaining address of J. W. Charles, a representative of H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, who chose as his subject, "Scientific Salesmanship," treating it in such a lucid, interesting and, withal, so practical a manner, that no one of his listeners could fail to be benefited. A comprehensive report of Mr. Charles' remarks is given lower down.

The guests were received by Mrs. Elliott, whose hospitable welcome made everyone feel at home immediately, and by 7.30 all the members of the staff and their friends were seated round the banquet table, with Ald. McCrea at the head and Mr. Charles, as the guest of honor, at his right hand. Mrs. McCrea, assisted by Miss Clark and Miss Adams presided over the tempting viands. In their appreciation of these most of the guests erred rather on the side of repletion than moderation. When everyone had satisfied the cravings of the inner man, or woman, Ald. McCrea arose, and after a few well chosen remarks expressive of his pleasure and satisfaction at the sight of such a number of his employes enjoying themselves so heartily, he proposed the toast to the King, which was responded to with a roar of applause, amid which could be distinguished indistinct strains of the National Anthem.

Then followed Mr. Harris' toast to "Our Guest," prefaced by many complimentary allusions to Mr. Charles, to which that gentleman replied in a spirit of suitable modesty, which, if not altogether natural, was at least well feigned.

The lady members of the staff then sprang a surprise on the party by rendering a selection written especially for the occasion, entitled "The Poor, Lone Girls of the Noted T Store." The authorship of this effort did not transpire, so no lives were lost, but there was a noticeable feeling of uneasiness among some of the staff as of an impending earthquake. Every fresh verse carried a barbed witticism aimed at some member present, and the host and Mr. Charles, so far from being exempt, received their full share and accepted it in the spirit in which it was given.

Scientific Salesmanship.

Mr. Charles was then called upon to say a few words on the duties and aims of the salesman and on rising made a preliminary expression of the extreme pleasure he felt at being present. His address was to be entitled "Scientific Salesmanship," and the subject would be treated along entirely new lines, his motto being, "There is no Royal Road to Success, but There are a few Short Cuts."

The business world, Mr. Charles said, was made up of the business and professional units, of which the former were a great deal more numerous. But, no matter in what situation in life a man might be placed, whether he be a doctor, a lawyer, or a member of any other profession, or whether he be occupied in any business career, he was in a certain fundamental sense, a salesman; a salesman in that he was trying to get the highest market price for his services.

The business man, however, Mr. Charles continued, was handicapped in that he had no textbook for guidance, as have members of other professions, and therefore an elementary basis must be arrived at. But what was this basis? Most business men had found it to be upheld by four pillars—endurance, ability, reliability and efficiency—each depending upon the other and all necessary to success. These qualities all clerks must endeavor to cultivate if they would succeed, and all could be acquired by an earnest endeavor on the part of the aspirant.

Be Positive.

The successful business man could not follow in the footsteps of his predecessors, but he must carve a way for himself. Every clerk must either be a "positive" or a "negative," and the former only could be successful. To be a "positive" a clerk must be faithful and diligent. He or she must have ambition and not simply work for the weekly stipend. "The value of a clerk is determined by the greater or lesser amount of supervision he or she requires."

Mr. Charles then turned from the scientific side of salesmanship to the practical side. The great problem, he said, was the surest and easiest way to get orders. To this question there were four phases—the customer, the salesman, the sale and the article—of which the "sale" was the most important. The clerk should endeavor to cultivate the practice of holding an interesting conversation with the prospective buyer explaining the merits of the article for sale without boring the customer. An endeavor should be made to make the customers commit themselves, and then they should never be allowed to leave the store until the deal is closed.

Another point that Mr. Charles emphasized was that a clerk should not grumble but make his complaint to the manager. Every clerk should have the ambition to obtain a higher position than his present one. He should endeavor to "reach the top of the ladder and then call for more ladder." He should also practice frugality and put his savings where they might be called upon at short notice when a business opportunity availed.

Host's Respects to Staff.

Mr. Charles' inspiring talk was followed by a piano solo by Miss Bott, and it in turn by the toast to "The Staff," proposed by Ald. McCrea, who paid the clerks a high compliment on their very satisfactory services, especially during his illness at Christmas tide, when "the mice had not played while the cat was away." The toast was responded to by Messrs. Harris, Vass, Shortill, Stuart, Fonger, Hack, Edwards and Dougherty; and Misses Dougherty, Bott, Felker, Long and Weatherston; Mr. Dougherty's contribution was a song.

A piano and mandolin duet was rendered by Mrs. McCrea and Miss Dougherty, and solos by R. McCrea and Mr. Charles.

The toast to the ladies was proposed by R. McCrea, and responded to by Mr. Charles, and it is scarcely necessary to add that the fair sex met with nothing but compliments at their hands. Mr. Charles proposed the toast to the charming waitresses, to which Miss Adams replied briefly, and Miss Clark responded with a piano solo. The press also met with due honors.

Last, but not least important, and none the less heartily honored, was the toast to the host, hostess, and companion hostess, which Mr. Charles proposed on behalf of those present, and which was followed with "For they are jolly good fellows," and "See him smiling." A most delightful evening was brought to a close with "Auld Lang Syne."

R. B. WISEMAN & CO. MOVE.

R. B. Wiseman & Co., Winnipeg, have moved to the big warehouse just vacated by the Marshall Wells Hardware Co. A rapid increase in the volume of their business made it absolutely necessary that larger quarters be secured, and R. B. Wiseman & Co. are fortunate in securing such a commodious warehouse. The building has four storeys and a basement, the total floor space being about 25,000 square feet. With their larger headquarters R. B. Wiseman & Co. could now handle one or two additional grocery lines. They have always had an excellent organization for reaching the wholesale trade and now they have the storage room for larger business.

BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

No. 15

ALEX. ORSALI.

Persistent effort, working hard day after day, week after week, year after year, with a goal to be attained; this with business ability and integrity placed Alex. Orsali where he now is, partner of one of the most important wholesale grocery firms in Montreal, Hudon & Orsali. No exceptional advantages were his when he started business life, unless good health, ambition and the courage to stick to a thing and see it through may be counted out of the ordinary possessions of youth. Long was the road over which he traveled, and it was certainly rough in places, but in traversing it he kept his eyes open, accumulating experience and learning how to deal with men and events. As a consequence his fellow wholesalers know he is a man to be depended upon at all times and are willing to display their confidence in him in substantial manner as witness his election to the council of that powerful body, the Montreal Board of Trade. This council is composed of the most sagacious and experienced business men of the city, one man to represent each class forming the Board of Trade. As the one who will look after the interests of the grocery trade Mr. Orsali will give satisfaction to all.

ALEX. ORSALI,

Recently elected a member of the Montreal Board of Trade Executive.

Born in Montreal, Mr. Orsali received his education in the city of his birth and first earned his stipend as a clerk in the Harbor Commissioner's office, then, in 1861, under the presidency of Alderman John Young. Mr. Orsali was at that time but 16 years of age. Later he obtained a position in the provision business with Morin & Co., who were down on Youville Square. Here he worked for a long time, having as associates such men as A. A. Ayer, F. X. St. Charles and other leaders in the commercial life of to-day. Leaving this firm he entered the employ of the old house of D. Masson & Co., at the time they were carrying on business on the site of the present Board of Trade building. He was rapidly accruing knowledge that was to be of the greatest value to him later in life, and, joining the staff of Boyer, Hudon & Co., a provision and grocery house, he was given there a responsible position.

Here he worked until 1873 when, with the late Firmin Hudon, he started business under the style of Hudon & Orsali, wholesale grocers. Starting in a small back room, the business gradually grew until it assumed its present proportions. The firm now occupies a splendid five-storey building on St. Paul street, which was entered in 1905.

In 1897 Mr. Hudon died, but a couple of months later his son, Albert, was taken into the business as a partner.

Besides being a member of the Board of Trade and representing the grocers on the council of that institution, Mr. Orsali is in his second term as president of the Montreal Wholesale Grocers' Guild, and is an active member of the Chambre de Commerce.

TAX ON TRAVELERS OFF.

By the passage of a bill brought into the British Columbia Legislature last week, the Government of that province voted to repeal the law imposing a tax on commercial travelers representing business houses in other provinces of Canada. Under the new law the only travelers who will still be taxed are those representing liquor or tobacco firms who have no branch house in the province. Such travelers will still be required to pay a license fee of $100 every six months. Travelers representing other lines of business, and not being residents of the province have, heretofore been required to pay $50 every six months. Henceforth these latter travelers will be exempt from taxation.

EXHIBITION OF GROCERIES.

Activity in Montreal in Connection With Great Food Show.

As the time for opening of Montreal's exhibition of groceries approaches, interest in the great fair increases. The retail trade are anticipating indirect benefits from the affair in that many food products which are now stocked by them will receive such demonstration as will increase their popularity with the consumer, and at the same time help their sales along. Again, many special lines of groceries in use to-day are not appreciated at their true worth owing to improper cooking, and with a band of demonstrators showing just how best results are obtained from different articles, there is sure to be absorbed much knowledge by the housewife attending the fair, and she will discover hitherto unknown excellencies in the groceries every day used in her house.

Committee members are enthusiastic over Hospital Day. Recently was presented in these columns the likeness of Albert Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Co., who is one of the workers on the committee and very much interested in the benefit day for the hospitals. This week is shown the face of S. J. Mathewson, also on the committee, and like Mr. Hebert, hot and heavy, if the words may be permitted, for Hospital Day. Mr. Mathewson is a member of the firm of Mathewson's Sons, wholesale grocers, Montreal, and is greatly interested in all questions appertaining to the grocery trade. He is a hard worker and his experience in the grocery business will be of great value on the committee of the exhibition of groceries. Mr. Mathewson explained to the Canadian Grocer that the button seen on his coat lapel is adorned with the words, "Shoo Fly." This, of course, is just an aside.

It will not be long before work will be started towards erecting the booths at the arena. The plan to be followed should give satisfaction to the exhibitors. There will be booths along the sides and along each end, also two rows in the centre, that is, one row backing another. Frequent cross aisles will make it possible for the people to move about quite freely. The booths will all be of a uniform size, no projections being allowed, the committee desiring to have the effect as harmonious as possible. It is proposed to install a telephone system, another up-to-date stroke. Such a move should certainly meet with the approval of exhibitors, since for the outlay of a very small expense they would be in a position to communicate at all times with their booth.

EMIL C. BOECKH BEREAVED.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Large Increase in Flour Trade With South Africa—Freight Congestion Severe on Small Millers—An Example of Grocers Handling Confectionery.

The unusual movement of Canadian flour to the Orient has been attracting considerable attention of late, but there is another increased outlet for the product of Canadian mills of which little has been said as yet, but which will develop in the official returns later on. This movement is to South Africa. Figures are not available but there has been a notable increase of shipments to that market this year. The trade was developed from the African end, too. One Canadian miller who has had a considerable share in this export business explained it thus: "Canadian hard wheat flour has become the world's standard and when the South Africans found they could get it at as low a price as American flour they naturally took it. This year Canadian flour is lower than American. Then we have a direct steamship service to South Africa which also enables Canadians to meet United States competition."

The grain markets are very quiet. The freight congestion is still an embargo on business. Cars of merchandise of all kinds are scattered up and down the railways from Halifax to Vancouver. They may have been loaded where they stand, but more likely they were sidetracked weeks ago because of stress of weather or for other reasons that seemed good to the operating departments of the railways.

Cereal markets are quiet, but prices are firm. There is still talk of a corner in oats in Winnipeg, but so far prices of products, at any rate, are not affected.

Confectionery.

Just another word, an example this time, in regard to the grocer handling confectionery. Michie & Co., Toronto, among the large retail grocery firms in Canada, and with a patronage of the most desirable class, have a small display window at the very centre of the business section of Toronto. To increase its utility it is fitted with a movable partition faced on both sides with mirrors. Just now a good half of the window is given up to a display of Easter confectionery novelties. About half the Michie frontage on King St. is used for the liquor store, which goes back but a little way. This means that the grocery is narrow at the front and widens out a little way back. This narrow front section is the firm's candy department. It is presided over by a comely young lady and sometimes two. The counter and shelves behind it are laden with high-class staple confectionery and the opposite wall has glassed-in shelves that contain an array of novelties. In this connection it is worth while remarking that most of the highest class confectioners in the city are near neighbors of Michie & Co.

CEREALS—The railway car shortage, lack of motive power and freight congestion this winter has crowded the smaller millers pretty severely. The larger producers seem to have had and still have ample stocks of oats on hand to carry them through. Prices are still unchanged though the millers are claiming that there should be an upward movement. Ontario oats are costing 40c. at the mills and the western oats 44c. to 45c. enormously increased cost to the retailer, and, as a consequence, to the consumer, which would result if the manufacturers had to retain their own force of salesmen, his views might have undergone a change. As it is, he will continue to spread the seed of dissension and opposition among others as ignorant as himself. The wholesalers have offered to help the retailers to organize, but it would be better if they would first educate some of the latter to the aims and advantages of the system against which they kick so strenuously."

Cookstown Half and Half.

In Fisher's store, which is almost opposite that of Mr. Couse, The Grocer found yet another combination. This time it was dry goods and groceries, and from the generous space allowed to each, and the size of the stock on hand, it seemed to be a most successful partnership. Mr. Fisher's enthusiastic remarks confirmed this estimate, though business was sufficiently quiet for the moment to allow The Grocer almost an hour's pleasant chat. Mr. Fisher drew the writer's attention to the fact that Cookstown occupied a somewhat unique position among Canadian towns, as it was situated in four townships, of which Innisfil and Essa enjoyed local option, while West Gwillimbury and Tecumseh were prohibition—and at that, local option carried the last election by only 8 votes. So that within the next few years we may expect to see a model Cookstown rise from the ashes of a liquored past, and settling down to a blameless life of incorruptible temperance, shake off for ever the suggestive cognomen of "half-and-half."

ORGANIZATION MOVEMENT IS HOT IN PETERBOROUGH

Peterborough just now is ripe for the organization of a retail grocers' association. It has been felt by the grocers for a long time that such a move should be made. The men catering to the necessities and luxuries of the inner man are not ignorant of the great benefit an association would be to them They are perfectly aware of all that, and so far not a man has said he would not join in the undertaking. On the contrary, nearly everyone has said that he would gladly do all he could to help it along.

Since the agitation has been started by The Canadian Grocer the merchants have renewed their interest in the movement. They have read the letters in The Grocer from H. C. Beckett and from the other correspondents. They fully appreciate the weakness of individualism in trade and the strength of unity. They agree with many of the suggestions thrown out and have several others to offer which would be applicable to the whole Dominion.

The trouble here is who will take the lead? A grocer in business, catering to the public every day cannot take up the organization without great loss to his own business. At the same time it is felt by many that the organizer should be a man who understands the grocery business.

One sugegstion is that an outside man, that is, a local man not in the grocery business, be engaged to call on every grocer in the city; explain to him the object of the association in detail, then ask him to sign a paper agreeing to become a member and to help the movement along. After this work had been completed and the great majority of the grocers had signed, a meeting could be called and the organization proceeded with. None of the members would be injured by those who stayed away and for the simple reason that the majority would control the trade.

One great object of the association, aside from any relationship with the wholesale houses which, of course, would be one of the main features, is to establish a "slow pay and dead beat system." Hundreds of dollars are lost every year, in fact thousands of dollars, by the professional "dead beats," and this city as well as every other city is full of them. With an organization the permanent secretary would be authorized to go over the books of each grocer every month and pick out the "slow pay and dead beat" accounts. These names he would keep alphabetically in a book, and whenever a merchant desired any information about a person desiring credit all he would have to do would be to call up the secretary and walk down to see him. A complete list of such accounts could be kept and the merchants saved hundreds of dollars.

Another object is to establish and maintain throughout the entire city a one price system. The executive would be empowered to watch the market and regulate the local prices so that the customers would get the full benefit of any reduction and still the merchant would do business at a profit. It would abolish the system of cutting prices, selling at and below cost and every man would be on an equal footing.

As far as joining in with the wholesale men or accepting any assistance from them, other than mere suggestions, the merchants here would strongly oppose it.

SALADA'S INCREASE.

The Salada Tea Co. report that their increase during the first eleven weeks of this year amounted to 163,306 pounds over the corresponding eleven weeks of 1906. This is an average increase of 14,846 pounds for each week of the eleven. In the Toronto branch alone, the report states, the increase for the first eleven weeks of this year amounted to 87,597 pounds. This means that over 43 tons more Salada has been sold in Ontario and Western Canada so far this year than in the first eleven weeks of 1906. The Montreal branch also reports a large increase every week this year. They sell no tea but Salada in packets in either Canada or the United States.

COBALT COMPARISONS.

Just as Good Prizes in Legitimate Investments as in Mines.

From The Financial Post.

The luring mining advertisement which early last autumn heralded some new promotion had usually this to say:

Foster was 80 cents, now $3.50.

Buffalo was $1, now $3.95.

Nipissing was $5, now $30.

Hudson Bay (mine) was $1, now $110.

At that time one might with greater force have said:

C. P. R. was $48, now (about) $200.

Hudson Bay (the real) was £20, now £120. (An advance of 500 points.)

Canada Northwest Land was $2, now $520.

We are going back at the most nine years in the low quotations.

In the excitement over Cobalt the temptation to share in some of the new found fortunes, many of them yet on paper, is keen. The small investor, the man who has a few savings put by and the widow who depends for her existence on her income from a well invested capital, should leave mining stocks alone. As one American authority put the case, mining stocks should be bought only by the men who have made mining a business or the rich individuals who can afford the hazard a mining proposition inevitably entails.

No one who has seen Cobalt can doubt the mineral wealth that is self-evident. Its extent has yet to be determined. The successful mine-buyer conducts his purchases in a conservative manner. The big men usually want to see a large percentage of the purchase money in sight. The discreet buyer will not pay a million dollars for a mine unless he sees $750,000 worth of ore in sight.

The public in the stock craze are at present paying on a basis of millions for properties that can show the expert only a small fraction of the capital.

Prizes are not confined to mining alone. Almost equally as good results have been obtained, and may yet be obtained, out of absolutely sound investments.

A wage-earner who had $300 laid by could have bought in 1897 six shares of C. P. R. With the additional issues of stock in 1902, 1904 and 1906, assuming that he had put by $100 yearly, he would now possess for a total outlay of $900 12 shares. Those market prices may be placed (for the purposes of illustration in any event) at $2,400. In the nine years he has, besides, received in dividends nearly $50 more.

Consider even a bank stock, Imperial Bank for a good example.

In 1897 he could have bought two shares for $360. In 1906, if he had saved $100 per year and invested it in the new stock issues, he would have paid out $1,300 and own eight shares worth $2,000, and would have received in the meantime $300 in dividends.

Take Hudson's Bay Company (not the mining concern). It is true there is something remarkable about the name of Hudson Bay in the stock market. In 1905 he could have bought one share for $250. In less than eight months he could have sold it for $625. Dividend meantime was $20.

In 1897 he could have bought one share for $100.

Canada Northwest Land could have been bought in 1907 on the basis of $2 a share. That share can now be sold for $520.

The legitimate investments required a little longer time, but they will last a little longer in all human probabiity.

Cobalt has produced up to the end of the year something over $5,500,000, a remarkable record for a new camp, but when compared with the extent of flotations, which run about $250,000,000, quite out of keeping.

The production has been as follows:

Government Report, 1904 ...	$ 136,218
Government Report, 1905 ...	1,468,524
Government Report, 1906, nine months	1,750,344
	$3,355,086

In October, shipments were 1,201 tons. November was less, with 725 tons. December values are higher, but the $5,500.000 mark can hardly be passed.

The unsafest guides as to stock proposals are the men who live in the camp. Cobalt is so exceptional in surface showings and in the ease with which ore is quarried, rather than mined, that one can readily understand the optimism of the man on the spot.

To quote an instance, the City of Cobalt prospect is one of the most highly regarded prospects in the camp. This claim is situated in the town itself. It lies largely under the houses. The company formed for its exploitation secured the mining rights by giving agreements for stock to the owners.

The promoters considered the claim was conservatively capitalized at $500.000, in shares of $1 each. No certificates were issued. Trading in the camp soon began in agreements for the stock when delivered. The spectacle was immediately presented of men buying pieces of paper, some of them written in lead pencil. The sales began about $1.50, then $2, then $3. In early November it was a favor to secure a prospective share at this price. By the end of the month transfers were being made at $6. even at $8. No work had been done beyond the stripping of a vein. The bulls claimed that every vein in the camp ran into the city of Cobalt.

The fact was, that the Buffalo vein had been uncovered. Thus the merest prospect was being traded in on a basis of millions, and not even a certificate issued or any development work done. Any consideration of the difficulty of mining on this particular property was lightly brushed aside.

Cases like these should be better warnings than any sermon.

A milk company has been incorporated at Hamilton with $150,000 capital.

At the Buffalo Convention

The Dodge One-Piece Metallic Cap for the Hermetic Sealing of glass packages

WON IT'S GREATEST VICTORY

It received the enthusiastic endorsement of every packer present. Those who had used it were outspoken in it's praise. All who saw it's practical demonstration on the Dodge new Self-Adjusting Capping Machine were surprised at it's perfect seal and adaptability in meetifg the requirements of the Pure Food Law.

As a closure to be used in processing it has no competitor. Its mechanical simplicity and being assembled and ready to place give it extraordinary economical advantages in both time and money to the packer.

Its handy and easy detachment without instruments or printed directions forces the public to prefer the package sealed by it, as damaged forks, twisted knife blades, broken glass, hard struggles and torn or cut fingers are entirely obviated by its use.

Its clean, neat and handsome appearance always remain, making dirty, rusty, sticky, leaky and consequently unsalable goods on grocers' shelves a thing of the past.

Besides the regular Dodge closure used extensively by the pickling and jam trade, other forms of value to the packer are, namely:

The Dodge Cork-lined Ketchup and Bottle Cap for crown finish bottles; will not blow off before, during or after the processing.

The Dodge Jelly Tumbler Cap with narrow rim, sealing neatly on a rounded rim of a tumbler.

The Dodge Replacable Mustard Cap with spoon accommodation.

The Dodge Process Cap for light syrup, fruits, requiring the bath; allows of venting the package while processing. A replacable seal on the lever principle that can be used over and over again.

The Dodge principle of closing receptacles of all kinds is undoubtedly the most perfect system ever invented, and of immense value to the Canning and Preserving industry.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Fruit Trade Very Active—Oranges Higher—Refrigeration Charges Will Soon Be Put on—Unusual Demand for Lemons and a Scarcity Possible.

Fruit is more interesting this week than either vegetables or fish, neither of the latter being particularly active or showing any noticeable fluctuations in price. A new theory with regard to the car shortage in California has come to hand. It is that the railways intend spreading the service over the whole season, being afraid that if they now place all their available rolling stock at the convenience of the shippers, it will have the effect of rushing the goods out of the market. The phenomenal growth of the country has evidently exceeded the railroads' expectations. All California stuff will very shortly be coming in under refrigeration, and this expense will add about 25 cents additional to every box.

The western strawberries are no good and the southwestern only fair. The Florida berries are excellent, but there has been a scarcity of them for the last fortnight. Heavy rains in the south have made the stock soft and unfit for traveling. Better shipments and lower prices may be anticipated shortly. Pineapples, both Havanas and Floridas, are late this year, but Havana advices indicate that the quantity will be fully up to last season's average, though the stock will be small and there will be fewer cases packed. High prices will rule for the larger sizes. Lemons have been in exceptional demand in Toronto for the last two or three months, and some dealers look for a temporary famine until the Montreal deliveries begin to come to hand in May. Foreign merchants say that lemons command a fancy price in Northern Europe and Russia.

About a third of the navel oranges in the Redlands district of California have been shipped, but there is danger of decay in transit because of the longer time consumed in hauling fruit to eastern points of distribution. All the packing houses are filled with fruit in anticipation of a car supply, but no loss has yet resulted.

All the new southern vegetables are coming to hand in good shape and enjoy ready sales. The potato market in Ontario is a little easier than last week, with a moderate demand for eastern stock.

Fish is again in fair demand, with prospects of a roaring trade for the close of Lent. Finnan haddie are starting to come in again from Nova Scotia, where the rough weather has lately prevented fishing operations.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS.—A little more business is being done in fruits this week, demand being stronger than for some time. Bananas are higher, prices asked being $1.65 to $2. Demand for this line quite exceeds the supply. Florida grape fruits and one or two other lines are higher locally owing to advanced prices in New York, which were caused by the scarcity of these lines.

TORONTO.

FRUIT.—Valencia oranges have advanced a shilling to one and sixpence in the European market, and prices here have risen in sympathy. Californias have gone up 50c. a box at the coast, and about the same locally. All oranges are running in very large sizes, and the demand is greater at present than at the same time last year. Palermo bloods in ½ boxes will arrive in Toronto this week. Grape fruit is steadily going up, with the demand brisk. Lemons are very firm with an advance looked for. Apples are plentiful. Pineapples are scarce and high at $5.50 a case. Cranberries are practically exhausted.

VEGETABLES.—Trade is quiet locally and prices remain about the same. One of the first cars of Florida celery was received the other day and the stock reported exceptionally good. Fresh supplies of new carrots, beets, spinach and asparagus are arriving daily, and are quickly disposed of. The Florida celery takes precedence over the California supply in point of quality.

FISH.—Trade is not remarkable, but one or two lines show a slight rise. Halibut has advanced, and Finnan haddie, though receipts are a little more plentiful, is at a premium at 10c. a lb. There will be little else but frozen fish with which to supply the Good Friday demand, and consumers will have to content themselves with it until the middle of April.

FISH.—Considerable business is still being done in fish, although the selling season is practically over as far as Lent is concerned. Small sturgeon have been advanced a cent since last report. Frozen cod are now quoted, 5c. being asked. New tomcods are lower, the price being down to $1. Fresh haddock is now 6c. Frozen salmon and halibut are scarce and prices strong. Herrings, frozen, are no longer quoted. Oysters are in good demand. New skinless cod is selling freely at prices quoted. Haddies are scarce, but kippers and Yarmouth bloaters are in good supply.

CARP FOR MARKET.

New Company Formed—Recent Development in New York Fish Trade.

The Ojibwa Carp Company has been incorporated by Ontario charter, with headquarters in Windsor and a capital of $40,000.

The Central Fish Company, of New York, is developing an entirely new branch of the fish business, and since it was inaugurated in September has met with gratifying results. Briefly stated, the company, says the New York Journal of Commerce, has perfected an arrangement by which it receives weekly large shipments of live carp from Illinois and sells them at a considerable advance over the prices obtained heretofore for packed fish.

The carp is an especially hardy and prolific fish of the middle west. So prolific are they in some localities that they have practically crowded other food fish of better quality out of the rivers and become a nuisance. In some states legislation has been introduced to exterminate them in order that other fish might have a chance. But the carp are especially in demand by certain of the cheaper class of consumers, especially the Jews of New York, who have been ready purchasers of the packed, frozen and salted fish. Perhaps the chief reason was because they were sold at a materially less price than better fish. In few cases have they brought here more than three or four cents a pound at retail, and at wholesale were sold as low in some cases as 50 cents to a dollar for boxes of 150 pounds.

The Central Fish Company conceived the plan of constructing large tanks provided with gasoline engines and pumps to keep the water aerated and filtered, thus shipping the fish to market alive. Several cars were fitted up with machinery and tanks specially designed and patented here, while a large barge was similarly fitted and moved alongside the wharf at the foot of Fulton street. The first fish were shipped last September and none died on the way. Since then the business has gone steadily on, perhaps as high as 10,000 pounds per week being shipped to this market, with practically no mortality. The fish were sold at greatly enlarged prices, finding a ready sale among the Hebrews at eight, ten and twelve cents per pound. Dealers have had their markets fitted with similar tanks and aerating machinery, buy the fish at the dock, put them into tubs for transportation to their shops, and then transfer them to the tanks for retail trade. The business appears to be on the increase, and the problem of the western rivers is in a fair way toward solution.

The D. D. Wilson Co., Ltd., has been incorporated as dairy produce and commission dealers in connection with the business of warehousing and cold storage. Capital, $100,000, and headquarters at Seaforth.

EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

HOW TO PRODUCE IT

Brief Talks Given Occasionally

By T. Johnson Stewart

"Does the retail grocer need to advertise?" The representative of a considerable minority in the grocery business asked the question and he was positively certain that the average retailer had no more need for ordinary publicity than a monkey had for a dress suit. He said so, and I have come pretty near giving you the exact words of his burlesque and irrelevant comparison. Whether a monkey requires an evensuit or not is a debatable questian, in the light of the late Mr. Darwin's revelation; but the fact remains that there is no monkey business about the grocery trade from your standpoint.

There may be, I know there are, men in the grocery business who are making good, even although they do not advertise. These men are not guilty of carrying on business according to twentieth century rules and regulations. Nay, when we begin to hunt out things we make the discovery that these grocers are living on portions of the earth's surface where the twentieth century has not arrived. More—a little judicious advertising would increase the volume of their business, in almost every case, at least fifty per cent. But—let us acount for their seeming prosperity. We say seeming, because prosperity when applied to the ordinary retail business must be lasting to be real.

Lack of competition explains the seeming success of the grocer who does not advertise in one way or another. He will be successful just as long as a real live man keeps out of his locality. But—once a hustler jumps into his territory, a man thoroughly alive to twentieth century conditions and acquainted with twentieth century methods, there'll be something doing. I'm afriad the man who doesn't advertise will find more time on his hands for the game of checkers in the back store. Indeed, if his business means anything to him at all, he must load up with the same kind of ammunition as the other fellow—or use a brand equally effective. That would be the only way of preserving his trade—conserving his bank account.

Advertising bears the same relation to business as armament does to a battleship. Britain's mighty Dreadnaught, without her complement of guns, would not last five minutes within the range of the guns of a second-class cruiser bent on her destruction. You may hang on to a portion of your trade because of your, or your father's reputation; but that is a pathetic way of carrying on business—to call it by no other name. Reputation is a mighty delicate flower It requires constant nourishment. And unless we are doing something, daily, weekly, monthly, to augment our reputation, we're bound to drop out of the race. Our fellowmen are exceedingly practical. They do not ask us what our father's accomplished, or how much we accomplished last week, or last year; but they do ask us what we can accomplish to-day. Your reputation may be solid but it is not lasting unless you keep on adding to it. It will vanish entirely from the memory of your town's people if another grocer comes along and offers them better values.. And even although his values are no better you can depend upon it that his advertising will effectually smother all sorts of reputations—as long as he makes good. You are in business because of the wants of the people. Directly or indirectly the folks of your town are interested in your business. and the Grocer who takes his customers into his confidence is the Grocer who is making most money to-day. He's not telling them everything. He's just doing enough judicious advertising to make them believe that his values are the best in his territory, and if he keeps on saying so—apart from the inherent honesty of all grocers—the people will come to believe in him first, last, and all the time.

I'd rather conduct a street car than hunt through Canadian papers for a few effective ads. on the Grocery business. They are as scarce as snowballs in Morocco. One can find snowballs occasionally in the winter garden of the old world; but it would require a friend of Job's to look for them. There must be many able advertisers among the Grocers of Canada. And we certainly would like their assistance in making this occasional talk profitable as well as ornamental. Send along your ads., ads. which have meant more business to you. We'll be duly grateful if you send 'em along without any more coaxing.

I want you to take a good look at Jno. Kerr's ad. Because it's fifty times more effective than the most of grocery ads., and it isn't very effective after all. The main item is

"Kerr's Red Bell Tea."

That's what Mr. Kerr wanted to sell, and that's the only line about the ad. which ought to have been displayed. The repetition of "Tea" and the words "Red Bell Tea" helps to balance the ad. as Mr. Kerr conceives it; but it seems to me that that was no good reason for doing so. Don't pay for space you don't need. You would not buy a lot of land just for fun. When you buy land you want to make money out of it. When you buy space in a newspaper buy it on the same conditions. Fill it up with terse, meaty copy—the kind that sells goods. Mr. Kerr betrays far more real advertising ability than he uses. One gets glimpses of this ability all through this particular ad. If "Kerr's Red Bell Tea" had been brought out strong and only once as well as clear distinct price figures used I am sure the ad. would have been a good deal more effective. The copy is good. The arangement far from being as good as it might be. If I were paying for that space I certainly would tell Mr. Printer to wake up. You might just as well have a few extra five spots out of your investment as not. You can and should annex all that is coming to you, Mr. Kerr, because you have mastered the main points of all good advertising.

ducing it to the limit. However, the ad. is good strong stuff through and through. The Robinson Co. believe, and believe firmly, in letting money talk, and it certainly talks with some purpose throughout this strong and effective ad. The writer simply cuts out the usual frills and sails into the facts, and it's dollars to cents that the economic housewives of Moose Jaw often find the Robinson Co.'s ad. the most interesting reading in "The Times."

Every grocer who knows his business can write fairly effective advertising.

There are a few points which all grocery ad.-writers should constantly emphasize. The purity of your goods comes first. Talk purity, freshness and quality all the time, because any family trade worth considering insists on these points. Sixty-five per cent. of the grocers in Canada are convinced that judicious advertising pays and pays well. Use circulars just as little as you can help. If you have any value story worth telling do not limit its effect as a trade-puller at the beginning. If there's a readable newspaper published in your town you will find it far more profitable to advertise in its columns than to push your goods by even a lavish use of circulars, folders, etc. Advertise in the press and it will pay you.

IMPORT COMPANY TO FIGHT CIGAR TRUST.

The Cigar Trust in the United States, so called, is to be besieged at last. Rumour has been busy in this connection for a long time, and the first definite move was made a few days ago by a corporation known as the Import Cigar Company, which, with $2,000,000 and an immense organization at its back, annouced its intention of placing a string of cigar stores across the continent.

The enterprise is said to be backed by Frank Tilford, a wealthy wholesale grocer, of New York city, and its headquarters are to be the large retail store at 226 Fifth avenue. The company have establishments, besides, in Broadway and 42nd street, and have leased the girls' school at the corner of Broadway and Seventy-second street, which will be remodelled to accommodate its new tenants.

For the last six months this corporation has been laying its plans preparatory to trying conclusions with the United Cigar Stores, in a bid for the high-class trade, and all the establishments which have been placed in New York are close to the stores of the corporation with which the new company is to come into rivalry.

Henry M. Miller is president, with Valeriano Guitenez, vice-president, and Chas. B. Jaqua, secretary and treasurer. The company will handle goods from none but the independent factories.

THE PORT OF HULL.

Hull is coming to the front in Anglo-Canadian trade. On this account, "The Port of Hull and its Facilities for Trade," officially issued, will appeal to a certain section of Canadian business men.

The editors of this exhaustive directory have spared no pains to collect all the information worth knowing of the history, industries, import and export trade, and dock accommodation of Hull. Illustrations and maps are plentiful. Sir A. Kaye Rollitt contributes a lengthy introduction, and there is also a useful paper on "Hull's Facilities for Canadian Trade." The whole work runs to some 200 pages.

Copies to be had from 10 Bishop Lane, Hull, the cost being 2s. 6d.

EVERYBODY WORKS. (?)

Pity the Sorrows of the Poor Salesman.

By J. A. Hendry, Manufacturers' Agent, Kingston.

Salesman's Complaint—

Everybody works but the factory,
And the help sit around all day;
Always writing letters ———
"Expect to ship next day."
Customers keep on howling,
The "office" lies must tell;
Everybody works at the factory,
Yes, they do—like ———.

Factory's Reply—

Everybody works at the factory,
Works hard night and day;
Doing it all for nothing,
While the jobber makes the "hay."
"Why don't you ship our order?"
A thousand want to know;
While the poor unfortunate factory
Don't get even half a show.

They bunch the orders on him,
Then want them shipped so soon,
That to try to pacify them
Drives him crazy as a loon.
If to Heaven go the faithful,
As the preachers to us tell,
Then the factory won't be wrathful
When the salesman goes to ——.

EARTHENWARE COMBINATION.

English Attempt to Recover Trade in Canada.

J. B. Jackson, Canadian commercial agent at Leeds, writes:

Some ten or eleven years ago special efforts were made by many firms in the South Yorkshire pottery district to build up a Canadian trade in general earthenware, but partly owing to the wrong methods which they admit they adopted at this time, they evidently met with very little success; and one by one they had to withdraw from that market. Profiting by their previous experiences, these firms are about to make another attempt to introduce their goods into Canada, and have decided to form a selling combination among themselves, and divide up into districts and appoint a leading hardware store in each district to act as the sole representative of the combination. By this network of agents they are confident that they will make a big inroad upon the large imports of continental earthenware goods which are imported into Canada at the present time.

CANADA POLISHING THE WORLD.

One often has to find fault with the old time sayings and proverbs and take occasion to show their fallacy. The accepted quotation that "a prophet is not without honor, save in his own country," applied to trade matters is at fault when connected with such a line as "2 in 1" shoe polish. Not only in Canada is this household necessity honored but its fame is spread abroad into far off lands. In South Africa, New Zealand, Australia, England, Germany, France and the United States it is an evidence that Canadian manufacturers "are in it" with the world's best. In the United States it has held its own and the large factory at Jersey City is about being increased five fold, but for business reasons and the proximity to the head office and factory at Hamilton Ont., the entire plant will be removed to Buffalo, N.Y. Now the F. F. Dalley Co., Ltd., are arranging to invade the land of the Aztecs and other countries of the Manana. W. J. Meininger, Galveston, Texas, who has represented 2 in 1 in Texas and the southwestern states, is leaving for Mexico, Cuba, and other Spanish-American countries, to introduce to the hidalgos and senoritas of the soft tongue the merits of the Canadian blacking. It is refreshing to find Canadian manufacturers with sufficient business enterprise and courage to invade foreign markets, and The Grocer congratulates the F. F. Dalley Co., Ltd. on its enterprise and success.

CASH SYSTEM IN FRANK, ALTA.

Out in Frank, Alta., the merchants of that and neighboring towns have organized the Pass Mercantile Association, the object of which is to introduce a rigid cash system. The following circular, issued by the merchants interested, explains itself:

To Whom it May Concern:

On and after Monday, the 11th day of March, 1907, all goods will be sold for cash only.

The above matter has been under consideration for some time and the undersigned have agreed to abolish the credit system.

In taking this action we have carefully considered the welfare of our customers, as well as our own, and we feel that the cash system has proved a grand success.

"TONE"

covers a multitude of meanings.

The tone capacity of a piano is practically unlimited ; but so intricate is the mechanism that while the beginner produces discords, the artist creates harmony, because he knows how to touch the right keys.

And so, the expert in Coffee produces a perfect "tone," as he knows the right blend, always found in jars and packages are dainty in appearance and look well on your shelves. Buyers are often influenced by the outside appearance of the packages and it is to your benefit to stock only those goods which are contained in dainty and attractive packages, providing of course you can rely upon the quality of the goods inside. With C. & B. goods the superior appearance of the jars, glasses, etc., is merely an indication of the superior quality of what is inside, and you can rely on every consumer finding that the goods in every way come up to their appearance. Here and there in the Ledger of Life you have turned down the corner of a page for remembrance sake—you'd forget something if the turned-down corner wasn't there.

To-day, turn down a corner deep and wide to remember this one sure fact : "Quality is remembered long after price is forgotten." Every time you come to that particular page—remember. Every time you try to sell inferior quality, think of the turned-down corner—what it stands for, and what it really means to your success.

THE WANTS OF WOMEN

The Grocer who ignores the wants of women is pursuing a short-sighted business policy.

You need not care who secures the trade of mere man if you can supply Her Ladyship with the goods she desires.

The wants of women are pretty numerous, but when it comes to Canned Goods the source of supply narrows down to one brand—the brand first in the esteem of Canadian women—the famous

OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND

Now, Mr. Grocer! you figure out the reasons for this pronounced preference of the women of Canada in your own way and we'll stand by your decision. Why should women prefer OLD HOMESTEAD Brand of Canned Goods over even the first quality goods of our competitors? There are others in The Canned Goods Industry, just as shrewd men as ever born, men who recognise the potent leverage of honesty in business. How, then, account for the seal and warrant of popular approval so ungrudgingly bestowed on the Old Homestead Brand of Canned Goods.

OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND

is something more than mere Canned Goods. The name stands for the people's guarantee of pure Canned Goods. To assure purity and the absence of all taint, all fruits and vegetables must undergo the careful scrutiny of no less than three inspectors before reaching our canning factory.

Wholesome, pure, first-quality fruit and vegetables can only be canned in our factory. These alone are pure enough. Then our process of canning assures lasting purity and goodness.

Just figure it out in your own way, Mr. Grocer, and we'll be quite satisfied with your verdict—your reasons for the Canadian woman's preference for Old Homestead Brand will satisfy us and pay you.

This is a good time to send off that order.

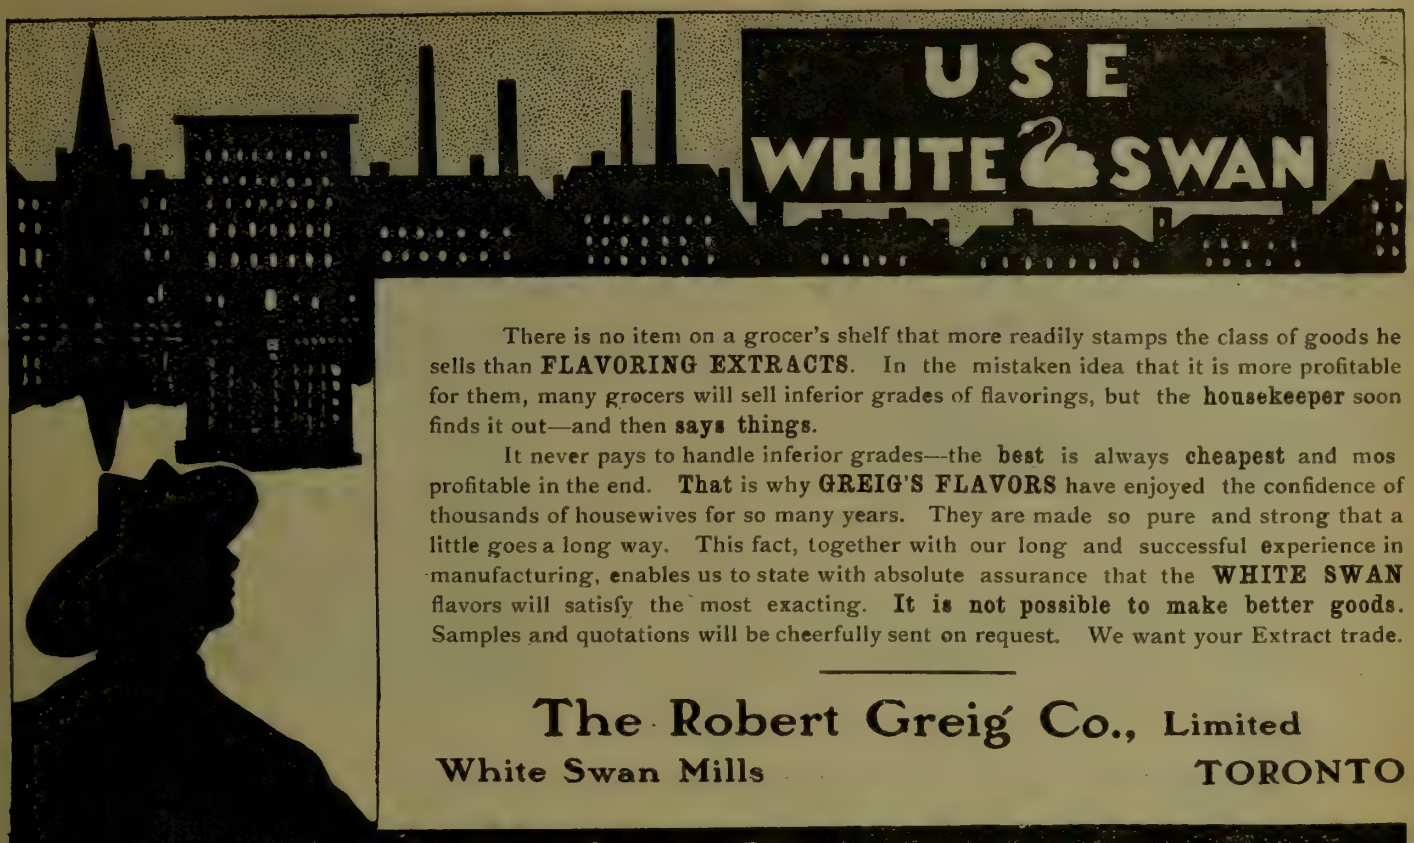
The London Printing and Lithographing Co., Ltd.

Box 508, LONDON, Ont.



There is no item on a grocer's shelf that more readily stamps the class of goods he sells than FLAVORING EXTRACTS. In the mistaken idea that it is more profitable for them, many grocers will sell inferior grades of flavorings, but the housekeeper soon finds it out—and then says things.

It never pays to handle inferior grades—the best is always cheapest and mos profitable in the end. That is why GREIG'S FLAVORS have enjoyed the confidence of thousands of housewives for so many years. They are made so pure and strong that a little goes a long way. This fact, together with our long and successful experience in manufacturing, enables us to state with absolute assurance that the WHITE SWAN flavors will satisfy the most exacting. It is not possible to make better goods. Samples and quotations will be cheerfully sent on request. YOU DON'T BREAK EGGS?

when delivering by waggon? You think you don't, or you don't know, but your eggs are broken just the same. Perhaps the boy who drives your waggon knows, but forgets to tell you.

Eggs are fragile—nothing more fragile—and in the handling of hundreds of dozens from store to customer's house, more are broken than you can keep track of. The remedy is to adopt the modern system of egg delivery.

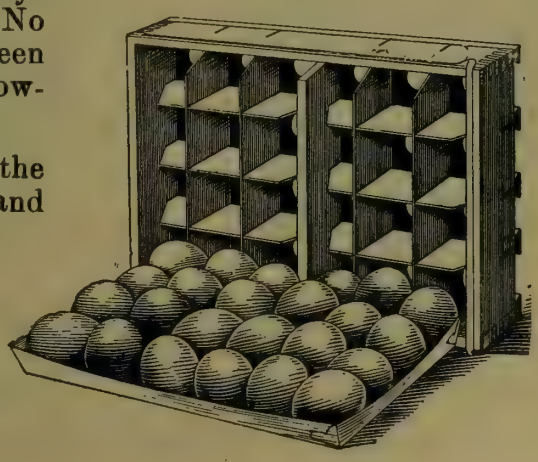
THE STAR EGG CARRIER and TRAY

Mr. Grocer, we like you to be on the defensive, we want you to use every argument you can think of why you should not use the Star Egg Carrier. Why? Because any argument against its use is easily refuted; all you have to do is to order one dozen of the carriers and 1,000 trays to be convinced.

The Star Egg Carrier is absolutely safe; it is quick—far quicker than any other. When using it, the eggs are handled once, and only once, and there is no waiting for a dish to place the eggs in at the customer's house.

The Star Egg Carrier is automatic. When delivery is made of the eggs, the carrier itself never leaves the hands of the delivery boy—there is no chance of losing it, no necessity to leave it and call (or forget to call) for it again.

The Star Egg Carrier saves money, it soon pays for itself twice over in time and broken eggs. No Grocer who has ever adopted this system has been known to discard it, rather he will frankly acknowledge that he could not get along without it.



Do you think you can afford to be without the means of placing your egg business on a sure and profitable basis?

Now is the time eggs are selling; now is the time to order. Ask your jobber to send you one dozen of each size Star Egg Carriers to hold one and two dozen eggs and 1,000 each size of trays,—or if he does not stock them, write to the general agents:

Independent Organization for Retailers

Progress of the Movement—President Beckett Taking Steps to Rouse Guild Members to Forward the Undertaking—"Believer in Organization" and The Canadian Grocer Peterboro Correspondent Discuss the Proposal to Make Retail Grocers a Part of the Retail Merchants' Association.

Every retail grocer throughout Canada should be keenly interested in the movement which seems now well started, for the organization of the retail grocery trade. The Canadian Grocer would like to have the views of retailers everywhere on this movement, believing that their publication would materially assist the agitation so well begun. A post card message would be encouraging if a leter looks too formidable.

President H. C. Beckett of the wholesale guild has adopted a plan in use across the border and is sending out to members of the guild from time to time printed sheets containing matter he deems of interest ond profit to guild members. The first of these contained a couple of interesting addresses from the proceedings of the Wholesale Grocers' Association of Pennsylvania. This week he is sending out a sheet containing some of the letters and editorials which apeared recently in The Canadian Grocer relative to retail organization. Mr. Becket is not himself attempting to organize the retail trade. He recognizes the great benefit to the retail grocery trade that would result through organization and he is trying to stir up the wholesalers everywhere to take an interest in the matter and make an effort to stimulate interest among the particular section of the retail trade with which his house through the travelers comes in contact. In other words Mr. Beckett is using the guild organization to arouse the interest of the retailers.

In last week's Canadian Grocer a new feature was introduced into the discussion regarding organization by Mr. Ellis' letter suggesting that the grocers organize as a section of the Retail Merchants' Association. "Believer in Organization," who is a leading grocer in a large city, has something to say about this and we have also an article gathered by our Peterboro correspondent from the retail merchants there.

GROCERS MUST HAVE THEIR OWN ASSOCIATION.

To the Editor of The Canadian Grocer:

Having read carefully the letter from our Peterborough friend, I have come to to the conclusion that, for some unexplained reason, he and his friends are very much prejudiced against the wholesale grocers. Now I think that the retail men all over are beginning to wake up to the fact that the interests of the wholesale and retail men are very closely allied and that no one feels that position more than the wholesale people. Note the kindly letter from their president—where he offers to spend both his valuable time and assistance in promoting a retail organization. I quite agree with our Peterborough friend as well as yourself that we should be entirely independent from a financial standpoint but that we should avail ourselves of all the advice and suggestions that such an able organizer as Mr. Beckett is, can give. I think the trade are now in a position to accept the idea of organization and the next question is the proper method to start the ball rolling. It seems to me that wherever there are retail grocers' associations, in our towns and cities, that this question should be taken up and thoroughly discussed and that they should get in touch with one another, either by appointing delegates or by correspondence, or by sending a circular letter from your office to every retail grocer in the province. I maintain that there is no person in the country so well qualified as the grocer to speak in regard to the regulation of the law in regard to foodstuffs. He stands between the manufacturer and the consumer and understands the conditions better than the consumers themselves.

As to Mr. Ellis and the Retail Merchants' Association, while we concede them that their association deserves every credit for the grand work which they have done and are doing, I don't think for one moment that they could possibly do the work required by the retail grocers of Ontario. We want a thoroughly independent body with the one aim for the betterment of our business not only in relation to the wholesalers and manufacturers but with the consumer as well, and this can only be reached by a thoroughly independent body with united front, not with some spasmodic action by a body of men who are not entirely in sympathy with our cause. Mr. Ellis wants to know some of their weak points. Well, one of them is that in no place that I have heard of are the grocers' sections doing the work that organized trade should do. They seem to have no initiative, but depend entirely on the main body to do the work for them, and in most places the membership of grocers is so small that they cut no figure in the make up of the general membership. There is no question that Mr. Trowern, their able secretary, has made heroic efforts to fill up the gap, but so far from a grocer's standpoint, with very poor results.

The grocers want a thoroughly independent trade organization that will make a showing worth while and, in my opinion, with the aid of the Wholesale Guild and their energetic president, the thing may be in good shape before the end of this year. Grocers everywhere in Ontario are in line to join and better their business conditions. Now is the time for them to assert themselves and make this movement a grand success, and I say once more, by all means it must be an independent body—for retail grocers only.

BELIEVER IN ORGANIZATION.

GREATER TRADE ORGANIZATION LIKE A GREATER BRITAIN.

(Special correspondence of Canadian Grocer.)

Peterboro, March 26, 1907.

In discussing the proposal to organize a Retail Grocers' Association one merchant took up the arguments produced by the president of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada. In Mr. Ellis' remarks, he said, there is much that is worthy of serious consideration. The Retail Merchants' Association have a splendid organization. They have come through the trying days. They are no longer a straggling body. They have numbers and they have capital and system. Connection with them would be an excellent thing. But, continued the merchant, there must be a divisional point. The Retail Merchants' Association cannot take up the particular questions which are of immediate interest to the grocery trade. Neither can they deal satisfactorily with the problems which any particular trade is concerned about.

There is a branch of the Retail Merchants' Association now in the city, but it is nearly dead and very seldom heard of. The membership is very small and practically no interest is taken in the work. Even a meeting is seldom called, and when it is, hardly a quorum turns out. That will not do for the grocers' association.

The merchant who discussed the matter made the following suggestion:—That the retail grocers go ahead with their organization. (He would like to see it started right in the city of Peterboro.) Let it spread out and encircle the whole province, including the small towns as well as the cities and large towns. The grocers should be an entirely separate and independent body, governing their own internal affairs. The grocers can do this better than any other line of trade for the simple reason that they are stronger and are found in every nook and corner of the Dominion.

At the same time, however, the merchant referred to would not like to be altogether a stranger to the Retail Merchants' Association. So far as grocery interests are concerned, he advocates separation, but when it comes to such matters as stamping out the trading stamp traffic, peddlars and hawkers, and matters of legislation which affect all lines of trade, he would say, join with the Retail Merchants' Association.

In this way, Mr. Ellis' ambition of seeing the Retail Merchants' Association the strongest organization in the country would be easily accomplished. The retail grocers, as members of the Grocers' Association, would belong to the Retail Merchants' Association, the same as Canadians belong to the British Empire. The idea he has in mind is along the same lines as the British Government's relation to the colonies.

If Kingston will supply the land, Crandall & Scott, of Picton, will establish a canning factory there.

WITH GROCERS IN EASTERN TOWNSHIPS

Preparing for the Dominion Fair at Sherbrooke—Sherbrooke Has a Grocery Without Counters—Some Changes—St. John's Grocer a Believer in Dominion Organization.

Last week one of the representatives of The Canadian Grocer, feeling that spring was coming on and that the Montreal streets were becoming too unbearable, even for a newspaperman, tripped out to the Eastern Townships for a few days in the hopes of experiencing the sensations of spring as they are handed out to the multitude in that peaceful but industrious portion of Quebec Province.

Direct to Sherbrooke did he go, eyes open for the first robin and for signs of activity on the part of those engaged in the maple industry, for which the E. T. district is famous. It was rather a surprise upon striking Sherbrooke, to find that there was a foot of snow on the ground. Reliable Sherbrooke merchants earnestly informed The Grocer that the town had been practically free from snow until a few days since, when they were granted a heavy but somewhat untimely fall of the beautiful. Business men were thankful rather than otherwise for the same snow, as it made possible the lengthening of the sleighing season for farmers.

Sherbrooke may not be a large city, but there is always something going on in a grocery way. Business was reported good for the season, although collections might be better.

All Sherbrookers are talking fair with a capital "F." This year the Dominion Exhibition will be held in that city and preparations for the event are even now being made. It is thought the accommodation question will cause some trouble, and necessary arrangements are under way in this matter. The fair opens September 2, continuing to September 14. Quite a few men known in the grocery trade are actively engaged in the management of the fair, Louis H. Oliver, the retail grocer; W. R. Webster, cigar manufacturer, S. L. Clough, flour and provisions, and Alex. Ames, pork packer, being among them.

One of the first stores The Grocer dropped into was that of Dean, Roe & Lacey, on Dufferin Ave. It was but recently that this firm's name appeared on the grocery horizon, in fact the sign is not yet up. In former days R. Johnson carried on business at this stand. He is now connected with the Modern Bedstead people, of Sherbrooke. R. I. Dean, senior partner of the firm, worked in the store for Mr. Johnson for nearly fifteen years, and knows a whole lot about the grocery business. His two partners are also experienced, Mr. Roe having been in the past a member of the Roe & Roe firm in Waterville. Mr. Lacey spent some nine years with R. Johnson. Between the three of them they are determined to make things hum, and they will. Improvements are already being made, new silent salesmen, new shelves, new departments and other things.

May & Houlahan are still doing business opposite the post office. The only difference between the present and the past lies in the volume of business being transacted, the trade now being materially larger. Both partners were out hustling for business when The Grocer first went in but later they gave The Grocer man a great welcome. This firm believes in carrying first-class groceries, and giving satisfaction in every instance. Perhaps that's why they're prospering.

A busy store is that of Bray Bros. on Wellington St. It is not as large as it might be, rather too long for the width, but the stock is arranged very neatly and conveniently. There are two good windows which the firm keeps dressed at all times, being strong in the belief that a good window sells goods. So it does.

In D. W. Stenson's store on King Hill, The Grocer ran across A. G. Snowdon, of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Monreal. Mr. Snowdon is introducing on the market a patent can opener which he is now pushing. It's a corker and will surely take.

Further up on King St. McLeod & Andrews carry on a nice business, while Louis Oliver occupies one of the neatest stores in the city, corner of Wellington and King Sts.

There is one grocery store in Sherbrooke which is a near approach to the package store in New York, that is, the store occupied by A. A. Thornton—a store without a counter. Mr. Thornton says that the only way to profitably carry on a grocery business in our day is to dispense with the counters of our forefathers. There is a lot in what Mr. Thornton says, and one of these days The Grocer will give its readers an idea of the manner in which this particular store is conducted.

E. Brooks, who has been clerking with May & Houlahan, is leaving to accept a similar position in Haverhill, Mass.

Alex. Ames, the pork packer, is going to erect a new establishment, 50 feet by 100 feet, on the Lennoxville Road. It will be equipped with all modern conveniences.

T. A. Bourque, known throughout the Eastern Townships as a wholesale grocer, who died recently, was buried while The Grocer was in Sherbrooke. Although not actively engaged in the grocery business, the late Mr. Bourque, up to the time of his death, took great interest in all grocery questions. He was born at Wotton, in 1860, and receiving a commercial education at St. Charles College, he entered the employ of Mr. Villeneuve, East Sherbrooke, later joining the staff of Wm. Murray. Entering the wholesale field he won success, building up a large business in the Townships. A year ago he sold out to Poulin & Robitaille, the business being continued under the old firm name, T. A. Bourque & Co.

St. Johns, Que.

The grocery business in St. Johns is demoralized at present to a certain extent, owing to the fact that there is considerable selling under cost by some firms. This is not a large place, but grocers are numerous—too numerous, as is proved by the fact that more than one retail grocery store will close up business in the near future.

F. J. Bourassa & Co. have advertised their goods for sale, announcing that they are going out of the grocery business. Mr. Bourassa, it is understood, will go west for his health.

E. Lord, the Richelieu St. grocer, is closing on May 1, while it is rumored that N. Cusson will close one of his two stores, probably that situated on Champlain St., in the near future.

N. Gibeault is giving up his business about May 1. He conducted a store on St. James St.

O. Peladeau, corner St. James and Champlain Sts., intends removing May 1 to the other end of Champlain St., where he has secured a better stand.

One of St. Johns most progressive grocers is R. Goold, on Richelieu St. He is strong on organization in the grocery trade. He expressed his approval of The Grocer's idea of forming a federal association of retail grocers, one that should be made up from branch associations in all parts of the Dominion. In his opinion such an association, properly conducted, would result in untold benefit for the trade.

A STORY OF COMPETITION.

A somewhat curious story comes from Toronto. The council of that city has set apart a number of districts as "residential," which means that no more stores may be located therein. In one of these there are three stores, two of which, so the tale runs, are supported by a wholesale house. Some time ago the other grocer was approached by a young man, who wanted to buy him out. The young man was so eager that the grocer got his price and took it. A few days after the purchaser turned his bargain over to one of the other grocers, whose store was just across the street. The new purchaser removed the stock to his own place and closed the store.

The original owner, with little delay, purchased a store not far beyond the bounds of the district and when he saw his old business closed out, considered that any obligation he was under to keep away removed, and started in to canvass his former customers for business. His old opposition objected, and entered suit to restrain him from canvassing for orders in the district. The publicity thus given the matter drew the attention of a number of grocers, and the canvassing within the "residential" district has become so keen that the last stage of opposition for the two remaining stores is worse than the first.

AN EXPENSIVE WINDOW TRIM

Probably the Handsomest Christmas Window Dressing in Canada Last Year—Put Up by Bain & Adams, Hamilton.

The Canadian Grocer was at considerable pains to secure the photograph from which the accompanying picture was made. It shows one of the Christmas windows of Bain & Adams, Hamilton. There was another similarly dressed, and they were probably the most expensively trimmed grocery windows in Canada during the last Yuletide season. The grape vines and grapes were ordered from Germany early in the year, and cost $150. Then there was the electrical illumination, which was a very important part of the display, and was proportionately expensive.

As can be seen by a careful survey of the picture, the vines were hung on uprights and cross pieces of natural cedar, just as in the Niagara vineyards. But no printed description can convey an adequate expression of the naturalness of those grape vines. The bunches of grapes rivalled the natural fruit in appearance, even to the delicate bloom which characterizes the grapes on the vine. By day the effect was beautiful, by night it was striking and wonderfully attractive. Into many of the bunches of grapes was inserted a small incandescent lamp, and the effect may in a slight degree be imagined. The white blurs in the picture show where some of the lights are located.

Nothing has been said of the display of high-class groceries and confections. The picture shows it pretty well and it is highly effective. So unique was the window display that practically all the leading grocers of Hamilton felt impelled to congratulate Bain & Adams upon the success of their efforts. Mr. Bain, the senior partner, takes charge of the window dressing, and he conceived and carried out the display here shown.

A Triumph of Window Dressing.

PREVENTING FROST ON SHOW WINDOWS.

M. J. Quinn, ventilating expert with Cluff Bros., Toronto, Canadian agents for the Thomas Acme Air Washer for ventilating buildings, in answer to a request for information regarding the prevention of frost on show windows, writes as follows for The Canadian Grocer:

"The physical conditions which create frost on window panes are exactly the same as those which create moisture on cold water pipes in summer time, viz., warm air carrying its extreme complement of moisture comes in contact with a cold body and is reduced in temperature, rendering it incapable of carrying the same percentage of moisture, and what is more natural than that the excess of the latter should be deposited where the chilly process takes place, viz., in this case, on the window pane. We anticipate that some considerable difficulty will be experienced in making a window space sufficiently tight from the inner store to render impossible the circulation of warm air from the latter. In this connection we would emphasize that, if absolutely still air can be obtained between the inner and outer glass, very little difficulty will be experienced from frost even on the coldest days, and in this connection it has been found that double glass set in the same sash, leaving a space of say 1½ or 2 inches between the panes, and having the joints all around the four sides made as tight as possible, has given very good satisfaction, and apart from this construction we are not by any means sure that good results can be obtained under other circumstances.

FROM GROCER CORRESPONDENTS

BROCKVILLE.

Jas. H. Gilmour, of the firm of Gilmour & Co., wholesale grocers of Brockville, returned home last week after spending about two months in Southern California. Genial Jim looks fine and evidently California agrees with him.

John Shouldice, formerly of H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, spent several days in our town, the guest of J. H. Gaffney, of Mayell & Co.'s, Toronto.

J. A. Washburn had a carload of oranges landed at Brockville on Monday last, and had all disposed of by Tuesday noon. They were very choice, and prices were right.

Our markets have not been very well attended by the farmers as yet, there being neither wheeling nor sleighing. The prices asked for articles are altogether too high, and no one to blame for this but the buyers themselves. Eggs still demand 28c., butter 27c., and fowl as high as $1.25 per pair.

I noticed in last week's Grocer your Kingston correspondent speaks of the by-law prohibiting merchants buying on the market before 10 a.m. I feel quite in sympathy with him in this and think that something ought to be done in the matter, as it certainly takes considerable money away from the towns and cities that would otherwise be spent for supplies while farmers are in town, instead of going to country stores. This is something the retail merchants ought to take in hand and bring before the councils of their towns and cities.

J. H. Gaffney, representing Mayell & Co., of Toronto, in Eastern Ontario, reports business very good throughout the country.

INGERSOLL.

The cold storage project, in which the grocers are vitally interested, was advanced another notch at a special meeting of the Board of Trade. W. A. Edgar, the cheese exporter, who was a member of the committee appointed to make enquiries in connection with the construction and cost of maintaining a cold storage plant, gave a report that was highly encouraging. Mr. Edgar stated that the cheese factory men of this district were very much interested in the question of establishing a cold storage plant here. He had been told by three parties that if the plant was established they would rent apartments by the year. He pointed out that there are twenty-five cheese factories tributary to Ingersoll, and he believed that if fifteen of this number could be induced to patronize a cold-curing room the revenue would amount to about $6,000. As previously mentioned the scheme is one that is very favorably received by the retailers, and if carried out would be of much benefit to the grocers and butchers. A committee was appointed to make further enquiries and the matter will be taken up again at an early date when some definite action is probable.

Ingersoll is fortunate in possessing a real live board of trade. This organization, which is very representative of the business interests, has done considerable to promote the advancement of the town. When conditions are at all favorable it believes in taking action that should create greater trade, not only in the town, but throughout the Dominion. At the last meeting a resolution passed to the effect that the Dominion Government and the Legislature grant generous assistance to the Canadian Northern Railway to extend their system easterly from Port Arthur.

Jacques & McPherson, grocers, who had their stock seriously damaged by fire last week, had their loss adjusted on Friday, and with characteristic enterprise they announced that their store would be opened on Saturday morning. Much stress was laid upon "Big Bargains," and as they lived up to their display cards and newspaper advertising, their store was soon crowded until it was necessary to close their doors. It is the way of humanity to be alert for bargains, and in this particular it was possible for the firm to cope with the bargain-hunters. The "fire sale" has been going on merrily ever since, and the entire stock has about been cleared out. It is the intention of the firm to place a new stock in their store as soon as the necessary repairs and improvements have been made.

The output of maple syrup in this section thus far this season is below that of former years. The first lot was offered over a week ago and met with ready sale at $1.25 per gallon. Those who were looking for a somewhat large supply on Saturday were greatly disappointed. The farmers stated that they had only a few good "runs" of sap, consequently the supply of syrup was limited, and the price remained firm at $1.25. The fact that the frost is practically out of the ground and the weather very warm are indications that warrant the belief that the syrup season is about at an end.

Another of Ingersoll's old residents passed away on Wednesday last in the person of Geo. Tune, who upwards of forty years ago engaged in the confectionery business here with James Tune, now of London.

For the first time in many months Ingersoll is now getting comparatively cheap eggs. For months the price for new laid eggs was firm at 25 cents, but on Saturday last the price dropped to 16 cents. The offerings were very large and a further reduction is anticipated before Easter, as the large buyers have not yet commenced their rounds in the country.

Butter is still very scarce. Very little of the dairy product is to be had, owing to the fact that operations have been resumed at several of the cheese factories. With the immense amount of milk that is daily taken to the St. Charles condensing factory here, and to the different cheese factories in the surrounding districts, the proportion that is used for butter-making is decidedly small. Dairy butter ranges in price from 25 to 28 cents, while first-class creamery brought 32 cents per pound last week.

John S. Smith, for the past three years with Metcalf Bros., grocers, of Berlin, has succeeded J. J. MacLeod as manager of Beattie & Co.'s store here. S. Hendry, of St. Mary's, and Harry Cook, for some time with I. W. Kingswood, have also accepted positions with Beattie & Co.

GODERICH.

Dull times here at present. All the merchants in every line of business are complaining; the only solace is that it is supposed to be seasonable for this time of year.

The canning factory proposition has taken a new lease of life, and may yet come to something.

W. J. Morrow, for many years on Hamilton Street, and previous to that in Dungannon, has sold out to Tom Pringle, of the Imperial Cafe, and may go West. W. J. was well liked by the local trade and everyone else who knows him, and will be greatly missed.

Edward Graham, East Street, is reported to have sold his business to A. T. Bean, who had a general store some years ago in Auburn.

Fred Morgan, Elgin Avenue, who has been advertising his grocery business for sale, has now parted with it, and will probably leave town, as his intention some time ago was to go West.

A. B. Davison, who will be remembered by commercial men who call at Goderich as being with G. M. Elliott on Hamilton Street for many years, has given up his position as head clerk with C. C. Lee, and is also among those with the "western fever."

HAMILTON.

Grocers here are now getting returns from the recently organized collecting department of the association, and are highly pleased with the way the system is working out. They next propose enforcing the law respecting pedlars and hawkers, as enacted by the Ontario Legislature at the last session.

A great deal of complaint comes from the grocers, and justly too, in reference to the handling and sale of fruit by Italians. They sell from door to door all over the city and mostly to the better class of people, who, if they saw the conditions in which these people live and store their fruit, would be shocked, even though they thought they were buying at a bargain. The sanitary conditions in these fruit stores are revolting. And although we always have one or two grocers on the Board of Health, this evil escapes their notice. It seems to me that dirty, filthy human habitations deserve looking after as much as unclean pigsties," etc.

As grocers have now become large handlers of fruit, this question should undoubtedly be a live issue; right here is a place where organized effort would be useful. No doubt these same conditions in the fruit trade exist in all the cities and towns—Why not get together and either wipe them out or correct them?

The trade here are very much pleased with the stand taken by H. C. Beckett in regard to the manufacturers' prices on cereals.

A circular has been issued by one of the refiners asking the opinion of the retail men in regard to putting up bag-sugar. They propose making the present 100-lb. bag larger so as to contain 125 lbs. In the event of their doing this the bag would become useful for holding a bag of potatoes or other produce. A great many grocers are of the opinion that the 100-lb. bag is preferrable. One of the reasons advanced is that a grocer or his assistant who are not built exactly after the style of Samson may take in and pile up 25 bags of 100 lbs. each, while they would not have a look at the 125-lb. one.

Speaking about a bag of potatoes in Hamilton, according to law, it must weigh net 90 lbs., in Toronto under the same law it must weigh 80 lbs. Can you kindly explain this?

The Toronto wholesale buyer makes a profit of 10 lbs. on each bag. I think the weight all over Canada should be the same.

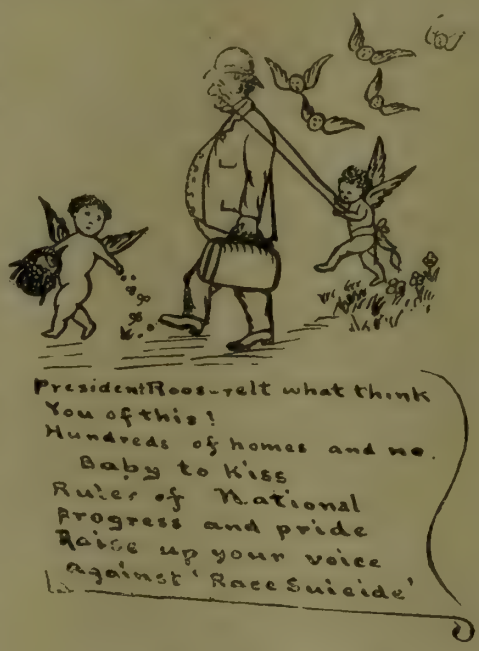
Hamilton grocers as yet do not seem to have taken much stock in the talk of a provincial association; the situation here is possibly worse than in many other places. We have three department stores, who use their grocery business strictly as a bait to lure customers into their other departments. We have also a large co-operative concern which has sown its five dollar shares all over the neighboring country. The farmers imagine they are striking it rich and go there to buy their groceries. The Italians have the fruit trade and the Greeks the confectionery business, so there's lots of room for an energetic movement in Hamilton if the retail men would only wake up.

KINGSTON.

Kingston is in a state of excitement just now. Property is booming and sales are the cause of so many people leaving their comfortable homes. One lady who occupied a house for the last twenty years was asked to get out to make room for another corner grocery to be occupied by Mr. Parkins, who has to vacate his present place as his landlady is going to start up on her own account. Chas. Pickering has to leave his present store and has bought out Mr. Williams, corner Princess and University Ave. Mr. Williams intends moving to Manitoba.

W. G. Craig, wholesale grocer, president of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild here and past vice-president of the Dominion Wholesalers' Guild, has secured the large and imposing premises on the corner of Princess and Ontario Sts., which has been a piano factory for many years. It will make a fine place for his wholesale business. He has also leased a large building across the street which was at one time a medical college. Mr. Craig is enthusiastic over Kingston's present and future prospects and as an alderman, is working to advance the city's interests in every way he can.

Mr. Tuthill, representing The Morse Soap Co., was in town and made good sales. He has a big proposition on hand. He is going to put a stop to race suicide by sending a full size cake of Infant's Delight soap to every baby born in Canada this year. Such generosity should bring good results.



Laundry soaps are likely to advance, owing to increased price of material. The Brown Family has also increased.

Harry Newbury, who ran a grocery at Barrie and Earl Sts., has gone to Peterboro. He is going to take up window-dressing and ad. writing. He is experienced in the dry goods trade and has a sterling character and will succeed. His health has not been A1 for some time. We hope the change will do him good.

It is reported that Knox & Co., of Toronto, are going to open up a 5 and 10 cent store shortly in the premises lately occupied by Geo. Mills & Co., furriers. It is centrally located and they should do a good lively trade.

Mr. Farnworth, Dalley's popular representative, called on the trade this week. He is always sure of a bunch of orders. Why? Because he is one of the few who do not look for orders outside of the trade from small side shows, hotels and boarding-houses. Houses catering for such are being spotted by the trade and the sooner reliable firms look into this matter the better.

PERTH.

Wednesday of last week, John Conway, who has been clerking with G. E. Armstrong for a number of years, opened up for himself. He is in the stand lately occupied by R. E. Hicks. This store has not been occupied for two years and it looks much better to see it open again.

Norman Miller, "the West End Grocer," has changed his place of business from Wilson street west to quarters in the new Rogers & Stewart block, on Foster street. He opened up in his new premises on Saturday, and he expects increased business.

Lloyd Jackson expects to open a grocery in the building lately occupied by Mr. Miller. This will give us twenty groceries in town. Pretty good for a town of under 4,000 people.

I noticed in your paper some weeks ago an article on putting goods on the sidewalk for display. This is a thing, I am glad to say, is almost unknown in Perth. We have a by-law in town prohibiting the blocking of the sidewalk, but I think even if we had no such by-law it would not be done, because people would not buy fruit exposed to the dust.

The agent for the Computing Scale Company of Canada was in town last week and succeeded in placing several scales.

MONTREAL.

D. J. Munro, Montreal Junction, has built himself a fine store and will move into it in a few weeks. The fittings, counters, wall cases and all will be put in new by the Walker Bin Co.

A. Girouard, St. Catherine St. East, who some time ago retired from the grocery business, intending to take his ease, has concluded that there's more fun working and is going back into business again. He has built a fine block of business stores on St. Catherine St. and will occupy one of them. He is going to have something pretty fine, and has placed his order with the Walker Bin Fixture Co. for shelving, wall cases, display counters and plate glass silent salesmen.

Currie Bros., 59 Bleury St., will remove a little higher up that thoroughfare on May 1, the premises they now occupy having been sold. Their new number will be 113.

Walter Paul has just returned from a business trip to New York.

Raymond & Freres, a firm carrying on a retail business on the Main street, above St. Catherine, has been taken over by F. X. St. Charles & Co., the newly incorporated concern. The names mentioned in the new firm's charter are:—F. X. St. Charles, Chas. Raymond, A. de Rouselle, A. Germain and E. Doray. According to the powers granted them the firm will be enabled to carry on business as wholesale and retail grocers, wine and spirit dealers, etc. They are capitalized at $200,000.

HALIFAX.

W. J. Hopgood, Spring Garden Road, is going to build a new store this spring. The contracts are let and orders are placed with the Walker Bin and Store Fixture Company, of Berlin, for a portion of the fixtures. Mr. Hopgood's aim is to have one of the most attractive stores in the Atlantic capital.

J. L. Archibald & Co., Spring Garden Road, are also on improvement bent. They are refitting their store throughout with Walker bin fixtures, counters, wall cases and bins. One side will have the usual grocery fixtures, the other is to be fitted with a biscuit department and green fruit cases.

CHATHAM.

N. H. Stevens, president of the Canada Flour Mills Co., was an Ottawa visitor last week.

J. A. Wilson, the Queen St. grocer, is mourning the loss of a fine new chewing gum slot machine. The article in question was only recently purchased. Last week it was left standing in front of Mr. Wilson's store when, toward dusk, a passer-by annexed it. The machine has not been seen since, nor, though the matter was promptly reported to the police, has the thief been located.

Edward Campbell, employed in Reid's grocery store at Northwood, had an exciting experience in the 22nd. In some way two kegs of gunpowder upon a shelf became ignited. In the explosion which followed Mr. Campbell was badly burned about the face and hands, and considerable damage was done to the interior of the store.

Indications are that Blenheim will shortly have a canning factory. A public meeting was held on the 21st at which the promoters of the enterprise announced their proposition. They ask a ten years' loan of $10,000, and a 3-acres free site, and agree to erect a $30,000 factory and employ at least 100 hands. The meeting expressed itself favorably toward the proposition, which will now come before the town council.

J. F. Holden, Western Ontario representative of E. W. Gillett & Co., Limited, Toronto, has been in the city for a few days calling on the trade. He reports business very satisfactory. From here he proceeds west.

ST. CATHARINES.

Speaking with the inspector of trees and noxious vermin, that official informs me that he has made an inspection of some thousands of trees and where the San Jose scale has affected trees he has acted on instructions for their destruction. The inspector informs me, also, that the frosts of the past winter have in no way, injured the buds of the peach trees and that the outlook for an abundant crop is most promising unless unforeseen adverse circumstances crop up. The inspector has, in some cases, ordered the destruction of mountain ash trees affected with the scale. He says there is a bright prospect of abundant crops in pears and plums and that small fruits promise well. The recent mild weather has taken the frost from the ground and the ice has completely gone from this section of the Welland canal. The harbor of Port Dalhousie is clear of ice so that navigation from that port can be opened at any time.

The water will be drawn from the old Welland canal next week from Thorold, northward, to make repairs and remove any obstacles and will remain unwatered for ten days or two weeks. This annual unwatering will stop all the manufactories along its banks which have water for their motive power and it will enable owners or lessees of these properties to make necessary repairs in flumes, etc.

Building operations have started and painters, carpenters, masons, laborers are busily engaged in their respective lines.

PETERBOROUGH.

A. W. Lockhart, who has had charge of R. A. Dutton's grocery department for the past two and a half years, makes the announcement that he will enter the commercial world for himself. He has secured the lease of Porter Bros. upper store on George St., and will open with a full line of groceries and provisions. He will leave Mr. Dutton on the ninth of April, and will open his own store on the 13th. Mr Lockhart is a first-class grocer and has a very large business connection in the city. For eight years before going with Mr. Dutton he was with E. F. Mason & Co. and received there an excellent training. He will be succeeded at Mr. Dutton's by T. Lancaster of Hastings, where he was connected with J. J. English for sixteen years. Thomas Wamsley has also been added to Mr. Dutton's grocery department.

At this time when there is so much talk of the retail merchants organizing for the protection and improvement of the trade it might be of interest to mention a man who claims he needs no protection. It is J. C. Sullivan, who has for thirty years conducted a retail grocery and liquor business. He does a strictly cash business is both lines and he is proud of the success he has made of it. He states that he does not carry a dollar on his books and every dollar's worth of goods he buys he pays cash for and takes all the discounts. He started business that way the first day he opened his store and has not varied from it. He has never joined the Retail Victuallers' Association and he says he would not join a retail grocers' association or any other association. He claims he does not need any assistance from anyone. He has cash in the bank and he says that is the best friend he or anyone else can have.

Mr. Sullivan, however, is the only man in the city who is doing a strictly cash business. It is possible for him to do it that way because he started and built his business up that way. But under existing conditions it would be a very difficult proposition for other merchants to face who have always done a credit business. But there are several who would like to try it, in fact one or two have stated that they intend in a short time to only sell and buy for cash.

LONDON.

George Loveless, who for a number of years has conducted a grocery business on Richmond Street North, has sold out to George Knight, formerly a restauraunt keeper here. Mr. Loveless goes into the crockery business with his brother Thomas, succeeding Bert Barbour as a member of the London Crockery Co., Dundas Street.

Gorman, Eckert & Co., spice manufacturers of this city, have purchased the extensive premises of the Bennet Furniture Co., in the east end, and will shortly remove their plant thither. Their fine premises on Clarence Street have been purchased by Lind, Kerrigan & Co., wholesale grocers, which firm though but a comparatively short time in business, have so extended their operations as to demand the considerably enlarged accommodation they will now have. The price paid is understood to be $30,000.

The local bakers and the Real Estate Owners' Protective Association are at loggerheads. Recently the latter passed a resolution which, after a lengthy preamble, calls the attention of the Legislature and the city council to the need of an act regulating the weight and sale of bread, wherein at least a standard loaf should be placed within reach of the consumer. The resolution further declares that the necessity for a standard loaf is most apparent from the fact that the variations in the weight of bread as at present leave the door open for the undue oppression of the people in so essential a commodity. The bakers answer this by declaring it to be impossible to sell a two-pound loaf for five cents unless at a loss, and that as it is no one in the trade is making money. One baker, in a letter to the local press, hints that unless the real estate owners mind their own business and let other people's alone, the bakers may be under the necessity of taking steps to prevent the landlords oppressing the poor by raising the rents, as is said to be in contemplation.

Seasonable quiet pervades the wholesale grocery lines, but a brightening up is looked for at the opening of the month. Prices as a rule remain unchanged. The advance in teas—fifty to seventy-five per cent. in the last three months—has made it almost impossible for brokers to sell. A large amount of teas which had been purchased before the advance have been sold at good prices, but the supply is now about exhausted.

A movement is on foot amongst retail grocers looking to the employment by the association of a permanent secretary, whose duties would consist of collecting membership fees, getting and keeping track of dead beats and looking after the interests of the trade generally. There undoubtedly is need of such an official who, if the right sort of man, would be of inestimable value to the grocers of London.

Friends of W. H. Escott, who has been connected as a traveler for seventeen years with the firm of T. B. Escott & Co., met yesterday at his place of business and presented him with a handsome traveling bag and address, on the occasion of his near departure for Winnipeg. Mr. Escott is widely known and esteemed in social and business circles.

ORGANIZATION.

What the movement for retail grocery organization needs now is free and general discussion. That is something everyone can assist at. Everyone can write to The Canadian Grocer stating his views, if only a couple of sentences on a post card; it would add interest.

The statement was made to The Canadian Grocer this week, that if all retailers did business on a strictly cash basis, both buying and selling, there would be no need for an association. The statement indicated an extremely inadequate conception of the purposes and possibilities of organization. It is such narrow views that form the principal obstacle to the immediate progress of the organization movement. Some think the main reason for organization is to present a united front to the wholesalers and manufacturers. Others think it is to secure legislation favorable to the retailer. Others again view only the advantages of local organization. These phases of the work and results of organization are all important, but none of them, nor all of them, is the essence of organization.

Organization is the way to progress of the grocery trade as a whole. Only thereby can the retail trade, which stands next to the consumer exert its proper influence in the settlement of problems constantly arising in relation to foodstuffs. Personal association, the social intercourse created by bringing together men from all parts of the country, is of the very first importance. A virile organization, concerning itself in a large way with foodstuff and trade problems would immediately raise the whole trade in the estimation of the public. The effectiveness of local association would be increased a hundred fold by provincial and national organization.

DISCUSS TIMELY TOPICS.

In England they have Grocers' Associations in all parts of the country and each separate association has a large membership, composed of the very best grocers in the business. Everybody takes an interest in the work of the organization and all are on the lookout new ideas which will promote the general welfare of the trade. One of the means in vogue for the education of grocers is the holding of frequent meetings at which some man prominent in his particular branch of the trade delivers an address on the article with which he is particularly familiar through his perhaps lifelong experience in the business. For instance, recently before one of the associations an excellent address on tea was delivered by an expert in that branch of the grocery business. It was not a long, technical oration, but a short, concise and educative talk which could not fail to interest and instruct the grocers in attendance.

Here is a suggestion for Canadian associations. There are plenty of men who are specialists in their line willing to give a little talk before a gathering of grocers that a better knowledge of this or that may be obtained by the trade. Grocers know a lot about their own business, more than anyone can tell them, but they cannot be expected to know all about each line, and timely addresses once in a while would be invaluable.

THE SIN OF OMISSION.

The Merchandise Marks Act has of late come in for considerable discussion relative to its amendment in order to meet and frustrate the merely negative compliance at present conceded to it by some of the British Columbia salmon jobbers. As it stands at present the Act does not cover the "sin of omission" of which these jobbers are guilty, since it does not compel the place of origin to be printed on the label at all, and imposes a penalty only for naming a fake one.

The cans, of course, are shipped to England without labels, and when the Alaskan tins reach him, the jobber gives them a highly-colored label with a big fish, a mountain and a river and an adjective or two over the word salmon. But you will look in vain for the words British Columbia or the letters "B.C.," for these would render him liable to prosecution.

So it is easy for the careless British public which does not take the trouble to look for "the place of origin," to get the dry, hard, pink Alaska salmon when it asks for or thinks it is getting the moist, red, highly flavored salmon from the Fraser.

What the British purchaser should do is to ask for the kind he wants and see that he gets it. If there is a false label he has his man; but if there is that ingenious omission, he would, if he were to prosecute the importer, have the pleasure of paying the costs of his unsuccessful legal venture with the risk of a suit for damages. In the interest of the Canadian salmon industry, the Government and canners should cooperate in insuring that the place of origin be stamped into the can.

NEEDED REFORM.

Every Board of Trade in Ontario should follow the example of the Board of Trade of Orillia and approve and forward to the Provincial Government and the leader of the Opposition in the Legislature the following petition:

"That whereas in the opinion of your petitioners the present system of civil service appointments by political patronage is unsound in principle and deleterious in its results, it being obviously illogical and unbusinesslike to appoint men to responsible positions for other reasons than their fitness to perform the duties involved;

"And whereas evils arising from patronage have been largely overcome in Great Britain by adopting a system of competitive examinations as the only means of entrance to the civil service, and by placing the service under the control of an independent commission;

"And whereas such a system, if adopted in Ontario, would, your petitioners believe, insure increased efficiency in the administration of the affairs of our Province;

"Your petitioners therefore pray that the Legislature will take measures at an early date for placing the civil service of Ontario on a strictly non-partisan basis by eliminating entirely the principle of patronage, and by making merit and capacity the sole tests for entering the public service and for promotion therein."

This is important, far more important than most people have any idea of. That's because they don't stop to think of it. This province and every province is supporting a heterogeneous mob of political camp followers, appointed to responsible positions "for other reasons than their fitness to perform the duties involved." The petition would be just as applicable at Ottawa.

THE NARROW PATH IN TRADE.

One often hears the phrase "Trade Morality" treated in an apologetic tone, if not sometimes as a byword of contempt; but why should there not be morality in business as well as in social life and conduct? Surely it is not impossible to carry on any business on the strictest lines of commercial morality. While it may be the case that many of the world's millionaires have leaped to fame through methods often tortuous; on the other hand thousands of instances may be given to show that the successful merchant is not necessarily, or indeed often, a scheming trickster in trade. On the contrary, he is usually a man of the highest integrity in his business dealings. One may even go further and assert that morality in business is an essential element of success. The unscrupulous merchant in course of time is sure to be found out and distrusted alike by his customers and fellow traders, while the merchant who conducts his business on strictly honest lines will assuredly establish a reputation which eventually will lead to prosperity. The late Mr. Whitely, the eminent merchant, in an advice to young men said: "Once let a firm get a bad reputation in whatever respect and its business is bound to suffer. The biggest disaster that could happen to a firm is to acquire a reputation for dishonesty."

Further, dishonest trading in the long run does not pay. After all, the public are not such fools as they sometimes are taken for and the saying "once bitten, twice shy," holds here as in ordinary life.

What has been said on the subject of honesty in business holds good of the employe as well as the employer. The man who scamps his work and so cheats his employer of his time and labor will eventually be distrusted by all and treated accordingly. Our most successful business men have been those who in early life, as ordinary workmen, were noted for genuine workmanship. Sir William Arrol, the eminent engineer who built the Tay bridge, a monument of stability as well as of engineering, was noted in his early days for the care he displayed in every detail of work. The same quality characterized him as an employer, and earned for him the reputation for sound workmanship which, combined with his mechanical genius, gained for him in after life a name in the roll of the world's great engineers and laid the foundation of the firm of Sir William Arrol & Company, Limited, now celebrated throughout the world. After the disaster to the Tay bridge in 1882 the opinion was generally expressed that no bridge could be built across such a stretch of water to be secure against nature's forces of wind and tide; but they who expressed such a fear little knew the practical and thorough going powers of the man who was called upon to undertake the work—plain Mr. William Arrol, as he then was and unknown to fame. After revolving the scheme in his mind, he set to work to frame a structure which not only in engineering adaptability to the requirements of the case, but in stability, strength and sound workmanship, would be proof against the violence of any storm which blew. Those who have seen the massive nature of the structure will be best able to judge as to the measure of success.

What has been said regarding the value of integrity in business should appeal particularly to a young man, beginning life. Owing to the strong competition in commercial life he will probably often be tempted to stray from the strict rules of fair dealing, but his safety, and eventually his success, will depend upon the degree to which he has adhered to the timeworn but enduring maxim that honesty is the best policy. He has examples on every hand to emulate and guide him, not only in the biographies which abound in English literature, but in the examples which exist around him in ordinary commercial life and with which everyone is familiar.

RIGHT PACKING TO SAVE SICILY LEMON TRADE.

A well-known New York fruit broker recently sailed for Italy with the special purpose of inaugurating a campaign for the betterment of the Sicily lemon trade. He hopes to accomplish this by two months' work among the growers of the island. By measuring by American measure what are considered standard-size boxes of 300s, 360s, and 504s, he will endeavor to establish a standard-size box in each of these sizes, and eventually have every box shipped labeled with its exact size. A number of prominent shippers are in favor of the reforms and will assist in carrying them out. How necessary action in the matter is may be gathered from the broker's own words:

"Californian competition has driven the Sicily lemon business to its last corner. As matters stand, unless we who are interested in Sicily lemon importation—either as brokers, importers or shippers—meet this Californian competition along sensible and upright lines, we shall soon be forced to the wall and the Californian product will soon entirely control the situation, even in these markets where the Sicily fruit still has a foothold.

"What has made Californian competition so dangerous to Sicily is that the Californian shipper has had the business sense to see that honesty is indeed the best policy. He has graded and selected his fruit properly and then has shipped it honestly packed in standard-size boxes. The curse of the Sicily business has been that the shippers on the other side have pursued just the contrary tactics and have persisted in shipping irregularly and dishonestly packed fruit in undersized boxes. As a result, all dealers seeking good fruit, properly graded and selected and honestly packed, have practically been forced to taboo the Sicily fruit except during the very brief season of the year when scarcity of the California product forces them to take hold of the Sicily article.

"Never let it be thought, however, that I have for one instant lost one iota of my implicit faith in the Sicily lemon as a lemon. It is the finest lemon in the world; the best keeper, by long odds, and by just as long odds, the possessor of all those attributes that go to make a lemon. But the men who ship it have never given it a fair show. I am firmly convinced that there is a good chance to reinstate the Sicily lemon business on its former basis of success and to restore it to the prestige that it once possessed. But to do this and to make this fighting chance effective, there is one course and one course only to be pursued. And that is to meet California's competition on the common ground of the square deal such as California is giving and has given the lemon buyer for years; abolish the so-called 'pony' boxes, and, no matter what the season of the year, pack the fruit, so graded as to be of uniform quality and size, in standard-size boxes; so that buyers instead of having to put their hands into a 'grab bag,' may, in the future buy Sicily lemons in full confidence that they are getting what they are after and that the fruit they buy will turn out as it is represented."

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

Pointers—

Fish—Revised.

Evaporated Apples—Easier.

Montreal, Thursday, March 28, 1907.

Since the temporary rush for the Easter requirements of grocers finished there has not been a great deal of activity in the trade. Business is of a hand to mouth character, retailers buying but for immediate requirements. The business transacted for Easter, however, was very satisfactory. Collections seem to be improving very much.

Sugar this week is strong, although the market is no higher than last week. An advance is expected shortly. Syrups are selling freely. Molasses is moving out slowly. Stocks of this line held locally are very light. Canned goods are in fair request. Considerable salmon is changing hands, the talk of an advance in next fall's pack having the effect of inducing purchases before what is now on the market advances. Teas are very firm and still advancing. Coffees and spices are rather quiet. In the latter the scarcity of many lines is having the effect of stiffening prices. Raisins on the coast are practically cleaned up and higher quotations are looked for. Peels are strong, spot stocks being light. An easier feeling is noticeable in evaporated apples this week.

SUGAR.—Although there has been no actual advance there is a very strong feeling in the sugar market and it is within the range of possibilities that prices will be advanced in the near future. Considerable buying is reported, which is another proof of the firm feeling. It is understood that quite a lot of Mexican sugars have been bought by refining companies recently at prices fully 20c. a hundred above what is asked for the sugar grown in British possessions. Naturally the refined article manufactured from this raw sugar cannot very well be sold at prices lower than cost, and consequently it would seem that quotations are bound to go up.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.— Corn syrups are selling well at figures quoted. Business in this line for the past two months has been unprecedented. Molasses is quiet. Island quotations remain about the same, 18c. Spot stocks are very light, practically nothing being obtainable.

TEAS.—The surprising manner in which teas of every description are holding firm is common talk in the trade. Each day brings new developments in some line or other—generally news of higher prices and lower stocks. More or less trade is being transacted, but operations cannot help being hindered by the high ruling prices and scanty supplies of even the lowest grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.—According to reports from the California coast stocks of raisins are very nearly cleaned up and the market is consequently firm. A big advance is anticipated by some in the trade in that part of the country. Valencias are still scarce locally and the market for them is firm. There has been no change in the current situation since last report. Jobbers are gradually selling out at fair figures. Figs are cheaper and dates are also selling at better buying prices. Lower figures in the latter are probable. Nuts are unchanged.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—A fair trade in canned goods is reported by jobbers. Grocers have not yet exhausted their fall supply and are not ordering very heavily, their demands being of a hand-to-mouth character. There seems to be more activity in salmon than in any other line. Talk of an advance of 15 per cent. in the pack of next fall has had the effect of firming up the present market, and much buying is being done in fear of a sudden advance. Corn and peas are quiet. Tomatoes are selling fairly well. Since no great scarcity has been noticeable during the present month it is not thought that there will be any lack of stocks to carry the trade through until the next pack. No advance in prices is anticipated.

TORONTO—The tomato situation in this market has not yet developed, but at any rate there are no indications of weakness. Most wholesalers think they will not have more than enough and at least one is talking of buying. Consumption continues steadily. The high price does not seem to have been a deterrent at all. In fact, some retailers assert that tomatoes at two for a quarter go faster than at 10 cents, because when people buy two at a time they use more. It's a little early, however, to take the bull side of the market.

Salmon is the strongest feature of the market at present. Stocks of all grades in wholesalers' hands are very conisderably reduced. Practically nothing is held at the coast and preferred brands, such as Horse Shoe, are very nearly cleaned up here. One pound talls of this brand are specially scarce and probably a hundred cases would be the limit of the largest stock. As a result jobbers are more anxious to sell single cases than they are 5-case lots. The price has advanced to $1.90, though the advance as yet is not uniform. Other brands of Fraser River sockeye are very light, and with the season of heaviest consumption just ahead, salmon would appear to be a sure buy.

Group No. 1 comprises—"Canada First," "Little Chief," "Log Cabin," "Horse-shoe" and "Auto" brands, also all private brands.

Group No. 2 comprises—"Lynnvalley," "Maple Leaf," "Kent" "Lion, "Thistle," and "Grand River" brands.

HERRING AND SARDINES.

The United States packers of sardines have about made up their minds to take a chance on the label question and go ahead as heretofore with their pack under the name of "sardine" whica has for some time been a question of doubt. All efforts to persuade Dr. Wiley, administrator of the Pure Food Law, to state definitely whether the canning of the American herring under the name of "sardine"—the custom for many years past—is legal or not have been unavailing, the authorities having carefully refrained from settling the knotty problem.

According to American nomenclature, the little fish which is packed so extensively along the Maine coast and elsewhere is a "herring," but when he is prepared in oil and canned he sells as a "sardine." As a matter of fact, however, it is a good question whether the fish is not in truth as much a sardine as any fish ever imported. According to Webster, a sardine is "any one of the several small species of herring which are commonly preserved in oil for food, especially the pilchard or European sardine." Back a few years the department is reported to have decided that a sardine was merely "a little fish." Historically, it is known that the only reason for the name "sardine" came from the fact that the little fish were first packed by the fishermen of Sardinia. In fact, the fish as it swims the sea is practically the same fish on both sides of the world, and it is contended that it is as proper for Americans to call their herring a sardine as it is for Frenchmen to do so.

Sugar, very strong.
Rice, advancing.
Canned salmon, higher.
Oranges, higher; lemons, going.
Provisions, steady.
Fresh fish, arriving.

Toronto, March 28, 1907.

Trade is none too active, but a fair business is passing, considering the time of year, mostly in the way of sorting-up orders. Collections, however, are still complained of. Money seems to be scarce, and this is true of the city as well as of the country. Speculation is generally blamed, speculation by both consumers and retailers. Canned goods are going out steadily. Sugar is in a very strong position and an advance is looked for shortly, perhaps sooner. Rice is said to be advancing abroad. Figures are not at present available, but the number of new groceries in Toronto is something remarkable, and yet if a person wanted to buy one out he would have his troubles. Stocks of best grades of Fraser river salmon are getting into very small compass here and the price is advancing. Salmon of any kind that is fit is declared by some to be a good buy just now. Shelled Valencia almonds are strong in price. The activity in tea continues and is still a feature of present business.

TEA—Locally the trade continues active, with no hint of any backward price movement. Gow, Wilson & Stanton, London, in a mail advice, under date of March 15, say :

"Last year's increase of 44 million pounds in the world's use of Indian and Ceylon tea materially helped the position of the producing industry, especially as the chief expansion occurred in foreign and colonial markets. There seems strong ground for expecting continued expansion in these outlets, while in home consumption there appear to be prospects of further improvement."

Exports from British centres of production in 1906 totalled 403,517,000 lbs., the year before 381,918,000 lbs., in 1904, 371,332,245. Last year consumption exceeded production by 11,596,000 lbs. In 1905 production exceeded consumption by nearly the same amount, and in 1904 by four and a half million pounds.

COFFEE—The situation is unchanged locally. Receipts at the Brazil ports continue very large. Willett & Gray say :

"The state of San Paulo, Brazil, is the only place in the world where the coffee crops increase, as in all other coffee countries the production has been diminishing instead of increasing, and taking Java, for instance, coffee agriculture there has been gradually declining, with successively smaller crops until the production is no longer of any importance, such as was the case with Ceylon. In Mexico the low prices have caused such neglect of coffee culture that the yield is smaller from year to year. Since thirty years the state of San Paulo has been the only coffee-growing country where the production has been growing in proportion to the constant large and increasing consumption; but even so, the coffee crops of San Paulo are very irregular. In that state the record crop of 1901-1902 was followed by four smaller crops, the last three of which yielded much less than the quantity required for consumption. But the current crop turns out as large as the two previous Santos crops together, but looking ahead, it is already known that production there will again be much smaller, the same as was the case after the record crop of 1901-1902."

SUGAR—The sentiment here is very firm. Some wholesalers are advising their customers to buy, as an advance is looked for.

The raw market in New York and abroad continues to improve. Willett & Gray, reviewing the week ending March 21, say :

"Last week closed with centrifugals on the spot at 3.50c. per lb. duty paid and with beet sugar in Europe at 9s. 1½d., the parity of 3.91c. per lb. duty paid for centrifugals in New York. Present values are 3.51c. per lb. for centrifugals and 9s. 2¼d. for beets (parity 3.92c.)

"During the week under review spot values remained steady for centrifugals while April shipments from Cuba were, for several days, unsalable except at 1-16c. decline, but towards the close, a firmer feeling generally is noted.

"Beet sugars declined to 9s., recovering fully and advancing to 9s. 2¼d. for prompt and 9s. 4½d. for August beet at the close.

"The difference in parity of beets and cane is now 11c. per 100 lbs. The last advance in beet is no doubt owing to the reports now coming in from Cuba tending to correct the erroneous large crop estimates put forth by some parties.

"We find that well-informed merchants are now falling into line with our own estimate of 1,250,000 tons crop, which the reports of drought in Cuba tend to confirm. The recent dullness did not extend to any decline beyond 1-16c. per lb. in instances and the way now seems clear for a renewal of the upward progress in prices of centrifugals before long.

"The Cuba crop figures changed to the extent of 180 centrals now grinding, against 183 two weeks ago, and 179 at this time last year. Receipts at shipping ports were unchanged at 60,000 tons. Stocks in Cuba and the U.S. together are 609,501 tons, against 513,605 tons last week and 134,716 tons last year."

By Saturday beet had advanced ¼d. to 9s. 2½d., and Cuban centrifugals were quite a bit stronger. This week-end opened with a firm market all round and the position has continued to improve.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—The market is firmer and in the primary markets there is a stronger tendency all round. Short crop conditions seem to prevail everywhere.

Estimates made by the Louisiana & Texas Rice Millers' Association, writes W. S. Miller, regarding the Texan crop, show that the total supply of rice in the hands of the mills and warehouses is 100,000 bags less than the same time last year, and the total amount of clean rice in the hands of the mills is more than 35 per cent. less than last year. Owing to the fact that a large percentage of screenings, which at this time last year were selling for 2½ to 3 cents, are now being used for brewers' rice, the total supply of merchantable rice is certainly 200,000 bags less than last On account of improved trade conditions in Porto Rico that market is not buying screenings and in consequence these are being used for brewers' rice. A very large proportion of the rice in the hands of millers, about 65 per cent. of the total supply, is still in the rough and there will be no pressure on the part of the mills to sell to avoid weevil damage, as weevils do very little damage to rough rice. The demand for all qualities of good rice is active and at good figures and if the demand from now until August 1, beginning of the new season, is no better than last year it will mean that this entire crop will be consumed and we will go into the new crop with the market bare of rice.

Thos. Montgomery, of Thos. Montgomery & Son, Montreal, has left for New York to make arangements for the fall shipments of their special lines.

THE SUGAR INDUSTRY IN ISLAND OF TRINIDAD

Depending Upon Canada

(From the Mirror.)

A very significant circumstance took place last year in connection with the output of sugar from this colony. It was that not a single pound of that product went to the United States. Indeed, since 1898 when the States took £383,528 in value of sugar—the bulk of the output—the exports to that country have been diminishing until they reached the vanishing point in 1905-06. Canada, on the other hand, has been steadily increasing her imports of Trinidad sugar and last year took close on half the total quantity shipped abroad—in value £206,614—the other half having been despatched to Great Britain. The reasons for this are not far to seek.

Canada has given the West Indies preferential treatment and although it has been claimed on this side of the water that the islands have been despoiled by Canadian refiners of the full benefits accruing from the preference, nevertheless the certain effect has been that the Dominion has been attracting larger and larger supplies of cane sugar. Exports to the United States have fallen off on account of the increasing outputs from Puerto Rico and Cuba, which stand in the same relation to the States as regards preferential treatment as do the British West Indies to Canada. So that while the exports of our sugar to the States have reached the irriducible minimum, those to Canada show a remarkable and welcome tendency to increase. It must not be forgotten either that they grow their own canes in the Southern States and cane-growers' associations exist in Louisiana, Kansas, Texas and other provinces. This combination of circumstances, associated with the enormous industrial activity everywhere conspicuous in the United States of America, and the presence there of an unprecedented number of capitalists ready to devote their energies and wealth to the fullest development of scientific agriculture, could have but one result so far as British West Indian sugar is concerned. That result was achieved at least in Trinidad last year when no sugar of any kind was shipped to the States.

Owing to the action of the English confectioners who have had to pay a little more for their sugar because of the effect of the Brussels Convention, the Liberal Government is virtually pledged to the rescission of the convention. That previously unlooked for denouement is promised for the later months of the year and then beet sugars will again swamp out cane sugars in the British market and the hearts of jam makers in Breat Britain will be made glad. In some of the smaller islands, the sugar industry is doomed to extinction. They will be unable to compete with the beet growing countries of Europe, as was fully exemplified during the period between the beginning of the sugar crisis and the coming into operation of the Brussels Convention. Fortunately a rival industry has sprung up in St. Vincent, Antigua and St. Kitts-Nevis, where the output of raw cotton bids fair to grow to considerable proportions, and where the lands are admirably suited to the production of that indispensable commodity.

Whether Trinidad, Demerara and Barbadoes will be able to persevere with sugar will, we fear, depend entirely on the attitude of Canada, to which country wistful eyes must soon be turned by the sugar producers of those three colonies. Fortunately, emigration to the Dominion is increasing by leaps and bounds, thanks to the splendid encouragement given to it by the wide-awake Government at Ottawa and, further, we would point to the desire that has most consistently been shown on the part of both that Government and Canadian merchants to improve their commercial relations with the West Indies. It is proposed that shortly commercial delegates from Canada should visit these islands and so find out for themselves how trade can be fostered between the Dominion and these British Colonies. A great deal of good is anticipated as the outcome of the visit, and if it also results in giving a fillip to what seems to be a perishing industry, hope will be revived in the breast of many a sugar grower, not only in Trinidad, but also in those other colonies largely dependent on that branch of agriculture.

Of course it is no great secret that several growers here intend to put some portions of their sugar lands in fruit cultivation, and that whether or no the sugar industry survives is a question, the answer to which must be looked for from the cane-farmers principally. While we are most anxious to see the creation of a large fruit trade, believing as we do that it is a paying business, we should, however, witness with profound regret the passing away altogether from local activities of an industry which affords employment for so many thousands of our people. One issue stands out as a dead certainty. Whether cane-farming (which is to-day the generally accepted means of saving the sugar industry) spreads, as it is fondly hoped it will, or whether the industry perishes, either eventuality will mark the death of our costly East Indian immigration. Such a circumstance is to be viewed with calmness, if not with pleasure. It must have a buoyant effect on general revenue and ultimately remove some of those social and economic problems which exist to-day in our midst.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, March 28, 1907.)

With the opening of spring weather business is becoming very active again and the only drawback is the inability of the railways to make prompt deliveries. Complaints are general among the retail trade in the country and the wholesale trade in the city of delays in delivery of freight.

CANNED GOODS—Since the revision of price in a few items under the canned meats heading noted last week, there have been no other changes. There is a steady demand for all lines of canned goods. We quote:

FOOD STUFF TRADE NEWS IN THE ATLANTIC PROVINCE

Halifax, N.S., March 26.

The grocery and provision markets are in a very healthy condition and the volume of business passing is most satisfactory, considering the successive storms during the present month. Fruit growers in the Annapolis Valley continue to send shipments to the British market. During the past week 15,000 barrels of apples were sent forward via Halifax for London, and further shipments will be made next week. The owners of this fruit held it until they thought that the markets on the other side were more favorable. The stock of apples on the home market is very limited and the quality is of the poorest, all the good fruit having been bought up. Pork has been reduced fifty cents per barrel. Beef is very firm, and lard is high.

A small shipment of Bermuda onions was placed on the market this week. With the passing of the winter season the stocks of vegetables are becoming very light, and there has been a general advance in prices all round.

FISH—The scarcity of fresh fish on the local market has sent the price up during the past week. Halibut has reached a record figure, being quoted at 20 cents per pound and scarce at that. There was less fresh halibut marketed this Lent than there has been for years. Fresh cod and haddock have also been advanced one cent per pound, and fresh lobsters are at a premium, it being impossible to get them at any price. The last shipment of Nova Scotia lobsters to Boston sold for $40 per crate, and in New York lobsters are selling at 40 cents per pound for large and 30 cents per pound for small. Nova Scotia smelts are selling in the American market for 20 cents per pound. The weather is so extremely bad that it is impossible for the fishermen to get out to the grounds and in consequence the shortage of fresh fish is greater than has been.

The Pickford and Black Liner Ocamo which arrived here from the West Indies last week, landed 2,342 bags, and 150 barrels of sugar to be transhipped to Montreal.

Michael Dwyer, of the wholesale grocery house of John Tobin & Co., has returned from a trip to England.

C. E. Choate is about again after a severe attack of la grippe.

William P. Crosby, a hustling grocer of Yarmouth, is getting into line, and his new store on Main St., opposite the foot of King St., is one of the most complete and attractive business stands in that town. The hardwood floor and counter tops, white shelving, the metallic ceiling, nicely tinted, give the shop an appearance of elegance and cleanliness that is very pleasing to the eye. There are three large counters and an abundance of bins, drawers and shelves, and barrel-swings which make it possible to handle goods with neatness and despatch. The shop is lighted by two large show windows. In the northwest corner is a snug office, and a meat room fitted with enamelled sink and other conveniences. In rear of the shop is a large store room. There is ample room for storage in the fine cellar and on the second floor of the building. A freight elevator will be installed to lift heavy goods to the main and upper floors. The new store which seems to be perfectly adapted to the grocery business was designed by Mr. Crosby, who has had about 15 years' experience and knows all the requirements of the trade. He will open the new stand for business with a full stock of groceries and a line of crockeryware on March 30th.

Robert T. Forristall, a prominent merchant of Birmingham St., died last week after a brief illness. Mr. Forristall conducted a large grocery business on Birmingham St. for the past quarter of a century, and had a wide acquaintance throughout the city. He was a native of the city and always took an active interest in the affairs of the community. The premises which he had for the grocery were the most modern in the district and his business career was very successful. He paid strict attention to the business and as a result he amassed a considerable fortune. He was 53 years of age and unmarried.

William Forristall, the Maritime representative of the Taylor Soap Works of Toronto, is a brother of the deceased.

The firm of G. M. Graham & Company, Ltd., of North Sydney, N.B., has been incorporated with letters patent to handle a big fishing fleet. It is stated that thirty French steam trawlers will come out from France this season and will fit out with the above company, which has associated with it a French capitalist. The firm will be the agents and fitters of this big fleet, with North Sydney as its headquarters. The largest shareholders are G. M. Graham, of North Sydney; John Carry, of Florence; John McGibbon, of Scotland, and Edward Lacroix, of St. Pierre.

The latter gentleman is now special representative of a large fish concern with headquarters in Paris, said to be the largest organization of fish dealers in the world. Previously they made St. Pierre the fitting-out station for their fleet, but realizing the many advantages to be gained by coming to North Sydney they decided to increase their fleet of trawlers and other fishing craft, and make this place their port of call.

This coming season, therefore, it is expected the big French Union of Fishing Concerns will send no less than twenty trawlers to prosecute the fishing in these waters, and the immense benefit to be derived by the merchants and others will mean much for North Sydney.

The object of the new company is described as that of ship chandlers and brokers, and they will carry on a general fishing and fish-curing business in conjunction with their brokerage business.

The company have also purchased several small fishing vessels and are now negotiating for the purchase of a clipper auxiliary schooner, which will be used in prosecuting the fisheries off the Cape Breton coast.

F. F. Morrow, dairy inspector for Prince Edward Island, has left for Sussex, N.B., to attend the dairy school there.

The retail grocery business situated at the corner of Spring Garden Road and Queen street, which has been conducted by the firm of Major & Son for the past twenty years, has been dissolved, both retiring from the grocery business, which is now offered for sale.

Mr. C. E. Choate, the well known Gottingen street grocer, is confined to his residence by a severe attack of la grippe.

W. H. Rennie, a prominent business man, of Truro, N.S., has just returned from a business trip to the British markets.

Messrs. Gillespie & McQuarrie, of Parrsboro, N.S., have greatly improved the appearance of their grocery by rearranging the interior and giving it two coats of paint. The spring goods are now arriving, and the shop presents a brighter and more attractive appearance.

Several parties in the Cornwallis Valley are pressing hay and shipping it to Halifax and Bermuda markets. These shipments threaten to create a scarcity in the county, where it is bringing from eleven and a half to eleven dollars and seventy-five cents per ton.

GROCERY TRADE NEWS OF NEW BRUNSWICK

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer)

St. John, N.B., Mar. 25, 1907.

The local markets continue very quiet and there have been practically no changes during the past week. Business continues fairly good, considering that this is the lenten season. The fresh fish market is still bare of offerings. Finnan haddies are also scarce and the end of the fresh salmon season till the harbor salmon commence to run is in sight. In the produce line butter is still scarce and owing to the severe storm there are no stocks of eggs on hand. Case eggs are a cent higher than last week and the probability is that there will be no change until after Easter. Potatoes are selling retail at from $1.75 to $2 per barrel. All pork products remain high.

The apple exports through this port have shown a marked increase over last year. During the past week St. John exported 4,053 barrels as compared with 293 barrels for the same week one year ago. For the season St. John has forwarded 40,378 barrels to all ports as compared with 20,763 barrels for the same period last season. St. John sent 1,914 barrels to Liverpool, 193 barrels to London, 1,345 barrels to Glasgow, and 601 barrels to various ports last week. Liverpool imported last week 25,312 barrels of apples as compared wieh 8,343 barrels for the same week one year ago. For the season Liverpool has received 1,007,528 barrels as compared with 914,163 barrels for the same period one year ago.

To date eighty-four winter port steamers have filed papers at the customs house for their outward cargoes, showing a valuation as follows:

Canadian goods	$9,520,887
Foreign goods	4,791,343
A total of	$14,312,230

This statement still shows a falling off in value as compared with last year owing to the tie-up of freight by storms and car shortage in the West. The number of sailings is still in advance of last season.

Frank White, confectioner; A. O. Skinner, carpet dealer; J. Fraser Gregory, millowner; Herbert J. Smith, lawyer and David Connell, all of St. John, are seeking incorporation as the Frank White Catering Company, Limited, with a capital stock of $49,000, divided in 490 shares. The object of the company is to acquire and take over as a going concern the undertaking of Frank White as a general confectioner and caterer. One of the objects of the company will be to boom Rockwood Park as an attraction for visitors and tourists during the summer months and also to provide winter attractions. Mr. White will leave shortly for Atlantic City and a general tour of the southern resorts in order to get in touch with the most modern amusement schemes which he will apply as far as practicable to Rockwood Park.

Frank White has been asked by a large number of his friends to offer himself as a candidate for Sydney ward in the coming civic elections, but Mr. White, while appreciating the honor, feels that all his attention will be needed for his rapidly growing business.

Ald. John W. Vanwart has decided to offer again for representative of Duke's ward in the coming elections. He had some thought of retiring from the civic arena this year, on account of his business requiring his attention, but at the earnest solicitation of his friends he has consented to offer again.

The wholesale grocery of Charles A. Morgan on Water Street, was visited by fire last Wednesday night. The damage done was slight, being mainly from water. The loss was covered by insurance.

The Two Barkers, Limited, of this city, last week added a most important business to their already long string of enterprises, in a big departmental establishment at Amherst, N.S. An orchestra furnished music for the opening day. "The Barkers" have now branches in nearly all the larger towns of the Maritime Provinces.

The provincial dairy school at Sussex closed on Friday last. The attendance included four pupils for the butter course and nine for the cheese course. The registration would have been larger had it not been for the failure of the P.E.I. pupils to make connections. The demoralization of the service between the island and mainland prevented the intending pupils from reaching the classes in time.

Elmore & Mullin, wholesale grocers, 21 and 22 South Wharf, have bought the business and goodwill of H. S. Wallace, who was agent here for the International Stock Food Co., the Harry Webb Company chocolates and the Meadow Sweet Cheese Co. Mr. Wallace is going with the Canadian Bank Note Company of this city.

Mr. Wilson, representing S. H. & A. S. Ewing Company, Montreal, has been calling upon the trade in the interests of his firm. He reports business very good for this season of the year.

IS IT TIME FOR RETRENCHMENT?

In view of the present speculative tendency in Canada as elsewhere and the scarcity of money indicated by more or less difficulty in making collections some comment by American bankers upon the recent great decline in the value of stocks is suggestive and instructive.

Hamilton & Co., Baltimore, says:

"The railroads and municipalities of this country have been immense borrowers of money, as have also the industrial concerns and individuals. It is true that this demand for money has been based upon what may be called natural or legitimate causes; that is, there has been a demand upon the railroads, upon cities and towns, and upon the manufacturing industries for the enlargement of their activities. But is it not also true that the causes which have produced the demand for this immense employment of new capital may themselves be called somewhat unnatural or speculative.

Pause Must Come in Business.

"We have been steaming ahead in this country regardless of cost or of consequences; we have been spending hundreds of millions of dollars upon our transportation lines; our manufactories have been engaged in producing immense outputs, while, at the same time, they have been compelled to pay excessive prices for raw material; our merchants have been loading up with commodities purchased at a very high cost, and the people generally have been indulging in extravagances and in a largely increased cost of living; all predicated upon the period of great prosperity and business activity.

"The stock market may be taken as the barometer of trade. Those who imagine that what is known as Wall Street can be inflicted with the experience of the past ten days with the immense shrinkage in values—amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars—which has taken place, and the whole country not be affected, will find that they are very much mistaken. The money market and the stock market both being exceedingly sensitive to influences, either good or bad, are always the first to feel such effects.

"The railroads are the great consumers of materials and labor, and it goes without saying that under present conditions, the railroads not being able to borrow money except for their temporary imperative demands, must naturally begin to retrench and economize. This retrenchment will be felt first in such industries as suply the railroads with material. Later on this curtailment of expenditures must be felt by the manufacturers and the merchants, and, lastly, by labor and the people generally.

"As we view it, there is only one remedy for the present unfavorable conditions; that is a pause in the business world, in economizing and in the lessening of activities, and, possibly liquidation, and a period of digestion. However, our country is so great and our resources so immense that it will be necessary only to pass through a limited period of retrenchment to again place us upon a solid foundation."

A Critical Year.

Henry Clew, New York, says: "It is too early to calculate the effect upon general business of the stock market decline. Our railroads are already starting a policy of retrenchment which must react upon the iron trade and upon labor. Many of our rich men also who are accustomed to take the initiative will either through necessity or caution follow on the same lines. With a check to enterprise generally and a lessened demand for labor, it is inevitable that business will in time feel these movements. They may not show themselves immediately, for much of the work projected must be finished, but later on it need cause no surprise if there should be a moderate slackening in the headlong pace at which business has been going on for the past few years. If such reaction can be kept within moderate bounds and the country brought back gradually from abnormal conditions to those which are more normal, the result would really be beneficial, inasmuch as our situation will be stronger and sounder. This is going to be a critical year. If we have another good harvest, serious reaction may be deferred. If the harvest should not be satisfactory, then we must look for further contraction in all departments of industry and finance."

Trade Conditions Too Strained.

Charles Head & Co., New York say: "Railroads are announcing the curtailment of contemplated expenditures for new construction, equipment and like betterments, the Erie cancelling improvements aggregating $20,000,000 because of inability to sell securities and on account of proposed legislation. Not only has the construction of 8,700 miles of contemplated new extensions been postponed by the railroads, according to competent authorities, but a part even of the 12,000 miles under way may be held up for a change in sentiment. Already several thousand men have been laid off and the army of unemployed

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

All attention is now turned to the new make of cheese which is expected to be on the market within a week or ten days at latest. Next wek the majority of the factories will be open and in running order, so that the quantity of cheese being made will show a large increase over the present small turnout of the very few factories operating. Some makers opened earlier than the present date, but were obliged to shut down again until April 1, as it was not posible to obtain milk. The milk supply is not so good this season as it should be, the flow being not as large as it generally is at this time of year. A fortnight will remedy matters in this respect.

Fairly high prices are talked of for the opening markets, but no one can say what figures will rule until the opening actually takes place. It is unlikely that centres such as Montreal will receive large lots during the first week the factories are running, but after that period receipts should be satisfactory. A few fodders are on the market to-day selling at prices which generally please the seller and the buyer but these are of no account.

Dealers find local business brisk, the Easter season being accountable for a large volume of trade. Prices asked are on about the same level as those of last week.

Receipts of returned creamery are smaller each week. The English market is practically bare of Canadian creamery now, having been cleaned up of nearly all stray lots. During the week a few small consignments arrived, but these were shipments which should have arrived the previous week, but which were delayed through missing the boat. It is variously estimated that 18,000 packages of Canadian creamery were returned from England during the season. Some place the figure a little higher, 20,000 packages, and even more. This same returned creamery has saved the butter situation in Canada during the season just over. But for it, prices would have reached a level sufficiently high to relegate butter to the row of luxuries. Most of this amount has gone into consumption. What there is left is keeping the market fairly steady, although prices this week are higher than those which ruled at the time of last report.

There is some new butter on the market for which satisfactory prices are obtainable. Receipts will not begin to be felt before 10th or 15th April, since home districts will take up the first week's turn out of the creameries. Really good butter is very scarce to-day, and those holding choice stock are able to secure profitable figures. Consumption of butter is heavy, as it usually is at this time of year. This has had the effect of keeping up prices. After the holidays are over, which also finishes Lent, and when the new make begins to arrive, prices will no doubt show a decline.

Board of Trade reports receipts of cheese during last week 42 boxes, and of butter 1,168 packages, making total receipts of cheese for season 2,349,833 boxes, and total shipments of butter received 611,805 packages.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

From the dealer's point of view the situation has in no way improved this week. Killings last week were 20,000 to 21,000. Prices for live hogs are unchanged, in fact some packers are bidding up 10c., but it is promised that next week there will be a movement downward. A reduction of 25c. is hoped for. The price this week is $6.65 to $6.75 f.o.b. country. The large exporters assert that to enable them to break even on their export business, prices of live hogs would have to be down to $6 to $6.10. For a year now the Canadian export bacon business has been done at a loss amounting at times to 5s. or 6s. a cwt.

On the Old Country market the quantity of Danish bacon has again increased a little, if anything. Danish receipts of hogs last week were 35,000. The result is that the market is overdone. One of the largest exporters said yesterday, "We had hoped that Easter would be the beginning of a change to steady markets; but the market is on its back with no apparent chance of recovery." The extra quantity of Danish has been selling as low or a little lower than Canadian, a most unusual situation.

They can afford to do that. The Danish farmer is getting about the same for his live hogs as the Canadian. The Danish packer is paying about on the basis of $9.75 per cwt. for dressed hogs hung up in the packing house. But he gets more for all his by-products than the Canadian packer. Fertilizer, lard, and the edible parts of the animal, such as heart, liver, etc., all bring higher prices in Europe, largely because of the lower standard of living, which means free consumption of what can be disposed of here only at very low prices. They have lower freight rates and cheaper labor. The combined result is that they can put their product on the English market at a cost of 56s. per cwt., when it is costing the Canadian 60s. to 61s. While the Danish farmer is getting the same price for live hogs as the Canadian, his profit is not so great, because having to buy imported corn, the cost of finishing up his hogs is greater than the Canadian's.

The domestic market for hog products remains quiet, but prices are steady. There has been some business in the way of sorting-up orders for Easter but no large movement. The business Ontario packers were doing with the West has fallen off again because of the decline in prices in Chicago, which enables American packers to practically monopolize the market in Western Canada.

The price of hogs at Chicago has dropped $1 to $1.25. The New York Journal of Commerce, reviewing the situation for last week, says:

"The past week has witnessed more active option markets for hog products, at declining prices, under more liberal receipts of hogs and liquidation of longs led by the stockyard contingent, on anticipated continuance of larger receipts. The big packers encouraged the decline, or allowed it to shake out or enable them to buy the holdings of the smaller packers and outsiders at lower prices and also work down the prices of hogs, although they supported the market at the decline. But whenever they ran in the shorts on the rallies they sold it again, indicating little faith in higher prices for the future. Cash trade has been extremely dull, and buyers have held off, except for most immediate wants.

OLD BUT GOING STRONG.

The busy business man, in handling the commercial stationery of houses with whom he is in correspondence, is apt to pass over with indifference the foundation dates, which frequently find a place on letter-headings. One is inclined to attribute more vigorous methods and greater energy to the younger houses rather than to those having a business record of a century or more, but better evidence that vitality is compatible with age could scarcely be produced than the growing business of Purnell, Webb & Co., Limited, a concern that was founded no less than 157 years ago. That this firm not only keeps well in the running, but is advancing notably, is shown by its increasing exports and the numerous new lines that are being added from time to time.

This firm has enjoyed for more years than can be remembered a very high reputation for the purity of its malt vinegar, and the increase in its exports to Canada shows that it is very much to the taste of the Canadian palate. Considerable business is also done in mixed pickles, piccalilli, onions, walnuts, etc., preserved in malt vinegar. The "Imperial Sweet" pickle is an appetising combination of sweets and sours, and the principal sauces are "P. W.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS.—Hams and bacon continue to move out freely at quoted prices. Quite a lot of late Easter business has been transacted. Lard, both pure and compound, is going out freely, for the season. Pork is quiet for the time being, but the opening of navigation will bring with it an increase in demand.

BUTTER.—Factories are gradually opening up, and first lots of new butter have arrived. Sales of the fresh article are made at figures which hover around 28c. Large rolls are scarce, while supplies of dairy tub are not large. There are still a few lots of returned creamery on the market, which are going at prices ranging between 24½c. and 25c.

CHEESE.—Except for some local trading, there is nothing going on in the cheese market. Prices range between 14 and 15c.

EGGS.—A strong Easter demand is reported. Prices are lower this week, owing to heavy receipts. Dealers ask anywhere from 21c. to 23c. Lower figures are expected after the passing of the holidays.

HONEY.—Honey is dragging along subject to slight demand. White extracted is in small supply, but there is quite a quantity of buckwheat obtainable. White clover comb, while quoted at 13c. to 13½c., would be sold by some under this figure if the offer were made.

PROVISIONS — Demand continues light, but there is a little more business passing. After Easter some brisk trading is expected. Prices are unchanged. They are expected to hold steady. Packers, however, are pretty well stocked up and if there is a decline in the price of live hogs after the first of the month prices for products might recede somewhat. Packers are all talking firm, however, but they are agreed that an advance on the present high prices would tend to further restrict consumption.

WINNIPEG.

With a return to milder weather there is more activity in the Winnipeg produce markets. Produce houses are receiving increasingly large shipments of butter and eggs from the country merchants. Little or no Manitoba cheese has been received yet and stocks on hand are being depleted rapidly.

BUTTER—Fancy creamery prints are selling to the retail trade at 30 cents per lb. Produce houses are paying country dealers 20 cents to 21 cents per lb. for No. 1 dairy in tubs and prints; 17 cents per lb. for No. 2 dairy.

EGGS—Supplies are coming in more freely from country points, the produce houses paying 20 cents to 21 cents f.o.b., country stations.

CHEESE—No Manitoba cheese coming in yet. Ontario is selling at 15½ cents per lb. and the small Manitobas at 12 cents to 12½ cents.

FROM GROCER CORRESPONDENTS

TORONTO.

A phenomenal increase in the number of groceries is going on in the city. On the main streets there is scarcely a vacant store to be seen and the rapid filling-in of population in the outlying sections is encouraging the establishment of new stores at a rate that is remarkable. Like the houses going up the new stores are much more attractive-looking than those of former years. A grocery traveler said to The Grocer this week, "Yes, the stores are increasing very rapidly, much more rapid than the wholesalers appreciate. The new men are of nearly all trades and callings except grocers. Some of them will go on all right, but a good many when the bad times come will be weeded out." He was Scotch and perhaps a little inclined to pessemism.

Harry Hide has one of the new stores, one of the nice ones, and as he has already made a success in the grocery business nearer the centre of the city, he is not of the majority referred to by the Scotch traveler. His new store is at Broadview and Danforth avenues. It has a handsome grained and metal front with large plate glass windows on two streets and chipped glass panels above. The store is 20x25 feet, with dwelling attached. One side is fitted with Walker Bin wall cases and bins, and there is a handsome display counter of the same make. There is shelving on the opposite and rear walls, with bins for fruit below, and a very conveniently fitted biscuit department.

Mr. Hide opened his store on Saturday and is doing a satisfactory business from the start. But he hasn't abandoned his old trade about a mile away. He sent out a hundred orders to his old customers on Saturday. He was in a rented store at Oak and Sackville Sts. and made up his mind to have done with landlords, so bought his new place. Three years ago he left the piano business and started into the grocery trade. To-day he looks happy and is doing well.

IS IT TIME FOR RETRENCHMENT.

promises to grow apace unless the situation changes.

"There is no longer any question but that the readjustment in Wall Street will be succeeded by a setback in trade, since conditions are too strained to continue, business being conducted in some cases six months ahead. Provided the reaction only reaches the point where production can catch up with consumption there will be little reason for anxiety, but there is no guarantee of our getting off easily. A falling away of railroad traffic in the face of increased cost of transportation and lower rates would not help earnings, and naturally makes for the possibility of dividends being reduced in the case of the weaker properties. More normal conditions of industry, however, should have one satisfactory result—the removal of monetary stringency which still handicaps the country, despite drastic liquidation in the stock market. And, in fact, the scarcity of money is worldwide, due to active trade and speculation."

F. W. Hutton, a leading grocer, of St. Marys, is in town this week. Mr. Hutton is an old friend and subscriber of The Canadian Grocer, and Busy Man's Magazine.

R. L. Rushton, of Carmose, was introduced on change in Montreal last week by H. J. Stevens.

J. & J. Lonsdale & Co., who are among Great Britain's largest butter and cheese firms, will erect a storage warehouse in Montreal in the Place Viger yards, next to the C.P.R. elevators. It will have a capacity of 300,000 boxes of cheese, 75,000 packages of butter, and will cost $400,000.

HOW TO FIGURE PROFITS.

Discussion of How it Should be Done—Some Examples.

By Fred C. Larivviere, Montreal

Technically, the profits must be based on cost and the percentage of profits fixed according to the class, quality and appearance of the goods, and this is the only proper course. In practice, however, the percentage of profit may be computed indifferently on the turnover, either on cost or selling values. Provided the expenses are figured on the same basis, the results in dollars and cents would be the same. This is only a transposition of figures with same results as to the amount involved, for nobody would for a moment doubt that dollars and cents are what is looked for in the final results, consequently it should have the precedence over percentage, which is only an accessory. It is a well known fact that bookkeeping must be made to suit the requirements of business, and not business to bookkeeping.

As far as I know it is customary to figure the results of a year's business on the total amount of goods sold at selling prices ; but in using this method it is the business of the merchant, when pricing goods, to apply the following rule : If he wishes to realize a profit of 50 per cent. on selling value he must add 100 per cent. on cash value ; if he wishes to realize 40 per cent. he must add 66 2-3 ; if 33 1-3, he must add 50 ; add 25 ; if 16 2-3 he must add 20.

Provision must be made for a percentage of profit to sales and to capital. There is a wide difference in the two. I will explain by an example taken from actual results. A certain concern I know, started in business with $418.78, the turnover of the year at selling prices being $29,210.14 and the gross profits $6,822.28, or 23.35 per cent. ($22,387.86, cost) or equalling 30.47 per cent. on cost price. The expenses including interest and bad debts were $2,286.60 or 7.96 per cent. on sales at selling prices, or 10.21 per cent. on cost. Now let us see if the results are the same.

The profits on :

$29,210.14, selling value, at 23.35 per cent., equal $6,822.28.

$22,387.86, cost value, at 30.47 per cent., equal $6,822.28. $6,822.28.

The expenses on :

$29,210.14 at 7.96 per cent. equal $2,-$286.60.

$22,387.86 at 10.21 per cent., equal $2,-286.60. $2,286.60. Net profits, $4,535.68.

Therefore the results are the same, the net profits are $4,535,68. Now let us compare this to capital, which was $418.78 at the beginning of business. The result in percentage is 1,120.62, compared to 15.39 per cent. on selling price of sales or 20.26 per cent. on cost price of goods sold. Which is right ? Both are correct in any of the ways this problem is figured.

Capital the Only Investment.

The above statement is surely an evidence and an uncontestable proof that the purchase of a certain amount of goods by a merchant in general business is not an investment. The capital necessary for the general administration of a business is the investment, for capital not only provides for the purchase of goods, but also for carrying the book debts, the increase of stock, and meeting the general expenses of administration. If I invest $100 in a business and wait till this amount doubles itself, it is true I will have made 100 per cent. on my capital. This would be the investment, but it would not represent the result of several transactions of buying and selling and the accumulation of profits on each sale. Consequently a purchase cannot, properly speaking, be an investment. This 100 per cent. is not the percentage of profits on my sales either at cost or selling prices unless it would have been made in only one transaction, which is not the case generally in business.

To substantiate this I will submit the following examples :

A. buys $100 worth of goods. A. sells B. $50 worth for $75, making a profit of $25. A. purchases $50 worth of goods. A. sells C. $75 worth for $125, making a profit of $50. A. sells D. balance of stock, $25, for $50, making a profit of $25. Totals : Goods bought $150 ; cost price $150 ; selling price $250 ; profit $100.

A. therefore sold what cost him $150 for $250, realizing a profit of $100, or 100 per cent. on capital ; 66-23 per cent. on cost ; and 40 per cent. on selling prices ; and all these percentages are correct ; hence the different ways, with but one result of a clear profit of $100. It should be clearly evident that the act of buying goods is not what could be termed an investment. The capital placed in the business is the investment.

I hope some other interested parties will send you their views, so that this very important question can be thoroughly studied.

F. W. Rogers, of the firm of Adams & Rogers, grocers, Cardinal, on account of ill health, is retiring from the firm to pursue an occupation more suited to his health. Mr. Adams is continuing the business. The change takes place on the 30th inst.

PACKERS' VIEW OF CANNED MEAT INSPECTION

(By The Canadian Grocer's Special Correspondent.)

In discussing the new act providing for the Government inspection of meat handled in packiog establishments, Mr. T. F. Matthews, manager of the Peterborough branch of the Geo. Matthews Co., said that he was anxiously awaiting the arrival of the inspectors. The pork packing establishment which he superintends is one of the largest in the province. Thousands of animals are slaughtered every year and hundreds of carloads of canned meats and bacon are shipped. Immense cargoes are sent to Great Britain nnd France in addition to the enormous trade for home consumption.

To handle the inspection here for the Government it will require at least two good men and they will be kept busy all the time. One man will have charge of the inspection of the animals as they are received and in the dressing department to prevent any diseased carcases passing into the smoking or cooking rooms.

The other inspector will have general supervision of the plant. His duties will be to see that the sanitary arrangements are in accord with the act; to have the operating rooms, machinery, and employes kept perfectly clean and to superintend and inspect the mode of preparation, so that no dirt or unclean thing will get into any of the products.

After these inspectors take charge, every can of goods and every package of meat which goes out of the factory will bear the Government stamp. This action is the direct result of the investigation into the pork packing establishments in Chicago by the United States Government, when such startling revelations were made.

Mr. Matthews, personally, is very strongly in favor of the inspection. The object of his firm has always been to make their goods appetizing, and they realized many years ago that one of the chief features was cleanliness. The new act and the presence of the Government inspectors will make practically no difference to this factory, either financially or in their system of manufacture. At the same time, they will have the benefit of the Government stamp on their goods, which will go a long way with the consuming public.

Mr. Matthews further stated that he did not think the inspection of Canadian meats by Government officials would be of any material assistance on the British market. In the past the Canadian meats have always been accepted without inspection and no complaint was ever made. However, it would do no harm.

Looking at the home consumption side of the question, Mr. Matthews said there was one very serious objection to the new law. The act provides for careful inspection of the larger factories, but it does not include the ordinary butcher shops in the country, villages, towns and cities. These places can buy any kind of cattle or swine they like and slaughter them in any place and in any way they like. The Government does not restrict them in any way. The ordinary butcher can make sausage and bologna and smoke and cook meats under any conditions and use any kind of meat and there is no inspection. Those meats are put on the home market and pushed by the home butchers. It makes serious competition and is very unfair to the manufacturer. Besides, the people do not know what they are getting.

HOLSTEINS THE BEST.

Prof. Dean, of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, speaking before the Lambton Creamery Co., and its patrons at Wyoming, said that the records of experiments made at the O.A.C. for several years back showed that in point of results, Holsteins had proved to be the most profitable dairy breed of cattle. This, he thought, was chiefly due to the breeders of this stock, who set a very high standard, and stuck to it uncompromisingly.

In a sixty-day test a Holstein-Friesien cow, owned by W. J. Gillett, has broken the world's butter record by forty pounds. The official test shows 5365.7 pounds of milk and 260.5 pounds of butter. The cow gave birth to a calf Dec. 19, and the test was commenced on the fifth day of her period of lactation. The test was continued sixty-four days, during which period every milking was watched, the quantity of milk weighed and samples taken and tested.

The phenomenal yield was such that two separate tests were ordered—the first for twenty-four hours and the second forty-eight hours—during which time additional representatives were sent from the expert station. The cow was under constant supervision day and night. The best day in milk was 106 pounds. The best day in butter 5.74 pounds.

MONTHLY COMPETITION.

Window dressing, we believe, is one of the most important parts of the grocery business. It needs encouragement in Canada. For that reason The Canadian Grocer is holding a monthly window dressing competition. Three prizes of $5, $3 and $2 will be awarded each month. Those wishing to enter the competition will send photographs of their windows to THE CANADIAN GROCER, 10 Front St. East, Toronto. aecompanied by a written description.

This is a chance for the clerk. No department of the grocery trade offers larger opportunities for advancement than window dressing. If you don't know what you can do, try. If you don't surprise yourself the effort will be a great advantage in any case. No grocer is up to his business if he cannot dress a window. Get into the competition.

DEMAND AGAIN FOR CANNED MEATS.

I am informed, writes J. B. Jackson, Canadian commercial agent at Leeds, Eng., that trade in canned meats is daily improving, and that grocers are beginning to buy new supplies, it being reported that the public are now becoming tired of their vegetarian cheese and fish diet, and are again casting longing eyes towards the "flesh pots" discarded unceremoniously after the publication of the American meat scandals.

I am assured that there will be, in all probability, an excellent market for the best classes of canned meats in the near future, with a strong preference for Canadian goods.

PERSONALS

Thomas Ferris, grocer, Gananoque, is dead.

G. R. Hutton, of Richmond, grocer, is dead.

Amenee Daignault, grocer, of St. Paul, is dead.

W. H. Stone, grocer, of Winnipeg, is building a large new store on Main Street.

F. T. Higgins, 808 Queen Street East, Toronto, has recovered from a severe attack of bronchitis.

H. B. Hodgkins, of Aylmer, has changed his store to the site formerly occupied by the postoffice.

W. Mallion, of Oman & Mallion, Stratford, after a couple of months' siege of typhoid, is able to be about and is nearly himself again.

Harold Hill, of Hill & Co., Orangeville, started last week for the Northwest on a business trip. He will be away several months.

Geo. Beach, representing Bernard & Co., Japan, tea firms, just returned from a trip through Western Ontario, says he is assured of a largely increased trade this year.

Frank Menzie, superintendent of the sales department of the F. F. Dalley Co., Ltd., Hamilton, Ont., was a caller at the Toronto offices of The Grocer last week. Mr. Menzie's reports of 2 in 1 are glowing.

Ernest Scannell has joined the traveling staff of Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton, succeeding Mr. Forte. Mr. Scannell will cover the territory from Sudbury to Port Arthur and the lines of the C. N. Ry.

G. V. Hastings, vice-president and general manager of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, Winnipeg, and G. H. Kelly, superintendent for the company, Keewatin, were in Montreal recently.

B. A. Fisher, of the Red Rose Tea traveling staff, has had his territory somewhat enlarged. Formerly his selling was confined principally to Quebec and the State of Maine, now he has a portion of Eastern Ontario to work over. In consequence His Cheerfulness will be seen often at the Toronto office.

H. Warwick, traveler for the O. H. Warwick Co., wholesale crockery merchants, St. John, N.B., represents his firm in Ontario and makes his headquarters in Toronto. Mr. Warwick has great faith in his home town. Speaking to a Grocer reporter of the winter port trade, he states that each of the big liners distribute $5,000 in wages and provisions each time they came to port.

A. E. Carson, lately with the Harry Webb Co., Ltd., in Eastern and Northern Ontario, has been appointed manager of the Canadian branch of Thos. J. Lipton, London, with warehouses and offices at 75 Front Street East, Toronto. Mr. Carson is one of the brightest the best workers on the Ontario ground and his long service with the Harry Webb Co. indicates the confidence of his late employers. A hard worker, he will undoubtedly capably and well represent Lipton's interests in Canada.

BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

No. 16

Ald. John W. Vanwart.

Alderman John W. Vanwart, chairman of the board of public safety in St. John, N.B., is a civic representative whose career, both at the council board and in business, has been eminently successful. In his position as chairman of the safety board he has done a great deal to improve the police force, the fire department and other matters coming under the management of his department. Though he has been only two years at the council board, he has proved himself thoroughly competent and enjoys the respect of the citizens generally.

As a buisness man he has risen rapidly from proprietor of a small grocery store, until at the present time he is head of one of St. John's largest retail grocery, meats and fish establishments. Alderman Vanwart was born in Kars, King's county, N.B., on the 8th of April, 1859. He is a son of the late David W. and Jemima Vanwart. His father was a successful farmer in King's county and until he was 23 years old, the present alderman was engaged in farming. He then came to St. John and went into business with his brother, the late Daniel N. Vanwart, under the firm name of Vanwart Bros., under which title the business is still conducted. D. W. Vanwart was at that time conducting a small grocery store and upon the partnership being formed meats and fish were added to the lines carried. This was the first store in St. John which merged these three departments under one head. The business was then carried on in a small one-storey building which was erected on the site of the present brick block, corner of Charlotte and Duke Sts., and was put up in about three days, after the big fire of '77. Some time after this they purchased the ground on which the building was located and in 1888 built the large brick block which is the present stand.

About five years later J. W. Vanwart built another large brick block on the opposite corner from the store, part of which he occupies as a residence. Both buildings were built from plans prepared by H. H. Mott, of St. John, and are very creditable structures.

The business was started on very small capital, but it was always a motto of the firm to pay cash for all goods purchased or go without. Vanwart Brothers did a very successful business together, until D. N. died in May, 1904, when J. W. bought out the estate and has since carried on the business himself.

He was first prevailed upon to try for civic honors in 1901 during the period that the late Alderman Tufts was representing Dukes ward, but was unsuccessful. In 1905, after the death of Alderman Tufts, he was elected alderman for Dukes ward over two opponents and again last year he was re-elected, his opponent on that occasion being S. S. de Forest, formerly in the wholesale grocery business.

He was chosen chairman of the board of public safety last year and has proved a faithful and pains-taking head of that department.

Alderman Vanwart was the promoter of the first "Grocers' picnic," which was held at the Isle of Pines on the St. John River, about twelve years ago, at which there was an attendance of about 10,000 people. This was without doubt the largest picnic ever held in the vicinity of St. John.

Ald. J. W. Vanwart, St. John.

As chairman of public safety, Alderman Vanwart controls the police department, fire department, city market, public buildings and street lighting.

SOAP WILL PROBABLY BE DEARER.

Late English advices state that an immediate rise in the price of soap may be looked for. It is understood that at a meeting of soap manufacturers held in London recently, an advance of £4 to £5 per ton was agreed upon. This means that the English public will have to pay an extra half penny per pound for their soap. The rise is attributed entirely to the advance in the cost of raw materials. The cost of these has been steadily increasing, with the result that some of the soap manufacturers have been selling at a loss. Within the last year or two tallow has gone up 50 per cent. and oils of certain kinds have advanced from 50 to 100 per cent. An English trade paper quotes the following figures showing the prices during February, 1907, as compared with the same month last year.

Tallow, per cwt.	35 9	27 6
Cocoanut oil, per cwt. ...	45 0	34 0
Palm nut oil, per ton	38 0	27 10
Cotton oil, per ton	26 0	19 0

It may not be generally known that Lever Bros., the English manufacturers "Sunlight Soap," have bought out the "Comfort" soap people of Toronto, and are now making a big push for Canadian business. It is claimed by some of the trade that they are selling soap in Canada at a loss, and that to this condition is due the fact that all Canadian soaps have not advanced in price, as every Canadian manufacturer is agreed that soaps at present are selling at too low a figure. A few have had the backbone to put up prices, but others are afraid.

NOTES.

H. W. Ives, formerly of Colborne, has opened a grocery store in Oshawa.

A. A. McGregor, grocer, of Calgary, has sold his business to J. E. Avison.

Stockton & Millinson, of Calgary, will establish a wholesale fruit warehouse at Regina.

The United States now holds third rank among nations as an exporter of manufactures.

Walter Paul, of Montreal, has paid $13,500 for a property on University St. of that city, where he will establish a grocery business.

Sitler & Mayberry, general merchants at Palmerston and Elora, yesterday assigned to Osler Wade, with liabilities of about $14,000. The surplus will not exceed $1,000.

The Pearl Fishery of Ceylon, leased by the British Government, involved an expenditure of only $73,510 last year, with a net profit of $801,882.

R. Bothing, Charlemont, exchanged his general store business for J. Walker's fifty-acre farm. Mr. Bothing will try farming and Mr. Walker storekeeping.

Balfour, Smye & Co., Hamilton, report unprecedented business for Tartan Brand canned goods in the Northwest. Prospects for active spring business are very bright.

Notwithstanding the opposition of the Davies Brewery Co., the Queen City Vinegar Co., Toronto, have obtained a building permit for a factory on River St., near Queen.

The 13,000,000 pounds shortage in the tea crop and the consequent high prices prevailing have forced some of the English houses to actually import stock from Canadian dealers.

The partnership of Ham & Fairfield, grocers, of Belleville, has been dissolved and the business will henceforth be carried on by H. C. Fairfield. Mr. Ham has retired from the business in that section and may locate somewhere in the West.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Mills Have Difficulty in Getting Stocks From Elevators — Grocers and Con fectionery.

Grain markets remain firm in the face of enormous declines in the stock market, but the transportation situation is little improved. Smaller flour mills are closing down every day and the big mills are having their troubles getting their stocks in elevators this side the lakes to the mills. Still an occasional car of western wheat comes through. An official report to the Department of Trade and Commerce states that 36,739,000 bushels of last season's crop are still west of Fort William and that to get the wheat out the railways must move 200 cars a day from now till Aug. 31, which is twice as many as were moved last year during the same period. Cereal millers are not having any easier time and prices at present remain firm. Oats are going for export in considerable quantities.

Confectionery.

It is reasonable to assume that grocers are in business primarily to make maney, and that if they could make more money selling buzz saws, they would be selling them. On the same principle, if a grocer thought he could realize more profit selling confectionery than selling sugar, he will bend his energies to the distribution of sweet-meats. The profit on confectionery is at least four or five times the profit on sugar, So that if he could sell a quarter or a fifth as much confcctionery as sugar he would have just as much to the good. There would be a lot less work, too.

Here's a suggestion, it may be worth a lot of money. The grocer who is not now featuring confectionery should write to a manufacturer of high-grade goods and ask his advice. Some may say that a manufacturer could give but one kind of advice, which would be, "sell candies." But try it. State the particulars of the case and ask for advice. The writer is assured it would be worth while.

FLOUR SITUATION IN THE ORIENT.

The Department of Trade and Commerce, in their last weekly report, reviewing the present condition of exports of Canadian wheat and flour to Japan, state that the demand there is for a low-grade flour, and the question which naturally presents itself is: "How is Canada to compete successfully for her fair share in this rapidly growing market?" Canadian wheat, as a whole, is of far too excellent a quality to be unloaded on the eastern market at the low prices at present obtaining there, and yet we cannot afford to overlook the possibilities which are constantly developing as the vast commerce in this direction expands.

Canadian wheat yields only 30 to 40 per cent. of a quality suitable for export to the Orient, but prices even for those lower grades average higher than those asked for similar stock shipped from the American Pacific ports. This is the chief difficulty to be overcome, and, if looked at from one point of view may be taken as a compliment, the obvious deduction being that Canada has a more profitable market than has yet developed in Japan. With regard to their flour export capacity, however, British Columbia and Alberta are probably as yet, only in their infancy, and this may be accounted for by the constant stream of emigration that continues to pour into their respective territories. The new settlers, as a matter of course, require a large percentage of the output for their own consumption, for they cannot be expected to be immediately self-supporting.

But a more serious obstacle than either the lack of marketable grades or what the Japanese buyers are prepared to regard as reasonable prices, is the lamentable deficiency of adequate transportation facilities. Vancouver is the only export point possible, and the Canadian Pacific steamships the only regular service available at that port. Shipments of grain must be in some approach to cargo quantities, and the vessels in commission at present, with the "Monteagle" temporarily suspended, are only two, the Empress boats giving too rapid a service to allow sufficient time for unloading grain cargoes at way ports. Thus Japanese importers who are looking into Canadian conditions cannot be blamed if they are, at the outset, unfavorably impressed with our ability to deliver the right article at the right price and lose no time in getting it across. If better facilities do not soon prevail it will be up to the Government to come to the help of the Canadian exporters in their fight for recognition in the Orient, by providing a subsidized line of freighters.

HANGER FOR A CARD.

The Goldie Milling Co. have issued a most attractive card-hanger, showing photographs of their three flour mills at Ayr, Galt and Highgate. The views are well-executed and clearly reproduced, and the card would be an ornament for any store. And grocer can secure one of these handsome hangers by dropping a post card to the Goldie Milling Co., Ayr.

THINKS OF HOME.

A brilliantly-colored postcard, dated Tunis, reached the Canadian Grocer office this week from H. P. Eckardt, Toronto, who, with his family, has been touring Egypt, and evidently taking in some other burgs on the North African coast. He says by way of greeting: "Although a long way from home, I sometimes think of Front Street and all the boys."

NOTES.

Operations on a canning factory for St. Thomas are to be commenced shortly.

W. Maley, lately in charge of the grocery department of Vickers' store in Orillia, has engaged as traveler for T. Long & Bro., Collingwood.

John T. Conway, who has been with G. E. Armstrong, Perth, for some time, is going into business for himself and will open a general store in that town in the premises lately occupied with R. E. Hicks.

The Pelham Fruit and Vegetable Canning Co. have concluded arrangements for the erection of a $15,000 factory at Ridgeville. An option has been obtained on six acres of land at the T. H. & B. siding, and the company are already testing for water.

The vegetable-growers in and about Guelph met in the city hall on Feb. 23 and organized a branch of the Provincial Association. F. F. Reeves, president of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association gave an interesting and instructive address on the best methods of combating insects, blight and other enemies with which gardeners have to contend. A. McMeans, O.A.C., was elected president.

W. J. Bradley, late of the traveling staff of H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, has accepted a position with L. Chaput Fils & Cie., Montreal, to represent them in Ontario. He succeeds F. L. Smith. Mr. Bradley is one of the brightest and most energetic of the younger grocery travelers. There is no more popular man on the road than "Bill."

The Ontario Department of Agriculture has issued the following bulletins: "Insecticides and Fungicides," by R. Harcourt and H. L. Fulmer; "Principles of Tillage and Rotation," by Wm. H. Day; "Farm Forestry," by E. J. Zavitz, and "Remedies for the San Jose Scale," a statement of and commentary upon the San Jose Scale Act. Any or all of them may be had free by application to the Department of Agriculture.

The National Packers' Exposition, which is to be held in Chicago from May 1 to 11, and promises to be the most ambitious and extensive exhibition of its kind ever undertaken, has recently received additional encouragement and support by the action of the Chicago Retail Butchers' and Grocers' Association, who have formally endorsed the enterprise, and will lend its name, aid and patronage to assist in making the exposition a unique success.

To attain this end, all those connected with the various exhibits are untiring in their efforts, and a monthly paper, called "The Time-keeper of Progress," is being issued by the officers and executive staff. "The purpose of our exhibits being the allaying of the public's needless suspicions and giving people the chance to discriminate between the worthy and unworthy, the retail dealers felt a keen interest in its success," said an exposition official.

Jas. Norris is one of the most popular travelers associated with the grocery trade. He is about to sever his connection with T. H. Estabrooks. Mr. Estabrooks in a letter to the trade, says: "It is with much regret that I have to advise you that Mr. Jas. Norris is leaving my employ to accept an important agency which will not necessitate much traveling, something he has been anxious to be relieved of for some time past. So, while I am very sorry to lose him, I am glad he has found a position more to his advantage." Mr. Norris will be succeeded by B. A. Fisher who has been doing good work for Red Rose Tea further east.

WESTERN CENTRES LEAD.

The statement of Canadian clearings for February, according to Bradstreets, show that the western centres exhibit the largest gains over those of the same month last year. Vancouver clearings gained 75 per cent., and Winnipeg 40. Toronto showed an increase of 7 per cent.

CORRECTION.

In last week's Grocer a typographical error appeared in the article on McFarlane & Field, Hamilton. The word "tins" should have been "teas." Those who know Mr. McFarlane know that "teas" are his hobby.

Aim at Workmanship, Not at Money Value

In California, in Washington, D.C., in New Jersey and in many other parts of America ther are men working to-day in a fashion to set the best of examples for the thousands of other men who are toiling in other parts. Burbank, the wizard of fruits, vegetables and flowers; Edison, the wizard of electricity; Wiley, the wizard of the food supply; and many more are preferring the job to wages. They are doing better work than any of their rivals who incline to the wages rather than to the work. They are setting an example not only in industry but in the best feeling to the hundreds of thousands of other workers who are continually under the temptation to work for the clock or for the boss or for any of the many side attractions that are not the job itself.

The real worker who gets ahead to-day, says Jean S. Jaeger, in the Chicago Tribune, is the worker who gives all his time, attention, and energy to the job, not because of what he expects to find in the pay envelope but because of what he hopes to bring out of the job.

There is no job, however lowly and seemingly thankless, that cannot be immeasurably improved if the improver gets at it in the right way. He cannot improve it a great deal by working at it with the idea only of getting pay in mind. He cannot improve either the job or himself by gauging the value of the job by the amount of attention he can attract by holding it.

If he is wise he will not let the job get better than he is, but he will grow up with it and make it grow with him, and he and the job will both improve so much that more money and better treatment will both come to him.

But he sometimes must be wise enough to sacrifice the immediate for the remote. Burbank not many years ago was offered a yearly salary commensurate with his needs, but the acceptance of that salary would have necessarily have debarred him from making many scientific experiments upon which he had set his heart. He sent back the offer. The spirit that animated him in doing this was the same that moved a famous scientist once to declare that he had no time in which to make money.

There are to be found many examples of workers who have cherished their ideals so faithfully that they have not permitted the lust for money or for power to interfere with them. Such a man is Bishop Spalding, of Peoria, to whom Abbe Klein paid such high tribute in his book, "The Land of the Strenuous Life." He declared that in the United States he had met President Roosevelt, Bishop Spalding, and other thinkers whose ideas are working in the mass of latter day thought and are luring men away from the sordid idea that the only thing worth striving for is money.

The visitors from France and many other travelers who have come to this country and have studied it intelligently, say the worker of to-day in America is the most fortunate worker in the world. He has to pay a great deal to live, but the means of living is easier to get, and as soon as he finds that he cannot live by bread alone he gets forward much faster. The ideal should be part of each worker's equipment. It should lead him away from the temptation to place the dollar above everything else. It is difficult to make men see this, unless they see at the same time concrete examples of the good that men have been able to achieve while ignoring the demand of the dollar to listen to the demand of good workmanship.

ONE IDEA MAKES A MAN RICH.

In the town of Abilene, Kas., is a man who has made a fortune in sixteen years selling medicines of his own make to the farmers of Kansas. Sixteen years ago this man paid his way through Ann Arbor college by peddling medicines from a satchel. After he had graduated he went to Abilene and began peddling his medicines there. He has yet an old memorandum book in which he kept his accounts in those days. On the first page is a record of that first day's work. The sales amounted to $3.20, of which he collected 80 cents in cash. Many days thereafter he did no better, and the first year was one of only moderate success.

Last month this man gave a housewarming in his new home in Abilene, said to be the finest dwelling house between Topeka and Denver. It cost $40,000. It is the show place of the town, and is equipped with ever modern convenience, says the Kansas City Star. It has a house system of telephones, a ballroom in the third story and a bowling alley in the basement. He owns a block of buildings, the largest brick business house in town, a large laboratory, and a theatre that cost him $12,000. He has planned to build a large hotel.

All of this fortune was made by appealing to one little weakness in human nature. Upon every little bottle of medicine sold by the doctor is a horizontal ridge blown in the glass one-fourth of the way down from the top of the bottle. Upon the side of the bottle is a notice that the medicine may be used as far down as the ridge without pay, and the user may return the bottle. But if the medicine is used below the ridge, the whole bottle must be paid for.

When Dr. Seelye hit upon that idea he discovered the secret of his fortune. It turned out that human nature was such that one-fourth of a bottle either lasts until there is improvement, or hopes are entertained that more may be beneficial, and it is seldom that a farmer returns a bottle that has been partly used.

Dr. Seelye has fifty two-horse wagons that drive all over Middle Kansas, Oklahoma and North Texas. The agents call at every farmhouse and attempt to leave a package of the medicines. It contains several bottles of different remedies for different ailments. Each bottle has the ridge blown in it. The package is left on credit, and the agent collects for what has been used when he drives that way three months, six months, or a year after. The agent tell the farmer:

"You can use down to this mark, and if it has done you no good, you may return the bottle when I come this way again and it will cost you nothing."

As a result of this plan the wagon vendors make sales that would be impossible under other circumstances. Some of these agents make $100 each month for their own profits and, of course, return a liberal profit to the maker of the medicine. Several medicine companies have tried to imitate Dr. Seelye, but have failed.

At the Buffalo Convention

The Dodge One-Piece Metallic Cap for the Hermetic Sealing of glass packages

WON IT'S GREATEST VICTORY

It received the enthusiastic endorsement of every packer present. Those who had used it were outspoken in it's praise. All who saw it's practical demonstration on the Dodge new Self-Adjusting Capping Machine were surprised at it's perfect seal and adaptability in meeting the requirements of the Pure Food Law.

As a closure to be used in processing it has no competitor. Its mechanical simplicity and being assembled and ready to place give it extraordinary economical advantages in both time and money to the packer.

Its handy and easy detachment without instruments or printed directions forces the public to prefer the package sealed by it, as damaged forks, twisted knife blades, broken glass, hard struggles and torn or cut fingers are entirely obviated by its use.

Its clean, neat and handsome appearance always remain, making dirty, rusty, sticky, leaky and consequently unsalable goods on grocers' shelves a thing of the past.

Besides the regular Dodge closure used extensively by the pickling and jam trade, other forms of value to the packer are, namely:

The Dodge Cork-lined Ketchup and Bottle Cap for crown finish bottles; will not blow off before, during or after the processing.

The Dodge Jelly Tumbler Cap with narrow rim, sealing neatly on a rounded rim of a tumbler.

The Dodge Replacable Mustard Cap with spoon accommodation.

The Dodge Process Cap for light syrup, fruits, requiring the bath; allows of venting the package while processing. A replacable seal on the lever principle that can be used over and over again.

The Dodge principle of closing receptacles of all kinds is undoubtedly the most perfect system ever invented, and of immense value to the Canning and Preserving industry.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Bad Reports of California Crops—Trad e Brighter All Round—Southern Vegetables Advancing—Fish Making Their Last Struggle.

The California fruit crops, according to the latest advices from San Jose, cannot be expected to show up well, owing to the heavy and continuous rain. Stress is especially laid upon the damage done to apricots, and similar reports have been received from the Vacaville district.

Trade here and in Montreal is becoming brisker in all lines with the approach of Easter. Lemons will probably advance from now on until the Montreal sales in May. The farmers are running apples into the market at a great rate and prices are consequently on the decline. Good stock is none too abunnant and poor stuff is hard to move at any price.

Strawberries are hard to get and bring 60c. to 70c. a box in good condition.

New spinach, beets and lettuce, the latter especially, are all advancing on account of the great demand in American cities. The southern stuff is showing good quality. The high prices have brought domestic cabbage out of storage and this line is a little easier. Potatoes have not yet reached rock bottom, and will scarcely rise before the end of April. The supply is in excess of the demand. Prices on Valencia onions will be 15c. to 25c. easier for future shipments. Some odd cars of American onions have been received and sell for $2 a bag. Canadian stock is virtually out of the market.

The latest advices are that Montreal will have three steamers. The first, "Fremona," will load full at Messina, and is expected to sail about the end of the month. The second, the "Bellona," will load at Sorrento, Valencia and Palermo, and her cargo, with that of the "Fremona," will consist of Messina, Sorrento and Palermo oranges and lemons and Valencia oranges. The "Escalona," the third of the trio, will call at Tarragona, Cadiz and Leghorn. Her cargo, however, will consist principally of marble and wine, but she will call at Messina and pick up the fruit, some 5,000 boxes, left there by the "Fremona."

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Fruits are in better demand now that Easter is almost here. Oranges have been selling very well; one line, Floridas, being higher this week. Bananas are higher, locally and in New York. The demand is reported exceedingly strong, in fact, supply is not nearly large enough to take care of it. Lemons are rather slow. Almeria grapes are almost out of sight, $10 being the lowest accepted. Apples are alow.

FISH—During the week excellent business was done in fish, owing to the extra fish days. Lent is nearly over and there is expected a consequent falling off in the demand for fish. Prices this week show several changes. There is but a fair supply of haddock, dealers being compelled to draw upon the American market. This fact has rendered necessary the advancing of prices on this line since there is a duty of 1c. a pound to contend with. Frozen halibut and salmon are out of the market. Bloaters and kippers are in good supply, and demand is reported good. Haddies are still scarce. Green cod in barrels and Labrador herring are in fair demand at prices which are somewhat lower. Oysters are selling freely.

TORONTO.

FRUIT—Apples are a little duller this week, with Spies and Baldwins as the two best lines. Bananas and grape-fruit are firmer and a little higher. Oranges are advancing in price and are running in unusually good sizes. Small navels are in good demand, and command higher prices, but the supply is very scarce. Lemons remain, if anything, a little firmer, with a somewhat limited supply. There is likely to be a forward movement shortly.

VEGETABLES—Potatoes this week are considerably easier, but the Ontario stock is so small as to be almost worthless in many cases, and prices have been cut to the bone in order to get rid of it at all. The supply is good, with a quiet demand. Onions are a little easier but the warm weather has curtailed the consumption. California celery is play-

Shipments of fresh fish are coming to hand daily, and it looks now as if there will be a considerable percentage to mix with the frozen stock for the close of the Lenten season. COLD STORAGE IN CALGARY.

In reply to an enquiry about cold storage in Calgary, a wholesale grocer of the Alberta trade centre, replied: "We regret to say that the cold storage here is all taken, Messrs. Griffin & Co., P. Burns & Co., and the Government being all filled up."

MORE FRESH SALMON WANTED.

A new York jobber just returned from the Pacific Coast, where he investigated the salmon situation, says salmon will be much higher this year.

"One important reason for this," he said, "will be found in the greater cost of raw fish. Heretofore the cold storage people have made 25 pounds the minimum weight of fish in making their purchases of raw stock, but this season, in order to get nearer to meeting the demands made upon them by the growing consumption, they have reduced the minimum weight for fish to 20 pounds, and the resulting competition between them and the packers means that the latter will have to pay more money for their raw material. The demand for Columbia River salmon during the past four years has exceeded the supply and there is no probability that the balance will be restored this year."

PRODUCE MERCHANT'S SUGGESTION IMPROVEMENT OF CHEESE AND BUTTER

The Montreal Produce Merchants' Association has issued the following circular letter :

To Factorymen and Creamerymen :

Gentlemen,—The Montreal Produce Merchants Association fears that in many sections the dairy farmers and factorymen are not sufficiently "wide awake" and do not realize that there is need of a decided forward movement.

Canada has taken the foremost place in the world in manufacturing cheese of a uniformly fine quality, but there is much room for improvement in some essentials.

Appearance.

Little or no improvement has been made in the appearance of our cheese or boxes for some years. It has come to be the practice for the boxes to be made in many sections by the cheesemaker, who cannot put the material together in such a way as to make the boxes close-fitting, strong and handsome.

In many cases the cheese hoops in the factories are old and worn out, so that the cheese, when turned out from them, are lopsided, uneven in size, and lack that smooth finish and handsome appearance which helps so much in the sale. When uneven weights, poorly made and badly fitting boxes are added to this it injures the sale of Canadian cheese.

Buildings.

Many of the factory buildings are of a primitive character, erected without any idea of permanency, with poor drainage or none at all, and the whole cheaply put up in every way. The whey tank is not clean; the shelves in the curing room are old, and stain the cheese, and the surroundings are not inviting.

Small factories should join together and erect one large and commodious building.

In many sections of Ontario it is the custom for the manufacturer to draw the milk, the farmer paying for it—this does away with any excuse for small factories.

In the Province of Quebec and Eastern Ontario the farmer spends hours each day in drawing his own milk to the factory, rather than join with his neighbors at a cost of less than half the value of his time.

New Ways.

The crude ways in which cheese continue to be shipped from the factories should be done away with; it involves too much labor in coopering and inspecting.

The boxes should be trimmed down until the lid rests on the cheese, and the covers should be nailed. The cost of coopering cheese in Montreal runs from 2 to 3 cents per box, and this amount must come out of the factorymen in some way. Why should not the factorymen do the work ?

Every factory should brand the cheese made from each vat with a separate mark, commencing, say, with the first day branding the first vat "1," the second vat "2," the third vat "3," following on the next day with "4," "5," and "6," and so on until the day of shipment, then commencing anew for the next shipment. These figures could be put upon the cheese as they come from the press, the figure "1" being put upon each cheese of the first vat, the figure "2" on each cheese of the second vat, and these figures could be transferred to the boxes at the time of shipment. These figures should be put near the joint of the box, and the brand and weight on the opposite side.

Inspection.

It would then be quite easy for the receiver in Montreal to pick out one cheese from each vat, and thus obtain an absolute inspection of the whole lot; and if any poor cheese were found, the receiver would know how many there were. This would ensure fair dealing and would lessen the cost incurred by opening every box.

Brand and Weights.

The brands on the boxes used by the factories are in many cases much too large. In the opinion of the members of this association, the proper way to brand Canadian cheese is with the simple word "Canada," with a figure underneath indicating the number of the factory, and without any other brand name whatever. Let the word "Canada" be in half-inch letters, and the number of the factory directly beneath it. The weights should be put on with a stencil alongside this brand. It is a mistake to suppose that the British importer pays any attention to the brands in one lot in a hundred, and the figure underneath the word "Canada" would serve all purposes of identification.

The Way to Ruin.

The growing practice of shipping uncured cheese, if persisted in, will ruin the trade. Inspection becomes a farce, and the loss of weight is two or three times what it should be. Shame on the factory that allows such a method, and on the buyer who will take curd for cheese. Green headings in boxes and shipping cheese in uncovered wagons, open to rain and sun, often damage cheese one cent per pound.

Are the farmers aware that in many instances during the past season, the maker has shipped the cheese without any scaleboards, while the best factories, during all the warm weather, say for three or four months, use four scaleboards, two on top and two on the bottom ?

BUTTER.

Nothing Hurts Like Carelessness.

The descriptions of cheese factory buildings, conditions, small factories, etc., apply equally to creameries. Now is the time when the inside of every creamery should be lime-washed or painted, and when the owners make sure that all dampness is removed from the walls or from the cooling room where butter is kept, otherwise the danger of mould on butter will increase. Nothing hurts our Canadian butter so much as the carelessness of some of our butter makers and their indifference to conditions that cause mould. The cool room in which butter is kept should be absolutely dry.

Makers Should be Licensed.

The question of licensing the makers and of having regulations as to the kind of buildings that should be used, either for cheese or butter making, is a live issue at the present time, and so is the appointment of an official referee, and this association will be pleased to have the views of factorymen on these questions.

Refrigerators.

Use strips of wood to place your boxes on in the cooler; it will help to keep them clean and dry.

Every refrigerator should have a thermometer in it, and records of the temperature should be kept.

With such a seasonable winter, all factories or creameries should lay in a large supply of ice. It does not pay to be out of ice at the latter part of the season.

Packing and Branding.

Butter should be packed solidly, so that when turned out of the box it will not show up full of holes.

Brand the boxes neatly on the side—not on the cover. Do not use a pencil—stencils cost but very little, and when used properly, improve the appearance of the package. When making the "56-lbs." on a box, stencil it in the right-hand corner on the same side as the factory brand. Do not scrawl "56" in pencil all over the box.

Get good boxes and have them made so that the butter will not be more than a ¼ in. below the top of the box; the closer to the top of the box the better the butter keeps.

The covers should be made of not more than two pieces of wood, with four hooks. The boxes with the two hooks and the hardwood strips cannot be recommended; they break too easily.

Give a good smooth finish to the butter and use double parchment paper. Australian butters come forward this way and they are pleasing to the British markets; 26-lb. parchment will do when used double, but nothing less than 45-lbs. when used singly.

Poor parchment and poor boxes depreciate the value of Canadian creamery on the British market.

Use of Salt.

The tendency is toward very mild salted or saltless butter. There is scarcely any demand now for export butter salted over 2 per cent.

The addition of not less than ½-lb. more than ½-lb. preservative per 100 pounds of butter is recommended.

General Suggestions.

Boxes must be absolutely clean, neither spot nor stain allowed. Have bags to cover the boxes, and insist upon perfectly clean cars. All refrigerator cars must be clean and dry.

Do not put the parchment on soaking wet; if you do, the boxes will leak and become stained.

Make the butter as pale as possible.

The British buyer will not pay for over 56-lbs. in a box.

Ship weekly. Use a very small neat brand or a letter for a shipping mark.

Gathered cream should be churned separately and not mixed in with that separated at the creamery.

Mark each churning. Use figures making each churning the same as directed for cheese. This will often prevent the rejection of the whole lot, and facilitate inspection and make it absolutely correct.

Unless each churning is numbered, the inspector may look at 5 or 10 boxes of the only poor churning in the lot (which will be unfair to the maker!; or he may look at the best churning and think he has a fancy lot, when, perhaps, the British receiver will find some poor butter and advise the shipper never to buy any more of that creamery.

THE DAIRY INDUSTRY IN NEW BRUNSWICK

According to the provincial report on agriculture of the butter and cheese production in New Brunswick factories, last year was a most successful one. The chesse output was not so large last year as in 1905, but the output of butter was larger, and both brought higher prices. With the exception of 1903, last year was the best in the history of provincial dairying, so far as money values are concerned. A midsummer drought somewhat affected the milk supply, or the output would have been larger than it was. The report notes what it regards as a justifiable tendency among farmers to turn more to the manufacture of butter than of cheese. Regarding the outlook, the report says :

A Phophecy.

"The situation to-day in the world's market is that never in the history of the dairy producing countries has the supply of dairy products been so short, and it is a safe prediction that next season's prices for both butter and cheese will at least equal those received this year, if they do not go considerably higher."

The report adds that New Brunswick dairymen need have no fears for a market, even if they should double or treble their output; because, while the demand is constantly increasing in Great Britain, it is also increasing in Canada.

The Meaning in Dollars.

The value of the butter and cheese produced by the factories last year was $373,963.71, an increase of $29,937.46 over that of 1905. There were 42 cheese factories in operation last year, making 1,320,858 pounds of cheese, valued at $156,321.05; and 41 creameries and skimming stations, producing 967,203 pounds of butter, valued at $217,642.66.

While these statements are very gratifying and show a wonderful progress since the year 1896, when the output of butter and cheese factories combined was only worth $76,151.46, yet the development in the past five years has not been what it should have been in a province so well adapted to the successful prosecution of this industry. Some sections, such as that around Sussex, in King's County, have reaped enormous advantage by the development of dairying.

Room for Growth.

Many others might do as much were similar enterprise displayed. The output of butter at Sussex was 256,673 pounds, and at the neighboring places of Waterford, Roachville, Millstream, Springfield, Norton, Bellisle Creek, Collina, etc., 287,805 pounds. Thus this section of King's County produced considerably more than half of all the butter made in New Brunswick factories last year.

The average price received for butter and cheese manufactured in the province during the past five years was as follows :

	1906	1905	1904	1903	1902
	c.	c.	c.	c.	c.
Cheese	11.07	10.61	8.64	10.10	9.92
Butter	22.50	21.84	19.70	20.38	20.37

There is room for further great expansion of the industry, with other counties following the splendid example of King's.

Two Winners.

The resignation of Harvey Mitchell as dairy superintendent has been handed to the Provincial Government to take effect at once. The reason for the step is his appointment to the staff of the Maritime Dairy Company. Mr. Mitchell will exercise a general supervision over the manufacturing end of the company. By securing the services of Mr. Mitchell, tne company has brought to bear on its management the experience of one of the best inlormed dairy experts in Eastern Canada. Mr. Mitchell, during his term of office under the Government, made a connection that will be invaluable to him in his present position. He knows the butter and cheese business from end to end, and the quality of stock put up by the company will not suffer from his supervision. Another addition to the staff of the company is L. S. Crawford, who severs his connection with the Sussex Cheese and Butter Company to take a position with the Maritime Company as butter maker. Mr. Crawford is one of the best butter makers in the province and is withal a deservingly popular young man of whom more will be heard. He won all the butter prizes offered last year at the leading exhibitions, and had no trouble in capturing the premier honors against the Dominion at Halifax.

GOVERNMENT STANDARD SEEDS.

Term Coined by Vendors—Some Seed Sold as Milling or Feeding Grain.

By G. H. Clark, Government Seed Analyst.

Purchasers of red clover, alsike and timothy seeds who want a good clean article should see to it that the seeds they buy are clearly represented by a reliable person, or firm, to be of first quality by being marked "No. 1," "Prime," "Fancy," "XXX," or such other designation for which a special standard of purity is fixed in section 4 of the Seed Control Act.

"Government Standard" is a term coined by seed vendors, and may be misleading unless clearly understood. Section 4 of the Act fixes a standard of quality in respect to weed seeds, below which timothy, alsike and red clover seeds are not allowed to be sold for seeding, either by farmers or seed merchants. This standard allows of the weed seeds named in the Act about 90 in one ounce of red clover, 200 in one ounce of alsike, or 400 in one ounce of timothy seed. It is to seeds that will pass this lower standard, but are not sufficiently clean to grade "No. 1," that the term "Government Standard" was attached last season.

Some seed vendors have advertised seeds under "Government Seal." No Government seal is used on any seeds offered for sale in the trade. Some reliable seed houses sell grass and clover seeds sealed by them and for which they alone are held responsible so long as the seal remains intact, but not after it is broken.

To avoid the provisions of section 3 of the Act, which applies mainly to seed grain, some seed vendors represent to farmers that, on account of the Seed Control Act, they are offering their grain for sale for milling or feeding purposes.

BACON TRADE IN ENGLAND.

Staple Breakfast Food — The Wiltshire Cut—An American View.

A United States special agent, writing of the bacon trade in Great Britain, says :

For years Great Britain has consumed enormous quantities of bacon. It may with truth be called the staple breakfast meat. Although the home production is very large, the country imported last year, approximately, 300,000 tons of bacon, valued at $65,000,000. About one-fourth of this quantity came from Denmark. This latter is excellent meat, and its quality is due to the fact that some years ago the Danish Government purchased large numbers of the best breeds of hogs from England. Canada is also supplying Britain with bacon in steadily increasing volume.

To arrive at what will best suit the British demand a scrutiny of the breeds, weights and cuts most common in England must be taken. My investigations show that the three principal breeds of hogs in England are the white Yorkshires, the black Berkshires and the red Tamworths. The most popular weight ranged from 140 to 196 pounds. The best selling "cut" is what is known as the "Wiltshire."

By the largest retailer in Boulton, one of the important cotton manufacturing centres in Lancashire, I was informed that there is an enormous demand for this style of "cut," and that it not only commands a ready sale, but also brings the highest prices. The Danish and Canadian products are "cut" in this way, and bring prices, landed in England, within a fraction of those paid for the best English-fed and cured meat. The nice-looking lean meat selections are the most desirable, and a "side" should weigh, when cured, between 60 and 65 pounds.

My informant said further that no matter how good the quality of the meat might be or how suitable the curing, if presented in the old style of "cuts," it would never even be offered in the best stores, where obviously the highest prices are obtainable, for the reason that the retail purchaser has been brought to believe that in the "Wiltshire cut" he gets the best article. This has developed into a strong prejudice, and for this reason no fair comparison in values between the usual American "cut" and the British, as well as the Canadian and Danish article imported into England, is possible.

The advantages of the "Wiltshire cut" may be briefly summarized as follows : First, it commands the best price and the readiest sale ; second, from the curer's and packer's standpoint it is desirable, as it can be sold without dissecting shoulders and middles or "Cumberland cut" and hams. This point was emphasized by the statement that what was known in England as "New York shoulders" are generally a drag in this market.

There may come a time when it will be utter nonsense for a Grocer to stock cigars. But—it is absolutely necessary for a Grocer to pay attention—strict attention—to his cigar trade to-day. Since competition compels you to stock cigars should'nt you stock the best your customers can afford to buy? You make no mistake when you carry because they are the best cigars ever sold at the price. That fact would make little difference to you if the smokers of Canada were not aware of it. But they know that fifteen cents would fail to buy a cigar as good as Pharaoh and they buy it for ten; while they know and acknowledge my five-cent Pebble to be peerless and easily superior to most ten.

A joint stock company is to be formed in Saskatoon, with a capital of $100,000, for a local beef and pork cold storage plant.

E. N. Stoddart, of Stoddart Bros., Forest, has retired from the firm, and will start on April 1st for Edmonton, where he will shortly open a grocery store.

A. C. Taylor, of Sunderland, general merchant, has purchased the corner store he has occupied for some years, and purposes making very considerable improvements. A house at the side is to be added to the store and a new front is to be put in.

Jas. Rutherford, of Rutherford & Son, Bolton, has gone into New Ontario with the object of buying a store to serve as a distributing point for farm produce, of which the firm are large buyers at Bolton. Mr. Rutherford, Sr., handles that end of the business.

Archie A. Sears, of Sears & Smith, manufacturers agents, Ottawa, was in Montreal recently and called at the offices of The Canadian Grocer. Mr. Sears was looking for agencies and took back a few good ones with him.

Chas. Denne, groceries and crockery, Newmarket, has sold his store business to W. C. Howard. W. Denne will continue his wholesale produce business. Mr. Howard has engaged Mr. Hardy, who was formerly in business in Newmarket, to assist him.

B. L. Nowell, Canadian representative, Lamont, Corliss & Co., proprietors of "Peter's" and "Nestle's" chocolates, report an exceedingly large demand for these popular brands. They are making preparations for an even larger business during this season. Last year showed a material increase, notwithstanding the large number of milk chocolates now in the market.

T. H. Estabrooks, of St. John, commenting on the advance in the price of tea, states that London, Eng., firms are buying in Canada all the tea they can get. He, however, holds that his customers have first claim on his large stock, and he is not selling to London. Cheap teas are going very fast, however, and he urges his customers to act immediately to secure their requirements.

Wm. Burnet, grocer, Cobourg, has disposed of his store property to the Standard Bank, and has taken an adjoining store and is remodelling it throughout. An idea of the size of the new store can be had from the fact that the Walker Bin wall cases and shelving ordered for one side are to be 54 feet long and 36 feet of this will be fitted with Walker bins.

H. J. Wilcox, Picton, is making improvements to his store that will give him one of the finest places of business between Toronto and Montreal. One side of his store is given over to crockery. That he is not changing. The grocery side he will refit entirely with Walker Bin fixtures. These will include wall fixtures with Walker bins, display counters, and three very handsome plate glass silent salesmen.

Crawford & McCullough, Brampton, have sold their business to T. H. Shields & Co. For the past five years Crawford & McCullough have conducted success. Their stock runs about $60,000. Mr. McCullough will leave shortly for a new field of labor in Calgary, where he will re-enter business. His partner, Mr. Crawford, will follow him in the course of a few months. T. H. Shields & Co. have been for many years a leading business house in Brampton and have confined their attention to dry goods. In taking over the "Mammoth" which has a fine grocery department, they will enter the grocery trade and intend to stay with it.

THOMAS A. RANKINE.

The death of Mr. Thomas A. Rankine, head of the firm of T. Rankine & Sons, biscuit manufacturers, St. John, N.B., on Feb. 15th last, removed one of St. John's most venerated citizens, and one who was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him.

The Late Thomas A. Rankine, St. John, N.B.

The late Mr. Rankine was a good and worthy citizen, who in his quiet way, filled a very important place in the community and did much good.

Despite the fact that he had passed the four score mark in years—for he was born in 1825—he retained a keen interest in the business of which he was head until death came suddenly to claim him. He was at his desk in the big Mill St. establishment the day before he died, and it was this close application to business that brought the industry to its present state of perfection and characterized his whole life.

From the time he entered the establishment as a young man—to learn the business from his father—until he was admitted into partnership in 1871 with his brother, Alexander, he applied himself with energy to his work, always looking toward the improvement and betterment of the plant and building as well as the output.

That he was successful, that is, so far as success is measured by wealth, is evidenced by the fact that he left a personal estate of about $150,000, and a manufacturing plant that is thoroughly modern in every way.

A brief outline of the business, which was organized in 1824—nearly a century ago—by Mr. Rankine's father, Thomas Rankine, will give the readers of The Grocer some idea of the trials through which they passed before the establishment reached its present state of efficiency. Mr. Rankine, sr., came from Kincardine, Scotland, in 1822, and was employed at Edmund Kirk's bakery on Church St., until 1824, when he and Mr. Berryman purchased the Kirk establishment, which they conducted under the name of Rankine and Berryman for about two years. He then purchased a bakery on Union St., which he occupied until taking possession of the new quarters being fitted up by him on Mill St., the site of the present building. This building, which was a modern structure, was destroyed in the conflagration of 1849. A brick building erected on the same site was destroyed by the big fire of 1877, and from its ashes arose the present substantial block. About 1890, on the retirement of Alexander Rankine from the firm, Thomas, jr.,—the subject of this sketch—admitted his sons, H. C. and Frank Rankine and the business was conducted under the same name of T. Rankine & Sons.

Thomas A. Rankine, though giving close and careful attention to the affairs of the business, found time, however to devote to philanthropic and other matters. He occupied the position of president of the Protestant Orphans' Home and took a keen interest in the work. He was a generous giver to the institution, the homeless little ones finding in him a good friend. He was also a past president of the St. Andrew's Society and the old Mechanics' Institute, and was an active member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. As a member of the Horticultural Society, he took a deep interest in the work of beautifying Rockwood Park and gave most liberally to this cause.

On only one occasion did he venture to try for political honors, when in 1891 he was an unsuccessful candidate for Ottawa, running on the Liberal ticket with the late P. W. Weldon and Hon. J. V. Ellis. The whole ticket was beaten. He was always active in politics, however, and was a warm supporter of Liberal principles. He was the type of citizen who by honesty and integrity, coupled with earnest, hard work, builds up an industrial monument that stands for his success.

PACIFIC COAST VIEW OF THE TEA SITUATION.

(By The Canadian Grocer's Special Correspondent.)

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 21, 1907.

The position of the tea market at the present time is worthy of special note as probably the largest advance in price of this commodity for the past five years has occurred on the marketing of this season's crop. The reason for that advance is statistical. Ceylon has marketed a smaller crop than the previous year; India's production has remained practically stationary; consumption has been steadily increasing. As compared with stocks London delivered heavier than for years past, and the London market conditions very strongly affect the whole trade.

There has been a greater percentage of advance on low and medium grades, and this is largely accounted for by the reduction in the English duty on teas. The reduction in duty does not help the sale of high grade teas, but it does help the sale of the lower grades, as a penny or two off the duty per pound means a large comparative reduction, to the consumers of these cheaper priced teas.

The smallness of the Ceylon crop produced is due to some extent to the fact that the tea planters have not been getting profitable prices for their teas as a whole. Many of the Ceylon tea gardens, owned by joint stock companies whose capital is furnished from London, have not paid any dividends at all.

Fortunately this line is one which shows the retailer a fair margin of profit. But from this time forward he must make up his mind to pay more for his tea. The advance will represent from 2 to 4c. per pound on all lines. However keen competition may be, the wholesale dealers must of necessity regulate their prices to the trade by following the original market. The position now is that the bulk of the purchases made by the wholesale trade this year have paid the advance.

The grower in India is the man who will benefit from the situation; and he certainly has not earned too much for his teas of late years.

The advance is continuing, and orders accepted provisionally have been cancelled, the exporters advising that they can only be accepted at present ruling prices. The course of the market for the whole season has been upward from the beginning, though the market opened last June with no indication that there was to be such a steady upward tendency.

As the Calcutta market is now closed for the season, that means that there is no more of the crop of the past season to come forward from the hands of the growers. With the stock all in hand and its bulk, as shown, materially reduced in comparison with previous seasons, the new season will surely open with reduced stocks on all hands. The outlook cannot therefore be said to be for any lower prices than at present prevailing, at least until the middle of next season's market.

W. T. Heddle, in charge of the tea branch of the W. H. Malkin Co., of Vancouver, to whom The Grocer is indebted for valuable information on which the above conclusions are based, speaks very conservatively, yet with great conviction, that dealers must expect to continue to pay a very considerable increase over former prices for tea. Vancouver, from her position in close touch with the Oriental tea trade, gives dealers here every opportunity to become well acquainted with the situation and many of them are able to claim fully as reliable inside information as the experts of the older tea markets of the world. Practically all the tea used in Canada is landed at Vancouver from the trans-Pacific steamers, and indeed much of that going to the United States and other countries comes this way.

A MAN OF QUALITY.

"Perhaps one of the most notable examples of what quality will do is furnished by the success of J. R. Brown, of Owen Sound," said a grocery traveler to The Canadian Grocer this week. "Mr. Brown is a very firm believer in quality. Price is with him a secondary consideration if an article has merit. He has the reputation of being one of the best posted and most successful grocers in Ontario and he never advertises special prices. He is constantly drumming on quality. Many lines of fancy groceries which are usually bought in half dozens, Mr. Brown buys in five-case lots at least. Another of his successes is in window dressing. He makes a specialty of it all the time and his usual plan is to display a single line at a time."

Beauce Brand Maple Syrup

Advance samples just received indicate that the quality is the finest in years.

Grocers who have sold this brand exclusively for years past, believing that it was impossible to improve on the quality, may be skeptical in regard to this statement. Nevertheless, the stock which is being delivered this week will prove the truth of this assertion.

Remember, that the first run sap is the best. Order now. The quantity is necessarily limited because Beauce brand, unlike any other, is produced from Maples grown in a very limited area, and we positively will not mix it with inferior grades grown elsewhere.

Our own evaporating process, which is exclusively used for the manufacture of Beauce Brand Maple Syrup, not only makes it the brightest and cleanest syrup on the market but retains and enhances the natural flavor of the maple.

If you have never handled Beauce Brand Maple Syrup we would like to get your trial order for five cases, freight prepaid to your station, this week. Prices are right, showing a handsome profit to you on value which is simply astonishing.

HIGHWAY OR BYWAY?

A newspaper cynic says that "the only way some people know is their way."
It may be added that such oftener proves a byway, not a turnpike.
Those who are guided by the sign

WOOD'S COFFEES

find easy travelling on the "Highway of Success."

That's the Factory where the famous canned goods come from—

OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND

And the factory is just as superior as the brand. Our ideal brand of canned goods demanded an ideal factory. It was not enough that the fruit and vegetables which reached our canning department should be rarely pure and free from all taint. It was also necessary to build an ideal factory in an ideal location to assure the reality of the the brand of canned goods which captured and holds the market, because of sheer merit and merit alone. Mr. Grocer! If you could examine our factory—see its spotlessness—the cleanliness of our methods, you would understand why the women of Canada insist on Old Homestead Brand of Canned Goods.

The name stands for surety of purity. It will pay you well to send off that order now.

Credit and Money

Nine-tenths of the grocers who sell Windsor Salt (pure, white, crystaline, won't cake) have money in the bank. They discount their bills. Their credit is "A, Number One." Happy grocers they!

Windsor Salt plays its own little part in bringing about this contented state of things. It never disappoints the grocers' customer who buys it. It serves to hold confidence in the quality of a grocer's general stock. It establishes permanent family trade. It helps a grocer's credit—it brings him money.

Open the door to Success

Did it ever occur to you to think how much money you could make in the course of the year, and how much more successful you could be just by pushing the sale of some of the smaller items of your stock? Take Jelly Powders and Flavoring Extracts for instance. They never aggregate much money in your stock, but pay a handsome profit in the selling. Try it, and see how many packages you can sell in a day, just by suggesting it to the customers in your store. The ease with which these can be sold will astonish you, particularly so if you are pushing high-grade lines like Greig's White Swan brand Jellies and Flavors. Their quality is such that your patrons want more. Your profit, too, is especially attractive.

Start to-day in opening the door to success—by handling

Third Pure Food Show in Toronto

A Retrospect—Another Big Success for the Retail Merchants' Association — Large Number of Interesting Exhibits —Record-Breaking Attendance — Some of the Booths.

The Third Annual Pure Food Show, held in Toronto at Massey Hall, under the auspices of the Grocers' Section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, came to an end on the evening of March 29. The show, as a whole, may be pronounced an unqualified success, but looking back over it in a general way, there are some features which seem to stand out above the rest, and, for this reason, to invite especial notice. The various entertainments provided for the enjoyment of visitors were on a scale commensurate with the other departments, and, in the opinion of the majority, surpassed anything hitherto attempted by the committee. Space does not permit of any detailed mention, but Paris Chambers, the cornetist and Harold Jarvis, tenor, were perhaps the most popular contributors to the programme.

The attendance throughout the fortnight was absolutely unprecedented, the hall being packed so full every evening that it would have done the heart of R. J. Fleming good to have seen it. Every booth on the floor was patronized impartially and the demonstrators had their hands full to attend to the crowd. All the exhibitors seemed to have spared no trouble in endeavoring to make their booth the most attractive in the building, and the result, both as to arrangement, brightness and general effect, was such as may be imagined.

The officers and committee were as follows: M. Moyer, chairman; J. H. Walker, 1st vice-chairman; A. Snuggs, 2nd vice-chairman; J. Bond, treasurer; F. C. Higgins, secretary. The committee were: George Good, chairman; F. C. Higgins, J. H. Walker, J. Bond, W. M. Miller, F. Giles, A. Coulter, F. Hall, A. Snuggs, T. W. Squire, A. B. Griffin, J. Medland, H. Yeates, Frank C. Bruce, A. W. Johnson, C. Simpson, J. W. Nettleton, T. M. Charlton, John Doyle, S. H. Gibbons, H. B. Somers, J. A. Hopkins, J. Gregor, W. A. Gardiner, R. W. Hollinger, F. Spooner, A. F. Albright, H. G. Doyle; M. Moyer, treasurer, and E. M. Trowern, general secretary. The object of the exhibition, as officially announced by the committee, was as follows: "The object of the Pure Food Show is to impress on the public mind the necessity for the use of higher food products, and the Grocers' Section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada have taken this means of educating public sentiment, and have therefore introduced exhibits of the best manufacturers, and combined with them a high class of entertainment, which the public greatly appreciate."

Where all are of such a high standard of excellence, it is a difficult, and, indeed, a thankless task, to particularize, but we give below photographs of and comments upon some of the more striking of the exhibits, and to those of our readers who were unable to be present these may serve to suggest a general impression of the character of the whole.

The Halifax Fish Co.

On the east side of the hall, the booth of the Halifax Fish Co. attracted a good deal of attention from the ladies. This is a comparatively young concern, and only made its bow to the trade of Ontario and Quebec, early last fall. The managing director is Gilbert S. Troop, formerly of the firm of Black Bros. & Co., Ltd., the original exploiters of the absolutely boneless codfish, specially prepared for high class trade. Mr. Troop spent several years at La Have, N.S., studying and personally superintending the preparing and packing of the brands originally put on the market by his old firm. Early last year the Halifax Fish Co. was formed and a new factory built at Woodside, Dartmouth, N.S., the fish being taken direct from the vessels alongside the wharf into the packing house, where the most diligent care is exercised in its preparation.

The leading brands of this company are: "H. F. Co.," "Scotia," "Chebucto," and "Woodside," the first two being of the purest Atlantic codfish and absolutely boneless.

"H. F. Co." brand is packed in 1-lb. and 3-lb. boxes and "Scotia" in 2-lb. and 1-lb. paper-wrapped tablets.

The accompanying cut will show the attractive manner in which these goods were displayed, and H. T. Graham, special traveling representative of the company, was assiduous in his attention to callers and, with his assistant, furnished much interesting information.

In addition to the packing house at Dartmouth, N.S., the company has two fishing stations at Mutton Bay and Macattina Island, Labrador.

Once the consumer understands the best way of cooking salt codfish there is no more delightful or attractive form in which the goods can be purchased, than in the small boxes as specially prepared and packed by the Halifax Fish Co., for best grocery trade. By this method of packing and distribution the fish is subjected to a minimum of handling and reaches the consumer in a clean and inviting form. The healthfulness of a fish diet is universally conceded, and in these days of special foods, pre-digested and otherwise, it is a pleasure to revert to nature's great brain food, the product of our own North Atlantic.

Anderson, Powis & Co., 15 Wellington St. E., are the Toronto agents for the company.

"Red Rose" Receives.

A very cosy booth with illuminated ruby lights, giving it a decidedly eastern effect, bright young ladies to serve you, every attention from those in charge, and a delicious cup of tea, made the Red Rose Tea room a centre of attraction and popularity.

"Red Rose" Tea Party

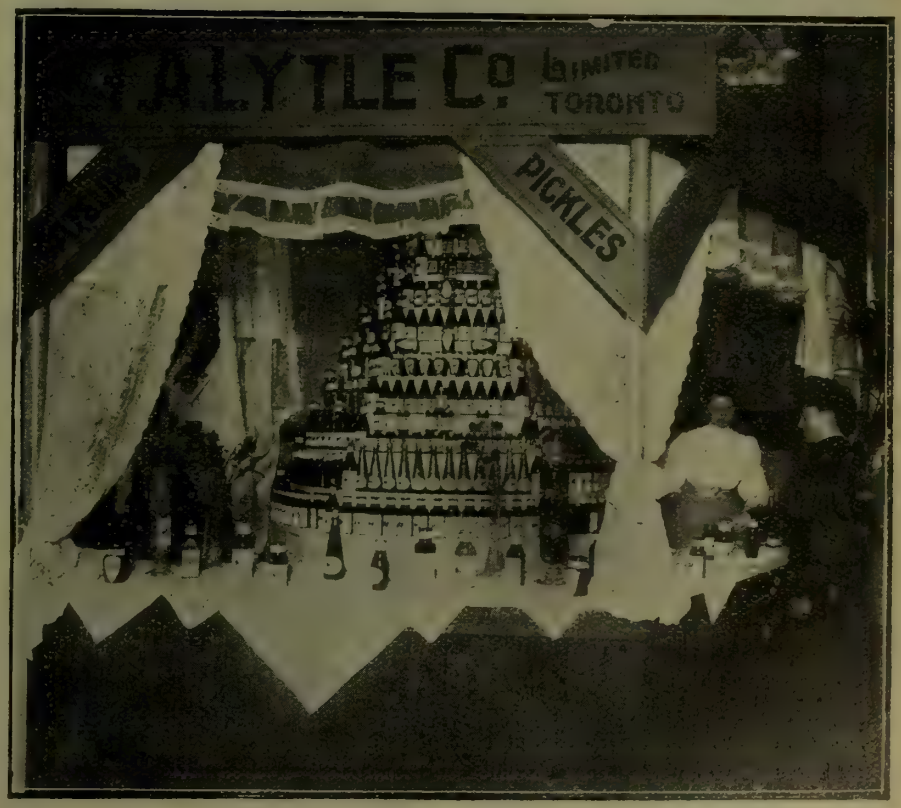
"Thoroughness" is the motto of T. H. Estabrooks' business, and it was very apparent in this case, no pains or expense being spared to make their exhibit a decided success, a success whose achievement was thoroughly demonstrated by the large numbers seated at the little tables enjoying this now famous tea.

A large, framed picture of the head office of Red Rose Tea at St. John, N.B., occupied a prominent position, and one could easily believe, after seeing it, that the phrase, "the largest tea warehouse in Canada" was surely merited.

A Sterling Exhibit.

The Lytle pickles, Sterling Brand, are a household word in many thousand homes throughout the world, but Mr. Lytle, being a man who believes that no matter how widely known an article may be, a little extra publicity never comes amiss, the company's booth was arranged and fitted up in a manner worthy of the reputation of its products. A continual demonstration, chiefly of sweet pickles, chili sauce, Canadian relish, and marmalades, was in progress every afternoon and evening, and from the standpoint of popular favor and public interest the exhibit was a marked success. This company has made somewhat of a specialty of tomato catsup and sweet pickles, lines which were very much in evidence at their booth, and in these, as well as in jams, jellies and marmalades, they are virtually at the top of the list. Their present factory at 128 Richmond Street is crowded to the bursting point, and the firm will soon occupy the more commodious quarters now being built for them on Sterling Road. The new premises will be approximately five times as large as the old ones.

Established over a quarter of a century ago, the T. A. Lytle Co. were the first to put a high grade pickle on the market, in competition with the English products, and have created a demand for their goods which is practically international and unapproached by any similar institution in the Dominion. In fact, it may be said that they are among the very few who made an initial success of the pickle business in Canada twenty-five years ago, and who have at the same time maintained the high standard of excellence which characterized them at the outset.



T. A. Lytle Company's Pickles, Catsup and Sauces.

More Baking Powder.

The booth devoted to St. George's baking powder was another which received considerable attention during the show. This powder has only been on the market a little over two months, but it is already a thriving and popular infant, having fifteen branches from Halifax to Vancouver devoted to its interests, one special representative in the Lower Provinces, another in the west, and an up-to-date and aggressive manager in Montreal. This, for a child not yet three months of age, is a promising start in life. Its parents are the National Drug and Chemical Co., of which D. W. Bole, M.P., is president.

St. George's baking powder do not make any extravagant claims for themselves, but they have one watchword, which they thunder forth with unceasing vigor, resting neither by day nor night from driving it home into the heart of every housewife in the Dominion, "Purity." Nothing more, but nothing less. It is no slight thing to undertake the fulfilling of every obligation which the word implies, but the St. George's people have confidence backed by brains, and brains by honesty—a winning combination.

In the fortnight during which the Pure Food Show was in progress, this booth distributed something over 10,000 free samples, and with every sample presented an unusually interesting and useful booklet, crammed from cover to cover with valuable receipts and suggestions. Mr. Brewer was in charge, and if one may judge from the energy, enthusiasm and capacity for hustle which he displayed, the success of the venture is as good as assured.

Among many others who exhibited may be mentioned; Christie, Brown & Co., biscuits; John Taylor & Co., soaps and perfumery articles; the Majestic Polishes, Kerr's Butter Scotch, the Simplex Polishes, Holbrook's Sauce, McLaughlin' Lime Juice, the Nugget Polishes, Tobler's Milk Chocolate, Jennings' Flowers, (a most beautiful exhibit), Armour & Co.'s Extracts, Queen Candy, and the Atlantic Soap Company.

St. George's Baking Powder.

The International Food Co.

Another demonstration which obtained its full share of patronage was that which took olace inside the booth of the International Food Co. Reliance Baking Powder, Reliance Breakfast Food and Reliance Extracts all underwent a cooking test in full view of the spectators, in order to convince them by actual sight and taste of the superior and appetizing quality of these goods.

The appreciative and complimentary remarks expressed by the thousands who availed themselves of this opportunity speaks well for the hold which these lines have obtained upon the public. Reliance Breakfast Food, which was only recently placed upon the market, has achieved an initial popularity which must be exceedingly gratifying to its promoters. It came in for marked attention at the booth, and was the subject of especially favorable comment. It makes a most healthful and delicious wheat porridge, and, being thoroughly sterilized, reaches the consumer free from all germs and in a pure, fresh condition.

The "Purple Packages," in which all the Reliance health food lines are put up, are as well known as the quality of the goods inside them, and that's saying a lot. Judging from appearances the future of the International Health Food Co. has a roseate hue that makes the Aurora Borealis look like the Black Hole of Calcutta on a dark night.

The Jam of Quality.

E. D. Smith's exhibit was in charge of F. J. Blackburn, of the firm of W. J. Patrick & Co., the Toronto agents. They report a rapidly expanding trade, and the past season to have been a record-breaker all round. This firm is putting up a tomato catsup which is pronounced by the epicurean to be about the best ever. It is being used by most of the leading hotels and buffets in the country.

A bulletin issued in June, 1906, by the Department of Inland Revenue, Ottawa, furnishes about as convincing a proof of the absolute purity of the jams and preserves put up by E. D. S. as could well be obtained. Out of 182 samples collected by the department, only 29 were (like Caesar's wife) absolutely above suspicion, and of this number no less than ten were made by E. D. Smith, of Winona. The next largest number to be credit of any one person or company was three, and not one single pure sample was made in Canada (outside E.D.S.) by any of the leading establishments manufacturing a general line of jams, jellies and preserves, and catering to the trade of the whole Dominion.

PICKLES FOR THE KING.

Something About Gillard & Co., Condiment makers to His Majesty.

Among the foremost manufacturers of condiments of the highest quality are Gillard & Co., of London, Eng. Their products have been on the Canadian market for some years but, because of lack of publicity, they have not received the recognition they deserve and in England have achieved. There Gillard's pickles are used daily in all the royal palaces.

Gillard & Co. have a reputation in England second to none as makers of the very best condiments, and this fact is corroborated by their having received warrants of appointment as manufacturers of sauces and pickles, both to His Majesty the King, and H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, thus having the unusual honor of holding double royal warrants.

"Reliance" Health Foods.

Gillard's pickle was almost the first English fancy pickle that was brought out and during the past thirty years it has had many imitators. People who eat this pickle as a rule do not want to return to the ordinary kinds of pickles.

Gillard's sauce has also been on the market for many years and is one of the very few good sauces made. It is also, considering its high quality, extremely cheap in price and leaves plenty of scope for profit to the retailer.

Gillard & Co. have representatives in Toronto, Montreal, Halifax, St. John and Vancouver, and their goods can be obtained from any of the large wholesale grocery houses.

E. D. Smith's Preserves and Jams.

OPPOSED TO SEEDED PRUNES.

Some Packers Are — Inventor Elliott Has a Peach-peeler Next.

T. H. Elliott, of Selma, Cal., inventor of the seeded prune process, has devised a peeled-peach machine which, it is claimed, will turn out peeled peaches at the rate of ten tons a day. Experiments have demonstrated the success of the machine. The machine-peeled peaches can be sold at a good profit for 4c. a pound below the usual price for hand-peeled peaches.

In noticing the new prune-seeding process recently the Canadian Grocer stated that Guggenheim & Co. had secured the rights for the machine. Mr. Elliott has written to say that that is incorrect.

There seems to be a wide difference of opinion as to the practical value of pitted prunes as an addition to the food supply, but experiments have been hampered by conditions due to the imperfect state of the art of preparing the goods for the market, says the New York Journal of Commerce. It is pointed out that when seeded raisins were first put on the market they had not only to overcome the prejudice in favor of the seed-bearing fruit, but had the additional handicap of imperfect methods of production. Still, to-day the bulk of the California raisin crop is marketed in the shape of seeded fruit, and enthusiasts believe that the time will come when prunes relieved of their pits will be the only kind to be found in retail stores. Some of the big coast pockers who have been looking into the question of substituting pitted prunes for the kind that is now popular do not agree with this view.

One of the biggest of them, in a communication addressed to their eastern representatives, says:

"We have made no arrangements to pit prunes this season, and at present we have no intention of doing so. Our reason is that we believe the whole proposition will blow up in smoke after this season, and we are not going to a heavy expense for the purpose of having same prove absolutely worthless should the pitted prune business not turn out as expected by some of the pitted prune boomers. It is the opinion of several of the leading packers who have had long years of experience in handling prunes that the flavor of the prune in cooking is largely derived from the pit, and that pitted prunes when cooked will not please the consumer; that is to say, the flavor will be dull and insipid. Our experiments lead us to this belief. Furthermore, samples of Santa Clara prunes which have been sent to Fresno to be pitted show that only sizes 60-70s and smaller can be pitted at all, as the larger sizes become badly disfigured in the process. It is a well-known fact that the Santa Clara prune, containing much more sugar than the San Joaquin prune (on which the principal experiments have thus far been made) clings much closer to the pit and is, therefore, much more difficult to handle in this way. As a result, the larger sizes (Santa Claras) cannot be pitted to make a presentable article. We have made a number of cookings, and found the pitted article quite tasteless. Anything new in our line naturally appeals to the retailer, but in our opinion he will soon tire of handling this article when he finds that the consumer does not discover the real prune flavor in the pitted article. What to our minds is even more important than the question of flavor is the opinion expressed by many here to the effect that pitted prunes will not keep."

PERSONAL ITEMS.

E. C. Whitman, Canso, passed through Montreal on his way to Boston.

Theo. Labatt, vice-president St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co., has returned from a pleasure trip to Pasadena, Cal.

A surprise party was in store for two of the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co.'s representatives on Saturday. E. Hustwith and J. M. Wright received handsome stick tie pins for extra good work during the past month.

AN EXAMPLE TO FOLLOW.

The employes of E. W. Gillett Co., Ltd., had an extra day's holiday last week, the company closing up for the Saturday between Good Friday and Easter Monday. This gave the large office and factory staff an opportunity of visiting their homes and friends in the country. Manufacturers and large employers of labor will find this a good enough example to follow. "Go thou and do likewise."

A. H. Brittain, of A. H. Brittain & Co., Montreal, is getting into print on menu cards. At one of the local restaurants every now and then business men read under "Fish" "Halifax Fish Cakes, Brittain Sauce." Mr. Brittain himself, while admitting the fish cakes, does not know where the sauce comes from, but it is safe to say that "Brittain Sauce" is becoming quite popular down town.

FROM GROCER CORRESPONDENTS

INGERSOLL.

Following in the footseps of several other places in the province, Ingersoll will soon have a dual telephone service. Over a year and a half ago, when the matter of renewing the contract with the Bell Telephone Co. was before the council, local men conceived the idea of forming an independent company. Action along this line was immediately taken; several of the more enterprising and monied citizens became interested, and the result has been that in a very few days this new company will have their system in operation. At the time when the new company was being promoted there was a strong sentiment in favor of opposition to the Bell, a fact that is borne out by the large number of subscribers secured by the new company. After securing a franchise from the council, the new company went on the warpath for subscribers, both the town and rural districts being canvassed very systematically. When the system is in operation the company will have over three hundred subscribers and there is every probability of the number being considerably augmented. Of course, there are many arguments against a dual telephone system, but as the situation is at present, both lines have simply got to be used if the ground is to be covered, and all up-to-date merchants are fully aware of the importance of the telephone.

Jacques & McPherson, grocers, whose stock was damaged by fire two weeks ago, have decided to discontinue business, a fact that will occasion no little regret with many customers and other friends in social and business circles. They enjoyed a large patronage, and their store was always neat and attractive. Mr. McPherson has decided to return to his "first love," the newspaper office, where he will do duty on a linotype, while Mr. Jacques will in all probability take up his abode in Uncle Sam's domain. Scores of friends here will wish them abundant success.

Judging from the attractive Easter windows, Ingersoll grocers are rapidly becoming educated to the importance of window displays. Never before was so much attention given to window dressing by local grocers as was the case last week. It has been truthfully said that the window is a fair index to the store and this was well exemplified in more than one instance last week. Not only did the windows contain many artistic features, in which Easter lilies played a prominent part, but seasonable articles were brought to the front in such a manner that the passer-by was almost sure to pause, and on second thought to enter and purchase. It is gratifying to note the progress that the grocers are making in dressing their windows and it is to be hoped that ere long some of them will enter The Canadian Grocer's competition.

As was predicted by your correspondent a week ago, maple syrup was a scarcity here on Saturday. Not a pint of the delicious fluid was offered for sale and the season is believed to be about at a close. The supply has been very limited and but a small proportion of the citizens have laid in their supply. Eggs were plentiful and the price dropped to fifteen cents per dozen.

KINGSTON.

"Easter trade very good this year" was the verdict of nearly every merchant I met. The market was a large one and well attended. Eggs were plentiful and brought 20c. a dozen, a few lots selling at 18c. Chickens and fowl were up on the roof, and you had to put up the shot to $1.50 a pair to bring them down.

The display of Easter lilies and other early hot-house flowers was interesting. A reporter was around with his camera taking snap shots at them, and said he couldn't afford to buy any, but would be satisfied with a picture of them to look at; not to smell.

William M. Cammon has again been appointed market clerk and now the crooked farmers have to be straight around the square.

James Crawford got the contract for supplying the penitentiary with grocery staples and R. J. Carson, sundries. The prices were cut down to blood, the lowest being about $500 lower than some of the tenders sent in. Tendering is a lottery; if prices go up, O.K., if they go down, N.G.

Herb Dunlop, late with Jas. Redden & Co., has secured the position of manager of the Calvin Co.'s store, Garden Island.

Alex. Sharp, the popular clerk for many years in the House of Commons, has returned, and may resume his duties as head clerk for Crawford & Co., grocers.

Andrew Shaw, formerly of the firm of Shaw Bros., grocers, Cornwall, and lately manager of the Charleston 5, 10 and 15 cent store, Ottawa, is going to open up on his own account in the 5 and 10 cent business in Hull. He is an old Kingston boy and we hope his venture will pan out nuggets of golden hue.

A company of wealthy Hebrews, of Montreal, have leased the Frontenac hotel, and will fit it up in style suitable for summer tourist trade. It is a much-needed luxury here. A New York man will be appointed manager. The hotel is situated close to the railway stations and steamboat offices, so tourists need not take a cab unless they want to take a drive around the block and come back where they started and pay 50c. for the trip.

Joseph Hiscock, agent for the Canadian Fruit Growers' Association, is opening up a branch in his old premises on the market square, where he first started in the grocery business twenty-seven years ago. Previous to that he was first engineer on one of the mail boats. He is now in the fruit and fancy goods trade.

James Redden & Co. have the contract again for supplying tea to the penitentiary.

Jim, the grocer, several years ago said that the Italian banana peddlers ripened the bananas in their beds. This report went around like wildfire and no banana peddlars have since troubled Kingston. Hamilton correspondent, please note this fact.

LONDON.

For a number of years there has been an organization of some sort amongst the retail grocers of London, but not until March of last year has it assumed an aggressive character. Prior to that time the Retail Grocers' Association seemed to exist solely for the purpose of holding an annual picnic, and it must be said that the picnic was invariably a success. But a little over a year ago the trade began to realize that the association, as it existed, did not fill the bill; that what was needed was an organization that would do things. The matter was taken hold of by some of the more enterprising grocers, and the result was the old association went out of business and a new one came in. The aims and objects of the latter are the advancement and protection of mutual interests and the maintaining of living prices, which means the doing away with the bargain counter. The first matter taken up was the institution of a weekly half-holiday (Wednesday afternoons) during the summer months, which was found to work so satisfactorily last season that it has been decided to continue it during the coming months. The telephone question is another important matter in which they have taken an active interest, the members having circulated a petition and several hundreds of signatures obtained asking the city council to insist on lower rates before granting a franchise. In addition to this is the movement previously referred to in The Canadian Grocer, looking to the appointment of a permanent secretary to look after the interests of the trade. Its objects being purely local, the association is independent of any other organization, and not one member approached by The Canadian Grocer on the subject could see any advantage to be gained by affiliation with the Retail Merchants' Association. Indeed, none could be found who appeared to have given such a proposition consideration, so that it is quite evident affiliation is not a live issue with the Retail Grocers' Association of London.

The retail grocers are worked up—at least some of them are—over the announcement of one of the most prominent Dundas street merchants of his determination to abolish credit and adopt the cash system. In his advertisements he quotes slightly reduced prices for various lines of goods, and it is this fact that is causing others in the trade anxiety. The Retail Grocers' Association is to meet this week to discuss the situation, and it is not unlikely that other grocers will consider it necessary to meet the cut prices. If so, citizens generally will be the last to complain. When interviewed by your correspondent the grocer in question said he was tired of the credit system and was determined to get out of it if possible. So far as price-cutting was concerned, he contended he was doing no more than other members of the association were doing, and that, too, without being called to account.

Local store clerks are making a move to secure early closing during the months of July and August. A number of them got together a few nights ago and discussed various plans. Finally, it was decided to ask the employers to close the stores at five o'clock every evening during the months named, instead of having Wednesday afternoons off, as last year. Some of the employers spoken to were inclined to regard the proposal favorably, and the clerks are hoping that if a majority adopt the suggestion the others will fall into line. Another meeting is to be held shortly.

John Lawson, the Dundas street grocer, who accompanied the delegates from the Canadian Boards of Trade who visited the West Indies to examine into trade conditions, has returned home. He declares that with proper care in shipment a great trade can be worked up between Canada and the islands. Mr. Lawson has made large contracts for the shipment of West India fruits to Canada.

MONTREAL.

W. Gray, who has been with Scroggie's grocery department for the past year, has left to accept a position with D. D. Munro & Co., further west on St. Catherine street. Mr. Gray will be missed at the big departmental store, where he had charge of the provision counter. He is a good man on bacon and smoked meats generally.

T. K. T. Stone has returned from a short trip to Peterboro and Toronto. Mrs. Stone accompanied him.

There is a feeling among the grocers in Point St. Charles that the next progressive move by sellers of foodstuffs in that district will be something in the way of a weekly holiday. It is thought that Wednesday or Thursday would be a good day to close, allowing the clerks opportunity to get around and enjoy themselves. If the movement was general it would be a success and Point grocers are very seriously considering the matter. What's the matter with grocers in every part of the city taking the idea up. Why not close for half a day a week anyway? It would be easy to educate the people to buy previous to the closing or immediately after reopening.

Z. St. Onge, who for a long time worked with J. Stetson, Hibernia Road, has left Mr. Stetson, and with Mr. Gilbert, who formerly kept a store on Conway street, has purchased the business of Arthur McCrory, 525 St. Antoine street. The firm will carry on business under the name of St. Onge & Gilbert.

Boisvert Freres, Hibernia Road, have a fine store and everybody in it is kept hustling all day long. It is one of the largest places of business in the Point in the grocery line, and the fixtures are modern, making it possible to arrange the stock in a very economical and convenient manner.

Canada Maple Exchange has erected a booth in the grocery department of Scroggie's, and will demonstrate their specialties in that store.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

The Maritime Railway and Power Co. are installing a large and powerful plant at Maccan. These extensive works are being built for the purpose of supplying Amherst with electrical power and lighting. The slack coal from the coal mines, much of which now goes to waste, is to be used by these works in driving the 150 horse power engine which is being installed. All the extensive machinery for conveying coal, ashes, etc., is being installed by the Truro Foundry and Machine Company.

A wood-working establishment will shortly be started on the eastern side of La Have River, Lunenburg county, under the name of Tefler Bros., Ltd. Besides the Tefler Bros., several parties in Bridgewater are interested. The new company will go extensively into the manufacture of all kinds of house, office, store and church furnishings. The plant will be equipped with the most modern machinery.

T. H. Dupont, civil engineer, of Montreal, is in Summerside, P.E.I., taking a survey preparatory to revising the plans made some years ago for the waterworks and sewer system.

Emerson Biglow, an employe of the N. W. Eaton Co., Canning, and Joseph Biglow, one of the best known building contractors in Kings County, are preparing to leave for the northwest. Cornwallis is losing many of its estimable inhabitants this year, most of whom are consumed with desires for the Greater West.

James W. Day, a prominent business man of Parrsboro, N.S., has left for Edmonton, Alberta, where he intends to reside. He has been prominently identified with the affairs of the town for years, and on more than one occasion he has filled the office of chief magistrate of the town.

PETERBOROUGH.

A big business deal was put through in this city which was a general surprise, although of interest to everyone. On Thursday last E. F. Mason, of E. F. Mason & Co., purchased the stock, business and real estate of Jas. Edgcumbe, one of the leading grocers. The store is situated in the north end of the city, and Mr. Edgcumbe has worked up a very large trade of the best class. He has been in business for the past 19 years, and every year has seen an increase in trade. He has always carried a heavy stock of the best class of groceries, and he has enjoyed a turnover of over $20,000 a year for several years. His only reason for selling out is failing health, and, of course, he got his price.

By the transfer Mr. Mason becomes the proprietor of three large grocery stores, one in the north end and two in the centre of the city, and all three are doing a big business.

The real estate in the transaction consists of the grocery store, a butcher shop, two dwellings and a good stable, all brick and well built. When the Coats Co., of Scotland, locate in the north end Mr. Mason will be already settled there, and the new premises are so built that the grocery store can be easily and advantageously enlarged. The price paid for the whole thing was $12,000.

Mr. Mason is one of the most progressive merchants in the city. His father established the main store some 27 years ago, and he took over the business after his father's death, about 14 years ago, and has conducted it since. In 1903 he established what is known as the south store, and it has proved very successful. This big grocer is a young man yet, but has proven himself capable and strictly up-to-date. He has been very successful.

The stores of E. F. Mason & Co. will be in charge of Mr. Mason, as general manager; Jas. Fanning is superintendent of the main store as before; D. H. Kernaghan, a very popular grocer, was taken from the south store and put in charge of the new one, and W. H. Dayman has been advanced to management of the south store.

Easter in Peterborough this year broke all records for this season. Never before were such crowds in the city on the Saturday following Good Friday. The stores were crowded from early morning until ten o'clock at night, and many customers were turned away. The grocers got their full share of the Easter shopping. They were kept so busy that it was impossible to sweep out and the delivery rigs were on the go until Sunday morning. The people simply flocked into the city from all the surrounding towns and villages, while the country roads were lined with farmers driving in. The stores were very attractively decorated for the holidays and it was a treat to just see the windows. The butcher shops report more than double the trade for Easter that they had at Christmas.

A number of the city merchants were up in the police court this week for blocking the sidewalk contrary to the by-law. They were all fined, and before long the other merchants will take a tumble and keep their boxes and bags off the street.

The flour and cereal mills here are greatly handicapped by the very slow movement of grain. There is very little coming from the west and practically none from local farmers. The roads in the country have not been very good lately and the farmers will not haul to the city. Last week some of the largest mills were closed down on account of having no wheat. They started again Monday but they cannot begin to cope with the great demand for their goods. The cereal mills could run twenty-four hours a day if the raw material could be secured. The supply has been short, however, ever since the heavy snowstorm in the west blocked the railroads.

The Quaker Oats Co. are now installing a new plant in their mammoth mills here for the manufacture of another cereal. This new food stuff will be known as Quaker Wheat Berries. It

PRIZE PROVISION DISPLAY

Window Dressing Which Won the Prize in The Canadian Grocer Competition—Done by H. Jones, for J. B. Kemp, of Pembroke.

Entries in the window dressing competition during February did not justify an award; neither did those received in March. We have bulked them, and the judges in their wisdom have distributed honors as follows:

1st prize, J. B. Kemp, Pembroke, dressed by H. Jones.

2nd prize, Gibbons Bros., Toronto, dressed by J. M. Thom.

3rd prize, A. Hagmeier & Co., Hespeler, dressed by Gordon Hagmeier.

The window of J. B. Kemp, Pembroke, winner of the first prize, is reproduced herewith, and it is especially interesting in that it is a provision display. This is a department to which many grocers give too little attention, and it seems a fairly grounded hope that Mr. Kemp's evident success, as shown in this illustration, will stimulate interest and some activity in this direction.

Mr. Jones, who dressed the window, describes it in detail as follows:

Back centre: Cheese cases showing creamery brand, with one Canadian Stilton, one and one-half Roquefort, and one cheese lying on side (which unfortunately does not show), cheese cases surmounted with can tomatoes and catsup. Right and left: Pyramid of "Clover Leaf" salmon and "Sockeye" salmon, with olives on left and heavy tomato catsup on right.

Space left at back, both sides, to allow of easy access to goods.

ORGANIZATION.

Our advocacy of a national association of retail grocers based upon provincial and local organization is not a passing fancy. We propose to keep at it until something is done. While urging the independent organization of the grocery trade we have insisted just as strongly that there should be an organized co-operation of all retail interests by some such scheme as an amalgamated board, to deal with matters, particularly legislation relating to the retail trade generally. It is interesting to know that a movement in this direction is now taking form in the United States. In the weekly Bulletin of the National Association of Retail Grocers, Secretary John A. Green, says:

There is at the present time a growing tendency toward a federation of the retail interests of the United States.

An invitation from Virginia asks that the grocers' association take part in a conference in regard to railroads and raidroad rates, saying that invitations had been sent to, and naming representatives of almost every body of retail merchants in the country.

A letter received within the last day or two from the National Arbitration and Peace Conference asks that representatives of our organization attend a meeting in New York April 14.

Many of the trade papers are taking up and advocating this proposition, and it may be but a short time before such a thing as a national meeting can be arranged or a conference of representatives from the retailers' associations all over the country.

This does not mean the wiping out of the individual retail associations by any means, but it does mean a concentration of strength, a union or unity of purpose, seeking to utilize our own resources for the advantage and benefit of all concerned.

The interest aroused by the National Hardware Dealers' Association, the National Jewelers' Association, our own association, as well as several others, in regard to opposition to the parcels post bill is but an instance which goes to prove that our interests in that matter are one.

The abuse of the garnishment law interests all members of these different associations alike.

The effect of the work and energies put forth from an individual standpoint is apparent, but did we work with a perfect understanding through a federation, our position would be impregnable.

Hence, it would be to the advantage of all, if before another congress was elected that a combination or federation of these interests could be brought about. It would be one of the greatest achievements of modern times in association work.

A WARNING.

There are several men who appear to be systematically going about the country soliciting subscriptions for the MacLean Trade Newspapers and Magazines and are pocketing the proceeds where they are able to land a subscriber. Several people have been victimized in this way. Some of these men are not confining their efforts to the MacLean papers, but, from enquiries we have received from one or two of our contemporaries in the United States, are practising the same methods in regard to their publications.

Business men and others are cautioned to look out for these fraudulent canvassers, and we would take it as a great favor if they would notify us by wire, at our expense, should they meet any of these men, as it is our intention to prosecute them if we once get the hands of the law upon them.

No one is authorized to solicit subscriptions for us unless he has our regular subscription forms and a letter signed by us giving him the right to receive moneys on our behalf. Our friends, the travelers, frequently send us subscriptions, and, of course, where a merchant knows a traveler to be representative of a reputable house he may be sure that the subscription he may take will reach its proper destination.

We trust that our friends throughout the country will lend us their assistance in endeavoring to land these fraudulent solicitors. The names of the men and the localities in which they were last heard of are: C. H. Raymond, Berlin, Ont.; J. C. Murray, Farnham, Que.; McDonald, St. Hyacinthe, Que. There is another, operating in Galt, whose name we have not yet ascertained.

TOMATOES.

The tomato situation is not solved. Different opinions are held about it. Some say it is sick, others that it is strong, and still others, steady. Probably the most pertinent question is "Do high prices check consumption?" Some say that at two tins for a quarter consumption is greater than at 10c., because a can in the house is used more quickly than another would be bought. Others scout the idea as ridiculous. We would like to have some retailers answer this question.

The somewhat curious situation in Toronto, outlined in the Toronto correspondence, leads one to ask what portion of the trade elsewhere is stocked, or partly stocked, with tomatoes of '05 pack. They are as good or better than last year's pack.

One thing the high prices have done. There has not been any speculation by retailers in 1906 tomatoes. And if indications are to be relied upon prices will be higher this season. A firm of Maryland brokers, Strasbaugh, Silver & Co., in their latest weekly circular, say:

"Only a few packers have been able to contract for anything like a half proportion of their usual acreage, and growers evidently have concluded that it is better not to contract at $9 per ton when they remember the bid price during the last two packing seasons reached $15, $25, and even $30, per ton. Prior to the last two years in question, the price for raw stock ranged at $5 and $6, sometimes $7 and $8 per ton. These figures, however, were not in "Harriman" days, and the farmer is as usual alert and in line with the spirit of the present age. Cans then used to sell at $1.35 per hundred, now it is $19 per thousand. Gasoline (used for fire) then cost 8 cents per gallon; this year it will be 18 cents, or possibly more, and the Standard Oil Company will not make contracts or promises to any. Solder then cost 12 cents per pound, now 20, 22, and may be more.

Maple Syrup—New goods offering.

Montreal, April 4, 1907.

For the season of the year business being transacted must be considered very satisfactory. With the passing of Easter and the few holidays which went with it, there was noticeable a slight falling off in trade in some lines, but on the whole demand is very well maintained for all kinds of staple groceries. Payments recently have been satisfactory to nearly all parties.

Sugar continues stiff, but no advance in price has yet occurred. In canned goods fair trade is being done, but there is no special demand for a certain line. Corn syrups are still selling. Molasses is almost cleaned up locally. In the Islands there has been a decline in prices asked. Continued advances in all grades of teas make this market an interesting one. Stocks are slowly being cleaned up. Dried fruits are selling better than they usually do at this season, but the high prices prevailing are affecting the demand. Coffees and spices are moving out satisfactorily. Beans are unchanged, while there is nothing new to report in evaporated apples. Some new maple syrup is offered.

SUGAR.—Locally sugars are very firm, although up to the time of writing there has been no change in quotations. Business is reported as satisfactory.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.—Locally there is not much activity in molasses, stocks being practically nil. Reports from the Island state that there has been a drop in prices, the ruling figures now being 17c. and 17½c. Corn syrups are in demand, but orders are not so large as they were during Lent.

TEA.—With stocks dwindling, prices are climbing, and each week brings with it higher figures in one line or another. Ceylon greens are selling at advanced figures this week. There has been an advance also in all siftings and fannings. A good inquiry is reported for China Young Hysons, prices for which are up. Most all lines of tea are more or less in demand. Japans are pretty well cleaned up in first hands; as a matter of fact, this line is nearly sold out. Demand for Japans has been particularly strong lately. All stocks of tea are getting lower under the continued demand, and while quite a few houses have import orders on the way, spot stocks are by no means as large as they might be.

SPICES.—In peppers, spot demand is not so strong, but there is considerable trading in futures. White pepper is very firm. Cloves are in short supply and demand is very heavy. More business is being done in ginger this week. Mace is scarce, while nutmegs are reported steady.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.—Currants are strong abroad, the market in Greece being reported firm, with no sign of a decline. Stocks everywhere are light. Seeded raisins are unchanged but an advance is expected as there is very little to offer. The fact that there has not been an advance before this is mainly due to the fact that many cheap lines which ordinarily are received in November and early December, were this season not unloaded here until January and February. This stock is now holding the market down. Sultanas are firm, but the high prices asked are keeping sales from being large. A few lots of Valencias are offering at good prices. Figs are lower this week, prices now being on such a low level as has not been reached for a long time. To-day three-crown figs are obtainable in the neighborhood of 6c. to 6½c.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.—Rice mills have been somewhat short, but are now better supplied and various grades of rice are obtainable as usual, without difficulty, although in some instances slightly higher prices rule. Tapioca continues very firm. Prices for import are high and likely to remain so for some time to come, according to latest advices. Very little business is being done. CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—Canned goods are moving out fairly well. Demand on the part of retailers is of a consumptive nature. Salmon is still selling. Corn and peas are in demand in some quarters, while they are not asked for in other sections. Tomatoes are slow.

TORONTO—Canned goods business is fairly active. Opening prices continue to rule and these are those who describe the situation as easy; but several wholesalers have been making enquiry for tomatoes to buy and we are just entering the four months of heaviest consumption. So far only one Toronto jobber has been found with tomatoes to sell.

On account of the high opening prices there has been little buying of 1906 goods by retailers for anything *beyond immediate requirements. In the city, however, quite a number of the trade have on hand still considerable quantities of 1905 pack of tomatoes bought at 90c. These were bought in a speculative way, but instead of being disposed of at the present level of values, a great many dealers are keeping the price down to 10c. and 11c. The result is rather unsatisfactory. Those who are confined to 1906 goods find it hard to make a profit under these conditions. Some retailers seem to think the new pure food law may affect the situation, but that is not possible this year. There is some enquiry for tomatoes from the west.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Pointers—
Sugar continues firm.
Canned goods in demand.
Tallow dearer.
Lemons higher.

Toronto, April 4, 1907.

Trade continues to improve, but is not yet brisk. There has been a good movement of both sugars and canned goods. Collections are improving somewhat. Deliveries of sugar for March were not as heavy as a year ago though some of the refiners' representatives indicate they were heavier. The canned goods situation has not yet developed but some of the jobbers are quietly looking round for tomatoes while only one is known to hold more than his requirements. Dried fruits are not active but prices remain firm. Fancy pound packets of seeded raisins are selling at 11c. and 11½c. and they could not be laid down here for less than 13c. from the coast. Some Canadian wholesalers who read the market signs aright and backed their views have been selling carload lots in New York. New Brazil nuts are of fine quality and are going at 13½c. to 14c. They may be a little lower later.

TEA.—A mild reaction in prices of common grades in the Old Country is due to the season and the approach of a possible revision of the duty. The increase last year in the world's consumption of Indian and Ceylon tea was 44 million pounds. An estimate by J. R. Montgomery & Co., New York, of the importations of China and Japan teas into Canada and the United States shows a decline for three seasons, as follows: 1904-5, 92,427,300 lbs.; 1905-6, 78,177,100 lbs.; 1906-7, 70,450,000 lbs.

COFFEE.—The situation is little changed.

SUGAR.—The market here is regarded as steady, but there is a decidedly strong tone to it, and the advice is all against letting stocks get low.

At the close of last week the New York Journal of Commerce, commenting on the sugar situation, said:

"With the market for raws strengthening daily and due to continue in upward tendency and with the active consuming season for refined approaching, it is but natural that values should advance. Brokers, in anticipation of such a move, are counselling their customers to contract for full supplies.

"Regarding the market for raw sugars there appears to be no feature but increasing strength. Conditions in Cuba have up to now been generally favorable to the crop. Of late, however, there have been reports that the dry weather is affecting the old cane and has retarded the growth of the last spring planting so that only a comparatively small quantity of it will be fit to cut this season. At the same time these things were foreseen and there seems to be no reason to change the previous crop estimate of 1,250,000 tons, as against 1,178,748 tons last year. It cannot be long now before the production begins to show a decrease and by the middle of the month a material lessening in the number of centrals grinding may be expected. Consumption is increasing in the United States and the meltings by refiners since January 1 have amounted to 393,000 tons, as against 388,000 tons last year. At this rate there will not be sufficient raw sugar available in Cuba, Porto Rico, San Domingo and this country to supply the demand and therefore speculators are coming into the market freely, and they, as well as importers, are storing sugars against a practically assured advance. There are predictions that the market for raws will go to 4c. if not higher. The highest point reached last year was 4.13c. in September."

DRIED FRUITS.—The feature of the market here at present is the selling in car lots by jobbers of seeded California raisins to New York and Chicago houses. The retail price here remains at 11 to 11½c. for fancy pound packets and they could not be laid down from the coast for less than 13c. Currants are purchaseable at 7½c. Evaporated apples are selling for 9½c., but the wholesalers are trying to get more and the heavy demand is just approaching. Reports from California indicate that the crop has been badly damaged but the market for the present stocks is a little heavy.

BIG DEAL IN SUGAR.

The Ontario Sugar Refining Co. have within a few days disposed of the entire balance of this season's product, amounting to about five million pounds, to a single buyer. The amount involved is over $200,000. The purchaser has gone into the deal in the expectation that sugar will advance in price. He is not a grocer.

NOTES.

J. A. Ruddick, Dairy Commissioner of the Dominion, was in Montreal during the week.

The tea and coffee room of the E. D. Marceau Company, Montreal, is being enlarged to suit the growing requirements of the trade. With seven travelers covering the country the firm is kept busy. When the room is renovated there will be a portion devoted to teas and the remaining section will be given up to coffees.

Robert Watson, manufacturing confectioner, Toronto, is this week removing his factory and warerooms to his fine new factory in the northwest section of the city. Part of the warehouse at 73 and 75 Front St. east has been leased to Lipton, Limited, and the rest to Medland Bros., grocers, King St., who will take possession July 1. The Medlands may open out there in a wholesale way; their minds are not yet made up. They have built up a very large trade at their King St. store and need much larger storage room anyway.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, April 4, 1907.)

Business is very active, wholesale houses reporting a much larger business this spring than in any previous year. The only difficulty is to get the goods to supply the demand and to distribute them among the western trade. The railways are working hard, but seem to be unable to give the satisfactory service which the trade demand. Values are steady.

FROM GROCER CORRESPONDENTS.

is the whole wheat with the bran all left in. It is thoroughly cooked and is said to be very appetizing.

The new cereal is prepared by a special patented process owned and controlled by the Quaker Oats Co., and as yet has not been put on any market in the world.

The plant here, which has been manufactured especially for Quaker Wheat Berries, is nearing completion, and it is expected that the new cereal will be on the market by the 15th of April. It will be put up in the usual sized packages. The Peterborough mills will produce the goods not only for the Canadian trade, but for export to Great Britain, Europe, Japan, and in fact the company anticipates a demand for it from every wheat-eating country in the world.

CHATHAM.

Trustee John McCorvie is in Toronto this week, attending the Ontario Educational Association. At a special meeting of the civic Board of Education on March 28, Mr. McCorvie was delegated to represent that body at the O. E. A. Mr. McCorvie is also secretary-treasurer of the fund being raised to establish a memorial to the late James Brackin, for many years principal of McKeough School.

At the annual meeting on March 26, Hugh Malcolmson was re-elected chairman of the Public Hospital Board for 1907. Mr. Malcolmson has been a faithful worker for this institution since its establishment, and a great measure of its success is due to him. J. W. Dyer, the St. Clair Street grocer, is also a member of the Hospital Board.

The Wallaceburg sugar factory has resumed operations.

C. E. Lister, of the Maple City Creamery, was in Detroit last week, looking into the matter of sanitary, up-to-date appliances for the handling and bottling of milk.

TORONTO.

A fact that cannot fail to have struck anyone who pretends to keep in touch with "the passing show" is the extraordinary amount of emigration that is constantly going on from the central to the outlying parts of the city. New factories and new railways are crowding out the residents, and the grocers have no choice but to follow them if they wish to retain their trade. Scores of new stores have sprung up in the west end within the last few months, and most of them seem already to be doing a thriving trade. Houses vacated by the old residents in the centre of the city are being largely bought up by the Jews, but the English-speaking retailer does not consider their trade valuable enough to recompense him for the loss sustained by the departure of his old customers.

If the bill now before Parliament with regard to the dating and stamping of canned goods goes through before the present session is over, it will leave the grocer who has a heavy stock of these lines on hand in a somewhat ticklish position! One retailer, speaking to The Grocer, on the subject, took this view of the situation:

"I bought largely of canned tomatoes last season," said he, "at 90c. a dozen. Now, if this bill goes through, I shall have difficulty in convincing my customers that last year's stock is as good as this, though, from the standpoint of accuracy, the probabilities are that it is, if anything, better. I could, of course, sell back to the wholesalers at the present price of $1.17½, but I have not been in business in this part of the city long enough to disregard the exceptional opportunity which is offered to me for making new customers by running a special sale of these goods at once, at last year's prices, thus giving my patrons the benefit of a 30c. reduction on the best price they could obtain elsewhere. This is the line I intend to take, so that the passage of the bill will not affect me particularly one way or the other."

Everyone reports a first-class Easter trade, but Easter brings disadvantages along with the compensations. Collections are always a little slow for a few weeks afterwards. People seem to take things easy for a little while, and money disappears.

A. Snyder has bought out H. W. Eaton, 262 Dundas street, and will move in next week. Mr. Snyder has been located on the corner of Maitland and Church for four years, and feels that he needs a change.

Mrs. MacMillan, who has been in the employ of F. G. Martin, King street, for several months, has left that position, and associated herself with the staff of F. Simpson & Sons, Yonge street, where she will assist Miss Gilkes in the office work. As her name indicates, Mrs. MacMillan hails frae bonnie Scotland, and losh! mon! but yon's a braw country! Where ilka laddie has his lassie, and the moonlicht nichts are bricht! Eh, well, and it's sair homesick a puir body may be for sic a land!

R. Higgins had a runaway the other day. The horse took fright and dashed down Crescent road and along Bloor, fortunately avoiding the cars. It finally made a bolt for the stable, where the delivery cart was found to be damaged and the harness wrecked.

In a certain district of the city an enterprising grocer, who had newly opened a store in competition with another member of the trade, whom he evidently expected to squelch right away, wrote on his window with chalk the following couplet:

"We lead,
Others follow."

A practical joker in the neighborhood, who sympathized with the other man, rubbed out the word "others" and substituted "asses," the couplet reading:

"We lead,
Asses follow."

Needless to say the chalk literature was speedily erased.

STRATFORD.

The grocers of the Classic City experienced a big demand for green fruits during the Easter season, in fact the demand has not decreased to any great extent. Bananas and oranges have been selling very well and in many cases the demand has exceeded the supply.

In the vegetable line the demand has been equally as great, and this year's produce, although high in price, has been retailed in large quantities by the grocers.

Lent is over, but the demand for fresh fish is still great. During Lent the various dealers in fish report an excellent demand. They were able to keep in large orders and had little trouble in disposing of their supply.

Many of the farmers in the surrounding country have already commenced to gather in the maple syrup, and the flow was reported to be good, but the cold snap of this week has somewhat checked the operations along this line.

Stratford is blessed with having a live retail merchants' association, which has done much to improve matters among the various merchants in the city. At present they have under consideration the advisability of establishing a delivery system, by which goods would be delivered to the residents four or five times a day with one extra trip on Saturday evenings. This will mean much less expense to the merchants, who would thus do away with their delivery rigs. It is purposed having special auto cars built for delivering the goods. The association is also discussing the enforcement of the early-closing by-law and will bring the matter before the city council at a future meeting. They strongly condemn the action of one or two merchants keeping their places of business open after certain hours, while the others are closed for the day.

Stratford's market is on Saturday, and every Saturday, rain or shine, finds farmers by the hundreds gathered on the market square ready for business. The market is a large one and one of the best in Western Ontario or even in Ontario. During the past two weeks eggs have greatly decreased in price. Two weeks ago they sold at 30c per dozen, now they are selling at 18c and 20c per dozen. Other prices are reasonable. Butter is very scarce and consequently the price remains about the same. For weeks past the fowl market has been limited, and although the demand is good, there is a great scarcity in all lines of fowl.

There is some talk of the price of meat advancing and housekeepers are somewhat anxious. It is reported that owing to the advanced prices quoted in a recently issued circular letter that the Toronto wholesalers have advanced the price of meat in almost all lines. One butcher remarked to your correspondent that the advance in the Toronto markets would certainly mean an advance in the local markets, owing to the fact that the farmers in the surrounding country would demand a higher price for their cattle.

Mr. Thos. Ballantyne, jr., left last week on a trip to the Old Country in the interests of the firm's cheese business He will be absent about five weeks.

GUELPH.

The butchers in Guelph are greatly worked up about a proposal to take the building now used for their shops in the market and remodel it as a large office building. They claim if this is done that it will ruin the market, as they are the mainstay of it. Naturally, as the market is essential to a grocer's business, the grocers are watching the outcome with interest.

At Tuesday night's council meeting it was decided that the butchers would have to vacate the premises and in future this building will be used for offices. The grocers are wondering if the butchers' prophecy will prove to be right.

There is a lot of store remodelling going on in Guelph just now. The Kandy Kitchen confectionery and ice cream parlor are moving from their old premises across the road to a large, new, up-to-date building. When completed they will have one of the finest places in Ontario.

There was a good Easter and Saturday market, chickens selling from $1 to $1.50 per pair, butter from 22 cents to 23 cents, and eggs 17 cents to 18 cents. Shoppers of Guelph are finding out that they can buy their produce from the grocers just as cheaply as on the market, as the grocer usually buys for trade and, therefore, can sell at the same price as paid.

NOT ON A POLAR EXPEDITION—JUST TRAVELERS

This photograph was taken at Sudbury on March 1, and shows three travelers of renown in the north country as they arrived after circumnavigating the grocery trade of Manitoulin Island.

On the left is Lou Chapman, of Davidson & Hay, Toronto, who has been more than holding his own on the road for 25 years; on the right is Thos. Scott, of Comfort Soap, and between them, but quite above them, as you will notice, is C. W. Soper, of the Ogilvie Milling Co. They drove across the ice from Massie and hit the Island at Little Current. They went around the Island to Gore Bay and escaped via Spanish River.

Those nice looking beaver coats invited weather, and they got it—stormy and 28 to 30 degrees below zero. Evidently the mercury heard them coming and ducked for the cyclone cellar.

But they did business as usual, found it good and warmed up to the oil excitement at Manitowaning, where machinery, brought in over the ice, is being installed for development work. Boring is now going on at Gore Bay and other places.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' PRESIDENT AGAIN DISCUSSES ORGANIZATION.

To the Editor of The Canadian Grocer:

With your permission I desire to reply to "Believer in Organization" and your Peterboro correspondent re their remarks in connection with the proposed grocers' organization. Both articles show an interest in association work, but lack in knowledge as to the great drawbacks in connection with such work. There is no doubt that the grocers should be a stronger section of the Retail Merchants' Association than what they are, but because they are part and parcel of that body is not the reason that they are not stronger. To my mind because the grocers themselves take very little active interest in the efforts made by our officers when matters concerning them are being dealt with, is one reason of complaint. I say active, because we always found they were in sympathy with the work and never objected paying their fees, but as long as someone else did the work they were satisfied to have our head office plan and work without their section taking upon themselves the initiation or responsibility of anything. However, this should not continue, and thanks to The Grocer's agitation, I believe we may yet get this particular line of trade awakened up to the great benefits of meeting together and discussing the many problems relative to their own line of business. In our association we have the grocers' section, which is composed of grocers' sections in the different cities and towns of the province. They are governed by a Provincial Board of Grocers, at whose call they meet in convention once a year. All matters concerning grocers alone are discussed at this convention and are referred, as the case may be, to the Dominion Board of the R.M.A., if a Dominion matter, that requires the assistance of all branches of trade; to the Provincial Board of the R.M.A. if a provincial matter that requires the assistance of all branches of the trade, or to its own Provincial Board, if purely a foodstuff question, which only requires the backing of themselves.

Now, it's all right to stand outside and say: "As grocers we have so many things affecting ourselves that we should be alone and must be alone," but the fact of the matter is, if you give the question any thought, there are very few things but affect all classes of retailers alike. Take for instance, the premium evil, transient traders and peddlers, insurance, freight rates at both ends, legislation regarding co-operative stores, criminal code, unfair means of advertising, corporations who are not amenable to the law the same as individuals, etc. All these things affect the grocers, and they also affect the dry goods, the hardware, the druggist, and all the others; why, Mr. Editor, this proposed single trade organization would be asking the assistance of the Retail Merchants in almost every question it would bring up. It would have very little weight with such large questions as I have mentioned above if they were only presented by one line of trade. But, on the other hand, I do admit, when a purely foodstuff question comes up, it is useless expecting a drygoodsman to deal with it; hence the provision made in our constitution allowing each section the privilege of dealing with their own matters.

I now come to the weak point mentioned by "Believer in Organization." In some instances, it is true, our sections depend on the main body, in fact, I have stated above this is a fault, but this does not prove that a section of a purely grocers' body would not do the same —it is because of an indifference to their own interest that they are inactive. They want stirring up. The Peterboro correspondent has the same complaint regarding their section, but in general, he seems to be quite in favor of a plan similar to that already adopted by our association, that is, with the "Greater Britain idea," which is just exactly what we have been working on since our beginning as an association.

Now, Mr. Editor, I have taken up considerable space, but as I invited a certain part of this in my last week's letter, I felt called upon to reply as fully as possible.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Better conditions prevail in cheese this week. Factories have opened up in nearly all districts and are beginning their annual make. It is not so difficult to obtain milk as it has been for some little time past—since the first factories opened for the season. However, it is no easy matter to secure all the milk required from the farmers, who are attracted to butter making owing to the high prices which have been maintained for that article.

Up to the present time there has not been received locally very much in the line of new cheese. The factories take a couple of weeks to get into real running order, and their output during that period is necessarily limited. A few lots of fodders are being received by different concerns, but these are easily disposed of for fairly good prices. Fodders do not cut much of a figure in the cheese market, and are to be regarded more as preliminary to the make of export cheese which comes each year after the fodders are a thing of the past.

Talk around the trade is to the effect that there will be a high opening in cheese. The Grocer understands that one party this week contracted for April at 12c., which is certainly a very satisfactory figure for a beginning.

Locally there is a very nice trade being done in cheese at prices which are on about the same level as those of last week. The close of the Easter season has not brought with it any perceptible falling off in the demand for cheese.

Some nice lots of new butter have been offered and taken on the market during the week. The newly arrived stock was of very good quality, and what reached the local market was quickly taken up by purchasers.

Quite a number of creameries are open and more are about to begin operations. Once the season is well under way it is not thought that there will be any scarcity of good butter. The high ruling prices have been the means of diverting the milk supply of many farmers to butter instead of cheese. For the first couple of weeks of the season Montreal will not receive very large lots, as local demand will take care of any surplus stock turned out by creameries or made by farmers. There is not much dairy butter on the market, what there is being held principally in the country, where there is greater call for it than in the cities.

Of old butter, including returned creamery, the market is pretty well bare, although some stocks are held. What there is in store is just sufficient to hold the market steady, making it impossible for prices on new make to assume sky rocket tendencies.

On the whole, since new butter has begun to arrive in fairly large quantities, the market has eased off, and prices asked this week are a fraction lower than those which ruled at the time of last writing.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

Last week the packers got bidding against each other again for hogs and instead of the recession expected early prices advanced to $6.75 or $6.80 f.o.b. country points. This week the reaction follows and there is a return to $6.65, the price that has ruled for a number of weeks. Even $6.60 is quoted. It is the same old see-saw, up-and-down, we described some weeks ago. The advance in prices paid for live hogs has been in the face of poor conditions in the Old Country, and when it is remembered that Canadian packers export about 75 per cent. of their product in the aggregate, their hardihood in keeping the live hog market 4s. to 6s. above the parity for products in Great Britain is somewhat perplexing

The Old Country market is unchanged to lower and quiet. Danish killings continue at the high level of 75,000. Ontario killings last week were somewhat higher, 22,000 to 25,000.

Beginning in the eastern end of the province, the Ontario Government is this week entering upon an undertaking which must undoubtedly tend to strengthen the pork packing industry. Thirty farmers' meetings will be held this month in the interest of production of the bacon hog as an adjunct to dairying. Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes Geo A. Putnam, says :

"It is believed that the farmers in many sections of eastern Ontario could produce a larger number of hogs, with much profit to themselves. This is an industry which should go hand in hand with dairying, and we find that in many of the counties where dairy products are the leading output, the production of bacon has not yet reached the proportions which we would expect."

The pork packers are co-operating with the Government in the matter, and the representatives of the Department of Agriculture who will attend to instruct the farmers regarding desirable types of hogs, approved methods of feeding and care will have visited packing houses in Montreal and Toronto and secured from the packers all the information they desire to give.

Following the meetings, sales will be held of male and female bacon hogs, in which also the Government and the packers will co-operate.

This is the first direct Government undertaking of the kind in Ontario to increase the production of hogs of the right kind. It is to be hoped the effort will be extended to cover the province.

The Canadian Dairyman, in advertising hogs as a profitable sideline to dairying, says :—

"Our trade with Great Britain demands that we breed a type of hog suitable for the production of first-class bacon. Short-sided, heavy-shouldered, thick fat pigs are almost impossible of conversion into good bacon. Many farmers contend that the fat type of hog can be produced much more cheaply than the bacon type. Consequently they are satisfied to produce the fat type. These coming into competition with the bacon hog, are cut in prices, and the cry is raised that there is no money in hogs. The results of feeding experiments at Guelph and Ottawa, however, disprove the contention that fat hogs can be produced more cheaply than bacon hogs. They fail to demonstrate any fixed relation between the type of hog and the cost of producing one hundred pounds increase in weight. The experience of practical hog breeders verifies these results.

"Hogs are a class of animal that can be raised cheaply. They have great powers of assimilation. The feeding period is short, as they can be brought to a marketable condition in from six to eight months from birth. They can be housed cheaply and they are wonderfully prolific. These factors unite to make the hog industry a profitable one. Especially is this the case when hog raising is allied with the dairy industry. The by-products from the dairy form a cheap and effective food for the production of bacon, and convert what otherwise would be a loss into a marketable product. It has been pointed out many times that dairy farmers can profitably raise four hogs for each cow they keep. Considering the factors afore-mentioned, and the present demand and high prices ruling for bacon hogs, do not the facts warrant the assertion that hogs are a profitable side line to dairying ?"

Dairy by-products, with grains and meal, make the very best kind of food for hogs and the best kind of bacon.

The season has not yet advanced to the point where the hens work overtime and in the northern districts they have scarcely started to work. One jobber estimates that when production is at its height, receipts will be easily three times what they are now. Consumption was never so heavy in the city. Nevertheless some eggs are already going into storage. The pickling season has not yet arrived, however. Last Saturday eggs sold here, wholesale, at 17c. On the Saturday before Easter last year which fell a fortnight later they sold at 15½c. Then, however, storage stocks were a drug on the market; this year they were all cleaned up long ago.

low were Franco-American soups, small piles in orderly array. These soups are wrapped in plain paper. Each pile was topped by a can without the wrapper, showing the decorative label. There were perhaps 20 of these little pyramids of soups. In front was a one-line display of figs and maple syrup, a pile of maple sugar in blocks in the centre, glass jars of stuffed figs and dates to right and left, these on their sides, and at the ends an oblong basket of high-grade pulled figs.

This display would be allowed to remain in the window probably only a day or two. In building up the display at the back of the window it is a common practice of the Michie & Co. window-dresser to use original or bulk packages and top it off with some opened samples of the same goods.

AN "ENDLESS BELT" DISPLAY.

The Business Man's Magazine calls attention to a new idea in window display. The invention is to the credit of an ingenious and enterprising Cleveland merchant, and consisted of multiplying by four the window display space in his disposal. This is how he did it :

The window floor was arranged so that it revolved like an endless chain over two drums at either end; the window floor extending back into the store the depth of the window and being separated by a black velvet cloth.

The different aluminum articles—about 200 in number—were wired to the moving window floor, and thus produced such a unique and striking effect as to challenge the attention of large numbers of pedestrians.

Before this device was installed, only fifty pieces could be shown, and those in the old-time, stationary style; Merchants in many other lines of business may find it to their advantage to employ this novel method of attracting attention to their windows, for, in this case at least, the cost was only nominal, the device being home-made, simple in design, inexpensive and driven by a small electric motor concealed below the floor.

AN ENGLISH VIEW OF THE CHEESE TRADE

A Canadian View.

W. A. MacKinnon, Canadian Commercial Agent at Bristol, in a communication to the Department of Trade and Commerce on the last day of February, says of cheese :

"The present remarkable condition of the cheese market is of serious importance to the middle and working classes. Prices have been rising in the wholesale market for some months ; the open market is nearly bare of supplies ; the limited stocks that are warehoused belong to a few large speculators ; many retail shops cannot supply their requirements, and there are warnings that the retail price per pound may go up another penny during this month."

A fortnight ago there were only 108,000 boxes of cheese in London public warehouses, equal to about four weeks' supply. One of the largest wholesale firms expressed an opinion that before March the first, quotations would reach 70s. per cwt. That this estimate was not very far wrong is shown by to-day's market report in the Times, which states that "the quotation for Canadian generally ranges from 67s. to 68s., and a possibility of a further advance is being discussed owing to the comparatively reduced stocks to cope with consumption the next two months."

On February 1,1905, there were 316,000 boxes of Canadian cheese in stock in London, Liverpool and Bristol ; the current market price was then 53s. per cwt. On February 1, this year, the corresponding stock was 313,000 boxes, and the current market price was 6s. 5d. The rise was equal to £12 per ton, making a difference to the public in retail shops of 1½d. per pound.

A London journal suggests the four following causes as having operated to bring about the present short supply :

1. The exceptionally fine summer, which produced greatly increased consumption.

2. The tinned meat scare, which drove thousands of households to substitute cheese.

3. The year's improved trade, which enlarged the buying powers of the workers.

4. The operations of a couple of very large firms which have practically "cornered" the present warehoused supplies.

Mr. McKinnon's report was shown to President Henry Wright, of the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., and he paid Mr. MacKinnon the compliment of saying that whatever he wrote was sure to be all right. Mr. Wright stated he would be surprised if cheese did not go to 70s. yet.

"For the past few years," said Mr. Wright, "three of the largest houses in England have been trying to control the Canadian market. What was the result ? They didn't corner the market but they secured a very large percentage of the cheese in Canada, and their competition raised prices. In the meantime the canned goods scare comes along and the people rush to eat cheese and the actual condition to-day is a question of supply and demand. The cheese has been consumed. Canadian cheese has been of such a very high quality that it has come very close to the English and Scotch makes. In former years the English and Scotch makes would bring from 5s. to 10s. more than Canadian. Now Canadian cheese is holding its own pretty well."

A Canadian shipper, one of the largest Toronto buyers, has sold cheese lately as high as 13½c. f.o.b. Present prices for new fodder cheese are regarded as ridiculous. Two years ago April cheese was obtainable at 8½c. to 9c. Last year it was 11c. This year 12½c. is being paid.

This year for the first time, Australian cheese will compete with Canadian on the English market. It is bringing 52s.

HERE AND THERE WITH THE TRADE.

W. A. Warren, of Warren Bros. & Co., Toronto, is confined to his home by a cold.

Miss E. J. Sanderson, Millbrook Station, has sold out and will move to Peterboro to start a restaurant.

H. M. Cowan, of the John Sloan & Co. sample room staff, has accepted a position with A. Powis, broker, Hamilton. Before leaving Sloan & Co. he was presented with an umbrella.

A. Smith, Garden Hill Station, has got the western fever and wants to sell out. His business has proved a very profitable one but he has been investing some in western land and likes it.

Geo. H. Barr, of London, has given up his position as instructor in dairy work in Western Ontario, and will enter the Agricultural Department at Ottawa. He will be succeeded by J. Herns.

W. A. Armstrong, for some years in the sample room of John Sloan & Co., Toronto, and latterly traveler in the city, has left to accept a position with Telfer Bros., Collingwood. Before leaving he was presented by the staff of John Sloan & Co. with a very handsome locket. J. W. Stockes, traveler for the J. G. Harvey Chemical Co., has been engaged to fill the place of traveler vacated by Mr. Armstrong.

COULDN'T DO WITHOUT US.

Mr. McCorvie, grocer, Chatham, Ont., was a caller at The Grocer office this week. Mr. McCorvie was representing the Chatham Board of Education at the meeting of the Ontario Educational Association, being held this week. He has been a subscriber to The Grocer for about fifteen years and says he could not get along without it.

EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

HOW TO PRODUCE IT

Brief Talks Given Occasionally
By T. Johnson Stewart

Because it is a little more difficult to advertise the retail grocery store than most retail businesses is one of the reasons advanced by grocers, who do not care to advertise, for not doing so. This reason is no better and no worse than the old chestnut, viz., that the grocer does not need to advertise because the people must eat. Neither are reasons for or against advertising. They are merely excuses advanced by men who wish to evade the issue. The question is: "Does it pay a grocer to advertise?" If it does—and hundreds of grocers have demonstrated that fact again and again—then the grocer who does not advertise must live at least fifty miles over the rim of civilization, or he must be conducting his business as the fathers used to do about the middle of the last century. There is no other way of explaining the existence of such a phenomenon. Because advertising is just as necessary to the commercial world as the light of the sun is to the natural world. A few bright, sunny days in early spring revivify all things, and a few judicious ads. appearing in your local papers will surprise even the most skeptical man in the business. The young grocer who does not advertise should be advised to pick out his father-in-law very carefully, because he'll need the old man's good offices and good will pretty regularly. And it's just as well to remember that most fathers-in-law are not so generous after all. John, you'd better do a little advertising and get on friendly terms with the bankers of your town. You'll pull better with Mary Jane's father if you do.

Because we buy no bankrupt stock
Therefore we have no old goods to advertise
Because our customers won't buy old goods
Therefore our stock is fresh and up-to-date
Because we don't give you a snap on one article and soak you on another
Therefore we deal honestly with all, man, woman and child
Because we buy and sell for cash
Therefore we are never short of cash with a lot of old goods on our shelves
Because our goods are all clean and handled properly
Therefore we excel

McCammon
THE STORE OF QUALITY

We reproduce Mr. McCammon's ad. for more than one reason, but chiefly because we were asked to give our opinion of this brand of advertising. As it appeared it was 6½ x 10½ inches. One would imagine, after reading the headline of this ad., that we were to be treated to a flood of reason-why copy; and it is impossible to say just how it will strike different individuals. It is only fair to state at the outset that Mr. McCammon's ad. will bear closer examination than one would be inclined to think at the first glance. My first impression was that our friend had wasted a good deal of valuable space, but after a closer analysis the reasons he gives for the excellence of his goods stand out strongly enough to create a certain amount of faith in his assertions.

However, I do not hesitate to say that Mr. McCammon could have told his story in half the space just as effectively, perhaps more so. It is nearly always a mistake to refer to a competitor's business methods in an ad., and if our friend has not done so then he has come mighty near it. Some grocers can quite legitimately feature an article, even a certain line of goods, without soaking their customers on any other article or line of goods. The strongest feature of this ad. is the phrases, or sentences, which go to back up the head-line. "In Quality We Excel." People will buy second-rate clothing and shoes but most housewives will only patronize the grocer who stocks first-class goods. And just inasmuch as this ad. emphasizes this fact is it strong. The remainder of it would have been better left unsaid.

I would not care to take the responsibility of endorsing this style of advertising. In my opinion it would have paid our friend better to have occupied about half the space. Mr. McCammon will be the first to admit that the ad. might have been boiled down very profitably. Besides, it is just worth remembering that Quality Goods are often easy priced, and the one reason which appeals strongly to all economic housewives is—the price of various articles stated just as plainly as printer's ink can state.

Just one more point to be remembered in fairness to Mr. McCammon. This ad., viewed in the light of local conditions, might come near being first-class advertising. I can imagine conditions which would almost force a grocery Job to sling some ink in the direction of competition; but, nevertheless, it's always unwise to do so. However, the man who wrote that ad. can write effective advertising copy—just the kind of copy which will fill his store with eager buyers pretty regularly. Keep up the good work, friend McCammon, and you'll get there.

Some time ago we told grocers to always emphasize the purity, freshness and wholesomeness of their goods when writing their ads., and to-day we wish to hint at a phase of ad.-writing which most amateurs are apt to overlook. Remember the economic housewife, Mr. Grocer, when you are writing your ads. Just figure out what takes her to your store, or any store. The purity and freshness of your goods counts some. The appearance of your store and clerks counts a whole lot more. And you may be practically certain that judicious advertising counts most of all. You must handle Quality Goods—"Excel in Quality." It does not hurt to give your customers a snap on some small articles occasionally, and most shrewd grocers do so. Yes, shrewd merchants in every line make use of the snap as an advertising leader, and most can easily afford to give a snap every now and then. I would advise most grocers to push honest quality goods, advertise special values occasionally, and to always refrain from even hinting at the methods adopted by competitors. Let your rival work out his commercial salvation or destruction in his own way. Use common sense, good selling sense, and do not say anything in an ad. you would not say to a group of customers over your counter. All advertising is good, more or less. And although we have not endorsed Mr. McCammon's brand of advertising we are far from imagining that that particular ad. did not pay. We believe it did, and believe just as firmly that it would have paid better if Mr. McCammon had spent another ten minutes over it.

Send along your ads. for criticism. They'll be gratefully received and acknowledged.

The Standard Brokerage Co., of Vancouver, have moved to new offices and warehouse and are now in a much better position to cope with business which they report is coming in in great shape. Their building is new and up to date in every particular and affords excellent storage facilities.

BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

No. 17

WILLIAM ANDERSON.

One finds it hard to believe that William Anderson, the present chairman of the Chatham Public Library Board, is all of forty years of age. It is easier to imagine him 28 or 30, and to wonder how so young—and young-looking—a man has found time to accomplish so much.

Mr. Anderson is a Scotsman. Born in in the land of the heather forty years ago, he received a good public school education, taking up an advanced course in addition to his regular studies. In his native country Mr. Anderson had considerable experience in the grocery business, particularly in Lanarkshire; but in 1888 the New World cast its spell over him, and, at the age of 21, he emigrated to Canada. He located at once in Chatham, where for ten years he was a capable and trusted member of the grocery staff of H. Malcolmson. He also had several years' experience as treaveler for McLaren's, Limited, Hamilton, in which post he made a splendid record.

William Anderson

In 1901 Mr. Anderson set up in business for himself in Chatham, acquiring the grocery formerly conducted by J. E. Johnston. This he has carried on successfully since, and a steadily increasing trade bears witness to his personal popularity and his business ability.

Not only has Mr. Anderson been a successful business man, but he has always evinced a warm interest in all movements tending to the betterment of the grocery trade as a whole. At the present time he is vice-president of the Chatham branch of the Retail Merchants' Association. His participation in this work is of the active variety and any movement tending toward the good of the trade is certain of Mr. Anderson's whole-souled support.

Mr. Anderson's first essay at municipal politics was in 1902, when he was a candidate for the public school board for Ward No. 1. This is the King Street ward, the ward of the business men. Mr. Anderson had been in business himself only a few months, and was opposed by a candidate who had behind him the prestige of several years' service on the board, and a long and successful business experience. Nevertheless, Mr. Anderson, though unsuccessful, polled a large vote, which, under the disadvantageous circumstances, was a signal tribute to the esteem in which his fellow citizens already held him.

Mr. Anderson did not again seek the suffrages of his fellow citizens, although this was not from any lack of urging on their part. In 1905, however, the city council appointed him as one of its representatives on the Public Library Board, an appointment which met with universal approval. The board has charge of the new Carnegie Library, built in 1902 at a cost of $18,000, and one of the finest buildings of its kind in Ontario. The Chatham Public Library was first instituted in 1878 in connection with the then Mechanics' Institute; but it is in recent years that its growth in extent and usefulness has been most marked, and in this growth Mr. Anderson, during the years in which he has held office, has taken a prominent part. The library now contains upwards of 7,000 volumes. Mr. Anderson's assiduous attention to his duties as a member of the board earned him alike the popular approval and the esteem of his colleagues; with the result that the latter in January of this year elected him to the post of chairman of the board.

Fraternally, Mr. Anderson is a member of the Sons of Scotland, in which organization he is a past chief.

NON-ALCOHOLIC BEER.

The introduction to the Canadian public of a non-alcoholic beverage is one that meets with the approval of true temperance people. Kyle & Hooper, 27 Front St. E., Toronto, have secured the Ontario agency for Kops' Breweries London, S.W., non-alcoholic ales, stout, and other high-class aerated mineral waters, non-alcoholic wines, cordials, etc. These beverages stand high in the estimation of the English public and are certified to by the highest medical authorities of the world, the London Lancet, the Family Doctor, etc., as possessing distinct tonic and invigorating properties. Kyle & Hooper feel that Canadians are especially a people that can appreciate these excellent beverages and expect to have a satisfactory season. The attention of the grocery trade is particularly directed to these lines as the grocery is the proper medium for getting the various lines into the household. Circulars and price lists will be supplied by Kyle & Hooper on application.

NEW BRUNSWICK GROCERY NEWS

St. John, N.B., April 1, 1907.

The past week has been uneventful in so far as prices are concerned. There has been practically no change in staples.

Barbadoes molasses has advanced 1½ to 2 cents a gallon on the island, but the wholesalers here have made no change in prices as yet.

In the produce line eggs are a little easier, being quoted at 24 to 27 cents, wholesale. The price of butter remains unchanged.

Although Easter came earlier than usual this year, there was a good display of early vegetables, fruits and meats, and the general report was that trade was fully up to other years.

Because of the large increase in business, with limited facilities, causing delay in landing freight by the I.C.R. here, a meeting of St. John merchants was held in the Board of Trade rooms last Thursday afternoon to discuss with Supt. G. M. Jarvis and V. R. Ross, terminal agent of the I.C.R., the condition of affairs and to hear their views as to whether some increased facilities in the way of yard room could not be provided. It was shown that because of the great growth of business, more men, more shunting engines and much more yard room are required here.

Walter E. Foster, vice-president of the Board of Trade, occupied the chair during the first part of the meeting, and was succeeded by George E. Barbour. There were about thirty or forty merchants present. It was clearly shown that the great growth in business had not been met by a corresponding increase in the railway facilities. Both Mr. Jarvis and Mr. Ross admitted the need of improvement, and Mr. Ross said he had repeatedly made attempts to have the conditions bettered, and while some small improvements have been made, a great deal more was needed. After some general discussion it was decided that the matter should be taken up by the council of the Board of Trade at the first meeting, with a view of calling the attention of the Government to the unsatisfactory conditions.

H. B. Schofield, of St. John; J. D. Allan, of Toronto, and A. E. Jones, of Halifax, arrived here Wednesday on the steamer Olenda, from the West Indies. As announced some time ago, these gentlemen formed a delegation to the islands for the purpose of inquiring into their commercial relations with this country and to ascertain the best means of increasing trade. They were there six weeks.

Mr. Schofield, talking of their mission, said that the delegation were everywhere most enthusiastically received. Meetings were held in Bermuda, St. Kitts, Antigua, Dominica, Barbadoes, Trinadad and Demerara. At each of these places they were met by representatives of the chambers of commerce, as well as by members of the various agricultural societies, who are all capitalists.

The delegation urged at all these meetings that a preference be granted to Canadian goods. They were told, in reply, that they were quite willing to grant the request, but two considerations stood in the way. The first of these was that the merchants of the West Indies could buy goods on easier terms, though not necessarily cheaper, in New York than in Canada. The second was that, although New York has no better steamship connection with the islands than Canada, the delivery of goods is much more expeditious through the United States port.

Mr. Schofield, however, expressed the opinion that it is only a matter of time when Canada's trade with the West Indies will be largely increased. As an evidence of the real desire of the islanders for closer commercial relations he mentioned that the Government of the Leeward Islands has passed a resolution granting a preference to Canadian goods. He is convinced that if only Canadians display a sufficient amount of energy and foresight in bettering means of communication, an immense and lucrative trade can speedily be assured.

Mr. Schofield expects to have a complete report of his trip ready for the meeting of the local Board of Trade on Tuesday.

Arthur F. De Forest, representative for Geo. S. De Forest & Sons, has been ill with an attack of appendicitis, but has recovered and is again on the road.

The Eveleigh Dairy Company, in Kings county, will do a larger business than ever this year if present plans carry. N. W. Eveleigh, the manager of the company, recently closed a deal by which he secures control of the Rockville and Mount Middleton factories. The Jeffries Corner factory will be run as usual and the outlook from the company's standpoint is very bright.

A petition has been presented to Andrew Megarity, of Megarity & Kelly, retail grocers, City Road, asking him to become a candidate for aldermanic honors in Victoria ward at the coming elections. Mr. Megarity has the matter under consideration.

W. A. Craven, representing Chase & Sanborn, of Montreal, is calling on the trade here.

J. E. Angevine, representing the Pure Gold Manufacturing Company, left on a business trip to Sydney, C.B., last week.

It is reported that the Bank of Nova Scotia is negotiating for a lease of the property at Breeze's corner, King Square, now occupied by James Ryan, retail grocer and liquor dealer. The report is to the effect that an up-town branch will be established. Manager Easson refuses to discuss the matter.

A very interesting letter has been received here from T. S. Simms, head of the T. S. Simms Co. It describes his visit to Jerusalem, Bethlehem, and various points of interest in Palestine. Mr. Simms is now in India.

PERSONAL.

George Goldie, Goldie Milling Co., Ayr and Galt, was in Montreal this week.

Mr. Taillefero, representing the United States Peanut Co., was in Montreal recently.

W. W. Hutchison, of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, Montreal, has gone west for a few holidays.

L. C. Sharman, who has for some time past been connected with the Canadian office of Hunt & Co., Japan, the tea men, has left that concern and has said good-bye to Montreal. Mr. Sharman left this week for Yokohama, where he will join the staff of the old firm of Barnard & Co. Mr. Sharman is a young man in the tea business and his many friends wish him abundant success in his new position.

VALUE OF BETTER WINDOW DRESSING.

To the Editor of The Canadian Grocer:—After reading the article "They Wanted to Know" in your issue of Feb. 15, I feel it my duty to add my tribute to the value of your work along the line of window dressing and its advantages to the grocers in general.

The present management of The Canadian Grocer certainly deserves great praise and the thanks of every grocer in the Dominion and elsewhere for the interest they have taken in the grocery salesmen, trying to inspire them with a desire to cultivate the beautiful in themselves and their surroundings and in this way add to their own value and to the bank account of their employer. When you show a thing is worth caring for it adds a value.

For some time grocery window dressing in the city seemed to have become almost a lost art, but to-day, through the work of The Canadian Grocer, I could point to dozens of salesmen who express a desire to become expert window-dressers. To have been able to inspire this must mean something to their employers, more, probably, than most can see at the moment, but let the employer encourage all such desires and it will not be long before he will be surprised at what his encouragement has produced, not only in his clerk, but in himself and his business.

Although we are often informed to the contrary, I know that there is plenty of good material, if we would try to make the best that can be made of the grocery salesmen of this city. The great trouble is that the employer and employe do not get close enough together for the employe to feel the potter's touch, because the employe can only become the employer's just in so far as he has fashioned himself after his own ideal.

The salesman who is pleased with keeping a tasty window will desire a tastily dressed store. This means that old corners will be swept out and old stock will become a thing of the past.

That there is a magnetism in a tastily dressed window we must admit. That in cleanness and brightness there is an atmosphere which not only draws custom but brings out the very best that is in us, we must admit. In other words there is a brightness, as it were, an attraction in a tastily dressed window and well kept store that is catching. I am sure if the management of The Canadian Grocer could see the efforts the grocery clerks put forth in order to attain the distinguished position of having won a prize, it would amply repay them for their efforts and expense.

Every article tastily displayed is given its proper chance to sell itself. All goods have a silent language of their own that appeals or repels. It is by being tastily displayed that they meet their affinity of taste.

Yours very truly,

AN OLD TIMER.

GROCERY TRADE NEWS FROM THE ATLANTIC PROVINCE

(By The Canadian Grocer's Special Correspondent.)

Halifax, N.S., April 2.

The Easter trade in the city was good, the markets being well supplied with all seasonable stock. Eggs were much higher than is usual at Easter, being quoted at 23 to 24 cents. There was no scarcity at these prices. The quality of the beef was very fine, the veal exceptionally good, and some splendid spring lambs, weighing 26 pounds each, were marketed. There was a scarcity of all kinds of poultry.

Sugar.—The market is steady, and no change is looked for in the immediate future. The prices quoted are:

Standard granulated, $4.40; Austrian granulated, $4.30; bright yellow, $4.20; No. 1 yellow, $3.90.

Beef and pork.—From now on there will be a good demand for both, as the fishing vessels fitting out for the banks take good supplies. Prices for beef are:

Extra plate (American), $14.75 to $15.25; good American, $14.50; Canadian (best), $13.

Quotations on pork follow:

Clear fat backs (American), $23.50 to $24; P. E. Island mess, $22 to $22.50; American bean, $21.50; hams, 15c. to 16c.; side bacon, 17c.; roll bacon, 13½c.

Fish.—The Lunenburg fleet which will leave for the Banks this season is smaller than for years. Very little fish is being exported just now as the foreign markets are dull and the prices offering not very encouraging, there being a decline on codfish. One vessel arrived here last week from Newfoundland with a cargo of 3,000 quintals of dry fish for N. & M. Smith. There are no fresh lobsters on the local market at present, something most unusual for this season of the year. Quotations on the principal lines follow:

Ex-store—Dry shore cod, choice, $8; medium shore cod, $7.50; small cod, $6.25; haddock, best shore, $4.50 to $5. Ex-vessel—Cod, shore, $5 to $5.50; Bank, $5.75 to $6; herring, C. B. No. 1, $4.50; Bay of Islands, $3.75.

There are no mackerel offering and fresh halibut is very scarce, being quoted at 20c. per pound retail.

Molasses will probably be high owing to the reported shortage of the new crops. The quotations here are as follows:

Fancy Trinidad, 39c.; fancy Porto Rico, 37c. to 38c.; extra choice Porto Rico, 37c.; choice Trinidad, 35c. to 36c.; fancy Barbadoes, 32c. to 33c.; Barbadoes, 29c.

Ludlow Jenkins, manager of the Hazel Brook dairying factory of Summerside, P.E.I., has been re-engaged for another year. The past year has been one of the most successful since the inauguration of the factory, the patrons receiving on an average 91¼ cents per hundred pounds of milk for the season, after paying all expenses, which were exceedingly high during the past season owing to extensive repairs having to be made and new vats installed. The company, instead of paying a dividend directly to the shareholders during the past few years, have retained the dividend to pay off the mortgage on the plant. The liabilities of the company are reduced to the small sum of $300.

James A. Ross has engaged with John Tobin & Co., grocers of this city, and will cover the same territory as he did for H. W. Wentzell & Co., of Halifax. Mr. Ross has been eminently successful as a commercial traveler, and it was natural to expect that the best firms would be anxious to secure his services when it was known that Mr. Wentzell had decided to withdraw his men from the field. Mr. Wentzell in a circular letter to his customers speaks in highest terms of Mr. Ross, who, through energy and perseverance, balanced by a studious regard for both his employer's and his customers' interests, was instrumental in building up such a large trade connection in the Island of Cape Breton.

A. C. Black, of Onslow, N.S., who has been in the employ of the I. C. R. for some time, has decided to go on the road for A. J. Matthews, meat packers, of this city, and he started out on April 1st. Mr. Black's route is the Southwestern Railway, the D. A. Railway, Halifax City and St. John.

The maple sugar season is now on, and it is expected to be a very productive one. Maple syrup is a ready seller in this market, and also the maple wax. One of the most up-to-date maple candy and sugar manufacturing plants in the provinces is that owned by Temple Lutz at the Gorge, New Brunswick. Mr. Lutz has a very large maple sugar place and there is probably no better in the Mountain district. Tapping has commenced, and Mr. Lutz will gather the sweet sap from fully 3,500 trees this season. His territory includes his own place and also the well known sugar place formerly owned by Ross Steeves. In Mr. Lutz's employ is Mr. Renwick Lutz, the first man to manufacture maple cream sugar in that section, and a specialty will be made of this product of the maple, as well as of the syrup, for which first-class appliances have been provided. Mr. Lutz's equipment has a capacity of about forty gallons a day.

EXHIBITION OF GROCERIES.

Much Interest Being Taken in the Food Fair Soon to be Held in Montreal.

As the time approaches for the opening of the exhibition of groceries in Montreal, interest in the affair becomes great. Nearly all the booths have been sold by the committee of management and a week from Monday work will begin putting the Arena in shape for the opening.

The fair opens April 16, and it is probable that some civic official, possibly the mayor, will be present to formally open it.

In Montreal much interest is being taken in the proceedings. Retailers recognize the manner in which they will be benefited through the holding of the exhibition. The manufacturers are spending in the neighborhood of $10,000 to show the general public in a practical way just what are the qualities of the goods found on every grocer's shelves. Naturally, this advertising must benefit the retail seller of foodstuffs.

J. A. BEAUDRY

Secretary Retail Grocers' Association and Manager of the Exhibition of Groceries in Montreal.

It is expected that there will be a large attendance of grocers from all parts of Quebec Province and from those districts in Ontario within reasonably easy reach of Montreal. The exhibition will be well worth attending as there is much that any grocer, no matter how experienced, can learn from seeing foodstuffs that he handles demonstrated by practical people in a practical manner. Every grocer that can make the trip should be on hand for part of the time the fair is in progress.

J. A. Beaudry, whose likeness is presented here, is working hard making final arrangements. Mr. Beaudry is well known among the grocery trade in Montreal as secretary of the Retail Grocers' Association.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Trade Not Very Brisk—Demand for Feed Causing an Easy Tone in Market of Winter Wheat Flour.

While the grain trade is not exactly at a standstill, business is slow, and dealers complain bitterly of the difficulty in securing shipments. They say it will take all summer to straighten out the congestion. The advance in export freight rates does not appear to be occasioning much concern at present. The high price of feed has tended to increase the quantity of winter wheat flour milled with a consequent easier feeling in the market.

Confectionery.

From all parts of the country come reports of a very active Easter trade. This means that a great quantity of Easter confectionery was sold. What part of that trade fell to the grocers? Not as much as should have gone, it is safe to venture. Once in a while an up-to-date grocer is met with who is making a feature of confectionery in his business and they all say there's money in it. The proportion of grocers who are handling confectionery as a high class specialty might be doubled, or trebled. Last week it was suggested here that ambitious grocers wishing to feature confectionery should write to a maker of high class goods and get his advice. It was a suggestion worth repeating.

SALMON PACKING SUNDAY.

The salmon canners of British Columbia are sending to the Provincial Government a strong protest against the enforcement of the Sunday Observance Law. If the act is enforced, the salmon canners on the Fraser River in the northern part of the province will lose, they assert, millions of dollars through their inability to pack fish on Sundays. In the periods of heavy runs of fish the canners are frequently overrun on Saturday nights and owing to the perishable nature of the commodity, millions would be rendered unfit for canning if held for packing Monday.

CANADIAN SALMON SUITS.

D. H. Ross, Canadian Commercial Agent at Melbourne, Australia, writes under date of Jan. 28: "The quality of last season's shipments of canned salmon from British Columbia has given every satisfaction to importers. Owing to the comparatively cool summer, the demand for salmon—and all kinds of canned fish—has been much below normal, and distributors carry large stocks."

Mr. Komada, of the Japan Tea Firing Co., for which firm Watt, Scott & Goodacre are agents, was in Montreal recently.

A Californian advice says: "Asparagus crop damaged 60 to 70 per cent. Apricots will be fully as short as last year. It is a trifle early to estimate prune crop damage, but 80,000,000 lbs. are now looked for. Some packers are quietly buying up spot prunes here."

CANADA'S FLOUR TRADE WITH JAPAN

The West Not Yet Ready to Take on the Business—Neither Wheat Nor Mills.

By Alexander MacLean, Canadian Commercial Agent.

Yokohama, February 15, 1907.

From time to time, and upon the evidence available, I have had to account for the smallness and the seeming inactivity of export trade from Canada to Japan by the statement, in substance, that Canada was not yet prepared to figure largely in the Oriental trade. This statement, applicable to recent years, may now be further considered in respect of its applicability to the present time, and to the year now being entered upon.

Alberta Wheat.

The fall wheat development in Alberta in 1905, greatly interested the market here. That crop, currently stated at 2,000,000 bushels, gave rise to expectations that came far short of being fully realized. Information received from Alberta official sources disclosed the chief reason why, by giving the actual quantity at 689,019 bushels, and describing the greater quantity as "a newspaper estimate." This less or actual quantity was mostly absorbed by the active home demand largely created by the influx of settlers who for a year or two cannot be self-supplying. In this way the quantity of flour available for export to the Orient, heretofore insufficient to attract the attention of this market, was but scantily, if at all, increased by the fall wheat crop of that year. Some specific quantities, however, did reach the Orient, and these gave the assurance that ultimately Western Canadian flour would become a capable competitor with that from the Western States. As to ultimate supply in this market from Canada, there needs to be no doubt now. The present question is as to what we may expect from the crop of 1906.

Canadian Flour Trade in Japan.

At the present time, fully four months after the close of harvest, no remarkable tendency to push Canadian flour towards this market has been discoverable. What is the reason? The answer to this question must be found in the correspondence of interested parties.

A broker, operating between Canada and the Orient, who is a valued correspondent of this office, under date November 29, says:

"Flour.—It seems impossible to make any kind of a start in this season's business. I have cabled offers repeatedly to Kobe and Yokohama buyers, our people being particularly anxious for business, and to this end have made concessions in price, in order to get things started, but the gist of all our replies goes to show that our prices will not compete. Our connections at Kobe have been making every effort to get our goods started, and while their customers readily admit the superiority of the quality of our brands, they complain that prices preclude business being done, in other than a limited way. This makes it not a question of supplies, for our millers claim to be prepared to accept orders for regular shipments, but one of price altogether."

This is the general tenor of the commission merchant's complaint respecting this market. He is in a hurry, and it is this market that is at fault in that it does not rise to his prices. Clearly the broker in Canada does not offer his goods at a low price here, because he can get a higher price at home or elsewhere. His assurances that he has quantity will not impress the market, unless he can conform to its prices. His price shows that whatever quantity he may have, he has no surplus that he is obliged to market here at prices that Prices of Flour.

Another correspondent, interested in grain and flour, under date January 18, writes more reasonably, as follows :

"The prices for flour are of course dependent on the grades. Canadian mills are quoting $3.60 per bbl., c.i.f., Japan, but this price is likely to be raised almost immediately. Seattle and Sound mills are quoting from $3.47½ to $3.57½ per bbl. for their flour, which seems to suit the trade better as far as Chinese ports are concerned. At present Canada tributary to the Pacific is, as far as flour is concerned, in rather a backward condition. In order to compete successfully in Japan a certain grade of flour has to be ground, and to make same in any quantities it is necessary to make a large percentage of "Patent." Excessive local competition makes the sale of this "Patent" difficult, and in consequence the small mills at present situated tributary to the coast find themselves unable to keep running steadily, their trade being necessarily of a somewhat spasmodic nature.

"When a firm with plenty of capital can get in here and build a large mill and run their own elevators so that they are able to export both wheat and flour and can force their patent flour on the local market so that mills from the east find it unprofitable to compete, they will in our opinion find a fine business accruing to them in the near future. They will be able to grind either hard or soft wheat and take full advantage of the larger production Alberta is expecting. We do not hide the fact that it needs capital and patience for a year or two."

Low Grade Flour Wanted.

This correspondent takes into account a point that is not generally thought of when referring to flour production. Canadian wheat is of a high degree of excellence ; it therefore yields in the grinding a comparatively small percentage of low grade flour. This market takes mainly low grade flour ; hence the small quantity of Canadian flour acceptable to this market, in proportion to the quantity of grain grown or the bulk of the flour ground. The correspondent does not state the percentage of "Patent" and lower grade flours that a given quantity of grain yields. No doubt something depends upon the degrees of quality in grain, but the percentage is placed somewhere between 60 and 70 of "Patent" or best. This leaves only between 30 and 40 per cent. of the grain to supply the two or three low grades suitable for sale here.

This will lead the interested reader to the reflection that when a comparatively small quantity of wheat is grown, and only between thirty and forty per cent. of the flour which it produces is available at a price acceptable to this market, assuming that it were all ready to come here, it would be a light factor in competition with the cargo quantities constantly ready for delivery at Washington and Oregon ports. But even of that limited percentage of low grade flour, only a small proportion is seriously offered here, since the quotations persistently rule higher than those of similar grades from the American Pacific ports.

The Outlook Promising.

It is not necessary to burden a report, which has limitations as to space, with quotations from correspondence and from other sources to the effect that the flour export capacity of British Columbia and Alberta is yet in its infancy. The information I have, from those interested, indicates that they are getting ready. Some are building mills, or enlarging old ones. And others are building elevators at the railway points to receive the grain from the farmers. But the whole tenor of this is inconsistent with the present readiness in quantity and facilities which, the commission operators complain, is not responded to in the Japanese market.

With all this lack of sufficient readiness to offer acceptable business to this market, it is most unfair to place the default here, in face of the fact that there was last year a sensible increase in the importation of flour from Canada, and that that increase was simply the immediate response of this market to the small but significant increase of wheat recently grown in Alberta.

At this date of writing I am informed by firms who have made inquiry for supplies, which would be on a large scale if the demand could be met, that in both wheat and flour the prices asked by Canada do not admit of present business. The opportunity, however, fortunately, offers one exception just in time to mention it, a leading importing house, having received acceptable quotations in wheat, from a Canadian firm, which on this side will involve a large deal, if on the other side the circumstances are equal.

There is reason to expect that this market will take up Alberta and British Columbia wheat and flour as rapidly as the increase of production will furnish it. But necessarily it must compete with wheat and flour from the United States. Should Canadian prices continue, as heretofore, above the competing level, the obvious implication will be that Canada, even to the Pacific, fortunately has a better market than this.

Wheat Market in Japan.

There is a marked revival of interest in wheat since the tariff increase upon flour. And right along with it comes the relative difficulties in the way of importation from Canada. The lack of elevator facilities at the coast is given by the trade here as a ground of uncertainty in shipping. Then there is doubt about the transportation facilities. Grain must come, if at all, in some approach to cargo quantities, and the export point must be Vancouver. The only regular liners available at that port are Canadian Pacific steamships. The rapid service of the Empress boats cuts the time in port too short to admit of grain cargo to way ports. This leaves the grain carrying to the smaller Tartar, and Athenian, with the Monteagle at present temporarily off the route. Therefore the merchants who are inquiring into wheat importation from Canada are at the outset impressed with an unreadiness in the matter of facilities, as well as in that of price, for export to this country.

'TIS TIME TO GET BUSY.

House-cleaning time is almost here. Are you ready to push the sale of the necessary requisites for the all-important Spring cleaning? Have you laid your plans? If not, it is important that you gather yourself together and prepare for a general exhibition of such lines as brushes, brooms, woodenware and sundries.

The average retail dealer has to contend with pretty keen competition and is so situated that he cannot get even his legitimate share of the trade of his community without making a strong bid for it. Many fail to get the results they should out of their "Housecleaning Department," owing to the erroneous impression that people must have these goods and will therefore call for them, so tuck them away in obscure corners—nine chances out of ten entirely out of the customer's view—and, as a consequence, sales are light. Make a grand display, including paint brushes, varnish brushes, scrubbing brushes, waxing brushes, stove brushes, hair brooms, window brushes, window rubbers, cornice dusters, cobweb brushes, wall sweepers, feather dusters, plate brushes, brooms, pails, tubs, washboards, clothes pins, mops, wringers, step ladders, baskets, clothes lines, etc., a wide range of goods that surely will enable you to make a number of attractive displays, and then business is bound to come your way.

If bought right, displayed right, advertised right, and sold right, the profit will be a good one, which depends, however, upon carrying a standard line of goods, and the utmost care should be used in selecting only guaranteed goods with an undoubted reputation as to reliability.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE OPPORTUNITIES.

The Canadian Grocer has received from H. W. Baker, secretary of the Twenty Thousand Club of Portage La Prairie, Man., a handsome booklet setting forth the industrial and commercial advantages of "the Beautiful City of the Plains." Much information is compressed in small space and attention is drawn to the opportunities offered to canning, soap, biscuit and starch factories and other similar industries. Portage citizens are ambitious and there is no reason why the hopes of the Twenty Thousand Club should not be realized soon.

E. W. GILLETT CO. AND THE TEACHERS.

The trip arranged by Inspector Hughes of Toronto for an excursion of nearly 500 teachers from Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford, London and other places in Ontario, to Washington, Philadelphia, and New York, was a huge success. The only pre-arranged attractions were a visit to President Roosevelt, who received the teachers at the White House, and a performance at the New York Hippodrome. For the latter a complimentary ticket was supplied to each teacher by E. W. Gillett Co., Ltd., Toronto.

CANADA IS LOSING TRADE WITH NEWFOUNDLAND

By Mr. E. D. Arnaud, Canadian Commercial Agent.

The customs returns of Newfoundland for the year ended June 30, 1906, are now made public, and the figures they contain regarding Canadian trade with the colony seem worthy of consideration by manufacturers and exporters of the Dominion who desire to increase their trade in this market. The most noticeable feature in connection with these returns is the fact that while the exports from Newfoundland to Canada show an increase of $641,321, the imports from Canada have fallen off $583,630 in the same period.

Island Takes Less Flour.

Of this total increase in the exports to Canada the item of dry codfish accounts for $455,704, while the decrease in the imports of flour from Canada amounts to 83,736 barrels, valued at $536,863. The difference in the price between American and Canadian flour in favor of the former is sufficient to account for this large falling off, all the facts in connection with this trade being well understood both by the sellers as well as buyers.

There are still many articles of Newfoundland trade in which Canada might make a better showing with a little more attention to the requirements of this market, and an examination of the following comparative statement of some of the principal foodstuffs imports may be useful to show Canadian exporters what progress, if any, they are making to supply the demands of the trade of the colony :—

DRIED FRUIT FROM AUSTRALIA.

D. H. Ross, Canadian Commercial Agent at Melbourne, Australia, writes : "Some three years ago, at my instance samples of Victorian dried fruits were forwarded to Vancouver and Winnipeg wholesale grocery houses, but the prices were not sufficiently attractive to cause business. The conditions promise to be better this year, as the growth of fruit at the Mildura irrigation district is said to be phenomenal. Early in April it is estimated that there will be a large surplus of choice clean lexia raisins—packed in 56-lb. boxes—available for export at a f.o.b. Melbourne price of about (2¼ to 2¼d.) 4¼ to 4½ cents per lb. Mildura fruit is well packed and much cleaner than European. Other lines, such as dried apricots, peaches and currants, are being for the present absorbed locally, but at times Vancouver importers of dried fruits should find this market worth their attention.

Lemons Still Soaring—Apples Quiet— Oranges Firmer — First shipment of Egyptian Onions on the Way from Liverpool—Fish Dropping Out.

The lemon market this week has taken another jump and there seems to be every prospect of a further rise before long. Taking the American duty into consideration, however, the prices here are lower in proportion than those at present obtaining in New York, and this for the reason that most of the larger importers have been receiving direct shipments, thus cutting out the customs charges and giving the retailers the benefit of them.

Grape-fruit, so far as the first-class stuff is concerned, is about exhausted. For some reason not easily determined, a large portion of the Florida shipments are spotting up, and most of the later consignments have been unsatisfactory. Dealers, however, cannot complain, as the season has been an exceptionally good one for this line. A noticeable feature has been that while in former years the demand was confined almost exclusively to the richer classes, this season the consumption has been practically universal, with the result that trade has been almost tripled.

Apples seem to be dead. There is little demand for anything except the extra fancy varieties, and even these are difficult to move on anything like a profitable basis.

The strawberry market was practically bare at Easter, much the same situation being reported in Buffalo and Chicago. The recent drouth in the Charleston section has rendered the outlook for an early movement somewhat unfavorable, as it has greatly retarded the growth of the vines.

The California oranges are averaging larger this season than has been the case for many years past, and although big sizes are not just what the dealers want, the trade is gradually awakening to the fact that they have got to take them, and the result will probably be a better and freer movement for the remainder of the season. The car shortage in California still continues to affect the Canadian market, but better conditions are slowly prevailing and the general outlook has taken on a much brighter aspect.

The first shipments of Egyptian onions will be on their way by the time this is in print, and will arrive in about three weeks. They will bring $2.75 to $3 a case. Domestic onions are a little easier, but practically the entire stock is coming from the United Staees.

Fish received its quietus as soon as the Good Friday market was satisfied. A few lines are making a last struggle but these will soon subside to the general quiet level. Some dealers, with an optimism which, however ill-founded, is surely commendable, are trying to convince themselves that winter is not yet over and that there will be another cold spell or two to usher in the spring, but the majority have accepted the situation as cheerfully as may be, and are returning thanks for an exceptionally active and profitable season.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS.—Oranges are selling fairly well at prices which are higher than those quoted last week. Mexicans are not arriving now, the season being over. Recently a few lots of this class were received from Toronto, and these are going at $2.75 a case. Valencias are now quoted and are selling freely. Lemons are now selling at $3, and higher figures are expected. Bananas have been advanced. The demand for this line is very strong and supplies are short.

VEGETABLES.—Business is limited in vegetables, Easter demand having fallen off with the passing of the holidays. The trade being transacted now is of a hand to mouth character. Florida celery is a new line on the market this week. It is quoted $3.50 a crate. California celery has been advanced, $7 a crate being asked. New potatoes are lower, owing to increased receipts. Rhubarb is up to $1.25.

FISH.—Since the close of Lent there has been very little doing in the fish business. Dealers report having experienced a particularly good season's trade, demand all through the Lenten period having been wonderfully well sustained. Fresh haddock, lake trout and new haddies are among the lines which are lower this week. Frozen cod and grass pike are also obtainable at easier figures. Some new lines are quoted.

TORONTO.

FRUIT.—Lemons are again on the forward move, a raise of 25c. a case confirming our prophecy of last week. Bananas are firmer, with an excellent demand and a somewhat light supply. The pineapple season is opening up in good shape, and the stock so far this year is more plentiful than usual. Cranberries continue at $9 a barrel, but that is chiefly because there is no one to take them away at that or any other price, and some dealers who laid in not wisely but too well, are at a loss to know how to dispose of their surplus stock.

VEGETABLES.—Potatoes remain quiet, though at the same time last year eastern stock was selling readily at from 15c. to 20c. above the present prices and Ontario was not to be had at any price. The feeling as to the possibility of easier prices is divided, but the probabilities are that another week or two will see the stock at rock bottom. By the middle of April prices will again be on a normal basis and any movement after that will be in an upward direction.

Tomatoes this week are a little lower and asparagus is easier.

FISH.—Compared with the enormous business which was done during the last few days of Lent, the fish market is motionless. FAIR DEALINGS IN THE FRUIT TRADE.

J. Albert Hand, B.S.A., writing from Winnipeg last December to the Canadian Horticulturist, says :

That many citizens in Winnipeg do not know one variety of apples from another is very apparent. That the dealers take advantage of the consumers' ignorance regarding this somewhat minor detail is even more apparent. The wholesale fruit houses, and through them the retail dealers, allow large quantities of fruit to reach the consuming public altogether out of season.

What does a lover of fruit want with Golden Russet apples at this season? What demand is there for pears in December? What does a trained taste for Snow apples think when Ben Bavis are put up instead? These and kindred games are played on the consumers of this city every day. Golden Russets appear in every fruit collection. A wholesale house has several hundred barrels of Kieffer pears. Any apple that resembles the kind required is given and the purchaser is so disgusted in many cases that he wants no more fruit for some time.

The other night, as I was going home, I saw some nice apples in a window. As they looked like good Snows, I decided to buy some. A lady waited on me and as she began to bag them I noticed they were not Snows. I called her attention to the fact, but she insisted they were "real Snow apples." When I laughed she was haughtily indignant, because I doubted her veracity, or perhaps her knowledge of varieties. The apples were small Ben Davis. I called at the next store to see if they had anything to suit. There were some large dark red apples. On enquiry I learned that these were "Alexanders." I do not know what they really were.

The retailer innocently plays these tricks. Names of varieties most generally asked for are attached to any apple that has the color. Golden Russets and Roxbury Russets are all the same. It is known by most of them that a Snow apple is red and that it sells well; so, any red apple must be sold as a Snow until its season is far past.

The wholesaler is the man to be blamed for a part of this deception. He should be thoroughly acquainted with almost every variety. In the interests of the apple trade, he should see that no variety is put in retail stores out of season. Every time a consumer gets an inferior, tasteless apple the trade is hurt. Every time a consumer gets a superior, tasty apple the trade is given a boost. A Snow or a Spy or a Russet in season, makes the consumer want more. It is safe guessing that if wholesale houses and retailers knew the varieties and put only the best up for sale and in proper season, the demand would be doubled.

Kieffer pears are a drug on the market when fall or winter comes. They will keep, but they are fit for preserves only. What housewife wants to start preserving at this season? She has done her preserving in summer and nothing but a profitless low price will induce a purchase for that purpose later.

The wholesale houses report a heavy business for the past two weeks. This will continue until Xmas. R. A. Rogers has worked night and day for several days. This firm sends carloads to points west. Their own representatives accompany the car to make delivery and prevent freezing. Everybody wants Spies. Greenings and Russets are also asked for. Any Snows that have been kept in good condition are readily picked up at high prices.

A great improvement has been noted in the stock sent here from Ontario. There is not one-third as much inferior fruit as came last year. A great part of the improvement is credited to the eagle eye and careful work of Dominion Fruit Inspector Philp. Good honest packing by the producer and shipper, and attention to varieties by the salesmen, will increase the sales wonderfully throughout the west.

GRADING POTATOES IN AUSTRALIA.

A prize of £50 was recently offered by the Victoria (Australia) Department of Agriculture for a machine which would most effectively, cheaply and rapidly perform the work of grading potatoes and onions without bruising or damaging them, and which would leave each grade separated and ready for bagging. The trial took place in Melbourne, and a dozen machines were tried, with the result that the judges recommended that the prize should be withheld for the present and that the competition should be extended for a few months.

AUSTRALIAN ONIONS.

The State of Victoria, Australia, writes D. H. Ross, Canadian Commercial Agent at Melbourne, produces the bulk of the onions grown in Australia. Some early varieties are already on the market, and a few small shipments were made by the Miowera, which sailed on January 21 for Vancouver. Brown Spanish onions will be available a few weeks hence, and numerous enquiries have been received in Melbourne from Canadian produce importers for shipments to be made in February, March and April for points as far east as Winnipeg. Present indications point to a crop of between 20,000 and 25,000 tons in Victoria, of which some 5,000 tons have been sold for forward delivery.

NEW SCALE HERRING PRICES.

The recently organized union of weir owners, at a meeting in St. Andrew's, N.B., attended by some sixty members from various parts of Charlotte county, adopted a scale of prices at which the members of the union will sell the output of their herring weirs to the American packers. The prices fixed are eight dollars a hogshead from the opening of the season until July 31, and six dollars a hogshead from then until the close of the season. A motion to make the price seven dollars for the whole season was defeated. The prices do not apply to Canadian canners, they being given the preference. Last year the fishermen received about four dollars a hogshead from the American packers.

At the meeting was adopted also as a standard of measurement a tub holding fourteen imperial gallons, ten tubs to a hogshead. It was decided that the price of herring for smoking be regulated by the market, but that if packers buy for smoking and then use the fish for sardines, they be penalized by having their supply cut off for two weeks. The bulk of the Charlotte county herring are sold each year to the packers at Lubec and Eastport.

TRINIDAD'S FRUIT.

Edgar E. Tripp, Canadian Commercial Agent in Trinidad, writes: "The new industry—fruit—is progressing slowly, but I think surely. Shipments of bananas and oranges are now made regularly to the United Kingdom, and arrive in good order, although the voyage is a fortnight. This is very little under the time occupied from here to Halifax or St. John by the Pickford & Black steamers, and suggests that a similar trade with Canada might be developed to mutual advantage in the near future."

FISHED FOR A GROCER.

Garrett Tracy, of Hartford, proprietor of a grocery store, has received a letter from William Miller Collier, United States Ambassador at Madrid, exposing an old swindle.

Some months ago Tracy received word from "Don Ramon Montilla, curate of the Church of St. John the Baptist," in Madrid, that William Burns, a boyhood friend of his, had left him a fortune of $15,000, and had made him also the guardian of the deceased's daughter. Papers and court records were forwarded to substantiate the claim, and Mr. Tracy was asked to pay court fees of $1,900 and come to Spain and get his fortune and the daughter. Tracy could not remember Burns, so instead of sending the money he wrote, asking Ambassador Collier's advice. In his reply Mr. Collier says :

"The whole matter is a swindle. There are on file at this legation hundreds of communications from people in the United States to whom letters similar to the one you received have been sent. There has been in existence in this country for 30 years a well-organized band of swindlers who work upon the same lines."

Sixty of the largest Cape Cod cranberry growers have organized a selling company under the title of the New England Cranberry Sales Co., with headquarters at Middleboro. A. V. Chaney was elected sales agent.

Merton W. Plunkett, formerly with T. B. Cramp of Orillia, has bought out Neil Jamieson, Orillia, who has gone west.

SPRING FISHING STARTED IN BRITISH COLUMBIA RIVERS

(Special correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.)

Vancouver, B.C., March 22, 1907.

The fish hatcheries of the Fraser River have found that owing to the unusually cold winter the ova have been over a month later than usual in hatching. The young fish, however, do not seem to be injured at all by the slowness of the maturing process. It is anticipated that they will be turned out in as good condition as in other seasons. The Bon Accord hatchery will have some eight or nine million fry, while the Harrison Lake plant will turn out sixteen million. Usually the total output of the two is about thirty million fry. Last fall, however, the washing out of some of the pens in which the salmon are held for spawning caused a loss which could not be replaced.

Spring salmon are now running fairly well in the Fraser River. The prices agreed upon between the fishermen and buyers are: Red salmon, 8c. per lb.; white salmon, 5c. per lb.; steelheads, 6 cents per lb. These prices will be in effect until April 20, after which red springs will be 6c. and white springs 3c. per lb.

The halibut fishing steamers have been making good catches on the northern banks, some of the vessels coming in with good cargoes. The steamer Flamingo which some few weeks ago tried a cruise on the western coast of Vancouver Island found that there were no halibut there to be caught. The banks of Queen Charlotte Sound and even the Gulf of Georgia are reliable places to secure this fish, and no fear of a shortage in the catch is entertained. There are more than half a dozen large fishing steamers in the halibut trade, and all are doing good business. The market in the east seems to be practically unlimited.

The Blue Funnel liner Titan, which sailed from B. C. ports last week, took out a consignment of 20,000 cases of canned salmon, practically the last of the season's pack. All the pack of the coast canneries, both in B.C. and the United States, is now shipped to the Old Country in these steamers, the days when sailing vessels were chartered to take a cargo of salmon from Fraser River having long gone by. The cost of freight by these steamers is not very much in excess of the charge by a sailing vessel.

The Australian liner Aorangi, which reached port on Saturday last, brought a consignment of 4,000 carcases of frozen mutton as well as a lot of 1,500 boxes of Australian butter. For this season the butter importations are now over.

Another item of the Aorangi's cargo was a consignment of 1,200 tons of raw sugar from the B. C. Sugar Refinery Co.'s plantations in Fiji. This will be the second last consignment of sugar from the present crop. The steamer Moana, the next of the line to arrive in Vancouver, will bring the last shipment of the season's crop.

Large consignments of salt herring are being shipped to Japan at this season from Nanaimo. The Japanese are good customers for fish at all times, and with the herring run of Nanaimo at its largest the little brown men are not slow to take every advantage. They are born fishermen and are doing their share to exploit the fish of B. C. waters. Over eighty tons of salt herring were shipped out on the steamer Athenian alone, being consigned to Japanese firms.

Market quotations show but trifling changes from last figures given. Following are some leading lines:

Dairy produce: Butter, local fresh creamery, 35c.; local fresh dairy, Australian creamery, 30c.; eggs, fresh local, 25c. per doz.

Fruits: Apples,—Fancy table, $2.50 per box; cooking apples, lower mainland product, $1.25 and $1.50 per box; oranges, $2.75 to $3 per box; lemons, $3.75 and $4.

Vegetables: Potatoes — Ashcrofts, $35 and $40 per ton; lower mainland potatoes, $28 to $30 per ton; onions, $1.50 per cwt.; fresh lettuce, $1.75 per crate; cabbage, 3½ to 3½c. per lb.; cauliflower, $1.60 per dozen; celery, 85c. per doz.

Cured meats: Hams, 19 to 20c. per lb.; bacon, 18 to 21c.; lard, in 3's, 5's and 10's, 14½ to 14½c., 14c. in tierces.

Flour: Ogilvie's Royal Household, $5.40 per bbl.; Lake of the Woods, Five Roses, $5.40; Columbia Flouring Mills, Enderby, Hungarian, $5.30; Okanagan Flour Mills, Armstrong, Hungarian, $5 per bbl. Rolled oats, 90's, $3.25; 45's, $3.35; in 22½'s, $3.55; in 10-7's, $2.85; oats, $26 per ton; bran and shorts, $24 per ton; hay, $16 per ton.

RED ROSE DEMONSTRATOR WEDDED.

Miss E. L. Stevenson, demonstrator for Red Rose Tea, with the Toronto branch, after a year of exceptionally capable service has resigned to enter the state of wedlock with Leo Bowslaugh, a merchant tailor.

Miss Stevenson was very popular with every member of the T. H. Estabrooks Ontario staff, and on Good Friday evening Manager Geo. H. Campbell and several of the travelers waited upon her at her uncle's home, 35 Rosedale Ave., Toronto, and presented her with a silver deposit Brown Betty teapot set. Rupert Prat, as senior traveler, made the presentation and conveyed the kindly feelings and good wishes of the staff very fittingly and well. Manager Campbell spoke for the higher powers and stated very pleasantly Mr. Estabrooks' and his own appreciation of Miss Stevenson's work and their regret at her departure, which was far outweighed by their wishes for her future happiness.

Miss Stevenson was pardonably pleased and promised to remember them all often over the Cobalted Brown Betty and the Red Rose.

The wedding took place on Tuesday and on Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Bowslaugh started for Saskatoon, where Mr. Bowslaugh has started a merchant tailoring business.

ADVERTISING A VILLAGE STORE.

R. J. Thomas, of B. W. Thomas', Hartford, furnishes a rather novel idea this week relative to rural advertising. His letter and the accompanying illustration state the matter clearly. He says:

A New Wrinkle in Advertising.

"I have enclosed a photo showing how we do advertising in the country. It is a problem sometimes to know how to get rid of all the soap boxes, packing cases, etc., at a profit, but I think it is solved, as the picture will show.

"If it pays the city advertisers to put up billboards along the railroads and public highways, why is it not to our advantage to do the same?

"You will notice the name Hartford is not on the boards, but they are not placed far enough away from the village to make that necessary. It does not need a professional sign painter to do the work as anyone with a little practice can do it. I hope this will be a hint to some brother country storekeeper."

Canada is now selling more soap in Trinidad than the United States and in this regard is second only to Great Britain.

Business Management

By HOWARD R. WELLINGTON.

The Cost of Doing Business

In the special Spring number of The Review—which, by the way, is filled with interesting reading—an article appeared under the head of "The Cost of Doing Business," which should prove of inestimable value to the merchant who has not already installed some system enabling him to arrive at what his goods cost him "net," what his total sales are "net," and what each indivdual expense amounts to in each department of his business.

There seems to be some difference of opinion as to whether the proprietor's remuneration should be a fixed charge against the profits, the advance on cost including this charge, as well as all other charges, to arrive at the selling value of goods. It would be only fair to the business to charge in with the other salaries a certain fixed amount for the proprietor, just the same as it would be necessary to charge salary for a manager if one were employed. The gross profits, then, less the "overhead" expenses, the selling expense, salaries, etc., would show the net profit which the merchant earns.

The percentage to advance on cost depends largely on the cost of doing business and the amount of business done. When a business is thoroughly organized, and a system installed which will obviate all unnecessary detail work, a turn-over of $50,000 may be made almost as readily as $25,000, with but very little extra expense, thus increasing the net profit by a very substantial amount, as the "overhead" expenses, such as rent, taxes, manager's salary, etc., remain practically the same under both conditions.

A merchant must learn from an expeerience of two or three years, or perhaps more, what percentage must be added to cost to net a fair margin of profit. Few retail businesses, in those days of increased cost of doing business, can be managed successfully on a less margin than 33 1-3 per cent.

In a business which could be departmentized we would suggest a purchase journal, in which all purchase invoices should be entered monthly, the totals only being posted at the end of each month. A columnar book may be procured at a nominal cost, and the various columns used as found necessary, as follows:

At the end of the period, then, we have a set of accounts for each department collected as follows:

Dept. A.

Jan. 1, 1906—	Stock on hand	$2,500
	Purchases	6,000
	Sales		$8,500
	Rent or taxes	225
	Salaries	950
	Insurance	65
	Light and heat	55
	Advertising	65
	Fright and packing	200
	Office expense	275
	Interest	155
	Depreciation	75
Jan. 1, 1907—	Stock on hand		2,600
	Net profit in department	535
		$11,100	$11,100

I will be noticed that such items as rent and taxes, insurance, office expenses, interest, depreciation, heat and light, etc., all appear as a charge against the department. There are various methods of arriving at the proportion chargeable to each: first, by the amount of the sales; second, by the situation of the department in the store; and third, by the ratio of expense in maintaining the department. It is hardly fair to base the proportion on the total sales, as the department having the largest sales might be working on the closest margin of profit, and, again, it might cost a great deal more for office expense or light and heat in one department than in another.

The only practical method is to collect these general expense items, take each individually and apportion what may seem a fair amount over each department.

Of course some expenses, such as insurance and sundry items of expense for the department may be charged direct, and the remarks above only refer to general charges.

In the illustration above, the goods cost $2,500 plus $6,000, or $8,500, less stock on hand, $2,600 or a net cost

Purchase Jour nal—Jan. 31, 1907.

How settled	Terms	Seller	Amount	Dept. A	Dept. B	Dept. C	Dept. D	Dept. E.
Dft. 15, 1, 07	5, 30	J. Brown	$550 50		$550.50
Ch. 15, 2, 07	2½, 30	J. Smith	420 25			$420.25
Note 15, 3, 07	3, 30	J. Jones	375 20	$375.20
Dft. 20, 1, 07	5, 30	J. Thomas	150 40				$150.40
Dft. 1, 6, 07	3, 30	J. Ames	260 50					$260.50

Each department column may be further subdivided to provide for expenses, such as stationery, insurance, light and heat. This same idea may be carried out in the cash book, sales record and journal.

of goods sold of $5,900, an advance of 44 per cent, on cost, and yet the merchant only makes a net percentage of 9 per cent. Evidently expense accounts require careful inspection.

A NEW ERA IN SPICE GRINDING

The National Pure Food Law of the United States has wrought a remarkable transformation in the spice trade of New York, and spice grinders are complaining that for the present their business is at a standstill, paralyzed by the uncertainty which exists in the trade consequent upon the new conditions, says the New York Journal of Commerce. As one well known grinder expressed it :

"We have been brought up all standing by this new law, and the revelation that it has brought to us of how far away we have drifted into the field of fraud and adulteration quite surprises us. For the present we have not been able to find out just where we are at. Still, I want to be quoted as saying that we welcome the Pure Food Law and I believe it will be a great benefit to the trade once we are adjusted to the new conditions. Just now everything is at a standstill, both in the raw materials and the box goods market, such as exists in the retail trade. In a few weeks, especially when the preserving season comes along, we shall look for an even better trade than we had before. The law is certainly a good thing.

"We had no idea how rank the adulteration had become. Competition had forced us along from one little fraud to another until we were a lot of pretty bad liars and the trade demanded that we remain such. Scarcely anything was actually pure spice. True, we did put up some genuine goods, but it was so little as compared with the whole that it amounted to nothing. People would not pay the price for pure goods. Why, we had to put out pepper for four cents a pound, all ready for putting in boxes, when everyone knew that the whole pepper was costing us at wholesale 10 cents a pound. We could make up the difference by grinding in burned cocoanut shells for the black part and cracker crumbs and browned grain for the rest. True, we labelled it 'compound pepper,' but people supposed it meant extra strong pepper, and it all went. Now the law compels us to call it 'imitation pepper' or 'pepper compound,' and to put our formula on the package. Of course that kills the sale of such goods and we have to put up pure goods. Because the trade has always supposed those were pure goods, the retailer must put out the new package at the same price as the old, and someone's profit is shrinking. It isn't ours, for we knew what we were selling all along, and so did the jobber.

"Of course this has made a big difference in the business. First of all we have to use more real spice than before and that increases the importation end of the business. To-day there is a scarce supply of materials in the market and the whole list of raw materials is up, in some cases double what it was a year ago. But on the other hand, the consumption of spices will not be as great as formerly, for the consumer will not need to use so much of a given spice in its pure state as was needed of the adulterated article. I suspect there will be trouble this fall when the women attempt to put up preserves by their old recipes. If they use the customary amounts of spices, the stuff will be so hot no one can eat it.

"The whole trouble at present is the uncertainty of the trade as to what they do want, and their indisposition to buy till confidence is restored. Customers who used to order twenty cases at a time are now ordering from hand to mouth, say five cases or so. This is especially true of the West, where the abuses of adulteration have been more flagrant than elsewhere. The retailers find it hard to believe that prices should jump as they have and they hesitate to lay in large stocks till they know how the consumer is going to act toward pure goods. We used to put out an article labelled mace for 15 cents. To-day it costs 46 cents. And that's the way it goes all along the line. But when people buy spices hereafter they will be pure spices; you can bank on that. In the past from a half to three-quarters of the stuff sold as pure was adulterant."

PRIMER FOR BOWSER SALESMEN

An Alphabet of Rhymes from the Bowser Business Boomer, and was written for Men who Sell Equipments for Retailing Oil, but Looks Good Enough for any Kind of Salesman.

A for "Approach," and it wins half the battle ;
Be cheerful, and then you will be hard to rattle.

B for the name that we sell under, "Bowser's,"
It means that we always have coin in our trousers.

C stands for what we love best, our "Commissions;"
They bring to our bank accounts handsome additions.

D stands for "Drive" on a cold day in winter,
When the horse that you have is by no means a sprinter.

E stands for "Effort" and "Enthusiasm;"
Between these and indolence yawns a great chasm.

F stands for "Faith" in ourselves and our outfits ;
If anyone has it, he can't talk without hits.

G stands for "Grit" that keeps going on grinding,
Rebuffs and annoyances not at all minding.

H is the "Harvest" we're every year reaping,
Which piles up the profits for "rainy day's" keeping.

I stands for "Idlers" who fall down so sadly,
Who love ease and loafing and hate work so badly.

J stands for "Joy" in our hearts ever thrilling,
When we take out our pens for a good order filling.

K is for "Knowledge" that gives us all power ;
It helps us in many a difficult hour.

L is for "Laziness" known to be turning
Lives of success to rank failures, unearning.

M stands for "Money" for which we're all working ;
A prize that keeps all of the salesmen from shirking.

N stands for "Now," when your man should be signing ;
To-morrow you'll find him more firmly declining.

O stands for "Orders" we lose by postponement ;
Our sorrow because of them is our atonement.

P means the "Patient and also the "Plucky;"
They don't get their orders because they are lucky.

Q stands for "Quitters" of all men the meanest !
Why shouldn't their pocket books always be leanest ?

R stands for "Rivals." May Fortune ne'er bless them !
We'll take every chance we can get to suppress them !

S for "Success" which we all of us covet,
And when we achieve it, I tell you, we love it !

T stands for "Tact" which we use, if we're clever .
It stands, too, for "Tanks" that will last one forever.

U stands for "Users" who swear by our system ;
If we took out their tanks they would say that they missed 'em !

V for "Vexations" that often annoy us,
But if we seem worried, they surely destroy us

W means that we're all to be "Winners;"
The best of us now were once only beginners.

X stands for "eXcellence," hard to acquire ;
Applied to a salesman, it ends in a buyer !

Y for this "Year." May the orders be many !
So just whoop 'em up, if you've not taken any !

Z stands for "Zest" that's the salt of all selling.
And this is the end of our lesson in spelling !

CIGAR SATISFACTION

A Word to Grocers About This Well-Known Product

In the first place, it is a perfectly wholesome food, prepared from fresh fruits and sugar.

It is labelled compound to conform with the pure food regulations of the Canadian Government, and the department has approved of the label we are using.

A certain percentage of apple jelly is used in the making of these jams to bring the cost within the reach of a large proportion of the consuming public, although many prefer the taste and texture of the compound article, regardless of cost of same.

It is much more suitable than the pure article as a pie or tart filler, and for general table use it cannot be excelled, and every grocer should carry it in stock.

Upton's Pure Jams

Upton's Pure Jams, Jellies and Orange Marmalade are absolutely pure fruit, as labelled, and granulated sugar, and for appearance and flavor cannot be excelled by anything on the market.

Guaranteed by the maker to be absolutely pure, and to fill the requirements of the most fastidious.

QUOTATIONS FOR PROPRIETARY ARTICLES

Quotations on staple articles, prepared by our own staff, will be found in the market reports in the centre of the paper. The following are prices of proprietary articles which are supplied by the manufacturers or their agents, who alone are responsible for their accuracy. For charges for inserting quotations in this department apply to Advertising Manager, The Canadian Grocer, at our nearest office.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

jars and packages are dainty in appearance and look well on your shelves. Buyers are often influenced by the outside appearance of the packages and it is to your benefit to stock only those goods which are contained in dainty and attractive packages, providing of course you can rely upon the quality of the goods inside. With C. & B. goods the superior appearance of the jars, glasses, etc., is merely an indication of the superior quality of what is inside, and you can rely on every consumer finding that the goods in every way come up to their appearance. C. & B. on our wrappers is a guarantee of the quality of the contents.

CANADIAN CANNERS, LIMITED

Money in Canned Goods

Some grocers do not realize that fact. A few never will. Those who do not see the profit side of the Canned Goods Trade have been stocking inferior brands. The natural consequence means a general business decline, because economic house-wives will not patronise the grocer who handles inferior lines very long.

Since there is money in Canned Goods for you and since you must stock the best to secure your profit and insure a lasting trade, you certainly ought to stock easily the best by any test ever placed on the market. Our factory is ideal—spotlessly clean in every way—and even our competitors admit that our facilities combined with our carefulness assure just as pure a brand of Canned Goods as can possibly be manufactured, while the matrons of Canada unanimously declare that there is no brand of Canned Goods which comes near approaching in genuine goodness.

Yes, there's Money in Canned Goods—reputation and money if you stock the proper brand—Old Homestead Brand.

The Old Homestead Canning Co.

PICTON, ONTARIO

FOR THE FIRST THREE MONTHS of this year (1907) the increase of

"SALADA"

TEA

has amounted to 25½ per cent over the same period of last year. IN CANADA ALONE during the same period, our increase has been 23¼ per cent over the same 3 months of 1906, and this after a 23 per cent increase in 1906 over 1905.

What is the moral to be drawn from this?

Serve the Public Well. It Pays.

"SALADA" does this, has always done it, and will continue to do so.

Good Customers'

choice is always

Magic Baking Powder

because it is so well and favorably known.

DEAR SIRS,—

On March 1st, we opened in Edmonton, Alberta, Office and Warehouse No. 3; our Western business has increased so rapidly we found it necessary to open a branch in Edmonton, in a four storey solid brick building, 50 x 120, situated on the Transfer Track, and we are prepared to store all kinds of merchandise at reasonable rates, and handle consignments with the same promptness and efficiency as in Winnipeg and Calgary. If you wish to place your account with a live, pushing and energetic Brokerage house at the three great jobbing centres in the Great West, write us. We sell every Grocery Jobbing House from the Lake Front to the Rocky Mountains; we represent many large Manufacturers and Shippers, make lasting connections with them; we can do the same for you. Write us, wire us, send us your samples and prices.

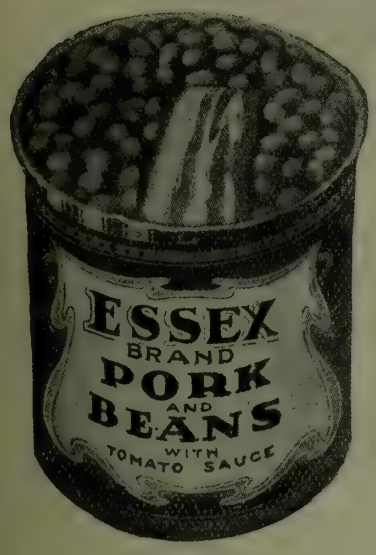
A Question of Dollars



The shrewd grocer stocks the best brand of Pork and and Beans on the market. That explains the ever-increasing demand for and most grocers stock none other. It certainly does pay to cater to the public taste. The goodness of Pork and Beans is accentuated when it's the ESSEX brand, because our process of canning assures the flavor which has made the Essex brand famous the wide world over.

ESSEX PORK and BEANS

THE ESSEX BRAND conserves both trade and profit.

OUR ADDRESS :

Warner Rd., Camberwell, S.E., London, Eng.

MANAGING A GROCERY STORE

By a Man Who Has Been Manager.

A store should be like a well regulated, well attended engine—everything running smoothly and the engineer, that is the boss, walking around calmly, always serene, while the cogs and wheels—the clerks—do the work, sputter and whirr. The engineer has it all planned out—its system—the wheels revolve; sometimes there is a hitch and he is always there with oil, and the day's run is brought triumphantly to a close after a serene and profitable day. Every cog should fit into the next, as when the advertising cog brings the customer to the salesman. The advertising cog just keeps on turning—it's now up to the salesman, and when the selling cog turns, taking the customer's cash smoothly and not jarring him or her as it leaves, it's now up to the orderman and bookkeeper; but right here I want to say that the selling cog is the important one and everything depends on it. The critical moment, just when a customer is debating whether to buy or not, is when the cogs should turn most smoothly and surely. A great deal depends on decision.

The Good Salesman.

A manager once watched two popular clerks to see which was the better for promotion. The most popular clerk had a favorite customer who waited for him. She liked him, and when he waited on her he kept up a conversation with her and made a great show of trying to please.

Finally selecting two articles he left it to her—she left it. She then went to the less popular man; he smiled, pulled down an article, said that this was the one and only thing, stated the price and asked where he would send it. She agreed entirely, handed him her card and money and left entirely pleased. He had sold it in one-eighth of the time of the other. The popular man lacked decision. Just as soon as a sale is hinted it is better to wrap the article, enter it, or clinch the bargain in some manner before the lady changes her mind. Right here, remember the average female mind is not good at fractions. A grocer once advertised ten per cent. off all soaps. A friend, a lady, of course, asked why his competitor could sell soap one cent cheaper than he. He explained that his was the cheaper, but she could not see it. He then offered her $1 worth for 90 cents, and she took it quickly. Moral—Always mark your reductions in plain figures.

Regular.	$1 00
Sale price.	.90

A customer will take a little private jollying over the counter—in fact many friends are won that way—but just raise your voice and let anyone else hear you and your name is Dennis.

Prompt Delivery.

After the seller the order man takes hold and puts up quickly, neatly and correctly the purchases and places them on the delivery floor. Women like prompt delivery, and it pays to please the ladies; in fact a good delivery man is a jewel indeed; he both wins and holds trade.

The office cogs keep the accounts promptly to date, are courteous in settling and adjusting bills, and tell the engineer how his oil is holding out.

Every portion of work is parcelled out, and every cog knows its work. The engineer merely supplies the oil and brains to direct.

The engineer never reproves any of the cogs before the others unless where a warning is deserved and will serve as a lesson to the others. The shelves are redressed every week, and every cog has his or her niche to dress regularly, and things are changed often to give an appearance of freshness.

Everything with a place and everything with a price ticket, that is the rule. Somehow a woman imagines a ticketed article to be a bargain.

There is agitation over displaying goods on the street as it is claimed the dust spoils them. Now, look here. Suppose your turn your entire stock of fruit in one day. The streets are waterd. It's true you couldn't turn half that if you didn't display your fruit—ticket it—push it. Well, suppose all that; and doesn't it pay to show up the goods? Of course no woman wants dusty berries, but who kicks over a dusty apple or pear?

Now, goods displayed on tops of shelves are objected to. Canned goods spoil, but first-class grocers change their stock too often to allow that.

Cleanliness.

A well-swept floor is good—a well-scrubbed floor is better—but a well-swept, well-scrubbed, well-oiled floor is the best yet.

Women hate dust—especially where they buy eatables.

Coffee is ground after sale. Firm's name on everything possible—tea, coffee, baking powder, jelly powder, soap, extracts, etc. Don't advertise other people. Boost yourself—get your name up as a sign for purity, cheapness and goodness, and some day it will sell for hard coin.

Push things in season. Coffee in winter; fruit in summer and tea all the time..

Good refrigerating means good butter—fresh eggs. That means satisfied customers. Ladies would live on good bread and butter and tea.

A man is known by his friends; a grocer by his customers. Your waggon stopping at Jones' has perhaps induced Smith to deal with you.

Search for trade diligently. Newly married people are easily trained to deal with you.

Your driver can win trade or drive it from you.

Friendship is good in a store, but not too much—just friendly co-operation.

The engineer must have command of himself to rule others. Never get excited; it's an object lesson to the cogs who imitate him. As the boss is, so are the clerks. So an engineer has a tremendous responsibility; and a reputation for unfailing evenness, firmness and fairness is not to be bought for money, but is the result of years of patient endeavor. That is why he is boss.

FOR WESTERN DEALERS.

The Codville-Georgeson Co., of Winnipeg, have a plan to promote the sales of baking powder which should interest every western grocer and general store man. Larger sales and larger profits are promised as a sure result. A post card will bring particulars.

FROM GROCER CORRESPONDENTS

CHATHAM.

The organization problem here has not yet reached that stage where the manner in which the trade shall organize is a a moot problem. In fact, it is still a very new question to most of the grocers here.

It is only since last January (after a lapse of several years) that the local branch of the Retail Merchants' Association has been quickened into active life. The grocers who would naturally take the initiative in the forming of an organization of their own have spent their time and efforts largely in making the R.M.A. a success. The matter of forming an independent grocers' organization has been, as a result, overlooked.

There is at present no independent grocers' organization in this city. Such organizations have been formed here in the past, and have in their time done some good work; but they have inevitably succumbed to the chilling indifference of the majority of the trade.

Chatham at present possesses a branch of the Retail Merchants' Association. Thanks to the efforts of Organizer Brubaker, aided by a number of local men, this branch has lately been stirred into genuine activity, and gives promise of accomplishing much good. It has taken hold of a number of topics, particularly that of semi-weekly market days, and it possesses among its membership quite a large number of grocers. Several of the "sections" have been organized, notably the dry goods section; but there have been no steps taken thus far toward forming a grocers' section.

In respect to organization the grocers labor under considerable disadvantages. There are upwards of 50 grocers in the city; but the difficulty of bringing all, or even a majority, of the trade together at any given time is one of the things which stand particularly in the way of effecting an organization of any kind. Furthermore, the grocers, as a rule, have longer hours than dealers in other lines. Many of those on outlying streets draw their main revenue from their evening business.

"We ought to have an organization," declared Wm. Anderson, vice-president of the R.M.A. "There are many matters of interest to the trade which need to be dealt with. The matter of freight rates particularly, needs looking after, since these are utterly unjust to grocers."

BELLEVILLE.

The grocers of the City of the Bay are highly elated over the splendid Easter trade, and are looking forward to a very busy spring. In fact, they have been so busy that at the last meeting of the city council, that body was urged to devise ways and means whereby Belleville could have one free market day during the week, as the merchants claimed that on numerous occasions it was impossible to wait upon the many customers who flooded the city on Saturdays. The petition presented to the council was signed by many of the leading grocers, and at the council meeting, Arthur Wallbridge, of the firm of Wallbridge & Clarke, addressed the council. He said the retail merchants believed that if the council could arrange to abolish all market tolls each Tuesday or Thursday, it would be of great benefit to the merchants as well as the citizens. He thought as Hastings county was the first in Ontario to abolish the old toll roads, they should lead off with a free market day a week. The mayor and alderman promised to give the matter consideration and it was referred to the market and city property committee.

There have been several important changes in the grocery business in this city recently, the most recent being the firm of Hamm & Fairfield, who about a year ago took over the old established business of Adam Henry. The latter conducted the grocery so well known under his name for over thirty years and has now retired. Eugene Fairfield will continue the business in the old stand, and Mr. Hamm will remove to Philadelphia. He is a nephew of Adam Henry and a very fine young man. The same can be said of Mr. Fairfield, who is a son of D. J. Fairfield, known as the silver-tongued orator in the Bay of Quinte district.

The firm of Harker & Pearson has also divided, John Harker continuing the business in the old stand. George Pearson has purchased the grocery business of O. S. Hicks, which the latter bought about a year ago from the Hitchon Brothers. Apropos of this subject it may be of interest to the readers of The Grocer to know that Mr. Harker has taken this paper since its incention, when he was a clerk with John Shields & Company in Toronto some twenty-one years ago, and he told your correspondent the other day, that he looks for the paper each week just as regularly as he does his meals. For eighteen years Mr. Harker was engaged with Wallbridge & Clarke here, and he naturally understands the business from first to last. He has a splendid business and it is steadily increasing.

The resumption of the rolling mills, with the coming in of a great many families has been of a decided benefit to the grocers as well as other merchants. These are nearly all highly paid men. The new cement plant about to be erected will also prove of great benefit to this city.

Belleville certainly has reason to be proud of her grocery stores, and one that deserves special mention is that of Wallbridge & Clarke. In a recent competition for the best dressed windows advertising Bovril, that firm won fourth prize in eastern Ontario. This firm has two stores in the city and they are both models of up-to-dateness. They believe in extensive advertising, the work being under the able supervision of Arthur Wallbridge, whose newspaper experience on some of the leading New York journals stands him in good stead.

Norman Dafoe has purchased the grocery business of Mrs. Snider, on the corner of St. Charles and Evans street.

Your correspondent in his next budget will tell your readers something about the Belleville Saturday market, which is well-known throughout the country as one of the best in Ontario, despite the boasts made by some of your other correspondents. The cheap prices and splendid quality are what has given it such a splendid reputation.

PETERBOROUGH.

Mrs. Cooper, representing the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., of Toronto, is at Messrs. White & Gillespie's, demonstrating the superior qualities of Pure Gold jellies, puddings and salad dressings. She has been here all week and has received many ladies of the city and surrounding country.

All the cheese factories in this district are actively engaged in preparing for the opening of the cheese making season. The season is later here than it is in the west and will not open until the last week in April. The first meeting of the cheese board will be held on the 15th of May, although it is not expected that the first lot will be very heavy as the dairy cows are all late in coming in, and the supply of milk is short. But the cheese should be very much better than last year, in fact it should be among the best produced in the province. The farmers are taking a great interest in the cow testing associations and are establishing cool curing rooms at the factories and at the dairies. The cheese makers are also up against the labor proposition, and the majority are putting in agitators for stirring the milk. Machinery is also being adopted wherever it is possible.

Building operations are being started and this promises to be the busiest year in the history of the city. The collegiate institute which will cost $65,000, the normal school costing over $100,000 and the enlargement of the north ward school, costing $25,000, are all under way. In addition to this are large extensions to the factories and several hundred dwellings.

In several cities, London especially, the grocers are taking a very active interest in the agitation for an independent telephone service. The grocers here wish them every success. Peterborough is one of the very few cities enjoying competition in telephones. For the past year and a half the Canadian Machine Telephone Company has had its system in operation and it is proving most satisfactory. It is, however, still in its experimental stages and as soon as the company gets its new factory erected for manufacturing its apparatus the present system will be greatly improved. However, there are now nearly 275 'phones in use in the city. The result of the competition is that the Bell Telephone Co. has made a wonderful improvement in its service here. An up-to-date apparatus was put in at the central, more girls were put on, and the system was improved in every respect. As a matter of fact, Peterborough has the best local and long distance telephone services in Canada, bar none. This is the direct result of competition.

The retail butchers have recently become very progressive. They are not satisfied with the keen competition which has always existed in their own trade. They are not even satisfied with the natural consumption of meat. But they are vieing with one another to see who can establish the most up-to-date, handsome and attractive store. Thousands of dollars have been spent by the landlords and tenants with the result that Peterborough can boast of butcher stores the equal of any in the province. This was not enough; trade was not coming fast enough to pay interest and sinking fund on the money invested. A new scheme had to be introduced and now four of the butchers are carrying canned goods, pickles, cheese, teas and coffees. They are cutting in on the grocery business in their efforts to draw all the butcher business to themselves. One firm conducted a "pink tea" for several days before Easter and sold teas, coffees and canned goods at cost. Another butcher advertised extensively that he would give away a pound of the best tea with every purchase of meat amounting to a certain sum. He also sold canned goods at cost. These butchers do not handle second rate goods either. They have the very best and they are disposing of a large quantity, so much in fact that the grocers feel the effect already. The butchers do not make anything on their grocery business and they don't expect to. They are also selling meat at very low prices, and better meat cannot be purchased any place. The best steaks and roasts of beef sell for 12½ cents and all other meats in proportion. Whether they are making anything or not is hard to say. The grocers do not care, but they do care about the inroads that are being made into their business.

This is another strong reason why the Peterborough grocers should be banded together. At the present time they are able to do absolutely nothing towards meeting this competition. All the sympathy they get is from their own individual selves. But had the grocers a good, active organization they could soon put a stop to the butchers' overzealousness. The grocers could retaliate by offering fresh meats of all kinds at cost or below cost. They could sell canned goods, teas, etc., at and below cost. They would not feel the loss nearly so much as the butchers.

There is no kick against the butchers handling groceries if they would sell them at a reasonable profit. Still this and a few more knocks may wake the grocers up and they will see the necessity and great benefits of organization in an entirely new light.

It has been rumored during the past few days that president Robert Fair was thinking of calling the annual meeting of the branch of the Retail Merchants' Association here. This association has been dead for a long time. Only one or two meetings have been called since the last annual meeting, and then there was hardly a corporal's guard present. But grocers here are alive, and when the next meeting is called there will likely be a record attendance.

* * *

In discussing the action of the butchers in handling groceries with some of the leading grocers, your correspondent was told that if the butchers carried the thing any farther a butcher business would be added to two or three of the grocery stores. One very prominent grocer said that it was his intention to do so in a very short time. He would, he said, import all his meat from Chicago, which he claimed he could do for less money than he could buy meat for around here. He would also have the advantage of a better class of meat. The article sent out by Armour and Swift, of Chicago, is the best in the world and this would very seriously affect the local butchers.

EASTER TRADE AT KENTVILLE.

Good Friday was the first real spring day this season, warm, with bright sunshine. The stores all closed at noon. Easter Saturday was mild but overcast with a few showers at noon. Although the roads were bad, the Easter trade was never better and the grocers were kept busy until midnight. All branches of trade report good sales. The D.A. railway never carried so many passengers at any previous Easter, and this shows that money is not so scarce and the growing tendency of all classes to make more of this festal season. Kentville merchants are very conservative and not inclined to pay much attention to the advice of your journal in matters of window display, and let the dry goods and millinery people do that part. This is a great mistake, but they are slowly improving along this line.

The large number of visitors in town made it a good thing for the grocers, as citizens having guests like to spread a good board and give their guests the best going. That is how Kentville people look at it. Nothing is too good for company, and a hearty welcome always.

The season of bad roads is here again and the snow is going fast. The frost this severe winter got as deep as three feet underground, so the roads may stay bad for some time. Our grocers are following the advice of The Grocer of last year and paying more attention at Easter to the confectionery end of the business at this special season, and find it profitable. It is such little things as these that help out the small margin on staples.

A new departure by DeWolfe & Lamont, of the Red Store, was devoting one of their large show windows to potted plants. This drew a large number of ladies, many of them not regular customers, and many of them made other purchases. It proved a drawing card and not a pot was left unsold. The other window was full of fruits, and made a pleasing contrast. Winter trade has been an average one, and the outlook is all right. The poor return for apples this year is felt all through the valley, but all other farm produce is top-notch.

Best fresh eggs sold at 25c. a dozen for Easter; three years ago it was two dozen for a quarter.

M. G. DEWOLFE.

STRATFORD.

The most plentiful commodity on the market at the present time is eggs. They are selling at from 16c to 17c per doben. The stock offered is fresh and of good appearance. Butter prices remain about the same. It is stated that the cheese factories throughout the country are beginning operations and this is probably the reason for the somewhat scarcity of the product.

As yet pure and fresh maple syrup is very scarce, in fact it is on sale at very few of the grocery stores, although a good quantity was offered for sale on the market. The price asked on the market was 40c per quart. In speaking of the supply one grocer remarked to your correspondent that the article was very scarce and that the outlook was not very encouraging. All dealers are making the same complaint; that it is almost impossible this season to secure any good maple syrup. The cause is found in weather conditions, which have prevented manufacturers of the article from preparing for the market the usual quantity owing to the absence of the sap. The colder weather of the past few days may, however, have the effect of prolonging the season, and more syrup may yet appear on the market. The grocer referred to above, one of the leading dealers in the city, went on to say that almost every year now he had to get a quantity of syrup from outside places to supplement the quantity he could procure from local sources.

Mrs. Jane Davis, who conducts a small grocer business on Huron St. is erecting a fine new store a little further up on the same street. Laborers are busily at work and the foundation was completed this week. At present she finds that her store is too small to conduct the increased trade and do it properly.

The Easter season seems to be still with Classic City grocers. The stores still retain their Easter attractiveness and the windows present a very pretty picture.

The other day one of our most progressive merchants was interrupted by the police while he was unpacking his goods on the sidewalk. This is strictly contrary to the by-law and the merchant was warned not to continue to dump his goods out on the sidewalk.

J. Clulow, a resident of this city, the other day presented to one of the city grocers a very large parsnip stalk. It was one of last year's growth which he uprooted from his garden. It measured over thirty-three inches in length.

Many of Stratford's grocers and the other merchants find that they are many times too busy to clean their own windows, so they hire the services of the Stratford Window Cleaning Co. This company are doing a good business.

Despite the blustering weather, the grocers here are preparing for their Spring trade and are making exhibitions of the essentials necessary for Spring housecleaning, such as brooms, brushes and other sundries.

GUELPH.

Two months ago, A. M. McLaren bought J. A. McCrea & Son's branch grocers. As will be seen from the accompanying cut. Messrs. McLaren and McCrae are excellent stock-keepers, everything with a place and everything in its place. The fixtures are a credit to any store and were installed by Jones Brothers, of Toronto. One of the best and most valued fixtures is the large refrigerator, practically cold storage, with a room at the back where you can store fruit from Saturday night until Monday morning as good as new.

There is an up-to-date National cash register, which, we hope, will jingle aloud all day. The delivery room is in the rear, thus avoiding confusion. Mr. McLaren uses the counter check book store, on the Elora road. Mr. McLaren bought the business, lock, stock and barrel, and kept on all the old hands. Wm. McCrea is his head clerk, and a better window dresser, stock-keeper and salesman would be hard to find. He is popular with both the old and new customers and we look to see a big business done. Mr. McLaren is an old grocer, having once owned the business which W. H. Millman, now a Toronto broker, used to own on Wyndham street. After leaving the grocery business he went into the wholesale and retail tea business.

Well, eight years on the road both tired and enriched Mr. McLaren, so that we have the pleasure of welcoming him back into the ranks of our progressive and the box system of accounts. As Mr. McLaren is an old traveler he knows a traveler's woes and has always the glad hand and a cheerful smile for the men of the grip whether he buys or not.

Mr. McLaren at present employs four hands and will, no doubt, have to increase.

Mr. McLaren is a new subscriber to The Grocer, and he took it on the word of a brother grocer, that it is the best trade paper yet.

The Grocer has much pleasure in wishing Mr. McLaren a happy and prosperous year.

There have been a great number of fires in Guelph lately, in fact, the merchants are almost wondering if there is a fire bug at work. A fire occurs nearly every day, sometimes twice. One day an oil warehouse by the G.T.R. track is razed, the next a church is consumed, and,during the night part of the fair ground is lowered. This is the fire insurance man's harvest, just as a wreck is the accident man's profit.

Saturday was a good market for butter and eggs; the butter at 22 cents and the eggs at 15 cents a dozen. Fowl was very scarce. These are Canada's years of plenty, and any one who cannot make money now will never make it.

The trouble is, too many men think the grocery business is a cinch—that a man with a small capital and a little credit and no experience can step into a little easy gold mine, that with a little care and attention will yield him a sure and profitable living.

The pages of Dun's show only too clearly how these poor simple souls get "done." The grocery business, to pay; is a science. A big turnover with a small profit is better than a small turnover with big profit, as in the first you have fresh goods, a reputation for doing big business; while in the second, you often sell stale goods and have a poorer reputation, both among the public and the wholesalers, for in these days it is the man who delivers the goods who wins the claps.

I once knew a good merrhant who was always advertising special sales, special prices, and yet he never sold without a profit. It was all in the buying. The public loves, all unconsciously perhaps, to take advantage of another's misfortune as is witnessed by the rush to fire sales. Merchants should understand this and take advantage, by giving some reason for sales as to why they were forced to practically give these goods away. The public always respond if they have confidence in the firm.

KINGSTON.

The retail merchants held their monthly meeting at the Board of Trade rooms last week. It was well attended, and representatives from the different branches were present. The delegate, W. A. Mitchell, who was sent to the Toronto convention told of the many good things relative to trade spoken at the meeting; each delegate went home feeling an inspiration to do good work in his city.

It is a pity more retailers don't turn out to the local meetings, for the fact of meeting together creates harmony and good feeling. Retailers must know, that the bugle call will sound shortly, 'all in, all in," and the sooner bad feeling toward each other is done away with the better. Even brothers sometimes dissolve partnership and go in opposition to each other, and become the worst of enemies—Cain and Abel again.

It's too bad, too bad! Boys: let love govern your will and there will be no room for hatred in your breasts. Life is too short. Think over it and be friends. You will never regret it. If you are angry at a customer who is running down your goods, or saying something mean, just keep your temper till she goes out, then go into the storehouse, take a hop, step and jump, and light on a bag of bran or rice, give it two or three good kicks and a punch and you will feel better. Generally the best people have tempers, but keep them under control. Like good steel they are sharper and wear better, and are more serviceable to society than the pot metal variety.

Early Closing.

The early closing of stores is becoming more popular every year. Mechanics demand increased wages and eight hours a day. What do merchants get, and what hours do they slave? Taking out the dinner hour, we work here eleven hours a day, four days in the week; and Fridays and Saturdays, thirteen and fifteen. Who is to blame? The merchants themselves. The majority want to close earlier still and it will surely come. Then worn-out looks and bald heads will be rare.

Mr. McDonald of Toronto, and Mr. Black of Pittsburg, Pa., called on the best trade last week. They make a great team, but Mac is too fast for the Black, so they had to go tandem. They pulled in a lot of good orders. Mr. Black is of the good-natured and large-hearted species and made himself very popular. We will be glad to see him again.

Ex-Alderman Bassam, the popular grocer, has sold out his stock and good will to Mr. Hodson, formerly of Seeley's Bay. Mr. Bassam will rest all summer at his cottage on the St. Lawrence river, where the cool breezes and beautiful scenery will make him robust and strong. Mr. Bassam belongs to one of our best choirs, and his sweet voice will be heard on the waters this summer. Me thinks I hear him singing:

"I am a grocery man, I am, I am a grocery man. It is, it is a glorious thing to be a grocery man."

I must take my camera down and take a snap shot of him, and make a good exposure and perhaps send it to The Grocer.

The old and familiar wholesale grocery and warehouse building on Ontario street, occupied years ago by Fenwick, Hendry & Company, is going to be sold by auction and knocked down to the highest bidder.

Big Grain Firm.

James Richardson & Son, the largest buyers of grain in the Dominion, are building an extensive wharf and pier where cars can run out a few hundred yards in the river and unload grain barges, thus facilitating matters.. They are the kind of citizens we are proud of. They never ask for bonuses or look for grafts.

The genial representative of the Canada Brokerage Company placed some large orders here for fall delivery of tomatoes, corn, peas and pumpkins. They control the output of several Bloomfield canneries. It is to be hoped next fall, no swill goods will be put up by canners to dishonor the good name of Canada.. Competition is keen and quality is a great factor. Get a good name, Mr. Canner, and your sales will swell and your bank account will grow.

James Redden & Company bought a fine team of horses. Their increased business demands speed. Quick delivery means a good deal. Grocers should pay more attention to good-looking delivery wagons and horses. It all helps trade.

LONDON.

The price-cutting referred to last week has spread to a number of other grocers, and as a result housekepers are revelling in granulated sugar at 20 and 21 lbs. for a dollar, canned goods at what they cost the dealer, also soaps, which, in view of the increased cost of raw material, should rather be advanced in price. In conversation with your correspondent this morning the president of the Retail Grocers' Association, C. H. Lee, said he saw no way of preventing price-cutting in view of the fact that, unlike the manufacturers, the retailers are prohibited by law from regulating prices. However, the association will meet in annual session Wednesday evening of this week, and the question is sure to come up, but from present indications there is little likelihood of a setlement of the trouble. Mr. Lee will not seek re-election to the presidency. Other matters that will probably receive an airing are, the telephone question and street sprinkling, which latter, seeing that the city is up against a shortage of water, is likely to be a serious thing to the merchant during the dry Summer time.

A London firm that has enjoyed a goodly share of the prevailing prosperity is that of Gorman & Eckert, wholesale coffee and spice dealers. For some time it has been felt that the spacious premises on Clarence St. were inadequate to meet the demands of the firm's increasing trade and recently, as previously stated in The Canadian Grocer, they purchased the large building in the east end, formerly occupied by the Bennet Furniture Co. This place is being overhauled and remodelled throughout, and two large additions—one 140x40 feet and the other 40 feet square—are being put up, which means 20,000 square feet more of floor space. When completed the establishment will be the largest of the kind in Canada, and will be equipped with the most up-to-date spice, coffee roasting, scouring and grating machines to be found anywhere. The building will not be ready for occupancy until July or August, and meantine they will continue in the present premises, which, of course, will not be available for Lind, Kerrigan & Co., who recently purchased the building, until midsummer.

John Shaw, who for many years has conducted a grocery business at the corner of Askin St. and the Wortley Road, south London, is retiring from business and Frank Robinson will be the future occupant of the premises.

Fruit-growers of Western Ontario are already beginning to talk of the crop prospects for this year. Harold English, proprietor of the orchard fruit farm, Harwich, predicts that apples will be an excellent crop, according to present indications. Pears, especially the Kiefers, will, he says, be a total failure, and peaches will be a very light crop. Mr. English states that the past Winter has proven very destructive to the San Jose scale, which does not appear to be nearly so active this season as in former years. There is a good showing for the smaller fruits, and, unless some setback occurs, the crop promises to be a very fair one.

The oldest grocer in London is Alex. Tytler, who has been almost continously engaged in the business here since the early fifties. For some years past, Mr. Tytler has conducted a grocery brokerage business here, and is one of the most popular men in the trade. He is representative of leading houses of the four continents, and though now well advanced in years, is still a man of remarkable vigor and energy, and can set a good pace for many of the young chaps. He is "business" from the opening to the closing of business hours, and seems good for many years to come. Mr. Tytler is a native of Scotland, and Aberdeen at that.

GALT.

Allan Deans, one of Galt's most progressive grocers, was recently married in Stratford, and is receiving the congratulations of his many friends.

Patrick Radigan, one of the most widely-known grocers in Western Ontario, has been confined to his bed with an attack of grip and other complications for more than a week. While there is not at present much change in his condition his numerous friends and acquaintances are hoping for his speedy recovery. During Mr. Radigan's illness the business is being most capably conducted by Robert Percy.

MONTREAL'S GROCERY EXHIBITION

How it was Conceived and Those who are Behind it — Architectural Designs an Attraction in Themselves — Aid to Charity.

Last spring a pure food show was held in Montreal, in the Victoria Rink, ostensibly under the auspices of the Retail Merchants' Association. It, however, became rather common property that the show was run by certain speculators. The possibilities, however, of a properly run pure food show, or exhibition of groceries, were demonstrated to the exhibitors, particularly because some of them got together during the progress of the show and made arrangements that put the exhibition on a somewhat different level.

After the exhibition closed last year some of the exhibitors put their heads together, with the result that this year the Exhibition of Groceries was arranged for. It was considered advisable, from all points of view, that it should be held by the Retail Merchants' Association. The Arena Rink in Montreal has been secured and arrangements made whereby the provincial committee of the grocery section of the Retail Merchants' Association were to hold the show.

A. P. MURRAY
Sales Manager, Edwardburg Starch Co., and Chairman of Advisory Committee Exhibition of Groceries.

However, to assure all the possible help and to prevent any misunderstanding amongst the exhibitors, an advisory committee was formed composed of a number of the leading manufacturers, wholesalers and grocery brokers. It was also arranged that only the leading firms in each line would be asked to exhibit, and the list of the exhibitors to-day shows the wisdom and care exercised by those in charge. There are some firms who should have come in to make the exhibition a more complete success, but, on the other hand, there are no exhibitors that anyone could feel displeased with.

The Directors of the Show.

The Advisory Committee represent so many varied interests that they are well equipped to deal with such a problem. The wholesale trade are represented by A. Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Co.; S. J. Mathewson, of Mathewson's Sons, and Jos. Ethier, of Laporte, Martin & Co.; the brokers by Mr. Laflamme, of Rose & Laflamme, and W. H. Dunn; and the manufacturers by Col. Labelle, of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co.; H. Clark, of Wm. Clark, and A. P. Murray, of the Edwardsburg Starch Co.

A musical programme has been arranged for every afternoon and evening. The show will be open from 10 a.m. till 10 p.m., but naturally the afternoon and evening will be the most attractive. The formal opening will take place on the evening of the 17th, and His Worship the Mayor of Montreal will officiate. Hon. Sydney Fisher will also be present at the opening, representing the department of the Government that in a way has most to do with the question of pure food and such products. A special band attraction has been arranged for that evening.

Designs in Architecture.

Architecturally the exhibition will be unique. The designs for the various booths were prepared by one of the best architects in this line. The centre row will consist of two kiosks, one at each end, with a series of intermediate booths. The whole scheme of architecture and decorating will be harmonious. To arrive at this result the committee in charge arranged to make contracts on behalf of the different exhibitors, thereby insuring complete harmony in the booths, and also the least possible cost in the matter.

Another feature worthy of note is that there will be a telephone exchange, and quite a number of booths will be connected with it. The holders of the exhibition have arranged for extensive advertising through the daily press, and, further than this, the individual exhibitors are doing their share. The Advisory Committee, however, have further than this formed a syndicate to try and obtain a larger crowd in attendance. The expenditure of the manufacturers exhibiting will amount to many thousands of dollars, and every possible arrangement is being made by the exhibitors, as well as by the committee, to have the show in every way a phenomenal success.

Aid to Charity.

Saturday, the 20th, has been set aside as Hospital Day, and the entire gate receipts will be donated to the two leading Montreal charities, the Montreal General Hospital and the Notre Dame Hospital. It is well known that Mr. Albert Hebert has taken his father's place in charge of the finances of the Notre Dame Hospital, and there is no doubt but that a great crowd will be on hand that day.

In addition to the ordinary exhibits, there will be special attractions, some of them given by the exhibition and others by the different exhibitors, showing in a practical way how the different pure foods are made and packed. In a general way the idea is to make the show as instructive as possible, not only to the consumers, but also to the retail grocers.

It has been arranged that a restaurant will be run on the premises for the convenience of the demonstrators and exhibitors, and also the public. This will be quite a feature, as the restaurant will be entirely Chinese in its decoration and general equipment, and in addition to the ordinary meals there will be a special service of the standard Chinese dishes.

GROCERY MANAGEMENT.

The article in this issue on how to manage a grocery store was written by a young man trained in the best grocery stores in Western Ontario. He's not an "engineer" himself, but he's in the direct line of succession. His article is "good stuff." Read it." Then, if you have some other ideas on the same line shape them into an article for The Canadian Grocer. We would like to make the pages of The Grocer a clearing-house for grocerymen's ideas. It is by the exchange of ideas that both the trade and the traders can be improved.

DON'T MISS IT.

Retail grocers within reasonable reach of Montreal will do well to attend the exhibition which opens in that city on April 16. Manufacturers and wholesalers have gone to great expense and expended much energy to make this a memorable event to the foodstuff trade. Of course the public will come and the retail trade will share with the wholesalers and manufacturers the benefits of the increased trade stimulated thereby; but the fair will fail to attain its largest possibilities if it does not reach the retailers. It cannot go to them, but the managers have held out every inducement to bring the retailers to the show. There isn't a grocer, no matter how well up he may be, who cannot gather valuable ideas at such an exhibition as this. And ideas are the life of trade. We say that no matter how well up in his business a grocer may be he can gather ideas at the exhibition; it is the man best up who will gather most ideas. But for every retailer of foodstuffs it is an opportunity not to be missed. Missed opportunities pave the way to bankruptcy. Don't miss this one.

TELEPHONE COMPETITION.

Towns or cities contemplating an independent telephone system will be interested in what our Peterborough correspondent says in this issue about the result of telephone competition in that city. "Peterborough," he says, "has the best local and long distance telephone services in Canada, bar none. This is the direct result of competition." This is about what one would expect and it is strange that a monopoly can hoodwink Canadian business men so long.

THE RIGHT SORT.

The Maritime Board of Trade is a growing power, and the more men like Secretary Creed whom it can enlist in its service the greater will its power become, and the more widely will its influence be felt. Mr. Creed is doing splendid work, honest, conscientious and enthusiastic work, for his provinces and their commercial interests. The importance of a good secretary cannot be overestimated, and the position is no sinecure. It requires a man of intelligence, ability, influence, enthusiasm and tact, and to feel that he is filling it successfully is an accomplishment of which any man may be legitimately proud. Four resolutions adopted at the last annual meeting: Fast Atlantic mail service; extension of the trans-continental railroads to Nova Scotia sea ports; the union of Canada and Newfoundland, and Imperial Federation, together constitute a moderately ambitious programme. To be able to feel that the responsibility for the ultimate recognition by Parliament of all that these resolutions involve rests largely upon his shoulders may account in some measure for the excellence of the results which Mr. Creed already has to his credit, and spur him on to renewed efforts and greater accomplishments in the future. It is very gratifying to the members of the Maritime Board that their resolutions are now more than ever receiving attention at Ottawa and the provincial capitals. This is almost wholly the work of Mr. Creed, aided by the increasing influence of the board.

WESTERN ASSOCIATION PROGRESS.

Secretary W. A. Coulson reports that very gratifying progress is being made by assistant organizer Ledoux, who is busy organizing the trade in the country districts of Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Mr. Ledoux is holding district meetings and organizing the dealers in the same towns into local sections. He is having good success in bringing rival dealers together and in settling local difficulties, and as a result of the hard work that he is doing the association is rapidly growing in influence and membership.

At the February meeting a strong committee was appointed to look into the feasibility of a mutual fire insurance company for western merchants, whose risks would, of course, be isolated. This committee is receiving valuable assistance from Mr. Ledoux, as he is securing the promises of many association members to place their insurance with the proposed company in case it is organized.

Winnipeg dealers have set the country trade an example how to conduct a "delinquent list" of dead beat customers, and the country districts are following the same plan. The secretary is commencing to issue these lists monthly for the information and protection of country members.

LABOR FOR THE WEST.

At least sixty thousand laborers are required this Spring in the Canadian west if the season's programme of railway construction is to be carried through. Where can this labor be secured? The railway companies find it much easier to find the money with which to finance their great enterprises than to find the men to wield the pick and the shovel. Certainly the labor can not be secured in Eastern Canada, for the east has its own labor shortage to face. There is a continued movement of population from east to west, but it is for the most part of the class who want to learn farming, take up land or go into business; not the class looking for work on railway construction.

The problem is a big one and it is pressing for immediate solution. The railways must be built if the development of the country is not to be seriously retarded, and, consequently, the labor must be found somewhere. In their perplexity the railway companies are looking to the Orient, and Oriental contract labor will not be introduced without a struggle and fierce opposition from the Canadian labor unions. The proper solution is not easy to find.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Fish—Revised.
Rice—Advanced.
Currants—Easier.
Evaporated applies—Easier.

Montreal, April 11, 1907.

Spring opening of business appears to be satisfactory on the whole. Quite a number of good sized orders are being booked every day for shipment at the opening of navigation. Collections in the country are said to be fair to medium. Some houses report having considerable trouble with slow pay customers, but state that payments have never been better with good grocers.

No startling price changes are to be recorded this week. Jobbers report a steady demand for canned goods, small quantities being asked for. Corn on the cob has been advanced in price. Sugar is strong this week, but no change has occurred in prices. Molasses is easier in the primary market, there having been a drop of 2 cents. A fair amount of tea is being sold at prices which are about the same as those which have been asked for the past couple of weeks. Coffees and spices are in fair demand. Evaporated apples are selling at figures somewhat below those which have been asked lately, but the market is not noticeably easier. Beans are not so strong as they have been. Rice has been advanced by the mills owing to shortage of supplies. Tapioca is firm.

SUGAR—A firm market rules but no change in prices has yet occurred. It is possible that there may be an advance in refined as raw is higher. This, however, time only will tell. Business is good, considerable buying being done.
